XL. The Local Government and Legislature of each Province are to be constructed in such manner as the existing Legislature of such Province shall provide in the Act consenting to the Union.

XLI. The Local Legislatures will have power to alter or amend their Constitution from time to time.

XLII. The Local Legislature will have power to make laws respecting the following subjects:

1. Direct taxation and imposition of duties on the export of timber, logs, masts, spars, deals and sawn lumber, and of coals and other minerals.
2. Borrowing money on the credit of the Province.
3. The establishment and tenure of local offices, and the appointment and payment of local officers.
4. Agriculture.
5. Immigration.
6. Education; saving the rights and privileges which the Protestant and Catholic minority in both Canadas may possess as to their denominational schools, at the time when the union goes into operation.
7. The sale and management of public lands, excepting land belonging to the General Government.
8. Sea coast and inland fisheries.
9. The establishment, maintenance and management of penitentiaries, and of public and reformatory prisons.
10. The establishment, maintenance and management of hospitals, asylums, charities and eleemosynary institutions.
11. Municipal institutions.
12. Shop, saloon, tavern, auctioneer and other licenses.
13. Local works.
14. The incorporation of private or local companies, except such as relate to matters assigned to Parliament.
15. Property and civil rights, excepting those portions thereof assigned to Parliament.
16. Inflicting punishment by fine, penalties, imprisonment or otherwise for the breach of law passed in relation to any subject within their jurisdiction.
17. The administration of justice, including the constitution, maintenance and organization of the Courts—both of civil and criminal jurisdiction, and including also the procedure in civil matters.
18. And generally all matters of a private or local nature.

XLIII. The power of respiting, reprieving, commuting and pardoning prisoners convicted of crimes, and of remitting of sentences in whole or in part, which belongs of right to the Crown, will be administered by the Local Government of each Province, in Council, subject to any instructions to any from time to time issued from the General Government, and any provision that may be made in this behalf by Parliament.

GENERAL PROVISIONS.

XLIV. In regard to all matters, power which jurisdiction belongs to both the General and Local Legislatures, other than the General Parliament, power is given to the Legislature, and to the Local Governments, as they are respectively to the Local Governments and Legislatures.

XLV. Both the English and French languages may be employed, in the General Legislature and its proceedings, and also in the Local Legislatures of Lower Canada, and in the Federal and Local Courts of Lower Canada.

XLVI. No lands or property belonging to the General or Local Government are to be liable to taxation.

XLVII. All bills for appropriating any part of the Public Revenue, or for imposing any new Tax or Impost, must originate in the House of Commons or the Local Assembly, as the case may be.

XLVIII. The House of Commons or Legislative Assembly is not to originate or pass any vote, resolution, address or bill for the appropriation of any part of the public revenue, or of any tax or impost to any purpose, not first recommended to the House of Assembly by Message of the Governor General, or the Lieutenant Governor, as the case may be, during the session in which such vote, resolution, address or bill is passed.

XLIX. Any bill of the General Legislature may be reserved in the usual manner of her Majesty's assent, and any bill of the local Legislatures may in like manner be reserved for the consideration of the Governor General.

L. Any bill passed by the General Parliament is to be subject to disallowance by Her Majesty within two years, as in the case of bills passed by the legislatures of the said Provinces hitherto, and in the manner any bill passed by a local legislature shall be subject to disallowance by the Governor General within one year after the passing thereof.

LI. The seat of Government of the Federated Provinces will be at Quebec, subject to the Royal prerogative.

LII. Subject to any future action of the respective local governments in respect thereof, the seat of the local government in Upper Canada shall be Toronto; of Lower Canada Quebec; and the seats of the local government in the other Provinces shall be as at present.

FINANCES, &c.

LIII. All cash, bankers' balances and other cash securities of each Province, at the time of the Union, are to belong to the General Government.

LIV. The following public works and property of each Province will belong to the General Government, to wit:—

1. Canals.
2. Public harbors.
3. Light houses and piers.
4. Steamboats, dredges and public vessels
5. River and lake improvements.
6. Railway and railway stocks, mortgages and other debts due by railway companies.
7. Military roads.
8. Custom houses, post offices, and other public buildings, except such as may be set aside by the General Government for the use of the local legislatures and Governments.
9. Property transferred by the Imperial Government and known as Ordnance property.
10. Armories, drill sheds, military stores, and munitions of war; and
11. Lands set apart for public purposes.

LV. All lands, mines, minerals and royalties vested in Her Majesty in the Provinces of Upper Canada, Lower Canada, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, for the use of each Province, will belong to the local Government of the territory in which the same shall an estate; subject to any trusts that may exist in respect to any of such lands or to any interest of other persons in respect of the same.

LVI. All sums due from purchasers or lessees of such lands, mines or minerals, at the time of the Union, are also to belong to the local Government.

LVII. The several Provinces are to remain vested with all other public property therein, subject to the right of the confederation to assume any lands or public property required for fortifications or the defence of the country.

LVIII. The General Government is to assume all the debts and liabilities of each Province.

The debts of Canada not specially assumed by Upper Canada or Lower Canada respectively not to exceed at the time of the Union..... $62,500,000
Nova Scotia, to enter into the Confederation with a debt not exceeding..... 8,000,000
And New Brunswick with a debt not exceeding..... 7,000,000

But it is expressly provided that in case Nova Scotia or New Brunswick do not incur liabilities beyond those for which their Governments are now bound, and which shall make their respective debts at the date of Union less than $8,000,000 and $7,000,000 respectively, they shall then be entitled to benefit by the interest at 5 per cent. on the amount not so incurred, in like manner as is hereinafter provided for Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island; the foregoing resolution being in no respect intended to limit the powers now given to the respective Governments of those Provinces by Legislative authority, but only to limit the maximum amount of charge to be brought by them against the General Government. The powers so conferred by the respective Legislatures in the exercise within five years from this date of the same shall then lapse.

LIX. Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, not having incurred debts equal to

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1864.

THE PROPOSED CONSTITUTION.

To-day we give what may be considered a correct outline of the proposed Confederation. It is somewhat lengthy and will require a little patience to peruse the whole; but we trust that the important changes that are contemplated, and their bearing upon the future, will be a sufficient apology for occupying so much space in to-days issue. We can all be interested in the matter. The benefits or disadvantages of the Union will affect every one of us; an acquaintance with the proposed changes will fit us for their reception, and prepare us for properly carrying out the provisions thereof.

The question, however, is occupying the attention of the Press of both sections of the Province, whether the present Parliament should take action in completing the proposed Union, or should there be a general election before the change is effected. There are some who urge that as the present Parliament was not elected with a direct view to dealing with the subject of Confederation, therefore, they should not make any such political changes before an appeal is made to the people to see whether they desire such changes or not. A contemporary in discussing this matter forgets the subject and turns to personalities, attacking the Globe and Mr. Brown, without enlightening in the very much on the matter at issue, endeavouring more to prove, if possible, that the Conservatives, not the Reformers, are, and have been, the peoples guardians, they only, respecting our liberties, rights and privileges at all times. Which did they become the advocates of the peoples rights? When did they begin to respect the peoples' wishes, or intimate a desire to grant the people their just demands? Let past History answer! Who battled so long and nobly for justice for the people of Upper Canada? And which party sought, as long as they could, to entail on us the evils of Church and State connexion, with all its accompanying evils? Which party fought so perpetually to continue the abuses of the Clergy Reserves, and only gave way when they found the populus cry was so unanimous it must be granted? Which party resorted every means to entail on posterity the Union Administration, and Lower Canada subserviency. In fine, when did they ever respect the rights of the the people, or advocate their application? Echo answers, when?

But let us examine the soundness of the theory, that the present Parliament should not deal with the completion of the union of the Provinces, because the Members have not been elected for that express purpose, but We would not ignore the people, s rights to give their opinion on every important question relating to matters that materially affect them. The people should be consulted on all matters, if so if they have not been. But is it not a well known fact that, for the last dozen parliaments the necessity for radical changes was conceded to by the people. At nearly election the necessity was more strongly felt, and the people of Upper Canada, at least elected men in whom they could rely, and men who were pledged to use every lawful means to affect changes that would guarantee to Upper Canada justice, and free us from the misrule of Lower Canada ascendancy. As far as Upper Canada is concerned, we say that the present members have not been elected to deal with this matter is untrue. Lower Canada, however, is a little unwilling to join the Union, unless on its own terms. Do the Conservatives hope to gain an advantage by a general election then, as would enable them to frustrate the whole work of the Conference, and thus doom us to misrule for a few years longer, if not for all time? Perhaps this is the ulterior object of their present outcry, and were it not that we find a part of the liberal press advocating a general election, we would at once have concluded that the sole object of the present outcry was frustration. Every Parliament is chosen to deal with all matters that may come up during its existence, important or non-important. No matter what changes may be proposed in our laws, treaties, boundaries, commerce, or government, it is well admitted that our representatives, for the time being, are empowered to act on our behalf in the matter; and no one denies their right to do so; and why should our present representatives be considered unworthy to deal with all matters that may arise during their incumbency. Another reason against a general election, and an important one too, is the fact that we have had two general elections in the time allotted to one term, and if a third should now take place, we would have it with all its cost and trouble to the country without any direct advantage. Are we prepared, then, to bear the whims of a few, to mulct ourselves in the cost of three elections in a period of about the time of one Parliament? And should an appeal be by any made to the people, as soon as the result of which the new members would be chosen, was completed, a new appeal must again be made. Now if such a system was once inaugurated when would it end? Surely the forbearance of Upper Canada and all no would admit we have to bear many impositions for every trivial object that may arise in the consolidation of our nationality.

The Globe says it is instructed to contradict the statement that the Ministry, said to have found fault with the separate school system, was changed, there being no insurance company adopted, or in any part of it. We can only say we received the statement we have from the source we considered most reliable; our informant may have been misinformed.

FIRES AND INSURANCE COMPANIES.

We have been brought to think in various quarters lately of the fire which took place in the last week of August, and destroyed a part of the Village of Hamilton, and the Provincial Insurance Company, and the two might have been connected in the same way as the connexion of the latter with the burning of Mr. Wilson's premises. Mr. Wilson insured his building in the Provincial Insurance Company for a certain amount. Said building was damaged by fire, and for said damages Mr. Wilson claimed $600. The Company, considering the demand unreasonable, employed an architect, who appraised the damages at $450, but the Company, rather than have trouble, offered $600, which offer Mr. Wilson refused. The Company then, rather than unjustly pay unreasonable demand, determined to repair the damages, and for this purpose employed a respectable builder to do the repairs, giving at the same time instructions to make a good job. This contractor agreed to do the work for $530, and, the Company directed him to put $30 more to it, so as to be able to make a good job. It afterward being found that said contractor thought that he would have little enough for his trouble, we are informed that the Company gave its promise that $80 more would be given rather than not have the work well done. We cannot help admiring that, taking a review of the matter, the Company showed a desire to repair the damages in a sufficient manner—the only difficulty being the possibility of being able to do so. When the work was completed it did not satisfy Mr. Wilson, and in consequence he brought an action against the Company, in this action he obtained a verdict for $50. In behalf of the Company it may be urged that there can be no blame attached to it, as all that could reasonably be done, was done, so as to make the repairs sufficient, and further, as the amount of the verdict and the cost of the repairs do not exceed the sum offered by the Company at first, it may be considered that the offer of the Company was a fair one.

We give the above facts as certified to us, and we think we have put them very plainly before our readers; we will, therefore, leave them to judge between the Company and Mr. Wilson; our only desire being to give the public a true statement of the case. And having no wish to place this Company, or any other Company, in an unfair light before the public, we give below some extracts from the Board of Trade, Toronto, which will show the standing of the Provincial Insurance Company at different periods hitherto, as well as at present. We are also informed this is the only disputed claim the Company has had for several years.

From Report of the Board of Trade, Toronto, for 1866.

"The 'Provincial' after having gone through vicissitudes of the most trying kind, has gradually emerged from its troubles, and is now second to none in point of increase in business, general good management, and strength of position. It has a board of directors, comprising the best business men of the city, its stock list includes the names of many leading and wealthy men in the Province, and the manager, Mr. Crocker, has shown himself to be a most capable one by the success of the past year. The fact that the Company has paid every liability against it, and has lived down a prejudice that very naturally arose from former misfortunes, is the best indication of its ability as well as its disposition to pay its losses under the most unfavourable circumstances, and the history of the Company, instead of acting as a barrier to its progress, should be the best recommendation it could have. We are pleased to know that the business of the Company is rapidly on the increase, and feel confident that it will have a prosperous career, which will be deemed almost a certainty, when we state that the business of the past six months has equalled that of the whole of the year previous. The losses in that time have been trifling, and have been all paid, as well as outside claims. The net profits since July amounted to $11,283. The present surplus of assets over every liability amounts to $123,770, and the total guarantee to the assured $4,319,343."

Again, the report in 1861 says:

"The 'Provincial Insurance Company' have had also a successful year. In our last review we stated that the business of the year had been doubled; we are gratified again to repeat the same statement this year, so that the business is now nearly four times what it was in 1859. The best test point to this is that the company have not had a disputed claim result from their business for two and a half years, and that all losses have been promptly paid. The assets now exceed the liabilities by $150,000, which with the amount of unpaid calls on capital, say $1,123,609, forms an ample guarantee to insurers. The year's profits, after paying losses, expenses, commissions, &c., amount to $49,000. The increasing confidence of the public, thus practically manifested, indicates a prosperous career for this company. The Board of Directors is composed of some of our best merchants, and its list of shareholders contains a host of highly respectable names. On the whole, the proprietors of the company congratulate themselves on a very successful year.

And in the Report for 1862:

"Of the local companies none have had a more rapid increase in their business than that of the 'Provincial.' The income derivable from the past year exceeds by more than one-half that of the previous year and is more than four fold what it was in 1859. The promptitude with which losses have been met—not one claim having been disputed during the year,—and the general good management of the company, are making it one of the most popular. During the year Mr. C. J. Campbell, of the Commercial Bank, has replaced Hon. Mr. Cameron on the board of Direction, which is composed of some of the best men in the city. Mr. J. H. Crocker, the manager, continues to give the company the benefit of his experience and ability.

From the Fifteenth Annual Statement of the Company for the financial year ending 30th June, 1864, we get the following:—Capital subscribed, $737,900 00; capital called in and paid, $96,659 79; capital unpaid, $3,660 21; amount insured during the year ending 30th June, 1864, fire, $7,161,165 14, marine, $1,683,577 43; premiums received during the year ending 30th June, 1864, fire, $78,347 51, marine, $61,901 56; amount paid for losses on risks of the year, fire, $40,160 85, marine, $31,349 45; amount liable, $19,265 47; amount paid for previous year, $8,626 01; funds and property, $149,257 12; liabilities, $68,793 35; leaving a balance in favor of the Company of $80,463 76.

In reference to fires, generally, we only be permitted to express our conviction that in the majority of cases the Companies suffer, and we are of opinion that proper investigation would have a wholesome effect. There are not a few whom "Dame Rumor" charges with burning down old houses in order to get new ones. Now, unless any doubt exists we would be the last to blame a Company for instituting investigation—and such, we think would deter many from undertaking to fire their buildings. And why not, also, hold parties guilty where undue carelessness has been the cause—especially where that carelessness not only endangers the individual's own property but that of his neighbors also. Some of our late fires very much endangered the contiguous property—property that was very valuable and that was entirely uninsured; and had these fires been caused by care lessness or recklessness, we would not have failed, did we know it, to hold such parties blameable—for we see no difference between carrying the match or coal into a building, and allowing fire to happen through want of care, which would be justly censured.

[illegible] ground also be exacting in our duty to the public, if we might plainly request Companies to, publicly, state if they are found undervaluing to evade the payment of just claims.

ST. ANDREW'S SOCIETY.

The annual general meeting of this Society was held on the evening of the 5th inst., St. Andrew's Day.

The President in the Chair.

The Committee, through their Secretary, laid before the meeting a detailed statement of receipts, &c., laid out in charities and the purposes of hospitality during the year as follows:—

Nov. 16th.	Amount received from last Treasurer.		$14 68

Showing a Balance in hands the of Treasurer of $20 13.

The above statement being examined and compared with vouchers, was received as correct, and the Treasurer handed over to the chairman a receipt on the Bank of Toronto for the amount.

There being no other business before the meeting, the Society proceeded to organize itself for another year.

On motion of C. Cameron, Alex Smith, Esq., was unanimously called to resume the chair, and D. McDonald, Jr., was elected unanimously to act as Secretary for the evening.

On motion of Mr. R. Grant, seconded by Alex. Stewart, Alex Smith, Esq., was re-elected President for the ensuing year. This motion was received with applause. Mr. Smith, however, declined to act. It was then moved by Mr. L. McGregor, and seconded by R. Taylor, that C. Cameron, Esq., be elected President for the ensuing year. This motion was also carried unanimously, but Mr. Cameron, while thanking the meeting for so unanimously electing him to the high honor of President, begged to be allowed to decline, as for various reasons, he could not think of accepting the office. He, however, would propose one, who, if elected, would perform the office well; Mr. Cameron, therefore proposed, seconded by D. McDonald, Jr., that Mr. Sheriff Hall be elected President. This motion was carried, and the Sheriff not being present, the Secretary was ordered to inform him of his being elected.

The following were then elected, viz:—

A. Stewart, Esq.....1st Vice President
Robt Taylor, Esq.....2nd " "
Thos Johnston, Jr.....3rd " "
D. McDonald, Jr.....Treasurer.
Chas. Cameron.....Secretary.

TOWN COMMITTEE.

Messrs. John Whyte, R. D. Ewing, H. Lawson, A. Smith, A. G. Gilbert, Robt. Grant, D. McNaughton, John Cameron, I. J. Christie.

The chairman then vacated the chair and the Vice-President, in the absence of the President, was requested to take it. Mr. Stewart accordingly took the chair, and immediately discussion arose concerning the manner of celebrating the anniversary of St. Andrew's day, when it was agreed to spend it in the usual way by a dinner, and the following gentlemen were appointed a committee to make arrangements for the same, viz.: The President, Vice-President, and Messrs. Sutherland, Christie, Taylor, Grant, Johnston, Romaine, McNaughton, the Secretary and Treasurer. The President and Mr. Sutherland were appointed to wait on the Rev. J. Giltmour and request him to preach the annual Sermon to the members on St. Andrew's day. After a vote of thanks to the retiring officers, those present pledged themselves to do what they could to increase the list of members. The meeting afterwards adjourned. The Dinner will take place at McGregor's Hotel, on the 30th instant.

PETERBORO' SKATING RINK.

By reference to our advertising columns it will be seen that the Rink is again open for the winter. The club having entered into some arrangement with Mr. W. J. Fowler for the management of the Rink for the next two winters, we hope that under the new arrangement a greater amount of skating will be obtained than in years previous, when no one in particular had any personal interest in the good or bad success of the rink. In referring to the advertisement it will be noticed that it is strictly required to wear the badge while skating. For the general success of the concern, members will readily perceive how necessary that that order should be enforced, as we are informed that last year, after dark, hundreds made use of the rink, and when asked to wear the badge, had the ever ready answer, "Oh, I left it at home," when in reality both money and badges were left at home. One great feature might here be mentioned in connection with the rink, that there is no danger whatever from the breaking of the ice, of anyone losing their life by drowning, as there is no water in the rink at all, being one solid mass of ice to the ground. The making known of this will no doubt be very reliewing to the minds of mothers, who often curtail their little one's amusement on account of real or fancied danger. We believe that all the arrangements are about completed, and probably by to-morrow nothing more will be wanted than the seal of Jack Frost to pronounce the work finished.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.

The December number of this truly excellent Magazine of Fashion, Literature, &c., is now before us. The contents of this number are as follows:—

The Return, a splendid engraving on steel; The Nativity, a picture in tableaux, designed expressly for Godey; a Magnificent Double Extension Fashion-plate; a Toilet Cushion, printed in tints; Christmas in Camp, an original design; eight of the latest style Fashions for Bonnets; several new styles for Cloaks; Baby's Hood, Baby's Tippet, and Baby's Boots, in Knitting and Tricot, will also be found in this number. The Ladies' Pocket Perspective Travelling-Bag is an entirely new article. Knitting, Netting, and Crochet articles for the winter season, and about 60 other useful engravings.

"SEVEN YEARS," by Marion Harland, author of "Alone," "Hidden Path," "Nemesis," etc., is the title of her story for the Christmas Number.

Miss Jenvrin, Zan Throne, and Miss Frost also contribute to this number.

Christmas Receipts for everything that can be wanted for the festive gatherings of the season, and the "Arm Chair" which will furnish amusement for the winter evenings.

Now is the time to commence making up clubs for 1865.

MR. J. W. YOUMANS' CONCERT.—We invite attention to the above Concert on Wednesday evening in the Victoria Hall. Mr. Youmans promises an entertainment of real pleasure; and from the manner in which his concerts have been received in other towns and cities, we predict a pleasant evening for pleasure-seekers.

MISSES DEMOREST.—We have received the December number of Mme. Demorest's Mirror of Fashions. As the Illustrated Monthly with Mirror are now published in one, and published monthly, as we have done for this in the hands which every lady ought to have on her work table, as it contains all the latest Paris designs for ladies' and children's dresses. Subscription, $3 copies single copies, 25 per year. All orders left with Alex. Graham, at the Examiner office, will be punctually attended to.

THE LADY'S FRIEND.

The December number of this magazine is a truly splendid one, being the handsomest yet issued. The opening plate, "The Snow Bird's Christmas Visit," is a perfect gem; and the frontispiece of the volume, suggested by a Mass Christian Anderson's, is one of those engravings upon which the eye will linger for a long time, and turn to again and again. Two more beautiful engravings than these are seldom seen in a magazine. The double Fashion Plate for this month is finely engraved and richly colored—no magazine contains superior steel fashion plates to the Lady's Friend; while the other engravings are as usual numerous, and describing highly interesting to the ladies. The literary contents are "The Christmas Gift," by Mrs. Hosmer; "Two Falls among the Mountains," by Mrs. Pyle; "The Soldier's Bride," by Mrs. Barnes; "From the Same Sheaf," an amusing sketch relative to visiting your distant relations, by Francis Lee; "Cousin Caleb's Will," by Julia Gill; "My Aunt Goldbeater," by Mrs. Denison; "Who did the Wrong?" by Miss Virginia F. Townsend; &c., &c.

Price $2.50; 2 copies $4.00; 9 copies $16.00; 21 copies $35.00. Specimen numbers will be sent to those desirous of making up clubs for 15 cents. Wheeler & Wilson's celebrated Sewing Machines are furnished as Premiums on certain terms. Address Deacon & Peterson, 319 Walnut street, Philadelphia.

Now is the time to send on subscriptions for 1865.

COUNCIL OF SMITH AND HARVEY.

14th November, 1864.

The Council met; all the members present.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The Quarterly Report of the Inspector of Houses of Public Entertainment was read and adopted.

A petition from Jno. Darling and 53 others, was presented and read, praying that a road be established in the Township of Smith, commencing at the boundary between Smith and Peterborough, opposite Reid Street in the Town of Peterborough, thence Northeasterly across lot No. 1 west of the Communication Road until it intersects the Communication Road.

Moved by Mr. Dean and seconded by Mr. Fitzgerald, that the petition of Mr. Darling and 53 others be adopted.—Carried.

Petitions were read praying that the property of Mr. Jonathan Stevenson and Mr. Jno. Edmison now in S. Section No. 1, the property of Mr. Wm. Simpson and Mr. Jno. Edmison, now in S. Section No. 2, and the property of Mr. Thos. E. Bell, now in S. Section No. 4, be detached from said sections and united to Section No. 3, and also that such alterations be made in Section No. 4, either by division or otherwise, as to afford the inhabitants residing in the southern part thereof an opportunity of sending their children to school.

Moved by Mr. Fitzgerald and seconded by Mr. Galvin, that S. Sections No. 1 and 2 remain as at present.—Carried.

A By law was passed uniting the property of Thos. E. Bell to Section No. 3, and the parties agreed to continue the remainder of Section No. 4 as it is at present for the ensuing year.

A By-law was passed authorising Thos. F. Nicholl of the Town of Peterborough, to sell timber growing on any allowances for a public highway in the township of Harvey, and to collect moneys from parties who have taken timber off said allowances.

A By-law was passed to appoint the following persons Returning Officers for the several wards, and to fix the places where such elections are to be held for the year 1865.

For Ward No. 1, Jno. Black, to be held at the school house of Section No. 3; Ward No. 2, Wm. L. Scobell, to be held at the school house of Section No. 3; Ward No. 3, Thos. E. Bell, to be held at the Town Hall; Ward No. 4, Wm. J. McKibbin, to be held at the school house of Section No. 5, and Ward No. 5, Edward Sanderson, to be held at the school house of Section No. 7.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

MR. EDITOR,—I beg to send you my experience in sending furniture by the cars, and which may perhaps save some of your many readers from falling into a similar snare. Sometime before leaving your busy town, I had heard of the wonderfully low rates at which furniture had been brought from Kingston and other places, and in consequence was led to inquire at Port Hope what would be charged for a car to take my furniture from Peterborough to Toronto. I was told the charge would be One Dollar for the car, and a Quarter per 100 lbs. weight of goods. I ordered a car by letter on these terms, promising to pay the charges on my way. The car was sent and loaded, and after some time the furniture reached Yorkville. What was my indignation (astonishment rather,) when the charge was ran up to Forty-three Dollars! The furniture did not exceed Thirty-five Hundred, which, at 25 cents, would make say Nine Dollars, and One for the car, would make Ten Dollars. How then was the amount run up? First of all, the car was charged as a car load—10,000 lbs.—and this at 24 cents makes Twenty-four Dollars. And then our neighbor, the Peterborough and Port Hope line, must have Eighteen Dollars, which amounts to Forty-two Dollars—and this, with One Dollar for Yorkville, beyond the city, made up the enormous charge of Forty-three Dollars! I paid under protest. After some delay, Mr. Shackle, the Grand Trunk manager here, deducted Five and a-half Dollars I would have sought redress in law, which I think I could have got. But I shall content myself in this country with publishing the facts for the protection of others against the traps laid on every side for the unwary; and which the powerful, it appears, can lay in this Province anywhere, with impunity. I am constrained to take all men for rogues and bind them by her, henceforth, before dealing with them.

I remain yours, Mr. Editor,

TEMPERANCE PROGRESS.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—Amongst the many communications that are inserted from time to time in your valuable paper, there is seldom seen one upon that very important subject, Temperance; observing which I deemed it proper to note down a few things respecting the progress of that cause in our midst, in the shape of a communication, which, I feel assured, will be read with attention by every lover of temperance, truth and morality.

Although the cause continues to meet with that which every good cause has to contend with, "opposition," in various ways and from quarters least expected; despite which, however, it is progressing rapidly, not only in our good town and vicinity, but, also, throughout the Province. I do not purpose to give the statistics of Temperance for the Province at this time, but merely an abridged statement of its progress in our town and neighborhood during the past year. The movement at present is confined to the efforts of the society of Good Templars. A short time ago the society of Sons of Temperance being in existence, were co-workers, but, on account of, reverses, gave up the contest as a body; not, however, until every effort had been put forth to maintain a bold front to the "enemy," for having done which so long and so determinedly they deserve great praise.

The temperance work, notwithstanding, progressed. The society of Good Templars, although left alone in the field, did not abate their efforts, but redoubled their vigilance, energy and activity in the work. Some of the efforts produced were: the initiation of over one hundred members to our temple; the organizing of several Temples, and looking up of others throughout the country; also the purchase of an Harmonium, which will tend greatly to enliven the meetings of our Society. "Onward and Onward" being the working motto adopted by us in the past, will, I trust, be adhered to at present and in the future; using every means, employing every opportunity, to raise our Order to a higher standard, and the object of our Order —Temperance—to a more elevated position in the scale of public opinion, until it shall attain a complete ascendancy over its opposer—Intemperance. Public meetings and lectures on Temperance being considered a very effective means for promoting the interests of Temperance, shall continue to be held by us. I am of opinion one of these meetings will be held shortly.

In conclusion, I would mention that Mr. Hammond, Provincial Lecturer for the Independent Order of Good Templars, paid us a visit and gave a lecture which was well attended. What the able lecturer said en passeire of the evils of Intemperance upon society, and everything in connection with the welfare of mankind—contrasting such with the beneficial results of Temperance—it is to be hoped will not be soon effaced from the minds of those who heard him, but produce the effect desired. Mr. Hammond has been lecturing through a part only of our County as yet, but intends making a tour of the rest shortly. That his efforts, combined with those of every Good Templar and temperance person, may be increasingly successful, is the earnest desire of

A GOOD TEMPLAR.

Peterborough, Nov. 23rd, 1864.

THE FENIANS AND MR. BROWN.

From the Irish Canadian.

For ten long years Mr. George Brown, editor of "The Globe," and now President of the Executive Council, has waged a relentless warfare against the Catholics of Upper Canada. Whatever indomitable energy and native bigotry could suggest to an unscrupulous mind has been freely resorted to in this fierce crusade. An apostle of civil and religious liberty, he has sown deep in Canadian soil the sectarian hates of the old world; a loud mouthed declaimer against Church and State, he has openly advocated the establishment of Protestant Ascendancy; at one time a seeming foe to Orangeism, he has done more to fill its lodges with unreasoning bigots than a dozen Grand Masters; and when good men on both sides would have grasped hands and buried out of sight the traditional rancours of former times, who so ready with gibb tongue and facile pen to curse a union of the Orange and the Green, and call into renewed life the smouldering embers of religious strifes. Now, when his years of wicked toil are bearing their bitter fruit, and man hate one another with a hatred deep as hell, because one is a Catholic and the other an Orangeman, and that hatred threatens to express itself otherwise than in words, Mr. Brown calls for strong measures and urges the propriety of using British bayonets against Irish pikes. Were this advice to come from the unlicked Orange cubs who do the police reports and sensation scraps of the Leader, we would pass it unnoticed; but emanating from the pen of Mr. Brown, a member of the Government, and published in the official organ of the [illegible] ministry, we are justified in believing it is the foregone conclusion of the Executive to use the military force now stationed in this city against those Irish Catholics —call them Hibernians, Fenians, or what you please—who are determined, at all risks, to protect their lives, property and honor from the Orange vandalism which openly threatens their destruction.

Under these circumstances, it behooves us well to consider well our position, look the danger straight in the face, and take counsel one with another as [illegible] the odds seem fearfully against us. Surrounded by a hostile majority, now lashed into phrenized anger by the incendiary appeals of the Protestant Press, we have neither sympathy nor assistance to expect outside of our own body. The civic authorities and so-called guardians of the peace are sworn enemies. The Police Commissioners, composed of the Recorder, Police Magistrate and Mayor, are violent Orangemen, or closely affiliated with them; and the Police Force, with few exceptions, like well-trained bloodhounds, are sniffing for Catholic blood. At a moderate computation one-half the militia force of Toronto, numbering at least a thousand men, are members of Orange lodges. The armouries, well provided with minie rifles, are not very difficult of access. In addition to all this, we are now threatened with the bayonets of the 16th regiment—so that, altogether, we are likely to have our hands full.

As an offset to this display of physical force, what can we show, now that Mr. Police Magistrate Boomer has impounded those naughty pikes? We are strong in numbers, strong in union, strong in the holiness of our cause. Will these bear us up against the system of terrorism now inaugurated? If we know aught of the signs of the times, our enemies are prepared, on the slightest pretext, to repeat in Toronto the vandalism of Louisville, Philadelphia, and Belfast. That they have not done so ere this is not due to their forbearance, but to a wholesome dread of the possible consequences. Mr. Brown, to keep their courage at the sticking point, promises the aid of the military. We have an odd idea that Her Majesty's handful of troops in this Province are likely to find other work before long; and further, that no one but a demented fanatic could whisper such a suggestion. However, we thank Mr. Brown for the timely information that British soldiers are to aid the Orange Lodges. Forewarned is forearmed.

In its comments on the above, the Globe makes the following remarks, which perhaps it would be well to remember, as the threat involved may yet be carried out in some degree, although it should prove as great a failure as any of their previous designs.

"And in this connection, we would say a word to our sister cities and towns. The Fenians, as it so happened, first made a public appearance here, but no one can tell where next they may find their "honor" threatened. It is now known that among the men who assembled in Toronto on Saturday, Nov. 5, were many non-residents, who came purposely to take part in the anticipated fray. Upon a future occasion they may draw from their "troops" here, and make an unexpected appearance somewhere else. It behoves the local authorities at a distance to be upon their guard.

Before concluding we would call attention to the dark threat involved in the following words:—"Mr. Brown, to keep their courage "(i. e. that of the enemies of the Fenians) "at the sticking point, promises the aid of "the military. We have an odd idea that "Her Majesty's handful of troops in this "Province are likely to find other work be"fore long, and farther that only a demented "fanatic could whisper such a suggestion." The grammatical construction of the sentence would indicate the belief of the Canadian that no one but a demented fanatic could whisper that Her Majesty's troops in this Province were likely to find other work than that in aiding in the preservation of the public peace against the Fenians; and we are inclined to agree with our contemporary. But, considering the tone of the article and the character of the paper in which it appears, we come to the conclusion that the exact reverse is meant. All the troops England can muster will soon be wanted for the preservation of Ireland—is that the interpretation? Well, to show our liberality, we can promise that whenever the Fenians have made their arrangements to cross the Atlantic for the liberation of Ireland from "Saxon misrule," if they will only let us know, we will give them a handsome subscription. All we shall ask of them is that they will really make a fair start, and that they will not require us to guarantee a safe arrival at their destination."

TRIAL OF MULLER.

The London papers of October 20 and 21 contain very full report of the trial of Muller for the murder of Mr. Briggs, which commenced at the Central Criminal Court, on Thursday, Oct. 27. The Times, of Friday, says:—

Since the memorable trial of Courvoisier for the murder of Lord William Russell in 1840, on that of William Palmer for the murder of Mr. Cook, in May, 1856 occasion of the kind has excited a greater degree of public interest throughout the metropolis, or, indeed, throughout the country at large. The applications to the Sheriff to be admitted within the precincts of the court during the trial have been numerous and urgent and almost beyond precedent, and as early as eight o'clock yesterday morning the approaches to it were thronged by an excited crowd eager to obtain admission. The crowds kept increasing on the morning and early and until long after the court had been filled, and all chance of getting within hearing of the proceedings was at an end. At most not more than 300 people can be conveniently seated within the Sessions-house, including judge and jury, members of bar, witnesses waiting and the officers of the court. On this occasion a few additional seats had been improvised in odd corners of the building, and that was all that the Sheriffs had it in their power to do in the way of accommodating those who wished to be present at the trial. By a considerate arrangement the representatives of the press were admitted before any one else, and an additional number of seats had been provided expressly for them.

A few minutes before ten o'clock Lord Chief Barron Pollock and Mr. Baron Martin entered the Court, preceded by the Lord Mayor (Alderman Lawrence), and other civic dignitaries, who wore their official robes. On the bench, among others, were Baron Thierry, Mr. Roebuck, M. P., Sir George Bowyer, M. P., Mr. Gregson, M. P., Colonel Wilson Patten, M. P., Sir. William Fraser, M. P., Mr. Beresford Hope, Mrs. Holland (a daughter of Sir. Charles Trevelyan), and Mr. Holland. There were some of the relatives of the deceased Mr. Briggs.

The judges having taken their seats the prisoner Muller was placed at the bar. He is a short and slightly made young man, almost boyish in appearance, with his light brown hair. He was neatly dressed in a plain brown coloured morning coat, which he wore buttoned on the chest. His manner was quite, self-possessed and respectful. For some time at first his countenance was pale, but at length assumed what appeared to be its natural hue. While the jury were being impanelled he stood in front of the dock, taking comparatively little interest in the proceedings. He was in no way abashed at the gaze which was turned upon him from all directions, and kept looking towards the bench with a modest expression of countenance, turning neither to the right nor the left. He listened with much apparent anxiety and interest to the opening speech of the Solicitor-General which lasted an hour. He was allowed to sit almost from the begining, and he frequently communicated with his solicitor by writing and by word of mouth.—Towards the close of the day he became animated and excited at times, and leant over the front of the dock frequently to converse with his solicitor.

The counsel for the Crown were the Solicitor-General (Sir Robert Collier), Mr. Sergeant Beasley, instructed by Mr. Greenwood, Q. S., one of the solicitors to the Treasury, in person, and by Mr. Hodgson and Mr. Pollard, from the same department. On the other hand, the prisoner was defended by Mr. Sergeant Parry, Mr. Metcalf, and Mr. Besley instructed by Mr. Beard, solicitor, of Basinghall street.

Mr. Avory, the Clerk of Arraigns addressing the prisoner, said—Franz Muller, you are indicted for that you, on the 9th of July, in the present year, did feloniously, maliciously, and of your malice aforethought, kill and murder Thomas Briggs. Are you guilty or not guilty?

The Prisoner (speaking in a low tone of voice)—"Not guilty."

Mr Avory—The prisoner is an alien, I believe.

Sergeant Parry—Yes, but on behalf of the prisoner I have to say with his full concurrence, and at his own desire, that he has elected to be tried by a jury of twelve Englishmen.

For the moment this intimation caused a marked sensation in court, the prevailing impression for some time past having been that the prisoner would claim his right as an alien to be tried by a mixed jury of Englishmen and foreigners.

A jury having been impanelled,

The Solicitor-General opened the case in a speech filling more than three columns of the Times.

The evidence for the prosecution occupied the remainder of the day, and the greater part of Friday.

On Saturday, as has already been announced, the jury, after having heard the whole case, returned a verdict of "Guilty," and Muller was sentenced to be hung, on Monday, the 14th of November.

THE POOR MAN'S FRIEND.

Dr. Radway may truly be called the poor man's friend. His medicines secure to the poor health without loss of time, or any liability to the expense of a doctor. Let every man keep a bottle of Radway's Ready Relief in the house, and on the first experience of pain use it. Pain is a premonitory symptom of disease, and if the Relief is used promptly it will in a few moments stop the pain, and break up the disease. There is no occasion for a man, however exposed to sickness, to suffer one day if the Ready Relief is used when pain is first experienced.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—The Eleventh hour.—Let no victim of scrofula, salt rheum, or any ulcerous or eruptive malady, fancy a cure impossible. It is never too late to use Holloway's Ointment for external complaints or his Pills for internal disorders.

Sold at the manufactories, No. 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and No. 244 Strand, London, and by all druggists. If the reader of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, 80 Maiden Lane, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other person's make. 25c 62½c., and $1 per box or pot.

COTTON SUPPLY.—The most engrossing subject that now engages the public attention in England is the question of the supply of Cotton, it certainly is a very serious question, and we hope it will be settled satisfactorily—at any rate the people of Canada will have no difficulty in procuring a supply of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" at 25 cents per Bottle, to cure their rheumatism, neuralgia, burns, sprains, and to remove all pain from the system directly it is applied. 25 cents per Bottle. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

THE SEASON AND ITS CHANGES.—Winter still lingers in the lap of spring, and the cold east wind is almost always with us. Yesterday we had rain and a cold east wind; to-day we have the same, probably; and to-morrow a fine sunshiny day. These great changes make sad havoc with the health of our citizens, particularly those having weak lungs. For all diseases of this kind, use Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers. 25 cts. a box, at all Druggists.

THE GREATEST BLESSING in Canada.

The following communication from a well known Editor, is but a specimen of the general approval given to Dr. Green's OXYGENATED BITTERS:

PETERBORO', 12th Jan., 1860.

Messrs. Roth W. Fowle & Co.,

Gentlemen,—Having used your Oxygenated Bitters at intervals for some time. I with great willingness testify to their excellency as a tonic, in the relief of Dyspepsia and its attendant forms, arising from debility or irregularities. No Bitters that I have ever used, has effected so much speedy relief.

SEWING MACHINE DEPOT.

OVER C. WHITE'S SHOE STORE

AND OPPOSITE

Opposite W. Cluxton's Store,

GEORGE STREET,

PETERBOROUGH.

THE very great demand existing here for Sewing Machines has induced the subscriber to open an office in Peterboro' for the sale of Sewing Machines. He will at all times have on hand a variety of the most

Improved Machines

BY DIFFERENT MAKERS,

Which he will supply at the very lowest rates, and will give his personal attendance to instruct parties who may purchase from him in their use, and also keep the machines for sale in good order for one year.

The most popular Sewing Machines now before the public, and which he will keep on sale, are

Wanzer's Singer's

SEWING MACHINES,

FOR MANUFACTURER'S USE,

Sold usually at $65, now offered for $40.

WANZER'S COMBINATION,

For Family use and Light Tailoring.

Worth $45, now offered at $40.

For Dressmakers and other fine work,

worth $45, now offered at $40.

C. W. WILLIAMS & Co's

UNEQUALLED DOUBLE THREAD

FAMILY SEWING MACHINES,

Equal to the Grover & Baker's $60 Machines, offered now at $30.

Patterson's Sewing Machines,

Manufactured at and known as the Belleville Sewing Machine, and a favorite with many persons, now sold for $30.

WAXED THREAD MACHINES,

for Harness or Shoemaker's work at reduced prices.

The advantages offered by the establishment of this depot, are a great choice of makers, and that all Machines will be guaranteed to be kept in order for one year.

VERY LOW PRICES.

These Machines are all made in Canada, and in the event of any part becoming broken, it can be replaced at once.

No Family should be without a Sewing Machine.

Call and see the Machines and the Certificates of parties using them.

CERTIFICATES:

Peterborough, Feb. 9th, 1864.

The undersigned have had in use for some time Sewing Machines from the Manufactory of Messrs. WANZER & Co., of Hamilton, purchased from Mr. THOMAS ELETCHER, and we have much pleasure in testifying to the satisfaction we have experienced in their use. We believe the Sewing Machines sold by Mr. Eletcher are among the best in the market.

MR. ELETCHER,

Sir,—The Combination Sewing Machine I bought of you one year ago, gives me good satisfaction, I have no hesitation in recommending it to the public, as one of the best Sewing Machines now in use.

Yours, &c.,

WILLIAM MILLAR.

Hastings, Nov. 4th, 1863.

THOMAS ELETCHER, Esq., Agent for Wanzer's Sewing Machines.

Dear Sir,—We have much pleasure in stating we have used two of your Singer's Machines in our Woolen Mills, for the past twelve months, and have every reason to be satisfied with them

We remain, yours respectfully,

THOS. W. NEILD & Co.

These Certificates are all from persons residing in the immediate vicinity; they are not like those shown by American vendors, which may or may not be genuine.

Call at the office over S. White's Boot and Shoe Store, and examine the Machines for yourself.

[illegible]

LX. The consideration of this surrender to the General Legislature of the powers to [illegible] shall be made equal to an amount of $3 per head of the population, as established by the census of 1861. The population of Newfoundland being estimated at 130,000. Such sum shall be in full settlement of all claims against the Government of the Colony thereunto upon the Government for local purposes, and shall be paid half-yearly in advance to such Government.

LXI. The position of Newfoundland being such as to entail large immediate charges upon her local revenues, it is agreed that for the period of ten years from the time when the Union takes effect, an additional allowance of $63,000 per annum shall be made to that Province. But that no long as the liability of that Province remain under $7,000,000, a deduction equal to the interest on such deficiency is to be made from the $63,000.

LXII. In consideration of the surrender to the General Government by Newfoundland of all it rights in Mines and Minerals, and of all the unpatented and unoccupied Lands of the Crown, it is agreed that the sum of $150,000 shall each year be paid to that Province by semi-annual payments, provided that that Colony shall retain the right of opening, constructing and controlling Roads and Bridges through any of the said Lands, subject to any laws which the General Parliament may pass in respect of the same.

LXIII. All engagements that may, before the Union, be entered into with the Imperial Government for the Defence of the Country, shall be assumed by the General Government.

LXIV. The General Government shall secure, without delay, the completion of the Intercolonial Railway from Riviere-du-Loup through New Brunswick, to Truro in Nova Scotia.

LXV. The communications with the North-Western Territory and the improvements required for the development of the Trade of the Great West with the Seaboard, were regarded by this Conference as subjects of the highest importance to the Federated Provinces, and are to be prosecuted at the earliest possible period that the state of the Finances will permit.

LXVI. The sanction of the Imperial and Local Parliaments is to be sought for the Union of the Provinces, on the principles adopted by the Conference.

LXVII. The proceedings of the Conference when finally revised, to be signed by the Delegates and, submitted by each Deputation to its own Government, and the Chairman authorized to submit a copy to the Governor General for transmission to the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

LIFE'S AUTUMN.

Like the leaf, life has its fading. We speak and think of it with sadness, just as we think of the autumn season. That there should be no sadness at the fading of a life that has done well its work. If we rejoice at the advent of a new life, if we welcome the coming of a new pilgrim to the uncertainties of this world's way, why should there be so much gloom when all these uncertainties are past, and life at its waning wears the glory of a completed task? Beautiful as is childhood in its freshness and innocence, its beauty is that of untried life. It is the beauty of promise, of spring of the bud. A holier and rarer beauty is the beauty which the waning life of faith and duty wears.

It is the beauty of a thing completed; and as men come together to congratulate each other when some great work has been achieved, and see in its concluding nothing but gladness, so ought we to feel when the setting sun flings back its beams upon a life that has answered well life's purpose. When the bud drops are blighted, and the mildew blasts the early grain, and there goes all hope of the harvest, one may well be sad; when the ripened year sinks amid garniture of autumn flowers and leaves, why should we regret to murmur? And so a life that is ready and waiting for the "well done" of God, whose latest virtues and civtues are its noblest, should be given back to God in contemplating reverence, an rejoicing that earth is capable of so much sadness, and is permitted such virtue.

A soldier for deserting, was sentenced to have his ears cut off. After undergoing the ordeal, he was escorted out of the barrackyard to the tune of "The Rogue's March." He then turned round, and in mock dignity, thus addressed the band:—"Gentlemen, I thank you; but I have no ear for music."

STRANGE SIGN.—The "Orleanean" says there is a sign in that city which stands thus: "Here mi wife querse a goos, and I querse the gandere!" Which being interpreted, means that—"Here my wife cares agues, and I care the jaundice.

There is a boy about town who is so cross-eyed that when he looks at a bottle he cans not an regular cork screw, and draw the cork instanter. He always imagines he sees to be a big building around the corner.

First Young Lady.—In private conversation with her looking-glass. "If I should meet so good looking a fellow as yourself I'll turn Boardist."

THE DIFFERENCE.—A schoolmaster, who was so fond of his grog as the globes, was asked the difference between gravity and gravitation. "When I've drunk five glasses of grog," replied the pedagogue "my gravity vanishes and my gravitation begins to diminish."

NEARLY TRUE.—Talking with the Editor of an evening journal, Quilp inquired: "What's the use of your second edition coming as it does so soon after the regular issue?" Use!" replied the candid editor, "why to contradict the telegraphic despatches in the first edition!"

"One Touch of Nature Sa.,"—Mr Spriggins.—"Shall a cannot how do you make it at out? Wiggins under four miles, you don't reckon anything for this Baby, I should hope!" Cabby (Father of a Family himself.) Ah! I dessay. You and your Good Lady don't reckon nothing of 'em neither, bless'm little 'hart, oh, Mum!" (in a Bowing manner to Mrs. S.) Chin allowed.

"No one would take you for what you are," said an old fashioned gentleman a day or two ago, to a dandy, who had more hair than brains. "Why?" was immediately asked. "Because they cannot see your head."

The Richmond Examiner is published daily on a half sheet at fifty dollars per annum, or five dollars per month, semi weekly at fifteen dollars. Clerks and mercantile men have it for twenty dollars, per hundred.

In consequence of the great stagnation of trade in the manufacturing districts of England through the war having cut off the supply of cotton, a large quantity of Valuable Jewelry, originally intended for the English market, has been sent off for sale in this country, and must be sold at any sacrifice!

Under these circumstance, Arrandale & Co., acting as Agents for the principle European Manufacturers, have resolved upon a great gift distribution, subject to the following regulations:—

☞ Certificates, naming each article and its value, are placed in sealed envelopes, and well mixed. One of these envelopes will be sent by mail to any address, on receipt of 25 cents.

All articles sold at One Dollar each, without regard to value!

On receipt of the Certificate, you will see what you are going to have, and then it is at your option to send the Dollar and take the article or not. Purchasers may thus obtain a Gold Watch, Diamond Ring, or any set of Jewelry in our list, for One Dollar, and in no case can they get less than One Dollars worth, as there are no blanks. The price of Certificates is as follows:—

One for ..... 25 cents.
Five for $1
Eleven for 2
Thirty for 5
Sixty-five for 10
One hundred for 15

Agents will be allowed ten cents on every Certificate ordered by them, provided their remittance amounts to One Dollar. Agents will collect 25 cents for every Certificate, and remit 15 cents to us, either in cash or postage stamps.

ATTENTION is directed to the rate of premiums charged by this Company, which will compare favorably with that of any other institution in Canada. Investments of Company's funds to the large amount of nearly five hundred thousand dollars have been completed in Canada; and as all business transactions are daily disposed of in the Province, the Scottish Provincial offers all the facilities presented by a purely local Company, while it possesses the additional advantage of a large capital, and an influential and responsible body of shareholders in Great Britain.

Policies effected on or before 31st January next will share in the Profits of Seven years' business collected thereafter.

A CARD.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—I think it my duty to inform the public that, having used almost every known remedy for the cure of Rheumatism, I was recommended to, until I heard of Dr. Morris' Balm, or Poor Man's Friend,—before using half a bottle of which I was confidently cured. My thanks are due to Dr. Morris for the Medicine.

I am, your obedient servant,

Select Poetry.

AN AUTUMN JOY.

For many years, the autumn brought
A solemn sadness to my soul—
It entered even my lightest thought,
And on my gayest moments stole;
'Twas sad, yet sweet, a strange alloy
Of hope and sorrow interfused—
This autumn brings me only joy,
Hopelessly hushed my mind.

And why is this? The dead leaves fall—
The blossoms wither as of old,
And winter comes, with snowy pall,
To wrap the earth so still and cold;
The sea-fowl, strong athwart the sky,
Still chant their plaintiff monotone—
And why, when leaves and blossoms die,
Should I feel joy alone?

Oh ask me not—I must not tell;
I dare not all my heart disclose—
A fairy wove a magic spell
Around me when decayed the rose;
Two gifts did fading summer bring—
Two symbols of unfolding bliss—
Upon my finger grows a ring,
Upon my lips—a kiss.

Miscellaneous.

THE DOUBLE ROBBERY.

Towards the close of the last century Northumberland was the border were terribly infested by those—to the bucolic mind—particularly obnoxious specimens of the genius thief known as "rivers," or "litters" of cattle.

Almost all the rascals who followed this lucrative profession trusted chiefly to mere brute force to carry out successfully their nefarious schemes. There was, however, one exception to this general rule, to be found in the person of a celebrated freebooter, known as "Dickey of Kingwood."

This worthy openly expressed his disapprobation of his rivals' vulgar mode of following their professions, and repeatedly boasted that he could achieve twice as much by his cunning as they could by their brute force. Nor was this assertion of his mere empty boasting,—for from it.

In a few years time. Dickey's name became the terror of the country side. No farmer felt secure when he retired to rest at night that his cattle might not have vanished ere morning. So cleverly, moreover, were all Dick's enterprises conducted, that no man would ever succeed in making personal acquaintance with him.

He openly set justice at defiance, and laughed at the futile efforts of the law to punish him. Perhaps, however, the best way to illustrate the adroitness and good luck which characterised all Dickey's proceedings, will be for me to relate the story of one of his exploits.

It appears, then, that during the course of his peregrinations through Northumberland, one fine afternoon, Dickey's eyes were gladdened by the sight of a fine pair of oxen, which were quietly grazing in a field near Benton Burn, a village distant 3 miles from Newcastle.

Determined to possess them, Dickey hung about the place till nightfall, watching where the animals were driven to, and—his usual good fortune assisting him—speedily secured his prize. He also contrived by the exercise of his accustomed cunning, to leave such traces behind him as made the owner of the oxen certain that the freebooter had made off towards the Tweed. Thither he accordingly proceeds in hot haste.

In the interim, however, Dickey had lost no time in making tracks towards the west country, and so expeditious were his movements, that in a short time he reached Lancaster in Cumberland. Here he fell in with an old farmer on horseback, who, being quite delighted with the appearance of the oxen, forthwith purchased them.

Dickey was of course rejoiced at getting rid so pleasantly of a charge which would not fail to be troublesome,—nay, possibly dangerous to him longer to retain. The farmer, moreover, was mounted on a splendid mare which Dicky at once, by fair means or foul, resolved to secure. He therefore willingly accepted the farmers invitation to accompany him to his house in order that he might "crack" a bottle of wine in honor of their bargain. Presently Dickey enquired of the farmer if he would like to sell his mare.

"Sell you my mare!" exclaimed his host, all aghast at his presumption, "Sell you my mare! No, thank you. Why there's not her equal in the whole north country!

"I do not doubt it, Mr. Musgrave; and from what I saw of her paces this morning, I am quite of your opinion that there is not her equal within a hundred miles of us; but, since you will not sell her, I can only wish you long life and good health to enjoy her," responded Dick.

This sentiment was of course honored in a bumper.'

'I hope Mr. Musgrave, that you keep a close look out after your stable door, because you know, when that rascal, Dickey of Kingswood is allowed to be at liberty, a man cannot be sure, any fine morning he may not find his stable empty.

"Stabel! ha, ha!" chuckled the farmer. "I think Dickey of Kingswood would find it rather difficult to steal my mare out of her stable.'

"Indeed! Where may his stable be situated?" asked Dickey.

"Her stable! Bless you, sir, her stable is in my bed room. I'm a bachelor, and so every night I fasten her to my bed post. I have had a stronger pot up for her in my room, and no music is so sweet to me as to hear her grinding her corn all night by my bedside."

Dickey was astonished—as well he might be—at such unheard of precautions; but he disguised his astonishment, and contented himself by simply expressing to the farmer his hearty approval of the means he adopted to secure the safety of his favorite.

"I suppose you have a a good look at your bed room door?" was Dickey's next question.

"Come with me and I will show it you," replied the unsuspecting farmer.

This was, of course, just what Dickey wanted. He examined the door carefully—and soon satisfied himself that he could pick it without much difficulty. He, however, declared to Mr. Musgrave that it was just the right sort of a lock, it could not have been better; so that it was unpickable, &c.

Again the lovers conversed around, and after drinking a parting glass each twenty meeting, Dickey departed.

The old farmer, after the guest's leave taking had been completed, carefully wound the rounds of his house, locking doors and closing with all due precaution. He then, as usual, tied his mare to her accustomed post, retired to bed, and was soon lulled to sleep by the sound of his favorite grinding corn.

So the night were away. Presently, at first grey streaks of day began to appear, Mr. Musgrave woke, and feeling very cold and chilly, looked round to ascertain the cause. To his astonishment he found that all the coverlets had been taken of his bed, and that his blankets had been spread out on the floor.

For what purpose? thought Mr. Musgrave. Was he the victim of some horrible nightmare, or was he really awake? Mechanically his eye turned to the spot where his mare should have been. She was not there. She was gone—stolen.

During the night some daring thief had broken into the farm house, had picked the lock on the door of the bedroom, and spread the blankets over the floor, so that the hoofs of the mare should make no noise, and had thus triumphantly made off with his prize.

Of course Mr. Musgrave aroused his household, and commenced a most vigorous search after the thief. It was useless. The despoiler had left no traces behind him, and so Mr. Musgrave was obliged to return home disconsolate, and to content himself with venting his rage upon the unknown thief.

In the meantime our friend Dickey,—for his was the deed—was comfortably mounted upon Mr. Musgrave's favorite mare, and was every moment increasing the distance between her enraged owner and himself. So great was the speed of the mare, that by break of day Dickey felt himself secure from pursuit. He had directed his steps to the eastward, and whilst crossing Haltwhistle Fell, whom should he encounter but the veritable owner of the oxen he had stolen two or three days before, and had just sold to Musgrave.

Dickey knew the owner of the oxen well, but, luckily for the freebooter, that injured individual did not know him. He therefore accosted Dickey, and inquired if he had seen any oxen in the course of his travels, similar to those which he had described to Dick as being in search of.

"Why, to be sure I have," replied Dickey, with the very same marks as you describe—grazing in Mr. Musgrave's fields at Lanercost, only yesterday. I was rather struck by their appearance, and learnt on enquiry from one of the servants that Mr. Musgrave had purchased them just yesterday. They are undoubtedly your oxen. I would advise you to go to Lanercost at once, and claim them."

"Certainly I will. But I am used up with walking; and it is a long way to Lanercost. I see you ride a good beast will you sell her?"

After some hard bargaining, terms were agreed upon, the purchase money was paid down on the spot, and Dickey and the farmer separated, the farmer to seek his stolen oxen actually from the owner of the stolen mare he was himself riding; whilst Dickey proceeded where he listed.

The next day the farmer reached Lanercost, and at once recognised his own cattle grazing in the field. He forthwith rode up to an elderly man standing near, whom he judged to be the owner of the field, and exclaimed,—

"I say, friend, these are my oxen in your field. How did you come by them, may I ask?"

"Bless me," exclaimed the other, after taking a long, astonished look at the animal on which his questioner was mounted, "If that's not my mare you are riding! How may you have come by her, pray?"

Each described the person from whom they had respectively made the purchases, and when this was done, they discovered that they had indeed been sold by a rogue of no common order.

So laughable, however, did the joke appear—even to those who had to pay the piper—that neither party could prevent breaking into a peal of merriment when the particulars were disclosed.

It was clear that the only way to settle the affair was for each party to take back his own property. Mr. Musgrave was overjoyed at the recovery of his favorite mare; and the Benton Burn farmer was equally delighted at the recovery of his oxen—so it fell out that in the general burst out of rejoicing Dickey was allowed to quietly pocket the sale money of both oxen and mare.

Whether Dickey ultimately came to a untimely end, or whether he reformed his ways, and died in his own bed, history telleth not.

Certain it is, however, that his deeds are "household words" in many parts of Northumberland, and the mention of his name amongst the peasantry is considered synonymous with "catarach."—Once a Week.

THE MARMAN'S WIT.

A gentleman of fortune visited a hostile asylum, where the treatment combined chiefly in forcing the patients to smell to tubs of cold water—their heads slightly inclined up to the bung-hole, whose outer ends were grave, open to the smoke; while persons very carelessly, were dismounted up to the cask. The visitor entered into conversation with one of the patients, who appeared to have some curiosity in knowing what stranger passed for—this one of—there.

"I have horses and greyhounds for coursing," said the latter in reply to the other's questions.

"Ah! they are very expensive."

"Yes, they cost me a great deal of money in the year; but they are the best of their kind."

"Have you anything more?"

"I have a pack of hounds for hunting the fox."

"And they cost a great deal, too?"

"A great deal. And I have birds for hawking."

"I see; birds for hunting birds. And these swell up the expense, I dare say?"

"You may my that, for they are not common in this country. And then I sometimes go out with my gun, accompanied by a setter and a retriever."

"And these are expensive, too?"

"Of course. After all, it is not the animals of themselves that run away with the money; there must be men to feed and look after them; houses to lodge them in—in short, the whole sporting establishment."

"I see, I see! You have horses, hounds, setters, retrievers, hawks, men—and all for the capture of foxes and birds. What an enormous revenue they must cost you! Now, what I want to know is this—what return do they pay? What does your year's sporting produce?

"Why, we kill a fox now and then—only they are getting rather scarce hereabouts—and we seldom bag less than fifty brace of birds each season."

"Hark!" said the lunatic, looking anxiously around him. "My friend"—in an earnest whisper—"there is a gate behind you; take my advice, and get out of this while you are safe. Don't let the doctor get his eyes upon you. He docks us to some purpose, but as sure as you are a living man, he will drown you."

The gentleman looked serious as he passed on. Perhaps he thought that he was as mad as the inmate of the asylum.—Ex. Paper.

BOARDING HOUSE CHRISTIANS.

There is in some of our churches a class of persons who might appropriately be denominated "boarding-house Christians." To them the church of God is a grand hotel where, if they pay a stated fare, they think themselves exempt from all further concern in it. With its inner workings and internal arrangements they have nothing to do. Is it not the business of the pastor and deacons to see that everything goes on right? Why, then, need they trouble themselves? They bear their share of the expenses, what more can reasonably be expected of them?

They also claim the undisputed right of boarders—that of finding fault whenever anything goes wrong; and lead in the grumbling if the dishes served up are not to their liking. An underdone or overdone sermon causes them to turn up their fastidious noses in intense disgust, and a repetition of the offence sends them off in high dudgeon to seek for quarters where the fare will be more to their taste.

When these persons speak of the church and its affairs—which, by the way, they seldom do, unless something goes wrong—a stranger would not suspect their identity with it. It is "they" did this, or "they" did not do that; not "we;" and to the question, "Why did you not use your influence to have a different state of affairs?" comes the answer, "Oh, I wasn't at the church meeting!" If pressed for the reason of their absence, various excuses are given; but a few, perhaps, are candid enough to own that "there were enough others to transact the business without me, and I did not think it was necessary I should be there." Shame upon such indifference. These persons, probably, never reflected upon the effect that would be produced if each individual member should arrive at the same conclusion; and perhaps it never occurred to them that they are acting a very unjust and selfish part in thus throwing upon the shoulders of others their share of the general burden. Let them remember the prophet's denunciation, "Woe to them that are at ease in Zion."

Reported Discovery of a Murder Committed 27 Years Ago.

AN HOSTLER DISCLOSES THE SECRET.

STRATFORD, Nov. 24th, 1864.

There is great excitement here at present in consequence of a confession made by an hostler, relative to a murder which was committed at a tavern near this place twenty-seven years ago. He states that at the time specified he was in the employment of the landlord and his wife, and that one night a pedlar came there, but disappeared shortly after—leaving his horse and effects, which were sold. The peddler had been murdered in the tavern, and his body was conveyed to a well and there thrown in. Since that time things have changed—the tavern has been burned, and on its site—covering the well—is a large brick store—the landlord is dead, and the widow has since married and occupies a respectable position in society. The servant girl too, who witnessed the murder and confided the secret to the hostler—is dead, and he could not conceal the knowledge of the deed longer, as it preyed upon his mind and almost crazed his brain. He makes a solemn affidavit to these facts; that people do not know what to believe. The affair is mysterious in the extreme—though many old inhabitants distinctly remember the disappearance of the pedlar. The matter will of course undergo further investigation.—Cor. Ham. Times.

SINGULAR DETECTION OF A MURDERER.

The following [illegible] case of murder, near [illegible], in Orange County, New York, [illegible] in connection with the Albany market, recently received on his person $4,000 on $5,000 on his return home. On the 16th of September he had been engaged all day at West Albany, but made no purchases. He went out in the evening into a stranger to look at some cattle that had come from Saratoga, and were placed in the most remote pens in the market. Next day at sunrise he was found dying, his head broken with a sling-shot, it is supposed; his money, $1200, and a check for $3000, gone. Who had done the deed? Who was the stranger that had taken Thompson off to show him the cattle? A man with a slouched hat had been seen with Thompson. He had bantered him about betting, and offered to stake thousands upon Lincoln's election. Thompson offered to put up any amount on the other side. He produced his well-stuffed wallets, and it was noticed the stranger stuck to him all day after this.

One of the drovers, Gunter, of Tribe's Hill, recollected the man, who had asked him, 'Didn't you keep bar somewhere. Haven't I seen you before?' But though the Magistrates of Albany offered a reward of $300, and the Drovers added $2000 more it, there was no clue to the murderer.

A month afterwards, the Drover Gunter was riding in the cars to Schenectady, he fell into accidental conversation with a passenger, who, after a few brief words, abruptly asked, 'Haven't you kept bar somewhere? Haven't I seen you before?' 'Yes he replied, 'I must have seen you at west Albany.' The passenger denied this; but Gunter replied, 'Yes, I am sure, and I arrest you as the murderer of Thompson.' The man's slouched hat had been replaced by another, his moustache had disappeared, his dress was different. It was the question, the accent, the tone of voice, that were the means of identification.

After the arrest other proofs came. Gordon, arrested, had been spending money recently with great freedom. He had paid out two bills of one hundred dollars each on the Park Bank, at which Thompson had dealings. He was a shiftless, dishonest man. He had carried a bad character into the army, and made it worse there. He was traced to Schenectady the night of the murder, and probably ran down to the depot after the crime, and took the train. The servant girl, the black barber, and others at the Drover's Hotel, identify him with more or less positiveness.

A WARLIKE WORLD.

The Opinion Nationale of a recent date gives this dismal picture of the present belligerent condition of the world:

If there be a dead calm in politics as well as in business amongst us, it is not the same in all parts of the little planet we inhabit. Three quarters of humanity, in fact are living in the barbarous state of war.

There is war in Poland.
War in Algeria.
War in Tunis.
War in Mexico.
War in the United States.
War in Peru.
War in New Zealand.
War in China and Kachgar.
War in Japan.
War in Afghanistan.
War in twenty countries in Africa.

This is, unfortunately, enough to discourage the friends of universal peace; and who can say they will not meet with still greater disappointment? Italy, Hungary, Poland, Denmark and the Slavonian population of Turkey, are not, it must be confessed, in the most pacific humour; and to those who study the general situation of our continent, it is quite evident that the general situation, instead of getting better, goes on from day to day getting more and more complicated.

To this list must now be added Java, for the Dutch are now engaged in a war with the natives of this island so long under their control.

WHAT AN EDUCATED MAN OUGHT TO KNOW.—Ruskin says: An educated man ought to know three things: First, where he is—that is to say, what sort of a world he has got into, how large it is, what kind of creatures live in it, and how; what it is made of, and what may be made of it. —Secondly, where he is going—that is to say, what citizens of experts there are of any other world besides this; what seems to be the nature of that world. Thirdly, what it is best to do under the circumstances—that is to say, what are the present state and waste of meantime; what are the readiest means in his power of attaining happiness and diffusing it. The man who knows these things and who has his will so subdued in the learning of them, that he is ready to do what he knows he ought, is an educated man; and the man who knows them not is uneducated, though he could talk all the tongues of Babel.

We would exhort all parents, if you regard the welfare and happiness of your children in this world merely, teach them benevolence, and train them in habits of benevolence. If you desire that they may be kind to you when you are old, strive to endarge their hearts. If they are taught to love their neighbor as themselves, they never can be untried to their own flesh.

Our Simon, who is not at all backward in coming forward, perpetrated another good thing a day or two since. As he and a friend were standing on a corner, a fine-looking horse passed leisurely by. "That horse is a happy creature," said his friend, "for he's got no notes to pay to-morrow." "Not so happy as you suppose," replied Simon, "for he's got his checks and drafts to meet."

One angry word sometimes raised a storm that a century cannot allay.

SHOULD THERE BE A GENERAL ELECTION?

The war cry of many is, Shall the people be appealed to or not? Will there be a general election before the Union is perfected? or, Will the present Parliament begin the work and complete it without appealing to the people—without consulting their wishes? The cry for an election is nothing more than an appeal to arouse the people to suppose there is some infringement on their peculiar privileges, or some unwarrantable neglect to consult them when matters of such magnitude are being transacted. The pretended grievance is imaginary, not real—is more for the purpose of getting up an excitement than any particular care the sensationists have for the rights of the people. Should a dissolution take place and a general election follow, what is there before the people upon which to form the idea of the slightest change in the position of the parties in a new parliament? The plan of the proposed union is not known to the people yet—the particulars have not been divulged. That any of the rights of the people have been sacrificed, no one can tell—for the work of the Conference has not been revealed. The only question, then, is, Are the present members qualified to manage the details of the ceremonies of the proposed compact, or are they not? Some say they are not sufficient for the matter, and in consequence demand an appeal to be made for a new parliament to deal with this particular subject. Such an election, if granted, must hinge on the words Confederation or no-Confederation, —there is no other grievance just now. But is it not strange that those who declaim loudest for an appeal to find the wishes of the people, are just as loud for a union.

The Liberals of Upper Canada have all along declared themselves for a union. There was general satisfaction when Mr. Brown made his overtures to the Conservatives for a settlement of existing difficulties; and it is well known that those elected since have all declared themselves in favor of union—else they would scarcely have obtained a single vote, so strong was the voice of the people in favor of Confederation;—and this was so well known that not one was bold enough to come forward and declare himself against it. What nonsense, then, to say these men were not chosen with a view to Confederation or union!

There can be no necessity for an appeal unless there be, in the proposed Constitution, something, contrary to the people's interest, about to be enacted. If that be so, by all means consult the people—by all means get an expression of the popular will concerning it. But in the name of common sense, what necessity to appeal to the people on the mere subject of Confederation or no Confederation, since, from East to West, there is not a dissentient, except among the Lower Canadians?

The only thing we desire now is more light on the matter. Let us have the proposed changes in detail—let us have the whole working of the Conference—let us know what is proposed to be done—and then we will know whether our rights are being invaded, and whether an appeal is necessary. Let us have a detailed statement of the Confederation scheme before it becomes law, and let the people know what they will be required to consent to; and by so doing the minds of the people will be enlightened and prepared for an intelligent discussion of the pros. and cons.—and thus, when an appeal is made, they will be in possession of that which is necessary in order to give an intelligent decision.

We do not see what good end can be gained by concealing from the people the proposed policy of the delegates; nor do we see the injury that could eventuate in publishing the details. We would say give us information on the matter: Let the people know what is proposed; make them acquainted with the terms of the union;—and when it is found that our representatives are unworthy of our confidence, then, by all means, appeal to the people. But not till then.

It is however, our privilege to be able to say that the whole scheme will be made known very soon, and that the only cause of the concealment hitherto was out of a sense of etiquette—it being found most reasonable to make it known officially in Britain before giving it to the public here.

SOUTH ONTARIO.

The number of aspirants for parliamentary honors in Ontario are numerous The non-residents are: Messrs. E. Blake, J. Bell, and Hon. J. McMurrich, of Toronto. Residents: A. Farewell, J. P. White, W. H. Mitchell, Peter Taylor, Colin Campbell, C. Draper and S. H. Cochrane. Conservatives: Messrs. J. H. Perry, Laing, Rowe, Dr. Gunn, T. N. Gibbs. No less than fifteen! The Observer thinks Mr. Farewell's chances are most hopeful.

TEMPERANCE.

The temperance movement in Mariposa, to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors in that Township, has been defeated by forty votes.

ELDER.—The Township Council of this Township has passed a By-law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors in accordance with the Temperance Act of 1864.

S. WHITE AGAIN.—Now is the time to visit White's Excelsior Boot and Shoe establishment, on George Street, where you will get what will keep your feet from being wet and cold, in the shape of good and substantial Boots and Shoes.

GENERAL MCCLELLAN is to be President of the Great Western and Atlantic Railroad.

The "Mirror" and the Separate School Fire.

It is somewhat surprising that the Mirror can afford information to its readers concerning the affairs of this town which we, its inhabitants, have never heard of. The latest and most amusing piece of information that it has thus offered us, was the burning of the Separate School House was the work of Protestants (or of a Protestant), and we would inform the tone of the paragraph, one of the "brethren." Here is the morceau from the Mirror:

The Catholic Separate School House in Peterboro' was destroyed by fire on Saturday night, Nov. 11. The act was that of an incendiary, and it is generally believed to have been done out of a spirit of revenge because the 'brethren' were not permitted to burn the effigies of Connell, the Pope, the Duke of Newcastle, and the Prince of Wales, on the 5th of November in this city. We hope that the Catholics of Peterborough will insist on the Government nothing some effort, by offering a reward and the employment of some competent detective, to find out the perpetrators of the outrage."

We can assure the Mirror and his co-religionists, that the Orangemen of Peterboro' and vicinity felt not the least troubled about the affair of the 5th in Toronto. The "spirit of revenge" never once entered into the mind of one of the brotherhood. They can afford to leave the rowdies of Toronto in the hands of the constituted authorities; they are fully convinced that their loyal brethren of Toronto would heartily condemn any such dastardly act as the firing of a building (for have advise the doing of it) by any of their order. But suppose they were so evilly inclined, what "revenge" would it be to burn a building that was fully insured. It must at once be evident that in such circumstance, not the Roman Catholics but the Insurance Company would suffer. And it is should be urged that the fact of its being insured might not have been known to the incendiary, we answer that no one could be so ignorant, for the word "Royal" was in large letters on the front of the building, and could be seen even while the house was being consumed, as many present can testify. Now had they done it, what revenge could there be in burning that which evidently would be no loss to the Roman Catholics of Peterboro', but a gain.

The Trustees of the Separate School intend erecting a new school house, which no doubt will be more commodious than the old one, and for this no one can blame them. This new house will be of more durable material, of more imposing architectural design; instead of a one-story building it will no doubt be found necessary to have the new house two stories; and instead of the old fashioned desks and benches, the most improved fittings will be found the most desirable, yea, indispensable. Now what disadvantage will it be to have one-third of the cost of such new building in cash? Will it not rather be an advantage? and hence the incendiary did them a benefit rather than an injury. In regard to the library the loss was not much. We are informed by one who had every opportunity of knowing that said library consisted of about 200 volumes. A circulating library after a few years' use, we all know, becomes very much reduced in value, the loss on it therefore could not be above $150, putting it at what one of themselves valued it at when interrogated concerning it. This, therefore, is the only loss sustained. But, might not many of these books be out at the time and thus reduce the number supposed to be destroyed, and hence render the imaginary loss very low indeed, making the whole affair a mere trifle. After a review of the matter, might it not be reasonably asked, upon whom would the suspicion rest most strongly,—on Protestants or Catholics? But as we do not wish to throw out any insinuations against either party, the whole being to us a mystery, we will just leave these few thoughts with our readers, and allow them to indulge in their own reveries on the matter.

At the time, we advised investigation, believing that the act bore evident marks of the handywork of some interested party, and we feel assured that such investigation would have received due attention from the Protestant officers of Justice here; and furthermore we are convinced that there is not a Protestant in Peterboro' but would aid in dragging to justice and punishment, the perpetrator of such a foul act. The Protestants of Peterboro' do not in any way desire to deprive their Roman Catholic townsmen of a house in which to instruct their offspring in any way they may choose. There is nothing that is more desired than to see them educating and training their children in useful learning, believing that as they increase their light their bigotry will decrease, for light and darkness have no agreement.

There is no necessity to apply to Government to offer a reward, and the detectives of Peterboro' are both able and willing to do their duty. More competent detectives are not needed. The Trustees of the School have only to apply to the proper person and investigation will, we feel sure, be instituted without government interference, when they can have an opportunity of removing the blame from their neighbors, and saddling it on the right parties if they can find them out.

We can further assure our Roman Catholic friends that burning property, or injuring individuals who may differ from them in religious views is no part of a protestant's creed. Protestants are taught to do unto others as they would wish others to do to them in like circumstances; and their religion teaches that "Peace on earth and good will to men" is the true mission of Christianity. Their Union is not offensive, but defensive, and were it not for bloody deeds of days of yore when a religion differing from protestantism prevailed, no such organization would now or ever have been needed. The 5th of Nov. 64, however, warns them of lowering dangers, and tells them to be prepared—tells them that dark deeds of cruelty are still designed, but tells them timely, that they may be ready. Is it not eminous when Roman Catholic Bishops assume the responsibility of the deeds of their devotees by defending their proceedings; and when the Roman Catholic Press uses every means to keep alive the spirit of enmity and ill will of the past,—fans the flame of religious hatred, and magnifies every thing into studied intentions of evil towards them. This has always been their course, and wherever they are found, they are reaping the fruits of their labour. But let them be ware lest they heat the furnace seven times hotter than they have hitherto done, and then fall into it themselves. The wicked often fall into the pit they dig for others.

A NUMEROUSLY signed petition in favor of Robert Finnegan's sentence being commuted into imprisonment in the Penitentiary, is about being forwarded to the Executive in his behalf.

A NEW SCHOOL ACT FOR THE CANADAS.

Mr. Galt, in his late speech at Sherbrooke, a speech which, by the way, gives evidence of no want of diligence on his part, nor of partiality for the land of his nearest, as it expresses fearless opinions of the Toronto clothes, gives us the following, to which we may refer on some future time:—

"He spoke now upon one of the most important questions appertaining to this most important —that could be confided to the legislature—the question of education. This was a question in which, in Lower Canada, they must all feel the greatest interest, and in respect to which more apprehension might be supposed to exist in the country, at any rate of the Protestant population, than in regard to anything else connected with the whole scheme of Federation. It must be clear that a measure would not be favorably entertained by the minority of Lower Canada which would place the education of their children and the provision for their schools wholly in the hands of a majority of a different faith. It was clear that in confiding the general subject of education to the local legislatures, it was absolutely necessary it should be accompanied with such restrictions as would prevent injustice in any respect from being done to the minority. (Hear, hear.) Now this applied to Lower Canada, but it also applied and with equal force to Upper Canada and the other Provinces; for in Lower Canada there was a Protestant minority, and in the other Provinces a Roman Catholic minority. The same privileges belonged to the one of right here which belonged to the others of right elsewhere. There could be no greater injustice to a population than to compel them to have their children educated in a manner contrary to their own religious belief. It had been stipulated that the question was to be made subject to the rights and privileges which the minorities might have as to their separate and denominational schools. There had been grave difficulties surrounding the separate school question in Upper Canada, but they were all settled now, and with regard to the separate school system of Lower Canada, it was the determination of the Government to bring down a measure for the amendment of the school laws before the Confederation was allowed to go into force. (Loud cheers.) He made this statement because, as the clause was worded in the printed resolutions, it would appear that the school law, as it at present existed, was to be continued. Attention had, however, been drawn in Conference to the fact that the school law, as it existed in Lower Canada, required amendment, but no action was taken there as to its alteration, because he hardly felt himself competent to draw up the amendments required; and it was far better that the mind of the British population of Lower Canada should be brought to bear on the subject, and that the Government might hear what they had to say, so that all the amendments required in the law might be made in a bill to be submitted to Parliament, and he knew that the government would be very glad to have amendments by those who, from their intelligence or position, were best able to propose them. (Hear.) It was clear that injustice could not be done to an important class in the country such as the Protestants of Lower Canada or the Roman Catholics of Upper Canada, without sowing the seeds of discord in the community to an extent which would bear fatal fruit in the course of a very few years. (Hear!) The question of education was put in generality—the clause covering both superior and common school education, although the two were to a certain extent distinct. This was not the place, nor had he the time or ability to enlarge upon the subject; but he might observe that common school education was that which we were called upon to give to the whole of the people, but that superior education was different, in that we aimed at something higher; we took the finest minds of the country, the best talent that was growing up around us, and endeavoured to enable our youth, educated at our Universities, to hold their own position and be an honor to their country in any part of the world, to fill up our Bench, to supply the Bar, to be the ornaments of our Church, to be distinguished in the medical profession. He hoped and believed, when the question came up in Parliament for disposal, the Legislature would rescue the Lower Canadian institutions for superior education from the difficulties in which they now stood; and this remark applied both to Roman Catholic and Protstant institutions.

EARLY CLOSING.

We invite the attention of the Merchants of Peterboro to the communication of an "Early Closer." We certainly endorse his opinions. It would seem as if night and day were both to be employed without cessation. Very few of the clerks of the Town can say "There is rest for the weary" here. But we think the long hours are more from want of thought than anything else, and we are almost persuaded that the subject only requires to be brought to the notice of the business community to have the evil remedied. Young men who are engaged from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. can have no time for the improvement of either body or mind, and if such be continued for a lengthened period, must surely injure their health and stent their intellect. An hour to them would be a great boon, while if any thing like a general early closing would take place, no one would lose. Let some merchant who is philanthrophic enough to act the example begin, and let him solicit others also. Very soon they will find that no loss is suffered, and the pleasant, cheerful, thankful, look of their clerks would be a double remuneration for any imaginery sacrifice they should make.

The Billiard Tournament.

The most prominent and most skilful players of this much admired sport have been testing their skill at Toronto during the past week. One of the first games was played by Messrs Crown, of Peterboro and Miller, of Clifton, both are spoken of as having decided billiard "ability." Mr. Crown won several games, thus showing his abilities and skill compared with the first players of the Province, and, although a young player, has had high encomiums bestowed upon him

Mr. Jakes, of Cobourg, won the champion Cue—having won the greatest number of games during the Tournament, and Mr. May came off second. The great contest was between these two.

TERRIFIC STORM IN SCOTLAND.

A gale, unparalleled in magnitude and destruction, has passed over Scotland. It commenced on Friday, 31st October, and continued through the following Saturday and Sunday.

NEW GROCERY AND PROVISION STORE.—It will be seen by our advertising columns that the Messrs. Atkins have opened an extensive stock in the above line, which they offer very cheap for cash. Intending purchasers would, no doubt, find it to their interest to give them a call, at Mr. Means's old stand, Monthorn's block, George street.

FRANK LESLIE'S LADY'S MAGAZINE for December is received. As a Fashion Magazine it will be found very useful to families, as it contains a great many very fine patterns and fashion plates. For sale by all booksellers.

IN the United States, ten millions dollars' worth of petroleum has been lost in transporting or carelessly wasting during the last year.

CANADIAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Press Association took place on the 24th at Belleville. The President Mr. D. Wylie of the Brockville Recorder, occupied the chair and delivered a practical address of considerable length.

The office bearers of the association for the coming year were elected as follows:—

PRESIDENT—Mr. Thomas White, Junr., Hamilton Spectator.

1ST VICE—Mr. Mackenzie Bowell, Belleville Intelligencer.

2ND VICE—Mr. Thomas Seiler, Montreal Echo.

SECRETARY—Mr. James A. Campbell, Whitby Gazette.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY—Mr. W. G. Cox, Goderich Signal.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE—Messrs. Wylie Messenger, Somerville, Balch, and Lang.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at Brockville, and to have the annual excursion at the same time—going to the city of Ottawa, and thence down the river to Montreal.

A resolution was adopted to petition for the abolition at present on all other papers or the imposition of postage on agricultural and temperance papers as on others.

Resolutions of thanks to the telegraph and railway companies were also adopted.

Twelve new members were admitted.

The annual dinner of the Association was held at the Dafoe House, in the evening, and was a great success. A number of prominent residents of the town were present.

SAD ACCIDENT.—From our Cobourg exchanges we learn that a young man named Samuel Chapman, while attending a threshing machine on the farm of Mr. John Thomas, 5th Concession Huldimand, had his arm caught in the machine and so severely injured that death ensued in about six hours. It seems he was standing on the table cutting sheaves, when one of the sheaves knocked off his cap, which he endeavored to catch, and in so doing had his arm caught among the teeth and almost torn from his body; his breast and face were also badly mutilated.

ALCOHOL.—On Wednesday last, a young man named Charles D. Swan, employed as a book-keeper in a store in Buffalo, entered the establishment in a condition which unfitted him for business—having, for a week previous been drinking to excess. His employer advised him to go home and sleep off his debauch. Instead of doing so, the unfortunate young man sat down in a chair, drew a pistol from his pocket and shot himself in the head. He died in about five minutes.

THE PROCLAMATION.—On Tuesday, the Government issued a proclamation prohibiting the exportation or carrying coastwise, or by inland navigation, of arms or ammunition. We are told this was owing to reliable information reaching Quebec that Southerners and their sympathizers in certain Western towns are manufacturing and clandestinely collecting, at convenient points, shot, shell, and cannon.

A YOUNG man attempted to lift a boy by the head, in Troy, a day or two ago, and dislocated his neck, so that he has remained insensible ever since. It is a matter of doubt whether he will recover.

THE Government has granted £600 towards the relief of the Indians of the Manitoulin Islands, who number 4,753, nearly all of whom have suffered much by the fires in the woods.

NEW BENCHERS.—On Saturday the Benchers of the Law Society added to their own number by the appointment of Kenneth Mackenzie, Esq., Q. C., and Robert Dennistoune, Esq.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Present: His Worship the Mayor, and Messrs. Toole, Lawson, Whyte, Moffat, McNaughton, Hamilton and Leonard.

The minutes of former meeting were read and confirmed.

Communications from the Warden, calling the attention of the Council to the bad state of the fence around the old graveyard; J. T. Heathorn, Esq., complaining of the escape of Michael Calpin; James McPherson, Emigrant Agent at Kingston, asking information as to the requirements of the locality for laborers; William Settle, asking for an Auctioneer's license at a reduced rate, were read.

Petitions from Mrs. Prime, asking for two months rent, due for a house occupied by an emigrant woman; Mrs. Lannin, asking for the remission of the taxes of her late husband; Mrs. Curtis and Mrs. Boyd, asking assistance; A. W. Kempt, and others, and Wm. Coulter and others, asking for a crossing on George street, between Hunter and Simcoe streets; from T. Bradburn and others, praying not to grant the crossings asked; and from A. Kane, asking the Council to remit the taxes charged him for a dog, as he has had no dog for two years; Timothy Cashman and Mrs. Knight, asking for remission of taxes; John Boyle, in reference to arrears of taxes charged to him, when he has paid his taxes regularly; Elias Halpin, asking assistance from the Council; Thos. Bradburn, asking leave to lay down a crossing on George street opposite his store; were all read and submitted.

Accounts amounting to $503.03, were referred to the Finance Committee.

On motion of Mr. Lawson, the prayer of Wm. Coulter was granted, and that the crossing be laid under the direction of Messrs. Toole and Moffat, and the Chief Constable.

Mr. Settle's prayer for an auctioneer's license at a reduced price was granted.

On motion of Mr. Hamilton, Mrs. Lannin's taxes were reduced one-third, and A. Kane's reduced 50 cents for a dog.

The petitions of Mrs. Prime, Timothy Cashman, Mrs. Curtis and Widow Boyd, were ordered to be laid on the table.

The taxes of Mrs. Knight were ordered to be remitted.

The Finance Committee's report recommend the payment of sundry accounts.

The prayer of Thos. Bradburn, asking leave to construct a crossing on George St., was granted.

Mr. Arnott was instructed to have the fence around the old burying ground repaired.

The Treasurer was forbidden to pay any accounts for works on streets since the rate was struck, unless such works are properly authorized by the Council.

The Treasurer was ordered to pay $1 weekly to the following persons: Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Kelleghan, Mrs. Halpin, Mrs. McDermot, and William Derry.

Mr. Hamilton moved to have the sidewalk on Hunter street, between Mr. Hall's brick store and the bridge, repaired; the motion was lost.

Moved by Mr. Lawson and seconded by Mr. Whyte, that the Treasurer be instructed to enforce a discount of four per cent on silver on amounts received by him from the Collector for taxes, except from persons who have worked for the corporation during the past summer, who are to have silver taken at par.

While this resolution was under discussion, it was discovered that Councillor Hamilton had left his chair, and there not being a quorum, the Council separated.

THE AMERICAN WAR.

The great feature of this week's news is Sherman's campaign. He is causing great excitement in the South; the end of the matter is not yet known. A bold stroke or well executed movement may do much to bring the American people to their right minds. The report of one despatch is contradicted by the next, that reports only can be given and must be received as such. Milledgeville and Gordon are reported captured. The Governors of South Carolina and Georgia have issued a proclamation calling out all the males of those States between the ages of 16 and 50. Troubles are likely to arise between the United States and Brazil, because of the breach of neutrality in capturing the Florida. The United States will, no doubt, see the necessity of delivering her up, and apologizing to the Brazilian government.

NASHVILLE, Nov. 26.—Hood's army, numbering probably 40,000 men, have been for several days past, concentrating south of Columbia; our forces in the meantime have evacuated Pulaski.

Our forces are near and about Columbia, in Hood's front; they are commanded by General Thomas. On the 24th some severe fighting occurred, resulting in a loss to the Federals of 449 killed and wounded. The Confederate loss is estimated at 264; among the killed was one Confederate Colonel.

Large bodies of troops are being massed in Hood's front, and some heavy fighting may be expected in that direction in a few days. There was heavy fighting yesterday between the opposing armies, but no official account of an engagement have yet been received.

Hood's demonstrations in Tennessee have thus far been fruitless retrograde movements, and it is confidently expected by those who are well informed in army matters that he will be made to retreat on this occasion.

ATLANTA, Nov. 22.—The Confederate from Dauesboro, reports that Milledgeville and Gordon were captured yesterday. The enemy appear to have all gone in the direction of Milledgeville and Macon, but nothing certain is known. The force of the enemy on this road is estimated at 100,000, and are advancing slowly and cautiously.

The garrison of Mobile is said to be suffering much for want of necessary clothing.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—The Richmond Enquirer of the 23rd says Sherman is marching into the heart of Georgia. As yet, his movements have met with but little resistance,—a fact explained by the necessity for drawing him as far as possible from the only point he could look for succor. It is not improbable he may capture the capital of the State, and perhaps move thence to Savannah or Augusta, with an ultimate eye on Charleston.

It was rumored yesterday that he had Milledgeville already, and though not officially confirmed, it is not unlikely. In case of its occupation, Savannah and Charleston will be evidently the objective points of the expedition. Confirmations being in progress to foil his purposes, we may expect to hear in a few days some account of them.

SHERMAN'S POSITION.—The Southern papers represent Sherman's march southward as a retreat from Atlanta, which he was under the necessity of effecting in some direction, and which he could not do northward. They say his supplies were cut off, and his retreat intercepted by Hood in the direction of his former base, Tennessee, and he had to make for a seaport to extricate himself from certain ruin. They further allege that the country will be desolated before him and around him, and that the people will harass him in every direction, until troops can be mustered from all quarters, when he will have to surrender as Burgoyne did at Saratoga.

On the other hand the Northern papers represent that he was abundantly able to hold Atlanta, but that position had ceased to be important, and that he destroyed its defences, and public buildings, and has left Hood behind where he can be of no use, and proceeded towards the chief cities of Georgia where are the great manufactories on which the rebels depend. That he will destroy these sweeping the country as he goes along of horses, slaves, &c., &c., and come out at Savannah, or some other point on the coast, where he will be in direct communication with the Northern fleet.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—Permit me through the columns of your valuable paper, to make some remarks as regards "early closing," trusting that they may not prove offensive to any of the merchants of this town. Now could not the merchants do as much business and close their establishments at seven o'clock during the long winter evenings, and by so doing allow those in their employ some little time for recreation? If they did so, no person would think of doing any business after that hour. As an instance of this, I would refer them to the regulations of Banking institutions. No person thinks of doing any business at the Bank's after three o'clock; and why? because it is well known that they close at that hour. At present there is no particular hour at which the merchants close; sometimes at eight, sometimes at half-past eight, and in some instances they are to be found open until nine o'clock.

Now, you will agree with me when I say that this does not allow the young men any time for amusement, either mental or physical, at most only one hour, unless they would like to turn night into day, as it were, by remaining up until a late hour. But generally speaking when the hour of ten o'clock arrives, a young man who has been standing behind a counter all day, feels more like retiring than sitting beside a long wait listening his weight in keeping until midnight. And how is this to be obviated in any other way than by allowing him more time to peruse his books? Besides this there are many other enjoyments he is deprived of, simply because he has no time; for instance, we have a skating rink, but when time has any clerk to enjoy the healthy exercise of skating, who leaves the shop at eight o'clock? By the time he arrives at the rink and is ready for skating it is nine o'clock, and certainly he has not much time for amusement after that hour.

I do not mean to complain in any way of the merchants when I write this, for I believe that if they were requested to sign a requisition presented by the clerks, to close at seven o'clock they would do so with much pleasure. As it is, there are some, be it said to their honor, who now close at that hour.

By favoring me, Mr. Editor, with your opinion, you will oblige as advocate of

EARLY CLOSING.

Peterboro', Nov. 30, 1864.

FIRE AND LOSS OF LIFE.—The following are the particulars of the fire in Dundas, of which we gave a brief account on Saturday last:—We have this week to record the occurrence of a most melancholy affair, which transpired on Friday night last, and resulted in the death of a man named William Dawson, a teamster, who has resided in Dundas and neighborhood for about thirty years. At about ten o'clock, the alarm of fire was sounded and it was found that the stable belonging to Mr. Fisher, on the paper mill premises, was on fire. Those who arrived first at the fire found that it was impossible to enter the barn, as it was in a mass of flames, so that nothing could be done to save the horses, as not being supposed that Dawson was in the burning building. Not very soon the siding of the stable was burned off, and then it was discovered that the body of the unfortunate man was lying on the floor—life having no doubt been extinct for some time, as suffocation must have ensued in a very short time after the fire broke out. The sight was harrowing and sickening in the extreme, to see the body lying within three feet of the door of the building, and being gradually consumed without any means at hand for extricating it from the flames. Gradually the feet and limbs were charred off, and then the head, nothing being left but the trunk, when at last a hook was procured, and the remains dragged from the flames. From the evidence, it appeared that he had not been down for about two hours previous to the discovery of the fire, and it is supposed that he had gone to the stables while intoxicated, and has thrown, his lamp having by some means set fire to the straw on the floor. The deceased was the owner of the two horses destroyed, and Mr. Fisher owned the building. He had no insurance thereon, and his loss will be about $400.—Dundas Banner.

THE CANADA FARMER.

—We have received the double number of this excellent Journal. The present one contains a variety of articles on subjects of interest to every agriculturist. It is the best work of the kind published in America, and justly deserves to be liberally patronized. Every Farmer should take it. Now is the time to subscribe for 1865.

JOB BEWARE.—We notice that Mr. Samuel Milborn escaped from the Cobourg jail on Tuesday last. He is about 6 years of age, about six feet high, and Mr. Sheriff offers the above reward for his apprehension.—Star.

SUICIDE IN COBOURG.—A young man, a foreigner, name not known, committed suicide at Cobourg, early this morning, by shooting himself. A discharged pistol was in his grasp when he was found. No reason is known for his committing the act.

Birth.

The Oxygenated Bitters in Canada.

The following testimony from a well known Editor, is corroborative of the general approval given to Dr. Green's OXYGENATED BITTERS:

PETERBORO', 12th Jan., 1860.

Messrs. Seth W. Fowle & Co.,

Gentlemen—Having used your Oxygenated Bitters at intervals for some time. I with great willingness testify to their excellency as a tonic, in the relief of Dyspepsia and its attendant cause, arising from sedentary pursuits. No Bitters that I have ever used, has afforded me such speedy relief.

Your Obedient Servant
THOMAS WHITE, Jr.

Poetry.

OUR SKATER BELLE.

While the frozen falls the comet,
In linking crescents, light and fleet;
The ice-imprisoned Undine hugs
A welcome to her little feet.

I saw the jaunty hat, the plume
Swerve bird-like in the joyous gale—
The curdle lit up to a burning bloom
That came and vanished through the veil.

The quick breath parts her laughing lips,
The white neck shines through tossing curls,
Her corsets gently swell and dips,
As on she speeds in shell-like whirls.

Men stop and smile to see her go;
They gaze, they smile in pleased surprise;
They ask her name; they long to show
Some silent friendship in their eyes.

She glances not; she presses on;
Her steely footfall rings;
She guesses not the tension
Which follows her on scalloped wings.

Smooth be her ways, secure her tread,
Along the devious lines of life;
From grace to grace successive led,
A noble maiden, nobler wife!

DEUM-HEAD WAR SERMON.

BY A CESAR POMPEY SQUASH,

Chaplain of the 45th Dungeoning Instruction.

Bredden and Sisters and Sinners:—

On dis joyful occion, I hab selected for my ten de memorable sayin ob dat grate poetic ob freedom, Abum Linkum, whose glorus contynuants orter warm de brens ob ebry culered man dis side ob de norf so de sout pole, and dese are de identicle words, transpinated for dis tickilar occion by your special chaplin:

"I'll hab no peace wid rebbles till dey manypate dar niggers."

Now wot Abum sez he means, an he'll kerry out dat doctrine if forty tousadd debils try to perwent him. Manypate de niggers! Do you begin to know darkeys wot manypate signifieshes? I don half believe you dus, by de way you ear at your preacher. Well, I speck I'm de indywidooal wot can lighten you. Manypate means to gib some ob you darkeys mo' dan you deserve; your abolishin freedom, and if you don make good use ob it, instid ob bein a blessin twill be an eberlastin disgrace to you.

But de postle beliebes dat you know how to took care ob yourselbes as well as any oder man, be he wite or brack. Dont you disjint him now, cos if you do he'll be down on you like a tousan ob bumshels, and turn you ober to Jeff Debil on his lejun ob wild gorillas. De brack man am now de equil to de wite man, as a leetle wo' so, speshally if de wite man's a demmycrat—for I shus you dey noffin but poo' wite trash, any how. Now you tuck to your principles, hold up your heds up, lub Massa Linkum an 'bey him in all tings, and den you'll go to dat place wher all de good niggers go.

By golly, boys! heah, heah, yah, yah! it am all right! De Presidum informs me dat de people hab jus decided by an overwhelmin merjority dat dey dar'll be no swappin ob hosses dis time! In oder wuds, brudren, we hab licket out Gineral Clanwin an his army, an de publican hole de reines ob de ole hoss for four yeers more. Derfo' brudren I shal examin dis semblygashun and sollybrate de victry for de rest ob de day, arter de kollecshun hab ben tooken up, and we all jine in singin dat good ole hymn—

"De hoop de dooden do."

Brudder Flatnose will hab de onor ob parsein roun' de tamboreen, an you niggers will please member dat your chaplin cant sollybrate widout de kerrency, an his credit wid de sutlar expired night afo' yisterdy. Ah! men.

Men do not have their choice whether they will accept life or not, but they can choose how they will live.

Tears of the soul have ever filled the world. In both the physical and moral worlds there is more sea than firm land.

Spare minutes are mighty laborers if kept to their work. They overthrow or build up, enrich or impoverish a man.

All beauty is truth. Poetry is winged table; but it is, likewise, feet on fire—and its chief excellency is its truth. So with beauty; its highest perfection is its truth.

The three events which cause us to think most profoundly, and which make the most decided impression upon the character, are thwarted, ambition, unsuccessful love, and the approach of death.

He who is struck by John Barleycorn is apt to stagger under the blow.

No matter what part other persons play, a tradesman is sure to play the counterpart.

A man who commits suicide does a rash act, but he who eats bacon does a rasher.

If you wish to recollect a man's name, become security for him. For keeping your memory fresh, there is nothing like it.

It may seem to be rather anomalous, and yet it is nevertheless true, that while a man who makes a din is generally regarded as a nuisance, there are but few persons who do not like a good dinner.

A good looking young lady recently entered a dyer's shop, and thus accosted him. You are the man that dyes, are you not? No, replied the gallant, I am the man that lives: but I'll dye for you.

Upon the 19th of May, 1790, the memorable dark day, a lady wrote to Dr. Byles as follows: Dear Doctor, how do you account for the darkness? He replied, Dear madam, I am as much in the dark as you are.

Why is an honest man like a carpenter? said one person to another. I can't tell, was the answer. Why, because he is a plain dealer. Ah! I see it now; you have made it a fool phrase.

When Lord Erskine was admitted a freeman of the Mercers' Company, he of course made a speech on the occasion. On coming home, he said to a friend, I spoke ill to-day, and stammered and hesitated in the opening. His friend replied, You certainly floundered, but I thought you did so in compliment to the fishmongers.

A gentleman travelling in California encountered a panther, of which he subsequently wrote as follows: I looked at him long enough to note his brown and glossy coat, his big glaring eyes, his broad and well developed muzzle, and his capacious jaws, when both of us left the spot, and, I am pleased to add, in opposite directions.

THE

SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL.

THIS Enterprising and widely Circulated weekly journal will contain the opening chapters of a new story, on Saturday, Nov. 29, 1864, entitled

SON AND HEIR.

This charming story has made a profound sensation throughout Great Britain, receiving the encomiums of the leading British press.

The London Saturday Review pronounces Son and Heir superior to anything of the kind offered to the British public for many years.

The critics are quarreling over the question, "Who is the author of Son and Heir?" but as this must remain a secret for the present, all statements as to the authorship are mere guess work. In due time the name of the brilliant author will be made known to the public.

As the publication of this beautiful story on this side the Atlantic will be confined exclusively to the Scottish American Journal, the publisher has concluded to print an extraordinary edition of the paper containing the first chapters in order that new subscribers may obtain the story complete. The cost of the English edition is $25 of our currency. By subscribing for the Scottish American Journal for one year the public may obtain the story—besides reaping the benefit of its

Extensive Summary of Scottish News;
English Miscellaneous News;
Choice Extracts and Essays from the leading British Periodicals;
Editorials on the leading Questions of the day;
Summary of Events of the week — prepared with care, and entirely reliable;
A weekly list of the prices of Produce and Provisions in New York City; and a great variety of miscellaneous matter for family reading, of a quality only to be found in the columns of a paper of the known respectability of the Scottish American Journal.

GODEY'S LADY'S BOOK.

The Fashion Magazine of the World.

LITERATURE, Fine Arts and Fashion. The most splendid Steel Engravings. COLORED FASHION PLATES, Original Music, Patterns on every page for Embroidery, Crochet knitting, Netting, Tatting, Lace, Braiding, Articles for the Toilet, for the Parlor, for Boudoir, and the Kitchen. Everything, in fact, to make a complete LADY'S Book.

The Ladies' Favorite for 35 Years.

No Magazine has been able to compete with it. None attempt it.

GODEY'S RECEIPT

for every department of a household alone are worth the price of the Book. Those Model Cottages (no other Magazine gives them), with diagrams.

DRAWING LESSONS FOR THE YOUNG. Another speciality with Godey.

MUSIC, worth $3 a year. Other Magazines publish old-worn-out sheets; but the Subscribers to Godey get it before the music stores.

Gardening for Ladies. Another peculiarity with Godey.

Fashions from Messrs. A. T. Stewart & Co., of New York, the millionaire merchants, appear in Godey, the only Magazine that has them.

Also, Fashions from the celebrated Modes, of New York.

Ladies' Bonnets. We give more of them in a year than any other Magazine. In fact, the Lady's Book enables every lady to be her own bonnet maker.

BLETCHER'S

CANADIAN

CLOTHES WRINGER

COMBINES more Strength of Frame, Capacity for Pressure, and Power of Action, than any other in the market. We manufacture five sizes intended for and adapted to Families, Hotels, Laundries, &c.

Bletcher's Canadian Clothes Wringer

Saves Time, Labor, Clothes and Money.

It will wear for years without repair!

No Servant can break it!

A Child ten years old can operate it!

No caution or skill required in its use!

It will wring anything from a Thread to the Heaviest Quilt.

It saves its Cost in Clothing

Every six or nine Months.

The water can be pressed from large and small articles easier, quicker and more thoroughly than by the ordinary old fashioned back-breaking, wrist-straining and clothes-destroying process.

It is easily and firmly secured to the Tub or Washing Machine and will fit Tubs of any shape or size. Every Wringer is Warranted in every particular, either with or without gear gearing; and in the event of any part becoming broken or mislaid, we can replace it at once. We sell them at prices that defy competition, as the following will testify:

No. 1, nine inch roll,	$4 50
2, nine and a half inch roll,	4 75
3, ten inch roll,	5 00
4, twelve inch roll,	5 75
5, fourteen inch roll,	6 50

We keep all the sizes above on hand at all times at our Sewing Machine Office, over Mr. S. White's shoe store,

In consequence of the great stagnation of trade in the manufacturing districts of England through the war having cut off the supply of cotton, a large quantity of Valuable Jewelry, originally intended for the English market, has been sent off for sale in this country, and must be sold at any sacrifice.

Under these circumstance, Arrandale & Co., acting as Agents for the principle European Manufacturers, have resolved upon a great gift distribution, subject to the following regulations:—

☞ Certificates, naming each article and its value, are placed in sealed envelopes, and well mixed. One of these envelopes will be sent by mail to any address, on receipt of 25 cents.

All articles sold at One Dollar each, without regard to value!

On receipt of the Certificate, you will see what you are going to have, and then it is at your option to send the Dollar and take the article or not. Purchasers may thus obtain a Gold Watch, Diamond Ring, or any set of Jewelry in our list, for One Dollar, and in no case can they get less than One Dollars worth, as there are no blanks. The price of Certificates are as follows:—

One for	25 cents.
Five for	$1
Eleven for	2
Thirty for	5
Sixty-five for	10
One hundred for	15

Agents will be allowed ten cents on every Certificate ordered by them, provided their remittance amounts to One Dollar. Agents will collect 25 cents for every Certificate, and remit 15 cents to us, either in cash or postage stamps.

A CARD.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—I think it my duty to inform the public that, having tried almost every known remedy for the cure of Rheumatism, I was unsuccessful, until I heard of Dr. Morris' Balm, or Poor Man's Friend,—before using half a bottle of which I was perfectly cured. My thanks are due to Dr. Morris for the Medicine.

I am, your obedient servant,

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!

CAN BE FOUND IN

Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF

Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and IN WHATEVER SHAPE internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation it consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the BLOOD on some of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the decaying energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY RESTORATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs upon THE BLOOD ITSELF, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable corrative. Bilious remittens, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Ardness,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,

Select Poetry.

THE BLARNEY STONE.

In Blarney Castle, on a crumbling tower,
There lies a stone, whose rosy hues outvie
Whate'er on the lips imperial rest, the power
Of birth's celestial and prolonative speech.
And hence, or else some other equally
The mistress say, "He's kissed the Blarney Stone."

Then when I see a flippant tourist crawl
With outstretch wrested from an Emperor!
And hear him vaunt his new-won, proud self
How once he muttered a Hibernic, I infer
The same same trash—if not the truth were known—
By way of Cork, and kissed the Blarney Stone!

Or when I hear a shallow dandy boast,
(In the long ear that speaks a brother dunce,
What precious favors before have lost
To his advantage, I suspect at once
The fellow's lying, that the dog cannot (Enough for him) has kissed the Blarney Stone!

When some fine lady—eager as defame
An absent beauty, with an envious grace—
With scarring rapture greets a hated name,
And lends her eyes to her wondering face;
Even Charity herself must freely own
Some women, too, have kissed the Blarney Stone!

When stout statesmen, whose seductive tongues,
Smooth with the nastiest of a golden fee,
"Brandish forth huge falsehoods from capacious lungs,"
(The words are Jeremiah's) to plain to see
A lawyer's genius isn't all his own;
The specious rogue has kissed the Blarney Stone!

When the false pastor from his fainting flock
Withholds the bread of life—the Gospel nerve
To give them skinny words, lest he should shock
The fragile fabric of the paying purse—
Who must but feel the same to grace unknown,
Has kissed, not Calvary, but the Blarney Stone!

Miscellaneous.

WANTED A MINISTER.

Thriftyville wants a Minister. They are looking far and near to find one; but they want the "right man." Thriftyville is not one of your old effete, worn out places. It is a place grown up quickly on Rapid River in the beautiful valley of Eureka. It is a very important place—standing directly over the centre of the earth, so that if a hole were dug, and a stone dropped into it, it would pass through the very centre of this great world. It has a growing population, and boasts of "a circle of very intelligent people." Moreover it seems to be "the centre of a great moral influence," and it now wants a minister second to none. They want to get the Society out of debt, to repair the old wastes which time has already made in their half-finished sanctuary, to gather in the young, to draw a full house and to make the concern every way prosperous and respectable, and easy to support.

Now for the qualifications desired. They are so few and simple, that the "right man" probably stands at your elbow. He must be a man mature in intellect, and ripe in experience—and yet so young that all the young people will rush after him. He must be quick, ardent, flashing, nervous in temperament, so that he may kindle quick and burn bright; prompt, ready, and wide awake—and yet a man of the most consumate prudence, whose nerves shall never be unstrung nor out of tune. He must be a man of great burning zeal, and move the congregation—and yet so cautious, so cool, that he is always safe, calm, self-possessed, unperturbed. He must have power to awaken and arouse the Church—and yet let them be quiet and look on while he does all that is done for Christ. He must urge and move men and lead the whole people into salvation, and get them all into the Church—and yet so judicious that no one make a difference between the chaff and the wheat, and let none but real converts into the fold. He must be strong and original in the pulpit, and bring none but heaten oil there—and yet be at leisure to receive any call, any interruption; be prepared for every occasion, and like a town pump, never sucking for water, or giving out dry. He must be a workman who shall go down deep into the mines of truth, and quarry out its pillars, and set them up, and make men come and wrestle around them—and yet the most gifted man in light conversation, and on all that floats in the every day around him. He must have health, so that his body never wearies, his nerves never quiver—a real specimen of muscular Christianity—yet a hard, severe thinker, a close reasoner, and a most diligent student, getting his books from any quarter.

He must be poor in this world's goods, to show that money is not his object, and so that he can sympathize with the poor, and so that he cannot help feeling humble and dependent—and yet his family must be the most hospitable, and entertain more company than any other in the town; his children must be second to none in education and training; they must be respectably dressed; he must give away more, and more cheerfully, than any man in the place, not even excepting Squire Rich himself; and his family must be models in all respects for the community. He must be a man who can remain many years, and his congregation must hear the same voice, on the same subject, several times every week—and yet he must come every time as original, as fresh, as glowing, as if it were done but once a year. He must be able to live in a glass house, always acting in public, coming in contact with all sorts of men and of prejudices, so original that all will respect and fear him—and yet never odd, eccentric, morose, repulsive, or awing in manners. He should have the lofty attributes of an angel, with the sympathies, and gentleness and softness of the little child. He must be always ready, lofty, keyed up to the best possible pitch—and yet so calm in spirit and word and look, that nothing can disturb his repose. He must never preach so that the people are not proud of him when they have a stranger in their pew, or so that the echo of his sermon shall not come back when he goes abroad—and yet every sermon must be so beautiful that all the young people will admire it, and wonder over it, and the little child can carry it all home, and repeat it to its grandmother.

His wife must be the model of all models. She must be young and handsome, but not indiscreet or vain. She must be worthy of the admiration of all the people, and yet think she is beautiest of all. She must watch and discipline, and prune, and tend, and make her husband the embodiment of all excellence; but she must never be supposed to be aware of her power, lest she become overbearing. She must be the model of a lady, have a fair linen and white hands, though compelled to do all the work of her family. She must be ready to meet everybody with a smile, take her hands from the flour at a moment's notice, wear a checked apron, and still be dressed like a lady. Her face must never be others as than cheerful, her head must do its aching in secret, and she must give some occasion to call her extravagant, or to call her mean. She must be able to alter the same dress four times, turning it thrice and fitting it to a smaller child each time. She will be expected to be the very life of the great Dorcas Society, the most zealous member of All-Labor Society, the very backbone of the Maternal Association, the warm leader in the Female Prayer Meeting, the head and mover of the reading circle, and the visiter-general of the poor.

The minister must be sound in doctrine, able to lay his hands on the naked foundations of the truth, to fortify and defend the bill of Zion—and yet must never preach the old-fashioned doctrines. They are not spicy. They are not taking. They will never "draw a full house." It is rather desirable that he should be a pious man, and one who loves his master—and yet as the article piety has not acquired great value in Thriftyville, it would be well for him not to make that too obtrusive. Such, in a few words, is the man they want in Thriftyville. If they can light on him, they will pay a hundred to a hundred and fifty pounds annually, and not let it run behind unreasonably. This is not, to be sure, any more than many of their clerks receive but they think that the minister, if he be only the "right" man, can "manage" to live on it. Who is ready?

N. B.—Applicants must put an extra postage stamp in the letter, or it will receive no attention.

P. S.—A lady who heard this document read before it was sent to press, reminds me of one important omission, which would spoil the above. He must not only preach better than any man in the town, our "enemies themselves being judges," but he must visit from house to house from morning until night, like Mr. ——— of our town, whom every body knows has nothing else to do, and who is thankful to any gossipmonger who will assist him "to give time a shove."

OLD MAIDS.

Here they not a mission? Who bears the nervous ill-humours of wives and mothers?—Who takes care of the children when they are teething, and sits up with them all night through the scarlet fever and measels? Who bears racking headaches without a murmur, and tends, meanwhile, some luxurious invalid, carefully preparing the proper drinks, roasting over a hot fire, enduring with the patience of a martyr the most absurd and contradictory whims, notions, and caprices, and is finally rewarded by being pronounced the dullest and most stupid person in the world—just what might be expected of an old maid? Who mends all the stockings, and is obliged to play for the "young folks," or take the fourth hand of a dismal rubber whenever there is company? Who stays at home with the baby while the mother is off to the theatre or party? Finally (we must say finally, for it would be easy to keep on through a volume,) who replaces lost buttons, nearly darns torn trousers, puts in the first little pockets, and always knows where to find strings, and pencils, and papers? Who, but the despised old maid?—a title frequently much more honorable, as marriages are now made, than that of wife. Such a mission, humiliating and hard to bear though it be, the old maids may prefer to selling herself body and soul for a home and the title of "Mrs." ——— a prefix which after all, only indicates that she is the property of some "Mr." She may not have been able to find that "other self," with which alone the marriage tie would become sacred and precious; or, sadder still, she may have loved and lost, and cherished that dear remembrance, wearing her widow's weeds always in her heart. If this be so, then, for her life long endurance, the world owes her infinite patience and kindness. It is sad enough to relinquish, in one's own proper person, all the sweet sympathies and affections which cluster round the hearthstone; but to have to bear in addition to this, the gibes and sneers of persons not able to comprehend a pure motive for action

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1864.

TEMPERANCE ACT OF 1864.

Some time ago we gave the principal provisions of this Act. These chiefly relate to the prohibition of the sale or bartering of intoxicating liquors in restrictions and penalties in case of licensed dealers and others, and also to the manner of redress when individuals have received injury because of said Traffic, Merchant or otherwise. The next provisions of the Act relate to prohibition by County and local Councils, granting the Councils the power, either separately or unitedly, to pass a by-law for prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors and the issue of licenses therefor.

1. The Municipal Council of every county, city, town, township, parish or incorporated village in this Province, besides the powers conferred on it by law, shall have power at any time to pass a by-law for prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors and the issue of licenses therefor, within such county, city, town, township, parish or incorporated village, under authority and for enforcement of this Act, and subject to the provisions and limitations hereby enacted.

Such by-laws shall contain or have embodied in them no other provisions than the simple declaration that the sale of intoxicating liquors and the issue of licenses therefor is prohibited by such by-law in the municipality to which it relates.

Any Council when passing such by-law, may order that the same be submitted for approval to the municipal electors of the municipality; but to do so does not appear necessary, unless required by thirty or more duly qualified electors, in due form. Any thirty electors may propose a by-law and demand a poll on the same.

2. Any thirty or more duly qualified Municipal Electors of any city, town, township parish or incorporated village, the Council whereof has not passed a by-law under authority and for enforcement of this Act, or after passing has repealed the same, or wherein such by-law, having been submitted for approval, or to adoption, (as the case may be,) to the Electors, either has not been approved or adopted, or after approval or adoption has been repealed — may at any time (not being in the latter case, less than two full years after such vote of approval or non adoption, or after such repeal) by a requisition in the form A. 2, hereto appended, or to the like effect, signed by them and delivered on their behalf to the Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer of the municipality, propose a by-law to that end, for adoption by the Electors thereof and require that a poll be taken to determine whether or not they will adopt the same.

Every by-law submitted by request of the electors must be published four consecutive weeks in some newspaper published in the municipality, or if there is no such newspaper, then in some paper published as near thereto as may be; and also by posting up copies in at least four public places in the municipality, and if the by-law is for a county, then in four places in every municipality in the county; and such notice shall set forth the place and time for taking a poll on such by-law. Every such election must take place within the week next after such four weeks and must commence at ten in forenoon and continue till five in the afternoon, unless in certain cases, as follows:—

4. Each Elector desiring to vote shall present himself in turn to the person presiding, and shall give his vote "yea" or "nay,"—the word "yea" meaning that he votes for the By-law, and the word "nay" that he votes against the same; and every vote given shall be recorded in a poll-book by the Clerk or Secretary-Treasurer acting as poll-clerk, or in his absence, by such person as may be named to act as such by the person presiding; but no person's vote shall be recorded, unless he appears by the assessment rolls to be a duly qualified Municipal Elector, and further makes oath (if thereto required), in Lower Canada, in terms of the twelfth sub-section of the thirty-third section of the Lower Canada Consolidated Municipal Act, — and in Upper Canada, in terms of the ninth sub-section of the ninety-seventh section of the Act chaptered 86c-four of the Consolidated Statutes for Upper Canada;

5. If at any time after the opening of the poll, one half hour elapses without a vote being offered, the poll may be closed;

6. Unless for that cause closed earlier, the poll shall be kept open till the hour of five in the afternoon of the day of the meeting thereof, and no longer, if the names of the qualified Municipal Electors on the assessment rolls of the municipality are not more than four hundred in number, — and until the hour of the next day (Sundays and holidays excluded), if such names are more than four hundred and not more than eight hundred in number; and so on, allowing one additional day for each additional four hundred names;

7. Until closed in terms of one or other of the foregoing subsections, the poll shall be adjourned daily at the hour of five in the afternoon, to the hour of ten in the forenoon of the next day (Sundays and holidays excluded.

10. If one-half or more of all the votes polled are against the by-law, the same shall be held to be not approved, or not adopted, as the case may be;

11. If more than half of all the votes polled are in the by-law, the same shall be held to be approved, or adopted, as the case may be;

12. A by-law so approved, or adopted, as the case may be, may be repealed by a by-law of the Municipal Council of the municipality affected thereby; but such repealing by-law shall be submitted for approval to the Electors, in the manner and with the formalities prescribed by the foregoing subsections, and shall not take effect unless approved by a majority of the electors voting thereon; nor, if any such repealing by-law (upon being submitted to the Electors) is not so approved, shall any other repealing by-law be submitted, for the like approval, within the full term of two years thereafter.

8. As regards the prohibition of issuing licenses, every such by-law shall come into force from the day of communication thereof to the Collector of Inland Revenue; and as regards the prohibition of such sale, and otherwise every such by-law, on the day of such communication there is in force within the municipality any other by-law, for prohibiting and preventing such sale, under authority of the Lower Canada Consolidated Municipal Act, or the Act chaptered 55c-four of the consolidated Statutes for Upper Canada, as the case may be, shall come into force so as to become substantial for, and to repeal, such other by-law from that day, — or if on that day there is no such other by-law in force, shall come into force in Lower Canada from the first day of May, and in Upper Canada from the first day of March next, after that day; and every such by-law shall continue in force in Lower Canada, until the first day of May, and in Upper Canada until the first day of March, next after the annual thereof;

9. No such by-law shall be repealed, within the full term of one year from the day of the communication thereof to the Collector of Inland Revenue.

2. In Upper Canada, from the 1st day and for the like period, the Collector of Inland Revenue shall, within the limits within which the limits, — city, town, township, parish or village for the recall of persons, wherein or over manufactured liquors to be sold by the retail, ale-house, beer-house, or other place of the entertainment of which shall be issued for any other Municipality as in force by virtue of such liquors to shops, ale or porter other than inns, ale-houses, beer-houses or places of public entertainment.

12. From the day on which such by-law takes effect for other purposes, as aforesaid, and for so long thereafter as the same continues in force, no person, except in the case exclusively medicinal or sacramental purposes, or for home sale use in some art, trade or manufacture, or as herein excepted by the third or fourth subsection of this section, shall, within such county, city, town, township, parish, or incorporated village, by himself, his clerk, servant or agent, expose or keep for sale, or directly or indirectly, on any pretence or by any device, sell or barter, or in consideration of the purchase of any other property give, to any other person any spirituous or other intoxicating liquor, or any mixed liquor capable of being used as a beverage and part of which is spirituous or otherwise intoxicating; in violation of the twelfth section of this Act, shall incur a penalty of not less than twenty, nor more than fifty for each such offence; and whoever, in the employment or on the premises of another, so exposes or keeps for sale, or sells, or barters, or gives, in violation of the said section, shall be held equally guilty with the principal, and shall incur the same penalty.

14. Any prosecution for such penalty may be brought by or in the name of the Collector of Inland Revenue within whose official district the offence was committed,—or by or in the name of the corporation of the municipality wherein the offence was committed,—or by or in the name of any person, whether authorized by the Council of such municipality or not; and where the by-law is a county by-law, the corporation of the county, equally with that of the municipality comprised therein and with which the offence was committed, may prosecute, or may authorise any person to prosecute:

In connection with the above it would be well to consider the 25th section, as follows:

25. In all such cases, the delivery of intoxicating liquor of any kind in or from any building, booth or place, other than a private dwelling house or its dependencies, if any part thereof is used as a tavern, eating house, grocery, shop, or other place of common resort,—such delivery to either case being to any one not the wife or a resident therein — shall prima facie be deemed evidence of and punishable as a sale in violation of the twelfth and thirteenth sections of this Act; and any such delivery in a private dwelling house or its dependencies, or in or from any other building, booth or place whatever, to any one whether resident therein or not, with payment or with promise of payment, either express or implied, before, on or after such delivery, shall prima facie be deemed evidence of and punishable as a sale in violation of the said sections.

The remainder of this division relates to certain formalities in procedure, and to the manner of enforcing the due observance of the law in the matter.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Monday, Dec. 5th, 1864.

Present: His Worship the Mayor and Messrs. Burnham, Lundy, Leonard, Chambers, McNaughton, Eastland, Hamilton, Whyte, Lawson and Toole.

The minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed.

Accounts amounting to $24.25 were referred to the Finance Committee.

A statement from the Commissioners of the Town Trust of moneys received and expended, and debentures issued during the year, also the debentures outstanding on the 1st December.

Petitions: from Jas. McWilliams, complaining of over assessment, and asking a reduction — referred to the Finance Committee; Dr. McKeown, praying for the closing in the rear of the house occupied by the late Mr. Lahnin, to be removed: T. & G. McAuliffe, Timothy Cashey, Jas. O'Brian and E. Pearce, asking for a reduction or remission of taxes, were all referred to the Committee on Finance; also the petition of Patrick Glinn, asking the remission of arrears of taxes on a lot he occupies.

The Treasurer was instructed to hand over to the Ladies' Relief Society, eight dollars, to be appropriated towards the support of Mrs. Lowry and Mrs. Edwards, for four weeks.

A report was received from the Finance Committee recommending the payment of sundry accounts, amounting to $454.81.

The sum of two dollars was granted to David Carlile for putting water in the tank at the corner of George and Brock streets.

The Clerk was instructed to correct an error in the assessment of Cornelius McGrath.

On motion of Mr. McNaughton, the account for carting the earth from Mr. Hopkins' cellar to the dams at Mr. Ryan's property on Water street, was ordered to be paid.

On motion of Mr. Tool, the accounts of Mr. Hamilton amounting to $122.27, less $3.75 for locks charged, which amount is left over for authentication, were ordered to be paid by the Treasurer.

The Clerk was instructed to correct any errors that have been made in assessing lots at the North-East corner of the town.

Mr. Lundy moved for a special committee to ascertain and report to the Council at its next meeting, what amount has been expended on sidewalks, streets and bridges, &c.; the committee to consist of Messrs. McNaughton, Moffat and the mover.

Mr. Henthorn was heard in reference to a matter of assessment on some of his property.

Some discussion took place in reference to the motion read at the last meeting of the Council, on the motion of Jacquard being exempt on silver paid for taxes; the Treasurer was instructed to receive taxes only in current funds at the bank.

On motion of Mr. Lashoe, the Council adjourned for two weeks.

The Congregations of Dummer and Belmont, in connection with the Church of Scotland, are, we understand, to have divine on the 14th, 18th and 25th December, and the 1st January—Mr. Gordon, Probationer, and the Rev. J. S. Douglass being deputed for that purpose by the Presbytery of Toronto.

ST. ANDREW'S DINNER.

The sons of auld Scotia, of this town, celebrated the anniversary of their Patron Saint by a dinner at the American Hotel, [illegible] on the 30th inst.

The [illegible] presided by [illegible] manner.

Mr. A. Stewart, and Mr. Thos. Johnston, occupied the Vice chairs.

The walls were festooned with red white and blue, and decorated with mottoes appropriate to the occasion.

About sixty persons sat down to the repast, which gave ample testimony to the good name of "mine host" of the American as a caterer.

On the Chairman's right sat the Presidents of the St. George, and St. Patrick's Societies; on the left, the Warden, P. Pearce Esq., and P. M. Grover, Esq.

From the manner in which the Sons of St. Andrew defaced the delicacies, it was evident that they know how to enjoy other dainties as well as oat-cake.

The most ample justice being done to the good things provided, the Secretary, C. Cameron, Esq., proceeded to read the annual report which we give elsewhere — and which showed the finances in a very favorable condition. Communications were then read from the Mayor, and also from Col. Haultain, explaining their unavoidable absence.

THE TOASTS.

The Chairman then gave the usual loyal toasts which were responded to in a manner that demonstrated the attachment of all present to their Queen and Country.

The Chairman then gave the toast of the evening—"St. Andrew's day," and in doing so referred to the position, energy and respectability of the Scotchman in every country whither he went. He also remarked, that somehow or other they managed to get into offices of trust and honor everywhere, and as an instance referred to the fact, that of the twelve Canadian Cabinet Ministers, seven were Scotchmen, one Irish, and four French.

"Canada, our adopted country" was next given from the Vice Chair, and was ably responded to by W. H. Scott, Esq., who referred to the capabilities, position and advantages Canada possessed, and the advantages that will arise from the contemplated intercolonial Union.

"Scotland our native country" was responded to by Mr. J. Crerar, in fine, flowery, eloquent speech of some length, which gave strong manifestation of a love of country common to (to except a "brither" Scot.

To other appropriate toasts, the Warden, Dr. Pringle, P. M. Grover, Col. Strickland, Captain Sutherland and other gentlemen responded.

The Warden agreed with Col. Strickland and the chairman that there ought to be a Canadian Society that every nationality could unite with, and thus cultivate a Canadian spirit, remove the deep-rooted national prejudices, and bind more closely those who came to our country with the native population, and make out of the mixed multitude a Canadian people.

Col. Strickland was particularly happy in his remarks, spoke forcibly on the necessity of all the people becoming one people, and during his speech referred very facetiously to the fact that there was no Englishmen in the Canadian Cabinet, and hinted that mal-administration, then, could not be laid at their doors.

The evening was greatly enlivened by the songs of Mr. T. Brown, S. Law, and others.

The whole passed off very pleasantly. The entertainment was a decided success. But the wee hours began to intimate that the land of dreams was loved as much as any, when "Auld Lang Syne" was rendered, and the company dispersed delighted, and, we believe, more united by the bonds of sociableness.

THE SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The Sixth Annual Report of the proceedings of the Committee of Management of the St. Andrew's Society for the Town and County of Peterborough, submitted at the Annual Dinner, held in the American Hotel, on Wednesday evening, 30th instant, (St. Andrew's Day):—

GENTLEMEN,

In coming before you again with our report at the commencement of another year, your committee have much pleasure in being able to report the continued prosperity of our Institution. They have to regret, however, that the new list of member-ship to be announced this evening is not quite so large as they, your committee, were led to expect at the Annual General Meeting held on the 9th inst.; yet, as the ranks are still being strengthened in numbers, together with the balance (in the Bank) at the credit of the Society, your committee have commenced the operations of another year with good encouragement.

The following financial statement will show the position of the Society, as submitted to the members at the Annual Meeting:

Nov. 12,	Bal. in hands of Treasurer,		$11 21
"	Fees from 32 new members.	32 00
" 30,	Collection at annual Lecture	5 20
	Total		$79 11

From which has to be deducted the Expenditure for the past year, as follows:

1863.

Nov. 17,	Paid R. White, account	$3 00
"	" Advertising meeting	1 25
1864.
Feb. 5,	Paid Messrs. Graham & Co.	4 63
" 6,	" Charity, Mrs. Eckart	5 00
"	" Wm. Pollock	1 00
July 15,	" Two families, weavers	4 00
Sept. 9,	" Charity, Mrs. Bain	2 00
" 26,	" " Mrs. Eckart, further,	2 00
Oct. 1,	" Charity, J. McGregor	1 50
" 3,	" " refunded the President, for money advanced by him,	2 00
	" Postage and Stationery	0 60
	Total		$28 98

Leaving a balance in the hands of your Treasurer of Fifty Dollars and Thirteen Cents; add to this balance 33 new members up to this evening, and Two Dollars collected at the Lecture, makes a total sum of Eighty-five Dollars and Thirteen Cents as the credit of the Society at this date.

The number of applicants for relief during the past year was nineteen (19), of this number all, with the exception of one, have been relieved to the extent to which your committee felt justified in giving aid, after taking their various cases into consideration. The two exceptions, your committee upon examination, did not feel called upon to assist. The largest amount given in charity, in a single case, was $4, and the smallest $1.50.

Of the different recipients of charity during the year, the majority have been emigrants from in and around the city of Glasgow, Scotland—there have been huge demands on the Society of this class, during the past year, than in any former year since its formation. In the case where the Four Dollars were paid, as already referred to, there were 7 children and 4 grown up persons. In this instance, however, your committee have to remark that they were assisted by the St. Patrick's Society, through their President, he having given an order to the amount of Four Dollars on the Treasurer of that Institution, which was paid them at the same time—one of the grown up persons having been a native of Ireland.

Your committee are sorry to remark that not a few of those who applied for relief during the past year appeared to them to be of such a class as are not likely to be of much benefit either to themselves or to the community among whom they settle when they arrive in this country; and they regret to remark, also, that in one or two instances where aid was given, the recipients turned out to be very undeserving of such help. Your committee cannot help thinking that in many [illegible] emigrants of this class are [illegible] here [illegible] for the purpose of [illegible] assisting them. [illegible] of opinion [illegible] be publicly [illegible] given to prevent [illegible] upon our shores [illegible] the strong, healthy, [illegible] are made welcome among us, the depraved, lazy, "ne'er do weels" are no desirable addition to our population.

Your committee beg to repeat what their predecessors stated in their report at the Annual Dinner of 1863, viz.: That they feel bound to say that in every case where assistance was solicited from them, with the two exceptions alluded to, they, your committee, have extended a helping hand to the amount which, in their opinion, the various cases required, in proportion to the amount of funds at their disposal at the time.

Your committee cannot close their remarks without urging on the meeting the claims of the Society; this, however, they will do in few words, as it is expected that some of the speakers of the evening will say something in behalf of the Institution; suffice it to say that the Society is purely benevolent in its organization, our motto being "Relieve the Distressed." It, therefore, deserves the warm support of every Scott, in whose bosom glows a spark of that sentiment uttered by one of their country's greatest poets, when he said as follows:

"Oh! Caledonia, stern and wild,
"Meet nurse for a poetic child,
"Land of the brown heath and shaggy wood,
"Land of the mountain and the flood,
"Land of my sires, what mortal hand
"Shall e'er untie the filial band
"That knits me to thy rugged strand?"

All of which is respectfully submitted.

CHARLES CAMERON,
Secretary.

Peterborough, Nov. 30, 1864.

The following poem, entitled the Land O' Cakes, composed for the occasion, was read by the author, Mr. Wm. Telford, the Bard of the Society.

THE LAND O' CAKES.

The Land O' Cakes, ye did propose,
Wi' lang right to ma heart it goes,
It gars me mair forget ma woes,
To bring to mind
The land o' parrich, cakes an brose,
A' left behind.
Is there a brither Scotchman here,
Wha disna lue auld Scotia dear,
The scab, or some plague mair severe,
Wad fair him richt,
To mak him oiwa fra tae fu ear,
Baith day and nicht.
Hut hoots, ma havern I mann stope,
Fear some o' you ma hugs micht crope;
A'll gie ma theories a wider scope,
Ta Scotia leal.
Whar bigg toks wark, and bairns hope
On plain oatmeal.
The guid man un the guid wife sup
Their milk and parrich, sweetly up;
Bickers, in lue o china cup,
The table graces;
Their halesome fare, as they grow up,
Maka sonsey faces.
Wee Jock, wi' face richt fu o glee,
Sits wi' the bicker on his knee,
The barn spun he handles tree,
The sup gin parritch
Atween his sops he slents his e'e
Across his carrich.
Wee Jean's twa cheeks, (Just like the rose,)
Wha fives un parrich, aye un brose—
She neer has preed that foreign dose
Some folks on tea—
Contentment, health and beauty glows,
Fra her bit e'e.
A wee bit treat they sometimes ha,
Gie near about St. Andrew's day;
They whitt their nieves, tat grumpha sla,
In death he's squeakin,
Wi smilin face their spuins they play,
In hangin reekin..
The guid wife now beings o't the meal,
She mixes, 'neals, then rous it weel,
On girdle iigg's a waggon wheel
The farls thrae,
'An bakes them hard as ony steel,'

THE LATE JAMES FOLEY. — It becomes our painful duty to refer to the demise of one of the leading residents of this County—James Foley, Esq., J. P. He has been associated with the public and political affairs of the county and of the township in which he resided for almost a lifetime, and filled, during that period, offices, both of trust and emolument, satisfactorily and advantageously. Mr. Foley died in favorable circumstances, being one of the wealthiest men in the county. He was long in connection with council affairs, and was County Auditor for the fourteen years previous to his decease. His death was very sudden and unexpected. While seated on his chair he was seized with pulmonary hemorhage and almost instantly expired. Deceased was highly respected in every circle of his acquaintances and will be a public as well as a private loss that can hardly be repaired.

CONCERT.—Mr. Youmans announces another of his popular Juvenile Concerts for Friday evening. His last concert was in every respect a success, — and we are confident that this one will be equal if it does not surpass it.

COUNTY COUNCIL.

This body met on Thursday the 1st inst., with all the Councillors present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

The claims of Sheriff Hall and Messrs. Shaw & Hunt were referred to the Committee on Finance.

The property of granting a sum of money to [illegible] to the south end of the Burleigh Bridge, was referred to the Committee on Roads and Bridges.

The report of the Committee on Roads and Bridges was read and adopted.

The report of the Committee on the Warden's Address was read in Council.

On motion of Mr. Carnagie, Mr. E. Pearce was appointed Sessional Clerk in place of James Foley, Esq., deceased.

A by-law for the appointment of County Officers was passed.

Dr. Poole was appointed County Auditor, in place of James Foley, Esq., deceased.

A by-law to provide for the payment of certain accounts and claims was passed.

On motion of Mr. Peck, the sum of fifty dollars was granted to the Warden for his services during the year.

The Council then adjourned.

The following is the

WARDEN'S ADDRESS:

GENTLEMEN,—

In calling you together at this time, I beg to call your serious attention to the Financial condition of the County. Your Warden and Treasurer having drawn funds from the Commercial Bank, to the amount of twenty thousand seven hundred dollars, for the purpose of paying the expenses of the County in the erection of the new Jail, improvement of the Court House Grounds, repairs of Roads and Bridges and the administration of Justice. You are aware that a By-law has been passed, authorising the issue of Debentures to the amount of fifteen fifteen thousand dollars, to defray the expenses of the new Jail. Three Debentures remain unsold, in accordance with your instructions, and after all your assets are realized for the present year, there will still be a deficiency of ten thousand dollars to be provided for. You cannot expect the Bank to make any further advances until arrangements are made for meeting the present indebtedness; and I would recommend that a sufficient number of the debentures be disposed of, in order to realize this amount. Your Treasurer has been in correspondence with several Brokers on the subject of selling the Debentures, and the result will be laid before you.

Although vouchers have been sent to the Government, as requested, showing the amounts paid for the Jail building, I regret to say that no portion has yet been paid by the Government. This has caused us largely to increase our liabilities to the Bank.

A By-Law should be passed to confirm the payments made on some roads and bridges not included in the By-law passed in June.

In February last, application was made by your Treasurer, to the Crown Lands Department, for a correct list of Lots patented in the old Townships in this County, in order that no land should be sold for taxes which had not been patented or leased. At the same time blank forms were forwarded for each Township, to be filled up: and although repeatedly promised, the returns have not yet arrived. I think it would be well for you to take some action in this matter, it being of great importance to each of the older Municipalities. You are aware that quite a large sum has been paid by the Council for the re survey of Harvey and Burleigh. Some steps should be taken to place the amount paid and yet due on the patented or sold lots in these townships.

I have much pleasure in informing you that the Government has assumed the expense and responsibility of the new Survey of the proposed line of Road through the Township of Harvey, which had been commenced under the direction of the joint Committee of the Town and County. It is hoped, and believed, that the action recently taken in this matter will result in a line of much greater advantage to the back country than that at first proposed.

I sincerely regret to have to announce the decease of one of the oldest officers of the Council, and a personal friend, James Foley, Esq. For the past fourteen years he was one of the County Auditors: and I am confident I express the views of the whole Council in stating that no man's services will be more missed in the County Council than his. I hope an expression of sympathy will be conveyed from the Council to his family.,

I would also call your attention to the necessity for filling up, without delay, the vacancy thus occasioned by the demise of one of the Arbitrators in the financial matters pending between the Town and County.

Before closing I wish to congratulate this Council upon the success which has attended the erection of the new Jail, which, although only commenced in May last under your direction, will be fully completed in a couple of weeks, and will be a building most creditable to the County.

PETER PEARCE,
Warden.

COUNTY COUNCIL CHAMBER,
November 30th, 1864.

THE AMERICAN WAR.

The whereabouts of Sherman has been a source of uneasiness to the public as well as to the government of the United States for some time. Reported everywhere, and yet few know where or what he is about. His destination is at one time considered to be Savannah, again Charleston, and now it is hinted that he may reach the coast and proceed thus to Richmond and unite with Grant in attacking that famous city.

General Beauregard is said to be marching to oppose him; but the fact that he has been permitted to cross the country without opposition hitherto, either points out the weakness of the South or their contempt of his movement, which, we cannot tell. A few days may bring more reliable information and quiet the public on the whole matter. There has been some fighting in Tennessee, in which it would appear the Confederates have had the best of it. The Federals had to remove to stronger positions thus indicating their want of success in that quarter. Grant is quiet, but we expect to hear every day of some move. The canal is completed and brings the Federals nearer the position of the Rebels; but it is spoken of as not so valuable as anticipated. The latest news we have received concerning the Florida is that she was run into by a steamer and sank. This, no doubt, was designed to avoid the disgrace of giving her up. The whole affair is the most disgraceful connected with the war, and speaks very little for the honor of at least one of the Northern Commanders. The American Press nobly condemned the whole transaction, and urged that the vessel should be given up: but the subterfuge of sinking her was resorted to rather than do this.

Such a course will again militate against the United States if a war should break out between them and any of the European Powers.

We give to day that portion of the Temperance Act which relates to the passing of by-laws for prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors. We have been induced to do so in order to acquaint our readers with the Act, and to enable them to understand what they are doing. It is often asked what is the use of passing by-laws to restrain or prohibit the liquor traffic, these laws being generally a dead letter?

We say that it is reasonable to give Prohibition a fair trial. We never had a bill before so easily worked as this one; and it would be a disgrace, a stigma on our morality if we did not embrace the opportunity to try to stay the tide of alcohol. Let every friend of temperance now use his influence, and we are sure that very soon the poor drunkard himself will rise up to call us blessed.

French Canadian Missionary Society.

On Monday night last week the annual meeting of this Society was held in the Canada Presbyterian Church, which, owing to the inclemency of the evening, the attendance was less numerous than from the importance of the Mission, its friends had reason to expect.

Lieut.-Colonel Haultain, one of the Vice Presidents, in the absence of the President, occupied the Chair; and after the usual opening exercises, addressed the meeting, giving way to the agent of the Society, the Rev. Mr. Byrne, who, as usual, gave an interesting address in reference to the work being done by the Mission, through the schools at Point Aux Trembles, and the other means used to teach the Roman Catholics of Lower Canada. Rev. Mr. Roger and Mr. Fairbairn also addressed the meeting, urging the claims of the Society.

The following gentlemen were appointed office-bearers:

Rev. John Gilmour.....President.
Lieut.-Col. Haultain.....Vice President.
Dr. Brouse.....
Sheriff Hall.....
T. M. Fairbairn.....Secty and Treas.

COMMITTEE:—Messrs. R. Kingan, Wm. Hall, A. Morrow Sen., Provanscale, Dallas, F. Fairbairn, Fairbairn, J. Gilmour, T. Donelly and all Ministers subscribing to the Society.

We regret to state that the amount realized by the agent for the Society in this year, considerably less than the amount of last year. There is, perhaps, no Mission in which Protestant Canadians should take a deeper interest, and to which, from love to God, to our fellow men, and to our country, they should more cheerfully contribute.

This Mission is established upon a Catholic basis—its constitution being framed to this end; and it therefore justly appeals to all denominations of Protestant Christians. We trust that any of the old subscribers to this mission who have not been called upon for their subscriptions will send the same to the local Secretary and Treasurer.

TEMPERANCE.

A number of friends of Temperance held monthly meetings in the Bible Christian Chapel. We learn that there will be one of those meetings this evening, at 7½ p. m. This Society is called the Union Temperance Society, and its object every friend of his race should aid and encourage in every reasonable manner. Every Union or Society that has in view the amelioration of the condition of the intemperate, and the prevention, if possible, of the extension of intemperance, deserves the sympathy and helping hand of all; but, sad to relate, the fans only are found doing their duty in this respect. None should be more earnest in this good work than professed christians; yet many, very many, of these, are among the greatest enemies of this noble cause—not a few of them allying themselves with those who openly oppose everything that is good as well as this. They never [illegible] that demanded the united efforts of the temperance community more than the present. The Union Temperance Society we consider well calculated to aid in the work of gathering and uniting forces against the great demon of Intemperance. Friends of Temperance who do not wish to connect themselves with the other Societies, can easily unite with this one; and we are assured that it is conducted in the most orderly manner. The object of the Society is "to promote health of body, worldly prosperity, and mental happiness."

CURLING CLUB.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club took place at the American Hotel, on Monday evening last; we are sorry to say that the meeting was very poorly attended; this should not be the case, as the International match takes place about the middle of January. At the next meeting it is hoped there will be a large turn out, as the propriety of sending at least two rinks to the match will be discussed.

The following are the officers elect:—

D. Sutherland, President; Jas. Menzies, Vice do; Robt. Innis, Treasurer; Robt. Taylor, Secretary.

Committee of Management, — Jno. Ludgate, Jas. Johnston, Jr., Jas. Whyte, L. Yorke, John Robertson, Peter Connal, Wm. Drope, and Jas. Reid.

ASHBURNHAM.

The Council of the village of Ashburnham met on Monday evening.

Present—R. D. Rogers, Esq., Reeve; H. Bennett, H. Calcut, H. Strickland, and Wm. McGregor.

The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed.

On Motion of H. Bennett, seconded by H. T. Strickland, the Collector was directed to remit Mrs. G. Connell the amount of her statute labour.

Several small accounts were directed to be paid, and some minor matters arranged.

On Motion of H. Bennett, the Reeve and H. T. Strickland were appointed a committee to have some repairs done to the bridge over the Race.

The Council separated, to be convened, by the Reeve, if found necessary, at any time.

THE PIGK.—This is the title of a new Journal that has sprung into existence in Toronto the first number we have received. Its field of exercise, we observe, embraces fun, wit, satire and humor. Our old favorite, "Terry Finnegan" is one of the pick-ed men, and favours us, through its columns, with his now celebrated epistles to the Minister of Agriculture.

The best way, however, to "paint the Pick" is to patronize it; 3 cents a week will help to keep it in picking order.

A young child of W. F. Heath's, o Townsend, was accidentally scalded to death on Saturday last, by falling into a kettle of boiling lye, while playing.

Muller was executed on the 14th of Nov. Just as about to suffer the penalty of the law he acknowledged his guilt, merely saying to his interrogatories "yes I did it."

The Cigar factories of Boston and vecinity have nearly ceased work, throwing out of employment a large number of workmen.

The Belleville Gaol was broken open on Wednesday evening, and 2 prisoners made their escape.

Mr. Tourangeau has been re-elected Mayor of Quebec, by acclamation.

The Canals in the State of New York are to be closed on the 8th inst.

DARING OUTRAGE IN TORONTO.

AN ORANGE HALL BEING BROKEN INTO.

Last evening being the regular meeting night of No. 4 Orange Lodge, the person in charge proceeded in usual to the Lodge room for the purpose of opening it and preparing it for the meeting. The room is situated on the top flat of No. 94 Yonge street, and has long been used as an Orange Hall. On entering the Hall the caretaker and others who arrived were astonished to find that it presented a scene of the utmost confusion, though everything had been left in it on Friday night in the most perfect order. Procuring the assistance of several other Orangemen, the party made their way into the room and lit the gas for the purpose of seeing what had occurred. It was not until the room was thoroughly lighted up that the complete confusion was seen. The banners, of which there were several in the room, were cut and torn, some of them into a hundred pieces: the furniture was overturned and broken: the warrants which had been artistically mounted in gilt frames, were thrown on the floor, and the glass, frames, and parchment trampled upon, till almost totally destroyed. The boxes, cases, &c., for holding the property of each lodge were broken open, their contents scattered around the room, and torn or mutilated so as to render the most of them unfit for further use: several large Bibles were lying on the floor, some of them torn and mutilated, and showing the marks of the heels of their destroyers' boots, where they had jumped and trampled upon them so long as they could do them any damage. A couple of small rooms adjoining the large room had been broken open, and their contents treated in a similar manner. In one of these rooms were a number of drums, a quantity of regalia, and other articles, all of which were damaged to a greater or less extent. All of the drums had the heads cut open, the regalia were cut and torn, and everything was injured that could be. Besides thus breaking up and destroying a large amount of property, the ruffians carried off about one hundred dollars in money, and a number of small articles of value. The rooms presented a picture of destruction and desolation of the most complete character, showing how earnestly the fellows went to work, and how intent they were on destroying everything they could. Most of the banners were valuable ones, worth from $200 to $400. To show the character and feelings of the perpetrators of this outrage, it is only necessary to say that wherever their was a painting or picture of Her Majesty—and there were several of them in the room—a hole, as if with a knife, was made opposite the heart; this was also done with every picture of King William III.

As soon as the facts were known a large meeting of the brethren was held, and after the room was cleared up as well as possible an examination of the premises was made for the purpose of discovering how an entrance had been effected. It was found that the doors or windows had not been forced, but that the entrance had been effected through a hole in the ceiling of the room which was reached by a sky-light in the roof of the building. The party must have gone to the rear of the building, then ascended to the roof by a ladder, opened the sky-light and thus got into the building. After performing their work of destruction they made their exit in the same manner.

As soon as the full extent of the damage had been ascertained word was sent down to the City Council, then in session, and the affair was taken up and discussed at once. The dissension will be found reported in full in our City Council proceedings. It will be seen that the Council took prompt action in the matter by passing a resolution offering $300 for the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties.

On the adjournment of the Council, nearly all the members proceeded to the Lodge Room, which was filled by the brethren, who, having heard of the affair, flocked to the room in large numbers, for the purpose of seeing for themselves. The meeting was then addressed by his Worship the Mayor, Ald. Baxter, Coun. Spence, Coun. Bunnsworth, Reynolds and other gentlemen, all of whom advised the brethren to bear the outrage calmly and quietly, and leave the whole matter in the hands of the authorities. The brethren, though naturally excited, and feeling deeply the wrong that had been done them, seemed willing to act upon the advice of the gentlemen who addressed them, and agreed to leave the whole affair in the hands of those in authority. From the remarks that were made, it is probable that in a few days a mass meeting of the Orangemen will be held for the purpose of taking some action in the matter, and of devising steps to guard against a similar outrage.

The total amount of property destroyed is valued at about $3 000. It is not known at what particular time the work was done, as the lodge room was locked up on Friday night, and not opened again till last evening. It is supposed, however, from some facts that have come to light, that the work of destruction took place on Saturday night.

It is to be hoped that the prompt action of the city Council will be successfully seconded by the efforts of the police, and that ere long the perpetrators of this outrage may be brought to that punishment they so richly deserve.—Globe.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, December 6th, 1864.

DEAR SIR.—As an Orangeman, and in view of the events that are transpiring around us every day, I deem it my duty, through your columns, to call the attention of the Orangemen of this County, and of Protestants in the existing state of things. It does not, I believe, or desire to create any apprehension on the part of the truly loyal subjects of our Queen, that they are in immediate danger of having their lives or liberties interfered with, still, seeming events call upon every intelligent man to be on the alert. It is well that Orangemen, dark and unintelligible as the order is supposed to be by Papists, are in a population composed,

Montreal "Witness" for 1865.

THE WITNESS is about to enter on its twentieth year as a candidate for public favor, on the same principles with which it set out: its aim being to furnish good reading matter, unmingled with sectarian bitterness or party strife.

The News department contains the latest news by telegraph, summaries of news from Canadian, British, and American papers, and selected articles on current events, from the leading journals of the world.

The Commercial department comprises reliable prices current, reviews of the markets and financial intelligence.

The department of Family Reading contains a copious selection of instructive and interesting matter, tales, poetry, &c.

Valuable Agricultural and Horticultural articles are copied from time to time.

The Advertising department has many useful and important advertisements, but admits none of an immoral or injurious tendency.

The CANADIAN MESSENGER, containing a selection of the best and most interesting matter of the Witness, is published monthly at 25 cents per annum, with one copy gratis to a Club of Ten. It is devoted to Religion, Morality, Education, Children's Reading, Temperance and Agriculture; and, consequently, is allowed to pass free through the Post Office.

TERMS:

Daily Witness, Three Dollars per Annum.
Montreal Witness (Semi Weekly). This is the same form that it has been since the beginning. Two Dollars per Annum.
Weekly Witness, One Dollar per Annum.
Canadian Messenger, Twenty-five Cents per Annum.

☞ All cash in advance.

One copy gratis in each case for a Club of Ten. Should a Mixed Club be sent, with not less than $10, papers will be forwarded gratis to the value of one-tenth of remittance.

All communications to be addressed to Montreal Witness, or

Poetry.

LARNEY ON THE TEN PER CENT.

A miser sat in his dim back room—
A room that he could not rent—
His scarcely had light enough to illume
The smoke-dyed walls in their desolate gloom
And he thought upon ten per cent.

"Ten per cent.," said he, with a grin,
"I'll foreclose that mortgage on Jones;
I'll make the young rascal learn how to skin;
I'll harrow his family, friends and his kin,
And I'll grind him down to the bones.

"Ten per cent., he 'knew he could pay,
His business was brisk, his prospects fair—
Improving,' he said, 'from day to day.'
But what did I tell him? Yes, what did I say?
'Jones, I have little to spare—beware!'

"And now I have him under my hands,
I'll seize his house and I'll seize his lot,
I'll seize his goods and I'll seize his lands,
The whole of his household stock as it stands
And all that his wife has got.

"I'll get my money, interest and rent;
Yes, down to a fraction's past.
He may work away to his heart's content,
But only to pay back what I have lent.
Yes, he shall pay me my ten per cent.,
If to gain it breaks his heart."

The miser gazed on the news of the day,
And lo! his brow was wrinkled and bent,
And he tore his long, thin locks of gray,
As he read, and sank back, fainting away,
Repeal of the Ten Per Cent!

Varieties.

A BACHELOR'S REFLECTIONS.

Bless me! I'm thirty-nine to-day; six feet in my stocking's, black eyes, curly hair, tall and straight as a cedar of Lebanon; and still a bachelor. Well it's an independent life, at least; no, it is'nt, either! Here are these new gloves of mine full of little rips, buttons off my shirt, nice silk handkerchief in my drawer wants hemming; what's to be done? How provoking it is to see those married people looking so self-satisfied and consequential at the head of their families, as if they had done the State a great service. As to children, they are as plentiful as flies in August, and about as troublesome; every alley, and court, and garret is swarming with them; they're no rarity; and any poor miserable wretch can get a wife; enough of them too, such as they are! It is enough to scare a man to death to think how much it costs to keep one! Silks and satins, ribbons and velvets, feathers and flowers, bracelets, gimcracks, and fodelrols; and you must look at the subject in all its bearings; little jackets and frocks, and wooden horses and dolls, and popguns and gingerbread; don't believe I can do it, by Jupiter! But then, here I sit, with the toe of my best boot kicking the grate, for the want of something to do. Such awful long evenings! I can't go to balls and concerts for ever; and when I do my room looks so much the more gloomy when I come back, and it would be so cozy to have a nice little wife to chat and laugh with. I've tried to think of something else, but I can't. If I look in the fire, I'm sure to see a pair of bright eyes; even the shadows on the wall take fairy shapes. I'm on the brink of ruin, I feel it; I shall read my doom in the marriage list before long, I know I shall!

Drill for Single Volunteers.

Fall in—Love with some amiable and virtuous young woman on the first opportunity you may have.

Attention—Pay to her, assiduously and respectfully.

Right Face—Popping the question, like a man and she'll accept you.

Quick March—To her parents and ask their consent.

Right turn—With her to the church and go through the service of holy matrimony.

Halt—And reflect seriously for a few moments; then determine to devote yourself entirely to your wife.

Right about Face—From the haunts that you have frequented when single, and prefer your own home.

Advance Arms—To your young wife when out walking together, and don't let her walk three or four yards behind you.

Break Off—Billiard playing, betting, and staying out at night, if you wish to have a happy home.

Sir Thomas Waldo, on leaving the house of a noble Duke, where he had dined, contributed to the insolence and covetousness of a train of servants who lined the hall. Upon placing a crown in the hand of the cook, the man returned it, saying, "I don't take silver." "Don't you?" said the Baronet, "then I don't give gold," and returned the five shilling to the purse.

Self-Love the Motive of our Best Action.—It is allowed that the cause of most actions, good or bad, may be resolved into the love of ourselves: but the self-love of others is wholly employed in pleasing themselves. This makes the great distinction between virtue and vice. Religion is the best motive of all actions, yet religion is allowed to be the highest instance of self-love.—Swift.

A veteran officer presented a memorial to Napoleon, soliciting a pension. "We shall see," was the Emperor's only reply. "Sire, you may see now, if you will deign to look," said the soldier, uncovering a breast scarred all over. The pension was granted on the spot!

They tell of a man in Chicago who has lost seventy male relatives during the war in battle and in camp.

An old sailor, finding a corked bottle floating on the water, opened it with the solicitous [illegible] gin, I think; treats by jingo!" and then threw it back into the water.

Wanted—a strong adhesive plaster to make busybodies stick to their own business.

A HINT
TO THE
WORTHY CITIZENS OF CANADA.
BE WARNED IN TIME.

ALL parties purchasing my Pills and Ointment for their several complaints are respectfully warned against purchasing either Pills or Ointment purporting to be my preparations, that have a United States Stamp around the Boxes and Pots. There is no Treaty between the people of the States and the Home Government, therefore an United States Stamp does not protect my preparations. There are no stamps upon my Canadian style of Pills or Ointment, coming from the United States. I rely only for protection on the water mark in book of directions around each Box or Pot. Before you purchase them, see that there are no U.S. Stamps upon the Box of Pills or Ointment. Purchase none that have United States stamps on.

FOR SUMMER COMPLAINT, CHOLERA INFANTUM BOWEL COMPLAINT, CRAMP, COLIC, AND DIARRHŒA.

Analysis of the Massachusetts State Assayer, Jan. 25, 1858.

When evaporated through clean linen it left no oil or offensive matter. In every respect it is a pure spirituous liquor. The oil which gives to this Brandy its flavour and aroma, is fusil, or grain oil. Its order partakes of both the fruit and oil of grapes. With acids, it produces ethers of a high fragrance. The substitution of this Brandy for Cognac Brandy will do away with the manufacture of fictitious spirits, sold under this name both at home and abroad. Respectfully,
A. A. HAVES, M. D., Assayer to State Mass.,
16 Boylston St.

By the same, in 1864.

I have analyzed "L. LYONS' PURE CATAWBA BRANDY," with reference to its composition and character, being the same as that produced in past years. A sample taken from ten casks afforded the same result with regard to purity; a slightly increased amount of tne principle on which its flavor depends was determined by comparison with former samples.

The indication of analysis show that this Brandy is produced by the same process as most of the imported Brandy. Respectfully,
A. A. HAQES, M. D., State Assayer,
Boston July 30, 1864. 16 Boylston St

BLETCHER'S
CANADIAN
CLOTHES WRINGER

COMBINES more Strength of Frame, Capacity for Pressure, and Power of Action, than any other in the market. We manufacture five sizes intended for and adapted to Families, Hotels, Laundries, &c.

Bletcher's Canadian Clothes Wringer
Saves Time, Labor, Clothes and Money.

It will wear for years without repair!
No Servant can break it!
A Child ten years old can operate it!
No cautious or skill required in its use!
It will wring anything from a Thread to the Heaviest Quilt.

It saves its Cost in Clothing
Every six or nine Months.

The water can be pressed from large and small articles easier, quicker and more thoroughly than by the ordinary old fashioned buck-breaking, wrist-straining and clothes-destroying process.

It is easily and firmly secured to the Tub or Washing Machine and will fit Tubs of any shape or size. Every Wringer is Warranted in every particular, either with or without star gearing; and in the event of any part becoming broken or mislaid, we can replace it at once. We sell them at prices that defy competition, as the following will testify:

No. 1, nine inch roll,	$4 50
2, nine and a half inch roll,	4 75
3, ten inch roll,	5 00
4, twelve inch roll,	5 75
5, fourteen inch roll,	6 50

We keep all the sizes above on hand at all times at our Sewing Machine Office, over Mr. S. White's shoe store,

George Street, Peterborough.

In consequence of the great stagnation of trade in the manufacturing districts of England through the war having cut off the supply of cotton, a large quantity of Valuable Jewelry, originally intended for the English market, has been sent off for sale in this country, and must be sold at any sacrifice!

Under these circumstance, Arrandale & Co., acting as Agents for the principle European Manufacturers, have resolved upon a great gift distribution, subject to the following regulations:—

☞ Certificates, naming each article and its value, are placed in sealed envelopes, and well mixed. One of these envelopes will be sent by mail to any address, on receipt of 25 cents.

All articles sold at One Dollar each, without regard to value!

On receipt of the Certificate, you will see what you are going to have, and then it is at your option to send the Dollar and take the article or not. Purchasers may thus obtain a Gold Watch, Diamond Ring, or any set of Jewelry in our list, for One Dollar, and in no case can they get less than One Dollars worth, as there are no blanks. The price of Certificates are as follows:—

One for	25 cents.
Five for	$1
Eleven for	2
Thirty for	5
Sixty-five for	10
One hundred for	15

Agents will be allowed ten cents on every Certificate ordered by them, provided their remittance amounts to One Dollar. Agents will collect 25 cents for every Certificate, and remit 15 cents to us, either in cash or postage stamps.

ATTENTION is directed to the rate of premiums adopted by this Company, which will compare favorably with that of any other institution in Canada. Investments of Company's funds to the large amount of nearly five hundred thousand dollars have been completed in Canada; and as all business transactions are finally disposed of in the Province, the Scottish Provincial offers all the facilities presented by a purely local Company, while it possesses the additional advantage of a large capital, and an influential and responsible body of shareholders in Great Britain.

Policies effected on or before 31st January next will receive a full year's bonus over those effected thereafter.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?
A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!
CAN BE FOUND IN
Holloway's Pills.
Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!
BY THE USE OF
Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that, WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER SHAPE internal disease exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attributes to PREVENT as well as to CURE, they search the SEEDS OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, revivigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system restoring nature to her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REPURATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs FROM THE BLOOD ITSELF, cleanse the state of the system from sickness to health, by expelling a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a most safe safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is compelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistible curatives. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unerring result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Vernal Affections,

MARRIED BY MISTAKE.

'But I tell you Rosa, I can't wait!'

It was no lover's bower, nor silk draped boudoir—simply a cool kitchen, with cream tinted walls, white netted curtains stirring to and fro in the afternoon breeze, and a wide chintz-covered lounge placed most invitingly under the clock shelf, while beyond the open door you caught a glimpse of green meadows bathed in sunshine, and wooded uplands dim with October haze. And Rosa Millet most unromantic of heroines, was sitting by a pine table, paring apples into a tray that was enthroned on her lap. Round and dimpled, with hair like brown velvet, and soft hazel eyes, she was just that style of female you feel irresistably impelled to kiss! just the saucy provoking, winning little personage, whose presence makes the daily sunshine of a house. Kent Lorimer knew this very well, and was almost resolutely determined to win and wear the little jewel that was sparkling on these Connecticut rocks. So he had come down by express from New York, to plead his cause with Rosa.

'But you must wait, Mr. Lorimer,' said Rosa, taking up a fresh apple, and considering demurely where she had best insert the knife into the crimson skin. 'Papa wouldn't listen to the thing for a minute.'

'Have you ever spoken to him on the subject?'

'I ventured one or two obscure hints the other day, and——'

'And what, Rosa!'

'Why he flew into a furious passion, and called me a little goose, and said he never would consent to my marrying, and made me cry, and——Don't Kent—how do you suppose these apples are to get pared, if you take hold of my hands in that absurd sort of way?'

'Well, then, Rosa, if he won't hear to reason, suppose we just dispense with his assent. Let's be romantic, and make a runaway match of it!' Kent spoke lightly, but you could see in the quiver of his lip, and the restless eagerness of his eye, that his whole fate hung upon her words 'What do you say, Rosa, nia?

She shook her head. 'I never could take such a step as that without my father's consent, Kent.'

'Yet you love me? he asked, somewhat bitterly.

'Oh, Kent, you know that I do!'

'Then, why are you so unwilling to make me happy? he said, bitterly.

She burst into tears—his mood changed instantaneously.

'My love—my little treasure, don't take a thoughtless word so deeply to heart. I'm a villain and heartless scoundrel to speak to you in that sort of way; but indeed, Rosa, it's only because I love you so dearly.'

Rosa looked up smiling through her tears, and exhorted her enthusiastic young lover not to be a goose!

'Well' said Kent, rising with an air of unutterable decision, 'I shall come here tomorrow to see your father myself. I shall ask him for you in plain terms, and if he says No——'

'What then?' questioned Rosa, anxiously.

'Why, I shall take you without his permission,' laughed the young man. 'Hallo! why, what's the matter?'

Rosa had sprung to her feet, the rosy, red apples rolling in every direction on the floor.

'It's papa,' she fluttered, turning white and scarlet, alternately. 'I see him coming down through the pasture lot.'

'Is that all,' said Lorimer. Why, I supposed it was half a dozen ghosts at the very least.'

'Go, Kent,' she said, pushing him from her with breathless eagerness; 'he must not know you have been here.—Quick! slip down on to the road by the path through the currant bushes.'

'What for?' asked her lover, boldly standing his ground. 'I'm not a burglar or a pickpocket, am I? why should I sneak away as though I were? Let me remain here and have my stay with your father.'

'Oh, not to day, Kent!' exclaimed Rosa, in sore tribulation. 'He would be so angry, if he thought you had been here during his absence. Wait till to-morrow—do please wait till to-morrow! For my sake, Kent.'

'For your sake, then,' said the young man, yielding with very evident reluctance. 'Where's your currant-bush path, if I must slunk out like a defeated felon. It's pity I haven't two or three silver spoons in my pocket to complete the illusion. One kiss, darling! it's worth that to make a fellow feel so cheap!'

And Kent Lorimer's figure disappeared among the mazes of the tall current bushes, just as Squire Martin Millet walked composedly up to the door stone on the other side of the house, with a broad-rimmed hat, shading his good-humored, although rather choleric brow.

'Well, Rosa,' he said, throwing himself into the cushioned rocking-chair, and tossing his hat into the window-seat; I've heard of a feller who wants to buy the clover medder up on the Edgewood Road.'

'Have you, papa?' asked Rosa, rather faintly.

'It's Deacon Nehemiah Lorimer's son, up to Hemlock Hollow, and——'

'Lorimer,' repeated Rosa, turning red.

'Why, yes! don't you remember Deacon Lorimer that got a bill from his first wife? She that was Melinda Jones?—Wal, his son had bought the farm a'joinin', and he'll give me 'leven hundred dollars for that 'ere clover medder. Only I'm afeared your mother won't be willin' to sign it away—she's so set about keepin' to property in the family, and it's her land. However, he's comin' round to-morrow to see about it, and I guess likely he'll talk your mother over. Folks do say he is a very forehanded young man, although I hain't never seen him.'

Rosa paid very little attention to the Squire's circumstantial statements—she was smiling to herself to think how little there was to common between Deacon Nehemiah Lorimer's lank sons, up at Hemlock Hollow, and her handsome, dashing young New Yorker! Only the name, and we have Shakespearian authority for saying, 'what's in a name?' There was more in it than Rosa thought.

'Where is your mother?' asked the squire, watching his daughter's busy hands and thinking within himself that she was certainly growing prettier every day of her sunshiny life.

'Gone to spend a day or two at Elder Slingerland's' faltered Rosa, endangering her fingers rather more than the apples in her transpiration fast the good squire should ask any more dangerous questions.

But the Squire had evidently no such intentions. He leaned comfortably back in his chair, yawning in a most portentous manner, and leisurely unfolded a silk pocket handkerchief for the purpose of spreading it over his rubious face, so that he might take his afternoon nap in an orthodox manner.

'He is going to sleep,' thought poor little Rosa, 'and I haven't asked him!'

She waited and figited a minute or two in the faint hope that the Squire might possibly change his mind But the clock ticked sleepily, and the blue flies buzzed against the window panes in a most somnolent style—'Papa!' she ventured at last in desperation.

'Eh! what is it,' ejaculated Mr. Millet, starting up, and throwing off the red silk pocket handkerchief. 'Did you call me, pet?'

'Yes, papa,' faltered Rosa; 'I—I want to speak to you about——'

'Well, my dear, about what?'

Rosa came to her father's side, and knelt down with her cheek on his knee. 'You know papa, I told you the other day how dearly and truly he loved, and how—how I was fond of him!'

There—it was all out now!

'Nonsense! trash! fiddlestick!' roared the indignant squire, springing to his feet with a wrathful countenance. 'I told you I wouldn't hear another word—and I won't You get married! Why, you are nothing but a child yourself!'

'I am eighteen, papa!' timidly interposed Rosa.

'Eighteen, indeed! if you were twenty-eight there'd be some sense in it. Hush—not another word. A city jackanapes too—just as if the honest farmers sons weren't good enough for you. Just let him show his whiskered face here, and I'll give him a dose that shall last one while!'

The Squire's face had grown fairly purple with rage. Rosa shrank back white and terrified. Alas! it was no use to plead Kent's cause, and she crept away up to her own room.

'I'll write to him she thought. 'He must never face papa in this mood. I am afraid we must give each other up—only I think it will break my heart!'

And she sat down to her desk to write a pitiful little tear-blotted letter to Kent Lorimer, entreating him to return to New York without making any attempt to soften her father's heart, or to see her.

When Kent received the incoherent written message, he read it over twice, and and laid it on his desk, smiling thoughtfully as he did so.

'I must disobey you this once, my little ladybird,' he pondered. 'I should be a recreant to abandon the precious prize when it is so nearly within my grasp. I intend to have you for my own life, if you had forty unwilling father's instead of one!

Very unreasonable language, wasn't it? but then you must remember that Mr. Lorimer was very much in love.

Squire Millet was climbing heavily into his antiquely fashioned 'one horse shay' at about noon the next day, for he was vexed at the unwonted absence of his bustling, cherry wife, and had 'harnessed up' expressly to bring her home from Elder Slingerland's. For was not her consent a necessary and indispensible thing in the famous bargain respecting the clover meadow?

'Hallo! who's this a-coming?' exclaimed the Squire, as he was taking the lines into his hands. 'Rosa! Rosa! Rosa! I say.'

But Rosa had retreated into the house.

'She always was a shy little creetur,' pondered Mr. Millet. 'I'll bet a cookey that's Deacon Nehemiah's son; and he'll just have to wait till I bring mother back, cause if she set her foot down not to sell there's a clear slap end to the hull affair. Mornin' sir; I hope I see you well.—You're Mr. Lorimer I calculate.'

'That's my name sir.'

'Wal, I'm real glad to see you. How's your father?'

'Thank you, sir, he's tolerable well,' replied the agreeably surprised young man. 'I am not mistaken, sir, in supposing that I am addressing Mr. Millet?'

'Not by a jugfull!' quoth the beaming Squire. 'It's all right, sir—all right! You want my property, and I want to get rid on't. I guess we'll make a bargain quick enough.'

'Thank you, my dear sir,' ejaculated Kent Lorimer, eagerly shaking the Squire's out-stretched hand. 'I had not anticipated so much genial kindness. Then I may consider myself sure of your consent.'

'Sartinly; only you see, I must get my wife to say yes; women always like to be consulted on such matters.'

'Certainly, sir. Mrs. Millet's consent would be most desirable. At the same time, you will not blame me for trying to consummate affairs as speedily as possible.'

'As soon as you like, sir; the sooner the better,' said the Squire most heartily.

'Would to-day be too precipitate?' hesitated the bold young wooer.

'Not a bit,' returned the Squire: 'and now, Mr. Lorimer, if you'll just walk in and sit down awhile, my little gall I'll do her best to entertain ye, and I'll bring Mrs. Millet home in less than two hours.'

The Squire drove away accordingly, and Kent Lorimer entered the low wooden porch triumphantly.

Rosa was hiding behind the window curtains in the next room, tremblingly listening for the sounds of mortal combat between her father and her lover; but as Kent approached, the ripe bloom came back to her sullen cheek.

'Oh, Kent! what did he say?'

'He consented!'

'Did he? oh, did he?'

'And says, the sooner the better; today, if I choose so, my darling. Un with your bonnet, and we'll go directly to Justice Stone's. It's only a little way, and then I shall be sure of you.'

'Rosa shrank back.'

'So soon, Kent! Oh! I can not.'

'He looked at her reproachfully.

'Have we waited all these months, only to let the golden moment slip by when at last it comes? I thought you cared a little for me, Rosa.'

She hid her head on his shoulder in mute penitence.

'Forgive me Kent. I will do whatever you please.'

So they were quietly married in the cool shady parlor of the country justice; and no satin or pearl clad bride was ever pleasanter to look upon than Rosa Millet in her blue gingham morning dress, with blue porcelain buttons down the front, and an amaranthus ribbon in her velvet brown hair.

As they did not make any particular haste in their quiet homeward ramble through the calm October glens, it happened that Squire Millet and his plump wife were driving up to the gate just as they entered. Rosa tried to draw her hand out of Kent Lorimer's arm, but he held it fast.

'Oh, here they be!' exclaimed the jovial Squire. This is my wife, Mr. Lorimer. Rebecca, this be's the young fellow as wants the clover meadow.'

'I beg your pardon, sir,' interposed Mr. Lorimer, with great composure—he had anticipated some such denouement to the unaccountable misunderstanding of the morning; 'it was not your meadow that I wanted; it was your little daughter.'

'My dar ter!' echoed the Squire in open-mouthed astonishment.

'And as you were kind enough to consent,' went on Kent glibly, 'and even intimated that to-day would scarcely be too early to suit you, we have just been married.'

The Squire started—so did Mrs. Millet.

'Aint your name Zephaniah Lorimer?'

'No sir; my name is Kent Lorimer.'

'By Je-hosaphat!' ejaculated the Squire, bringing his clenched hand down on his knee, 'you're the wrong man.'

He was silent a moment. Mrs. Millet (good soul—she had been on the side of the true love all the while) exchanged sympathetic glances with the blushing Rosa, and Mr. Kent Lorimer awaited the result of affairs with imperturbable coolness.

'Then you really married my gal, young man?' faltered the Squire.

'Yes Sir.'

'You—you couldn't go and get unmarried again, could you?' hesitatingly asked Mr. Millet, while a faint gleam of hope irradited his coutence.

'No, sir—I believe not,' returned Kent, trying not to laugh.

'Well then, brawled the Squire, 'I may as well make the best of it, though I can't help feelin' a little bit as though I had been over-reached. Come, Rosa—I believe its been a mistake all round, but somehow you don't look very sorry.'

And the Squire kissed the bride in the blue gingham dress very heartily.

'I don't care,' grumbled he, suddenly recurring to a sense of his wrongs; 'if Zeph Lorimer comes danglin' round after the clever medder at this time o' day he shant have it—I'm hanged if he shall!'

'Oh, Kent,' said Rosa, looking with a curious mixture of tenderness and reproach at her newly made husband, 'how could you deceive me so?'

'My darling, I didn't deceive you. I told you just exactly what your father said.'

'Ah, but you knew—you mistrusted——'

'That I was the wrong man? Of course I did. But when fortune holds a golden goblet to a man's lips, he don't say 'Excuse me, madam, but I think this belongs to some other fellow.' Besides, Rosa, you ought to know all is fair in love or war.'

Rosa laughed, and shook her pretty head, and couldn't help looking strangely happy, even while the words of gentle reproach were on her tongue. I don't think Kent minded that much.

Poor Zephaniah Lorimer, son of Deacon Nehemiah, was the only one totally and entirely dissatisfied with the day's bargain, for the poor fellow lost all the chances for the 'clover medder' by being a little too late.

The Best School for our Young Men.

Among the politicians of the neighboring Province of New Brunswick, it is a remarkable fact that a large proportion owe their whole training to the "cause of Temperance." Their admirers have often sought to account for this. Some have attributed it to be the political action of the order of "Sons of Temperance;" others to the noble opportunity for self-culture afforded by the Division room; others to the fraternal support afforded by the members of a secret society to their own prominent men; others who belong to the mystic school attribute it solely to a sort of transcendental spiritude influx which takes place among those who have signed the pledge. It is needless to remark that none of these theories are at all satisfactory.

We will show that the cause of this lies altogether within the abstract principal of Teetotalism itself; and that of itself it possesses all the influences by means of which a man may attain the position as a debater, a politician, or an editor.

Some men have a talent for the comic, others for the pathetic; some weep easily, others are forever on the grin; some have a genius for violent harangues, other for fierce denunciation. The surest way for a man to attain excellence is to strive to develop his own peculiar talent, and if any one thing can be found which offers to all men an equal field for the display, the exercise or the development of their own individual idosyncracies, why surely such a thing must be the most useful element conceivable to employ in the improvement of aspiring young men. Thus we all know how the advocates of the present system of education talk about the classics. The classics improve the memory, strengthen reason, quicken imagination, purify the morals, chasten the mental taste, polish the manners, sharpen the wit, and do innumerable other things which the classical orator takes for granted in others even when he don't see them in himself.

Precisely so with Temperance, only in a far higher degree. Just so look at the subject from this moral point of view, and we shall see how wide a range of thought is displayed before us.

The advocates of Temperance have altogether neglected this, and yet every lover of his species will see in this its highest claim to his support. For no where can such one principal be found which affords to the self-cultivator such a wide field of action.

Let us suppose that a man wishes to become a great public speaker, and in order to practice this art, takes to lecturing on Temperance.

In the first place, he can take up a line of abstract reasoning on the subject. He can philosophize, sum up facts, make wide generalizations, deduce startling inferences; and while he is doing good to others, he may gradually develope himself into a striking specimen of a thorough-going, deep-thinking statesman.

On the other hand, if his nature so disposes, he can take up an entirely different course, and find in the same subject the means of interesting his hearers by well-told anecdotes. The story teller is not the least effective of our public speakers. He will always be listened to, at any rate. He is invaluable as a companion to the member of the House when he goes off to stump the country.

Again; he may be pathetic in his natural disposition. If so, where can he find a theme for pathos, or for tears, like this? Some lecturers have so cultivated this talent that they are irresistible. They make martyrs of themselves on the slightest provocation. They have a way of getting hold of the sympathies of plain country folks, which completely baffles their opponents, and is most distressing on the hearings. There is only one man who can defeat the pathetic speaker, and that is the comic orator.

For this the cause of Temperance affords an unrivalled field. Who of us has been able to resist one of the telling stories of Gough? Did not Caswell carry us all away last year? It is a remarkable fact that the most laughter-moving speakers of the present age have been Temperance lecturers. Here one acquires that happy faculty of playing on words, that good-natured way of pooh-poohing an adversary, and that inexhaustible fund of funny anecdote which so delights the crowd.

Again, there is the melo dramatic. This consists not only on words, but in dress, expression, and general make up. The melo-dramatic lecturer affects the long Spanish cloak; he can frown with startling effect; and his style of oratory is of the jerky order mixed with interjections. A solemn kind of swearing and a mixed phraseology that borders on the profane are not amiss here.

The denunciative style is clearly allied to this, but yet quite distinct in itself. The denunciatory speaker, be it remembered, is never personal, never direct. He is eloquent, impassioned, fervid. He indulges in sublime flights. He apostrophizes his country, his sire, Britannia, Britain's Queen. He incessantly appeals to the chairman under the name of "Sir-ree." His voice is generally hoarse.

From this we must carefully distinguish the vituperatory style. One is general, the other is particular. The former deales with classes, the latter with individuals. The one never mentions names, the other is nothing if not personal. Perhaps the vituperative style is something more attractive to the beginner. Hence we find the "true-seller" catering it so unmercifully. He is a fiend, a beetle-browed destroyer—to use an expression invented by the genius of Kellogg, and since naturalized in all Division Rooms. Wine is poison, brandy is liquid fire, Rum is known by a name which the refinement of modern civilization forbids us to put in print.

This is the most cursory examination in the world of a vast and fruitful theme. We might easily enlarge the list to show what splendid opportunities are afforded by the "Cause of Temperance" for developing every faculty, for strengthening every talent, for heightening pathos, strengthening reason, sharpening wit, deepening denunciation, and rendering vituperatii a terrible.

This is the most cursory examination in the world for a vast and fruitful theme. We might easily enlarge the list to show what splendid opportunities are afforded by the "Cause of Temperance" for developing every faculty, for strengthening every talent, for heightening pathos, strengthening reason, sharpening wit, deepening denunciation, and rendering vituperatii a terrible.

This is the reason then that in the other Province we find orators of rare accomplishments. Oratory has been more studied there than with us. It has been used as a preliminary training to the work of Parliament. Many who have gone through this rare training are now adorning the council of their country; and many more young and ardent spirits are diligently practising, in the hope that some day they rise in the Parliament of British America to electrify the House.

Why should not so useful an example be imitated among us? There is one to whom it might be especially recommended. The editor of the Chronicle is a man of wit, a man of pathos, and, what is better, a master of the art of vituperation. Yet it must be confessed that, out of his editorial chair, all these advantages seem to be invariably wanting. What power might he not wield if he could show to his oratory the vigorous denunciations that mark the Railway articles; the mingled pathos and scorn, and melo-dramatic frenzy that glowed in the memorable "Light House papers?"

Soon he will be called upon to employ those gifts on a larger scale. He must attack Galt and Cartier; he must grow virulent on the Canadian Tariff; he must wax wroth with bitter denunciations the projected railroad to the Rocky Mountains. Perhaps he may be called on to do this not in the Canadian but from the hustings.

Those that wish to effect Insurance should call on the undersigned, who devotes the whole of his time to Insurance, and represents some of the best English and Canadian Offices.

The Peterborough Examiner

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1864.

THE "EXAMINER."

A new year will shortly dawn upon us, and then the Tenth year of the EXAMINER will be entered upon. From its first appearance, it has ever been the steady advocate of morality, justice, equality of rights, Reform, and temperance — which it will continue to be. Every effort will be made to make the EXAMINER a welcome family paper — and for this purpose, no cost or pains will be spared to supply, from week to week, select reading, of a moral and elevating tendency—fitted for both old and young. The latest and most reliable news on every passing event of importance, will, also, be given; and everything that has for its object the pleasure, elevation and advantage of our readers, will receive our steady advocacy and attention. The EXAMINER will be found the true and faithful advocate of the rights of the people, and of REFORM PRINCIPLES, on which it will give no uncertain sound; but at the same time will not condescend to abuse or villify those who may be of opposite views—merely because they chance to be ngainstus. Pursuing the even tenor of our way, we will endeavor to present the good and prevent the evil by every reasonable means in our power; and no effort will be wanting to make the EXAMINER the best local paper of the County, and second to none in the Province, outside of the cities.

But to enable us to do this, we solicit an extension of liberality. The cost of paper and labor compels us to change the rate of subscription. We have, therefore, concluded, after the First day of January, 1865, to raise the rate of subscription to ONE DOLLAR AND FIFTY CENTS a year, if paid in advance —and if not paid before Three months, we will charge Two DOLLARS. We trust our patrons will admit the reasonableness of our course, and cordially continue to patronize us.

From the First of January, 1865, the rates of subscription to the paper will, therefore, be as follows:—

IF PAID IN ADVANCE,.....$1 50
IF NOT PAID FOR THREE MONTHS, 2 00

THOUGHTS FOR THE SEASON.

It is a principle in ethics, that a man's responsibility is in proportion to his capability and capacity. Hence more is expected from an individual gifted with gigantic intellect than from one less distinguished in that respect. The same holds true of the different degrees of social and political standing. But important as this principle is it appears too axiomatic for those in power to understand, and consequently seems ignored in the realities of life, especially in the public or political circles. Even men of intellect too often act as if no corresponding superior obligations were expected of them. The ambitious hurry and work and scheme to gain social and political eminence; but when they succeed, when the summit of their aspirations is attained, their conduct and policy only too fully demonstrate their want of due appreciation of the important additional duties and responsibilities their elevation necessarily imposes upon them, and justly demands that they should attend unto. Though such a course is not right, nevertheless we see the fact illustrated every day and in almost every section of the land; in almost all the different political and social relations. From the Common School Trustee to the highest Council of the country we see it illustrated. Men whose attainments, experience and virtues are acknowledged and felt shrink from offices and positions of trust for which their qualities eminently fit them, while those whose only recommendation is ambition and self aggrandizement, are the holders of those offices and trusts. Who compose our Local Boards and Councils? Are the members of these always the most honorable, moral and best educated of the Community? We fear the answer would too often be in the negative. Instead of men of most enlightened views, most liberal education, most enlarged experience, and most distinguished virtues, too generally the very opposite forces their way into positions for which they were never prepared or designed, either by culture or natural talents. The truth of the above, all will be forced to admit, who have troubled themselves to examine the matter of which we speak. Honorable exceptions there are, indeed, but these are too few to upset the correctness of the facts set forth. Not one but will admit that, for the advantage of public and private interests, the man of moral principle, integrity, inflexibility, and disinterested motive and action; the man distinguished by his abilities, patriotism, and worthy antecedents should be selected to fill our Councils, School Boards, and places of trust, if we wish to enjoy present good government, or hope for future prosperity.

What selfishness, pride and pre-umption do we view in our more public, as also in our local affairs. What an absence of candor, moral character, elevated principles or love of justice is too often exhibited. Now if men unfit for these positions are permitted, nay forced into them through carelessness or mismanagement who is to blame? They who are qualified are to blame who, for fear of trouble, shirk from them and thus permit others, totally unfit, to obtain them. They are to blame who assumes public positions for which they are not qualified. They are to blame who elect persons to these positions [illegible]

WHAT DOES IT MEAN.

Mr. Lincoln, it appears, has given the requisite six months notice for the termination of the treaty between Great Britain and the United States, which forbids either party having armed vessels upon the lakes. This is much to be regretted. That there is any necessity for them we do not believe. But the raids, and threats, and rumours of invasion from Canadian soil to destroy and burn towns on the frontier have done much to bring this about. We see no cause for alarm to the good people on the borders, a little watchfulness on their part, and care on ours would do much to prevent any danger coming from Canada at any rate. Should Mr. Lincoln's government perceive a necessity to place armed vessels on the lakes, we may, for our defence, be forced to do the same, or remain in a state of unpleasant insecurity. We hope, however, that such a step will not be taken, and that our Government will use all lawful means to prevent the occurrence of events such as have taken place, and thus restore confidence to our neighbors, show them that we desire to preserve our neutrality, and preserve Canada neutral soil. We do not wish to see the press gagged, but moderation surely, should be exhibited. The sympathy of a certain class for the South should not lead them to do or say anything that would lead to hostilities, or hostile preparations on our waters. A Trent or Florida affair might induce acts, and produce feelings not easily allayed; and what would the result be?

Newspaper writers should be wary to stir up unfriendly feelings in those with whom we must have commercial and friendly intercourse if we wish to prosper—and the people of the United States should have more wisdom than attend to sensation articles got up by unprincipled creatures merely to induce a wider circulation for their organ. Calm, sober reflection will teach us that peace and good will are more to be desired than enmity or war.

ORANGE INTELLIGENCE.

DIAMOND Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 80, met at the Orange Hall on Monday the 5th inst.; this being the regular monthly meeting, a large number of the Brethren were present. The business of the evening having been got through with, the election of officers for the ensuing year took place, when the following were elected:—

CONCERT.

Mr. T. Brown announces his CONCERT for Monday evening next, in the Victoria Hall. We can safely predict a pleasant evening and a full house—none so well deserves it. Mr. Brown is foremost on all festive occasions in the town, to cheer and enliven with sweet music, and we are sure the coming evening's entertainment will be all that could be desired. See programmes for particulars.

GRAMMAR AND UNION SCHOOL.

The examination of the above institution will commence on Monday, the 19th inst., and continue the two succeeding days, Tuesday and Wednesday, 20th and 21st.

CORRECTION.—In giving a report of the County Council proceedings in our last issue, the first days proceedings were omitted, also a part of a resolution passed at the closing of the Council on the last day. The following is the correction:—

Council met in special Session pursuant to Warden's notice, with all the Councillors present.

The Minutes of the last day of the last Session were approved.

The Warden addressed the Council.

On Motion of Mr. Birdsall, the Warden's address was submitted to a special committee.

It was moved by Mr. Birdsall and seconded by Mr. Peck, that this Council have heard with regret of the decease of James Foley, Esq., and as a tribute of respect to his memory, that they do now adjourn from further business till to-morrow morning at 10 a. m., and that our Clerk is hereby instructed to tender the respectful sympathy of this Council to Mr. Foley's widow.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Peck, and seconded by Mr. Grover, that this Council feel that the many services rendered, and the close attention given to the affairs of this County, by our Warden, make it desirable that we should give some expression to our appreciation of his many services.

DENTISTRY.—Mr. J. O'Donnell has removed his Dental Office to the rooms over Ormond & Gilmour's drug store.

He has fitted up the rooms in the most elegant style, and is prepared to attend to all operations in the dental line. Mr. O'D. promises to remove offending dentes without pain, and replace them by others of the most natural appearance and best finish. Give him a trial.

Mr. Orde requests us to state that the Secretary of the Canada Land and Emigration Company, of London, England, Charles J. Blomfield, Esquire, has sent him a number of maps, printed instructions, &c., &c., relating to the settlement of the townships belonging to the Company, and that he, Mr. O., will be glad to afford all the information in his power, free of charge, to parties desirous of becoming settlers.

The Parliament will meet on the 16th of January, but not for the transaction of business.

THE AMERICAN WAR.

The President's Message is all that we have received this week from the other side of the waters. The war seems to be progressing, but particulars we cannot obtain. At Nashville the rebels have entrenched themselves. On December 6th Gen. Hood sent a flag of truce for exchange of prisoners, but Thomas having sent all his prisoners north, there was no exchange. The only news from the far south was that Foster was renewing his demonstrations against Savannah and Charleston railroad, seeking to divert the attention of part of the confederate troops from Sherman. The Petersburg Express of the 8th says of Warren's expedition:—

The expedition of the enemy was reported yesterday morning at Proctor's, some 20 miles south and still in motion, elated by the success of the raid on Stoney Creek. Grant has probably started out a large and better equipped body of troops on a similar expedition further down the Weldon railroad. That it is a raiding party we have little doubt but its destination is unknown, save probably at head quarters. This column is said to embrace a large force of infantry, with a quantum sufficient of artillery, but only a small force of cavalry. If such is the case we cannot think the expedition is destined against any distant point, as to venture far into the interior with infantry almost alone would render it an exceedingly dangerous and hazardous one.

The Richmond Despatch of the 9th says: The latest information from the enemy on the Weldon railroad is that they were still moving towards Weldon and were provided with such an amount of stores as to induce the belief that they were provided for a long absence. It is useless to speculate on their plans which will be fully known in a day or two. It is probable that the primary object of the movement was to occupy the road and so injure it as to prevent our sending any reinforcements to our forces operating against Sherman.

The Richmond Examiner of the 9th says: Sherman is reported to have reached a point [illegible] has been temporarily suspended and will not be resumed until the exchange is concluded. The bombardment ceased on Sunday morning the 4th inst., and the operation of transferring prisoners was soon after begun. It was expected that two or three weeks would be required to complete the exchange.

The Tribune's Washington report says that Thomas telegraphed to Washington on Saturday that he could move around Nashville without slipping up. The government feels entire confidence not only in Sherman's movements but in others now on foot. It is felt that the country will rejoice over the news of more than one victory before the close of this week.

The reported arrival of the pirate Seawnee at Matamoras is confirmed. It is said he is on his way to Richmond.

The steamer Orizaba was seized at Matagorda by the rebels and sold.

OSWEGO, Dec. 12.—A terrific gale of wind and snow has prevailed here since noon o'clock last night, and continues to-day without abatement.

CAIRO, Dec. 10.—On the 9th instant the rebels, under General Lyon, captured the Government transport Thomas E Tutt, at Cumberland city, on the Cumberland River, 20 miles above Fort Donaldson. The Tutt was used for crossing the river.

The rebels are on the march into Kentucky. Their force is estimated at 40,000 men.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 11.—The Republican has the following special despatch from Cairo:—

Considerable excitement existed at Memphis on the 9th instant over the report that General Beauregard was marching on Fort Pillow with a strong force.

No heavy guns are supposed to be used by the rebels to blockade the Cumberland River.

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—The Tribune's Washington special says that Gen. Thomas telegraphed to Washington on Saturday that he could move around Nashville without slipping up.

The government feels entire confidence not only in Sherman's movements, but in others now on foot. It is felt that the country will rejoice over the news of more than one victory before the close of the week.

SHERMAN'S POSITION.—Notwithstanding the confidence expressed in Sherman's success by Northern journals, there is evidently a feverish anxiety to hear something of his whereabouts. His slow progress is admitted on all hands; but by the South it is attributed to weakness, and by the North to strength. The latter say he proceeds slowly because he is ravaging the country,—if he were in danger he would proceed rapidly to the coast. But in marching through an enemy's country an army which must necessarily keep the roads, may, it appears to us, be much harrassed by even a much inferior force fighting behind barricades and earthworks at every strong point. It is well known that the progress of the whole Russian army in the last Turkish war was arrested for weeks by a few hundred men in an earthwork called Arab Tabia. A few days or hours, however, should set the question of Sherman's safety at rest.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

WELLINGTON TEMPLE, Dec. 8th, 1864.

DEAR SIR,—You will confer a favor by inserting the following in your widely circulated columns:—

Moved by Brother Dawson Kennedy and seconded by Brother John Neithercut, that whereas certain qualified Electors of the Township of Otonabee have, in accordance with the terms of the Temperance Act of 1864, demanded a poll to be taken under the provision and in conformity with said Act. And whereas notice has been given that on Friday the 30th inst, at the hour of ten in the forenoon, a meeting will be held at Keene for the taking of a poll to decide whether or not the by-law is adopted by said electors.

Resolved—First, that our W. S. communicate with the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner, requesting him to open the columns of his paper during the canvass to all communications holding forth the claims of temperance upon the community.

Secondly—Resolved—That the Editor of said paper be, and is hereby requested to use his influence as far as he may deem necessary in bringing the claims of temperance and prohibition before the community, especially before the electors of the township of Otonabee.

Thirdly—Resolved—That the resident Ministers of the township, and others, be, and are hereby requested to use their influence with their pen, and otherwise to bring prominently the temperance claims before, and urge them upon, the said electors.

Thus by our united efforts we no doubt will eventually succeed in effecting that object for which we pant with such ardent desire, and to which both nature and religion point with unerring finger; and though we are not, it is true, first on the list in this noble work, still we hope not to be last in endeavoring to dispel that dark cloud of want, misery and wretchedness, which has for many years hung over our otherwise happy township; and we also feel assured, that though it may at first sight seem hard to those who are wedded to the drinking customs and usages of this township to be deprived of that to which they are bound only by the fetters of custom, that in time, when they divest themselves of their prejudice, they will calmly and conscientiously say that "Drunkenness is a vice of such horrid mein

As to be hated needs but to be seen."

In fact we think it almost impossible that any person could be found so infatuated as to say that the sale and use of that lordly and soul destroying beverage, is individually or collectively a benefit: for here truly is it the deadly Upas tree of our County, blighting and withering wherever its baneful influence is felt.

We trust then that the time is not far distant when not only this township but the remaining part of our otherwise happy land will be rid of this wide-spread evil, and that the generation now in youth will hereafter rise and call us blessed.

Yours in F. H. & C.
A. M. NEITHERCUT, W.S.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

MR. EDITOR,—Permit me, once for all, very sheepishly to reply Mr. Fowler's objections to my former note. With Mr. F. I have, however, nothing to do; I paid his bill, though I think it unjust. But I wish to caution your readers against falling into the snare into which I was lead by the imperfect information which on enquiry I received, both at Port Hope and, thanks to Mr. F's. reminder, also at Peterboro'. I enquired at both places what it would cost to take my furniture from Peterboro' to Toronto, and was answered at both places that it would cost one dollar for the car and 25 cents per one hundred pounds; and this was what I bargained for by letter as directed by Mr. F. himself, and which I promised to pay as I passed through Port Hope, asking it to be weighed for that purpose. There could be no mistake as to my bargain. It was from Peterboro' to Toronto, and per 1,000*lbs*, which would not have amounted to more than ten or twelve dollars. Mr. F. did not tell me that I would be charged for ten tons weight though I sent only an old hat,—did not tell me that there would be extra charges so as to double the charge, whether I detained the car unnecessarily or not. I do not impute motives to Mr. F, or any body else at any time. But I say that I was not told the whole truth, but only a part of it, and so led to pay twice as much as I need to have done by sending my furniture by waggons [illegible]

THE RECENT OUTRAGE.

TO THE LOYAL ORANGE ASSOCIATION OF BRITISH AMERICA.

In consequence of the recent outrage committed on an Orange Hall in the city of Toronto, and of the inflammation that has been excited to rob from various quarters, that a [illegible] Lodge of Orangemen [illegible] among you throughout our Provinces on the subject of the Roman Catholic organization denominated "Fenians," or "Hibernians," I deem it my duty publicly to address you, that you may not, on the one hand, attach too much importance to the rumors that have gone abroad, nor, on the other, rest too supinely in the belief that such treasonable organization does not exist.

Attempts have been made, even from high quarters in the church of Rome, to justify this disloyal association by the existence of your loyal order, and a recent gathering of some hundreds of these "Fenians," or "Hibernians," with arms in their hands, in Toronto, at midnight of the anniversary of the Gunpowder Plot, has been made use of to institute a comparison between their body and yours, and to throw the responsibility of their proceedings upon you, men who have united together for the purpose of upholding and preserving those institutions and that religion, that this dark brotherhood seek to overthrow.

In British America no barrier is opposed to any religious faith or form of worship. The law of the land is tolerant of all denominations, and throws its protecting shield over all alike. The Protestant, although his is the established religion of the empire, has no higher guarantee for its free exercise than the Roman Catholic, but he is guaranteed its free exercise, and as a part of that freedom, he must be allowed to commemorate those days and events, which have been to Protestants, occasions and occurrences of special thanksgiving.

Among the most memorable of those occasions and events, especially to Orangemen, have been the discovery of the Gunpowder Plot, and the Battle of the Boyne, the former thought worthy, from years long by, of a special service in the Church of England, and the latter, never to be forgotten by every true lover of civil and religious liberty throughout the world.

In British America you have a legal right to celebrate these events by services in your churches, by processions, and by meetings. You are in violations of no laws. You are guilty of no aggression on the rights of others, and no man, and no body of men, can justly make these lawful assemblies, either a justification or excuse for the illegal assemblages of armed bands, on the hollow pretext of defence, from outrages or attacks, which they know, are neither made nor contemplated.

I am not surprised that recent events have aroused a warm indignation among you, that the knowledge that a conspiracy, originated in a foreign country by disaffected Irish Roman Catholics to overthrow the British government in Ireland, has extended to your own Provinces, has disturbed and disquieted you, and that the discovery of murderous weapons, of a discription calculated to awaken most painful memories in the minds of a peaceful and loyal population, has created the strongest feelings of insecurity and distrust; and it is because of the great irritation that in consequence pervails among you, that I now address you, to warn you against the commision of any act that may place you on the same level as those men, whose conduct all right minded men must justly condemn. Make no unusual demonstrations. Carry no arms or concealed weapons, but trusting in the efficiency of your organization, attend carefully to the obligations it imposes upon you as good subjects of the Queen, and believe that your leaders will be prepared for any emergency, whenever and wherever it may arise.

J. HILLYARD CAMERON,
Grand Master.

Toronto, 10th Dec., 1864.

A WIFE POISONED BY HER HUSBAND.—A man named Frank Spindler, residing on Bunker street, three doors from Halstead, produced the death of his wife under the following circumstances:—Yesterday morning, while they were at breakfast, the wife observed her husband go to the teapot and put something into it. She thought nothing of it at the time, and drank the tea without suspicion. He, however, hurried away, pretending that he was in too great haste to wait for his breakfast. Soon after drinking the tea, Mrs. Spindler was taken violently ill with great pain, vomiting and convulsions. During the forenoon, a woman living near by called in. During the time she was there, her little girl went to the teapot and drank some of the tea, and was likewise soon taken ill. Mrs. Spindler then suspected that she was poisoned, and related the circumstances to her neighbor, who immediately took the teapot and the remaining tea away, when Spindler came home and ordered her to give it to him, which she refused to do. He then attempted to take it from her by force, but she resisted, and succeeded in getting away with it. Dr. McAllister was called, and found the symptoms to be those produced by mineral poison, and on examining the contents of the teapot found it to contain large quantities of arsenic. About four o'clock p.m., the woman died. Spindler, finding that he had been detected, attempted to make his escape. But Superintendent Turtle was quickly notified, and officer Miller, of his detective staff, detailed to arrest, and he was taken about eight o'clock in the evening.—Chicago Tribune, Dec. 1.

ATTEMPT TO BREAK JAIL.—It has just leaked out that an attempt was made about ten days ago by the prisoner Mullal, who is confined for assisting soldiers to desert, to cut the bars of one of the jail windows with a small saw, which was supposed to have been conveyed into the gaol in a dish containing cooked cabbage. A soldier was in gaol at the time, on a sentence of four years transportation, and waiting to be sent away, and the idea seems to have been, according to report, to get the soldier out after Mulhall had cut the bar, when George Briggs or some of his minions would be on hand to convey him, and as many others as might escape, to "the land of the free and the brave." The attempt was frustrated by the interference of one of the jail officers who observed the operation from the Court House. The saw could not be found, and the soldier has since been sent away. It is the opinion of many that the alarm of the other night, that George Briggs and others of his Cape Vincent confreres were in the city, was not a false one. The danger to the jail with seventy-five prisoners (men and women,) and the want of a proper guard upon the building, would appear to be very great, under all the circumstances.—Kingston News.

MR. CAUCHON'S REFUSAL OF THE MAYORALTY.—In the Journal de Quebec there is a copy of an address which is signed by 1,000 rate-payers requesting the Honorable Joseph Cauchon to offer himself for the Mayoralty, and that gentlemans reply. Mr. Cauchon refuses nomination on the ground that the Corporation is a corrupt institution; that the annual deficits in the revenue have actually reached the large sum of $120,000; that the immoral system of management must have the effect of pitting our municipal affairs in the inexorable hands of the sheriff and lead to ruin and dishonour; and that the only remedy is the abolition of the elective Corporation and the substitution of Commissioners, as has been done in Edinburgh and other cities: and that although he cannot accept the honor of being the Very Dangerous Morality very Indelicately Taught.

Two young ladies were taken into the hospitable halls and mysteries of a missionary in this city a few days ago. Great pomp attended the meeting. Some of our distinguished military and civil officers, who might have been better employed—more suitably for their capacity and [illegible] the exception of their presence, to the cause of [illegible] that evening. [illegible] that consigned two young women to a delivery of the soul and body more despotic, total and hopeless than that which has aroused the wrath of the Christian world and culminated in the present convulsion of a nation. The new Romish Archbishop McCloskey, successor of Archbishop Hughes, delivered an address to the young women before they were offered up a living sacrifice to the Moloch of a cruel custom; and after enlarging upon the completeness of the surrender they were about called upon to make of themselves, he said:

"You are the children and followers of Mary as well as the bride of Christ. She was the first example of holy virginity — a mother and still a virgin. You take her virginity upon you entire. You renounce not only the world and the world's pleasures, but you renounce yourselves. You give up your will into the hands of your Superiores as you give it up into the hands of God."

How contrary this teaching is to the spirit of Christianity, which inculcates the liberty of those whom Christ makes free, we need not stop to point out to any intelligent Christian reader. He will see at a glance that this doctrine requires a young woman to take upon herself virginity, after the example of one who was a mother and still a virgin, and this young woman must surrender her will to the Superiores of the convent as to God; so that the will of the young woman in relation to the most sacred of all earthly relations, is to be held by woman, who is to be as God to the virgin who surrenders herself into this ignominious bondage.

We do not hesitate to affirm in the hearing of the intelligent Christian population of the city of New York, that this doctrine is an offence against good morals, and fitted to undermine the foundations of domestic peace and virtue. It inculcates as a religious sentiment, the propriety of one person, a woman, a young woman, and of course of any other person so surrendering his or her freedom of will to another, that moral responsibility passes from the doer of an act to the person commanding it. It makes the priest or the superioress, the bishop or the archbishop, whoever receives the trust, to be as God to the subject, so that the captive is now ready to submit to anything, ready to do anything, that the one in authority commands!

This is the vital principle of the order of the Jesuits. So infamously base and intolerably despotic in their crimes did they become, that they have been forcibly expelled by monarchical governments in Europe, even where the Roman Catholic religion was largely prevalent and respected. In obedience to this doctrine, now proclaimed in free and enlightened America, the follower of Ignatius Loyola in other lands have perpetrated deeds from which humanity recoils with disgust. The member of that society at the order of his superior, to whom his will was surrendered, went unquestioning to the ends of the earth, to preach or to murder, it mattered not to him, he did as he was told. Having been taught that his will was swallowed up by the will of the leader of his order, he felt no compunctions of conscience when th darkest deeds were done by his right hand. That hand moved in obedience to the command of another, and that other took the moral responsibility of the act, with all its temporal and eternal consequences. And it was no theory of moral responsibility differing from that which Archbishop McCloskey teaches publicly to the young women who are led to commit their lives, and honor, and immortal souls to the Superiores of the convent in the city of New York in the year of our Lord 1864.—*N. DR. RADWAY'S PILLS THE PILLS THAT CURE.

There are thousands of persons who have for years been dosing with some favorite pills and imagine that they cannot live without them. When we hear that a man has been taking such and such "pills for years," it is fair to presume he is taking a worthless remedy. Yet there are many who have been afflicted with Costiveness, Indigestion, Constipation, Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, &c., for years, and from habit have used some favorite pill that affords mere temporary relief, without thinking that the pills they are taking increases original complaint. Now we guarantee that if these misguided people will take Radway's Pills that from one to six boxes will cure them. Sold by all Druggists.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Nature's Great Ally.—To prostrate the bodily powers by drastic purgatives, is to assist disease. These famous Pills, on the contrary, assist nature in her conflict with disease, by revitalizing the blood, and expelling all morbid matter from the system.

Sold in the manufactories, No. 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and No. 244 Strand, London, and by all druggists. If the reader of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, 80 Minden Lane, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other person's make. 25c., 62½c., and $1 per box.

RUSSELL, OF THE TIMES, DENOUNCED.—Mr. Russell, of the Times, does not appear to have given satisfaction either to the Northerners or Southerners, but you do not hear of any one being dissatisfied with the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," which is sufficient proof that it is all it is represented to be. Price only 25 cents per Bottle. Sold by all Druggists.

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY.

Testimony from L. A. Lamontayne, of the Journal de Quebec, C. E.

Mr. Seth W. Fowle,

DEAR SIR,—It is now three years since first I procured Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry for my wife, who was troubled a long time with the Asthma, and a long continued cough, which prevented her from following her usual occupation. After having made use of four bottles she received great benefit from their use.

I am your obedient servant,
L. A. LAMONTAGNE.

Montreal "Witness" for 1865.

THE WITNESS is about to enter on its twentieth year as a candidate for public favor, on the same principles with which it set out; its aim being to furnish good reading matter, unmingled with sectarian bitterness or party strife.

The News department contains the latest news by telegraph; summaries of news from Canadian, British, and American papers; and selected articles on current events, from the leading journals of the world.

The Commercial department comprises reliable prices current, reviews of the markets and financial intelligence.

The department of Family Reading contains a copious selection of instructive and interesting matter, tales, poetry, &c.

Valuable Agricultural and Horticultural articles are copied from time to time.

The Advertising department has many useful and important advertisements, but admits none of an immoral or injurious tendency.

THE CANADIAN MESSENGER, containing a selection of the best and most interesting matter of the Witness, is published monthly at 25 cents per annum, with one copy gratis to a Club of Ten. It is devoted to Religion, Morality, Education, Children's Reading, Temperance and Agriculture; and, consequently, is allowed to pass free through the Post Office.

TERMS:

Daily Witness, Three Dollars per Annum.

Montreal Witness (Semi-Weekly). This is the same form that it has been since the beginning. Two Dollars per Annum.

Weekly Witness, One Dollar per Annum.

Canadian Messenger, Twenty-five Cents per Annum.

☞ All cash in advance.

One copy gratis in each case for a Club of Ten. Should a Mixed Club be sent, with not less than $10, papers will be forwarded gratis to the value of one-tenth of remittance.

All communications to be addressed to Montreal Witness, or

WM. G. THOMSON & CO.

In announcing the arrival of their new stock of

AUTUMN AND WINTER GOODS,

BEG to thank their friends for the very substantial encouragement received since they commenced business, and respectfully solicit a continuance of their custom.

Their present stock is large and will be found to compare favorably in

QUALITY, STYLE AND PRICE,

with any goods in the trade.

THEY WOULD CALL SPECIAL ATTENTION TO THEIR

BLANKETS, FLANNELS, WINCIES,

and other woollen goods, which were contracted for in the early part of the season at prices considerably below their present value, AND WILL BE SOLD ACCORDINGLY.

BENEVOLENCE.

A benevolent man was Absolam Bess;
At each and every tale of distress
He thanked right up like a rocket;
He felt for all beneath poverty's smart,
Who were fated to bear life's roughest part—
He felt for them in his innermost heart,
But he never felt in his pocket.

He didn't know rightly what was meant
By the Bible's promised four hundred per cent,
Nor charity's each donation;
And he acted as if he thought railroad stocks
And bonds secure beneath earthly locks,
Than heavenly speculation.

Yet all'oain he was an excellent man;
For the poor he'd preach, for the poor he'd pray;
To better them he was willing;
But the oldest man who heard him pray,
And preach for the poor in a pitiful way,
Could hardly remember him rightly to say
Mr. Bess had e'er given him a shilling.

Oh, an excellent man was Absolam Bess,
And the world threw up its arms to bless
A man so well intentioned;
But he died one day, he died and oh,
He went where the par value was low
Of such souls, and you don't want to go—
A place that shan't be mentioned.

A NATIONAL ANTHEM.

A facetious correspondent of the Hamilton Times, furnishes the following contribution in the way of a national anthem for the new Confederacy:

Proud land of Liberty,
Great be thy destiny,
Home of the brave!
As one united be,
Spanning from sea to sea—
Glorious Confederacy!
Long may she wave!

Up with the whisky tax,
How are you, Old Greenbacks?
Keep the price down.
Confound all habitan tricks,
Keep Yankees in a fix,
Make Peruians to cut sticks,
Great Brow-ow-own!

A CLEAN SELL.—A shrewd countryman was in New York the other day, gawky, uncouth, and innocent enough in appearance, but, in reality with his eye teeth cut. Passing up Chatham street, through the Jew's quarter, he was often encountered with importunities to buy. From almost every store some one rushed out, in accordance with annoying custom of that street, to seize upon and try to force him to purchase. At last, one dirty looking fellow caught him by the arm, and clamorously urged him to become a customer.

"Have you any fine shirts?" inquired the countryman, with a very innocent look.

"A splendid assortment, sir. Step in, sir. Every price, sir, and every style. The cheapest in the street, sir."

"Are they clean?"

"To be sure, sir. Step in sir."

"Then," resumed the countryman, with perfect gravity, "put on one, for you need it."

The rage of the shopkeeper may be imagined as the countryman, turning upon his heel, quietly pursued his way.

Dr. H———is one of those genial souls who can tell a good story, and who loves a good joke, even though it is at his own expense. At one time he had employed an Irishman to cut some wood at his door, and it being a very cold day, he invited him into the house to warm him and drink a glass of cider with him, (the Doctor never takes anything stronger than cider.) After Pat had become sufficiently warmed, the Doctor turned him out a glass, which he drank off with a great relish. "Pat," asked the Doctor, still holding the pitcher in his hand, "what is better on a cold day like this than a good glass of cider?" "Two of them, sure!" was the ready reply. Perhaps it is hardly necessary to add that Pat got his two glasses.

AN IDIOT'S WIT.—Jamie was sitting in the front gallery wide awake, when many were slumbering round him; the clergyman endeavoured to awaken the attention of his hearers by stating the fact, saying:—"You see even Jamie Fraser, the idiot, does not fall asleep as so many of you are doing." Jamie, not liking, perhaps, to be thus designated, coolly replied, "An hadna' I been an idiot I wad hae been sleepin' too."

Commodore Nutt sailed for England on Saturday in the "City of Baltimore, and intends to hold his receptions at St. James' Hall, Regent Street, London, assisted by his quondam little friend Miss Minnie Warren, for whom it is said the Commodore entertains a sneaking regard that will soon eventuate in matrimony.

One night recently, a man fell out of a second storey window of an hotel in Newburg, New York, in the course of a somnambulic promenade. The fall broke both arms, smashed his jaw and knocked out nearly all his teeth, but it is not stated whether it awoke him.

A lady in speaking of the gathering of lawyers to dedicate a new court house, said she supposed they had gone to "view the place where they must shortly lie."

An impudent wretch came near getting his ears boxed, at a wedding reception the other day, for wishing the beautiful young bride "Many happy returns of the day.

A HINT
TO THE
WORTHY CITIZENS OF CANADA.
BE WARNED IN TIME.

ALL parties purchasing my Pills and Ointment for their several complaints are respectfully warned against purchasing either Pills or Ointment purporting to be my preparations, that have a United States Stamp around the Boxes and Pots. There is no Treaty between the people of the States and the Home Government, therefore an United States Stamp does not protect my preparations. There are no stamps upon my Canadian style of Pills or Ointment, coming from the United States. I rely only for protection on the water mark in book of directions around each Box or Pot. Before you purchase them, see that there are no U. S. Stamps upon the Box or Pot of Ointment. Purchase none that have United States stamps on.

L. LYONS' PURE OHIO
CATAWBA BRANDY,
AND
SPARKLING CATAWBA WINES.

Equal in Quality and Cheaper in Price than the Brandies and Wines of the Old World.

FOR SUMMER COMPLAINT, CHOLERA INFANTUM BOWEL COMPLAINT, CRAMP, COLIC, AND DIARRHŒA.

A Cure is guaranteed or the money will be refunded.

Analysis of the Massachusetts State Assayer, Jan. 25, 1858

When evaporated through clean linen it left no oil or offensive matter. In every respect it is a pure spiritous liquor. The oil which gives to this Brandy its flavour and aroma, is fusil, or grain oil. Its order partakes of both the fruit and oil of grapes. With acids, it produces ethers of a high fragrance. The substitution of this Brandy for Cognac Brandy will do away with the manufacture of fictitious spirits, sold under this name both at home and abroad. Respectfully,
A. A. HAYES, M. D., Assayer to State Mass.,
16 Boylston St.

By the same, in 1864.

I have analyzed "L. LYONS' PURE CATAWBA BRANDY," with reference to its composition and character, being the same as that produced in past years. A sample taken from ten casks afforded the same result with regard to purity; a slightly increased amount of the principle on which its flavor depends was determined by comparison with former samples.

The indication of analysis show that this Brandy is produced by the same process as most of the imported Brandy. Respectfully,
A. A. HAQES, M. D., State Assayer,
Boston July 20, 1864. 16 Boylston St

BLETCHER'S
CANADIAN
CLOTHES WRINGER

COMBINES more Strength of Frame, Capacity for Pressure, and Power of Action, than any other in the market. We manufacture five sizes intended for and adapted to Families, Hotels, Laundries, &c.

Bletcher's Canadian Clothe's Wringer
Saves Time, Labor, Clothes and Money.
It will wear for years without repair!
No Servant can break it!
A Child ten years old can operate it!
No caution or skill required in its use!
It will wring anything from a Thread to the Heaviest Quilt.

It saves its Cost in Clothing
Every six or nine Months.

The water can be pressed from large and small articles easier, quicker and more thoroughly than by the ordinary old fashioned back-breaking, wrist-straining and clothes-destroying process.

It is easily and firmly secured to the Tub or Washing Machine and will fit Tubs of any shape or size. Every Wringer is Warranted in every particular, either with or without gearing; and in the event of any part becoming broken or mislaid, we can replace it at once. We sell them at prices that defy competition, as the following will testify:

No. 1, nine inch roll,	$4 50
2, nine and a half inch roll,	4 75
3, ten inch roll,	5 00
4, twelve inch roll,	5 75
5, fourteen inch roll,	6 50

We keep all the sizes above on hand at all times at our Sewing Machine Office, over Mr. S. White's shoe store,

George Street, Peterborough.

In consequence of the great stagnation of trade in the manufacturing districts of England through the war having cut off the supply of cotton, a large quantity of Valuable Jewelry, originally intended for the English market, has been sent off for sale in this country, and must be sold at any sacrifice!

Under these circumstance, Arrandale & Co., acting as Agents for the principle European Manufacturers, have resolved upon a great gift distribution, subject to the following regulations:—

☞ Certificates, naming each article and its value are placed in sealed envelopes, and well mixed. One of these envelopes will be sent by mail to any address, on receipt of 25 cents.

All articles sold at One Dollar each, without regard to value!

On receipt of the Certificate, you will see what you are going to have, and then it is at your option to send the Dollar and take the article or not. Purchasers may thus obtain a Gold Watch, Diamond Ring, or any set of Jewelry in our list, for One Dollar, and in no case can they get less than One Dollars worth, as there are no blanks. The price of Certificates are as follows:—

One for	25 cents.
Five for	$1
Eleven for	2
Thirty for	5
Sixty-five for	10
One hundred for	15

Agents will be allowed ten cents on every Certificate ordered by them, provided their remittance amounts to One Dollar. Agents will collect 25 cents for every Certificate, and remit 15 cents to us, either in cash or postage stamps.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?
A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!
CAN BE FOUND IN
Holloway's Pills.
Be of Good Cheer: The Sinking may be Saved!
BY THE USE OF
Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER shape internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the SEAT OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the HIDDEN cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs UPON THE BLOOD itself, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable curatives. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Convulsions,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Looseness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venral Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms, of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this notice cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

Courtship under Difficulties.

A HUMOROUS HISTORY.

FROM THE GERMAN OF FERDINAND STOLLE.

'Louisa!' growled her father, now really angry, 'I insist on your treating my esteemed guest with more respect.'

Louisa answered nothing, but walked pouting to the window, and stood there fanning herself with her handkerchief. Suddenly she turned and addressed me—

'Are you a good pistol shot?'

'It is some years since I practised,' I replied, wondering what on earth was coming next.

'Come with me to my gallery; we will shoot a match.'

'But Louisa,' interposed the counsellor, 'let our guest rest himself to-day; to-morrow or the day after, you can shoot as much as you will.'

'You are not tired, are you?' said Louisa to me. What could I say but that I was perfectly fresh, and quite at her orders? I added that I should certainly have no chance of equalling her shooting. 'Never mind that,' was her reply, and she carried off her victim. I had not fired a pistol for five years; she handled the weapons with a practised dexterity that made me look very clumsy.

As I had foreseen I had not the slightest chance with the expert markswoman. I considered myself very fortunate when I hit the target, which was as big as a plate; whereas she put the bullet in the bull's eye at almost every shot. She soon got tired of that and fired at birds, and at fruit upon the trees. At last she produced an ace of hearts, and bade me hold it out at arm's length. I inquired her object. She would shoot the ace out, she said. I expostulated; she was firm. 'Attention,' she cried, 'I fire.' I threw the accursed card away.

'This is tempting Providence,' I said 'I have not the least doubt of your skill. On the contrary——'

Louisa stood before me with her pistol cocked like a destroying angel.

'If you instantly pick up that card or I send a bullet through your hair'

This was worse than scalping. I tried to smile and turn it off as a joke. 'I do not joke,' calmly replied the terrible Louisa, and took a steady aim at my head. I don't know how I should have looked. Mechanically I stooped, picked up the card and held it by the extreme edge, as far from my body as possible. I felt that my hand trembled, but I preferred a shot in the arm to one in the head. The pistol went off and Louisa burned up to me. The bullet had cut out the ace. My patience was at an end.

'Madam,' said I, very seriously, and rather angrily, 'I must inform you that I do not relish jests of this kind.'

'All one to me,' was her laughing reply. 'I do. But you are only a Philistine, she added, an unoriginal phrase, looking down upon me as a student of five years' standing might upon some pusillanimous freshman. And away she tripped, disconsolately leaving me by myself; I thought little of the discourtesy, and was glad to be rid of her at any price.

'A real blessing would such a wife be,' thought I to myself. And I made up my mind that my stay at Wiesenthal should be of very short duration. Passing through the garden I met old Frager, who doubtless noticed discomposure on my countenance.

'I fear,' said he, 'that Nimrod has played you some fresh trick.'

'The young lady,' I replied, 'is no doubt an excellent shot; but I am no lover of such military exercises.'

'You really have nothing to fear.'

'The devil I haven't!' thought I to myself. 'No one,' I added aloud, 'can always answer where a bullet shall strike. A quicker throb of the pulse, the sudden sting of an insect, may alter the direction of the weapon.'

The doating father seemed struck by the truth of this; but he said nothing, and turned the conversation. Strolling together through the garden, we stopped to look at a gigantic sunflower, which I thought was the largest I had ever seen. As we stood admiring the enormous flower, a gun was fired close at hand; the bullet passed less than two feet before us and went right through the sunflower, severing it from its stem. This was too much even for Frager's endurance. 'By heavens!' he exclaimed, 'you are right; the girl is unbearable!' and turning to Louisa, whose lively, laughing countenance appeared through the branches of a rose-laurel, he ordered her, in an angry tone, to take the gun into the house, and not touch it again for four-and-twenty hours. Nimrod forthwith disappeared.

'I hope,' said the counsellor, apologisingly, as we walked back to the house, 'that my Emily will efface the bad impression her sister's pranks have made upon you. If Louisa, with her rage for shooting, risks inflicting wounds, Emily, on the other hand, is always ready to heal them.'

In the dining-room the table was spread for five. A servant asked if he should bring in dinner.

'Are Emily and Ernestine at home?' asked Frager.

'Not yet returned.'

'And Louisa?'

'Miss Louisa has just ridden out again.'

'Well, said the patient counsellor, without a word of disapproval,' then we shall dine alone. I cannot imagine,' he continued, when we had sat ourselves down, 'what is come to the girl. I never saw her so unruly and reckless as to-day.'

For my part I did not at all regret Nimrod's absence. Had she been there, I do not believe I could have swallowed a mouthful. I made no doubt that like the pirate captains of the Spanish Main, she dined with a brace of pistols beside her plate. Notwithstanding the fright she had given me, I was very hungry; the counsellor's cook was good, and I was passing nearly the first pleasant moments I had since my arrival at Wiesenthal, when the door opened and the dark-browed Emily entered. The portrait had told the truth. She was, if possible, still handsomer than Louisa. Quite dazzled by her beauty I rose and bowed. Like her sister she heeded me not, but hurried to her father, and embraced him.

'A most successful operation,' she cried; 'poor Arnold is saved. It was high time to amputate, however. See here, the state the hand is in.'

And as she spoke she unfolded a linen cloth and displayed the shattered hand, with its raw stump. I have always had the greatest horror of operations, and aversion for everything savouring of the dissecting room; and the sight of this dead hand made me quite sick. It was all up with my appetite for that day.

'But girl!' the counsellor exclaimed, 'we are at dinner; how can you bring us such disgusting objects?'

'Naturalia non sunt turpia,' replied the female surgeon, 'what care art and science about your appetite?'

'If you do not consider me,' continued Frager, 'you might my guest, this is Mr. Frank Steenman, the nephew of my old friend, of whom I have often spoken to you.'

Dieffenbach regarded me, as I thought, with no very friendly expression.

'Had I known,' she said, speaking coldly and contemptuously, 'that the gentleman shudders at blood, and cannot bear to behold an amputated limb, I would certainly have spared him the sight of the result of our operation. I thought he had been a scientifically educated man.'

Miss Emily was gradually becoming as odious to me as her galloping, pistol-firing sister. Her father scolded, but his words were mere wind as regarded their effect on Dieffenbach, who was far too much engrossed with her amputation to care a copper for paternal chidings. Again putting forward the abominable hand, she began to explain in scientific phrase, the nature of the injuries, and the necessity of its removal, when Frager lost all patience, and ordered her immediately to remove the abominable thing from his sight. Emily carefully wrapped up her hand in the cloth and left the room.

'The deuce take me,' growled the counsellor, 'if I know what is come to her today. She does not generally intrude her surgical learning. The successful amputation must have turned her head. Well, let's think no more of it, but return to our dinner.'

To dinner with what appetites we might, I could not swallow a bit. I had dined for a week—on that horrible dead flesh. Presently in came Emily and sat down to table.

'Fall to, my friend,' said the hearty and hospitable Frager, who saw that I did but play with my knife and fork, and put nothing into my mouth. 'This fillet of roebuck is done to a turn.'

Desirous to conceal the fact that the amputated hand had cut off my appetite, I took out my handkerchief and held it to my mouth.

'What' is the matter?' asked the counsellor. Dieffenbach looked inquiringly at me.

'I have a tooth that pains me,' I replied.

'Do you suffer from a decayed tooth?' hastily inquired Emily.

One he begets another. 'At times,' I answered, 'when eating, one of my double teeth is very apt to ache.'

'We must have it out,' said Dieffenbach, in a tone of decision that made me tremble for the safety of my thirty-two perfectly sound grinders. And up she jumped, and hurrying into the next room returned instantly with an instrument case.

'Pray give yourself no trouble on my account, Miss Emily,' I said. 'the pain already diminishes.'

'We must have it out,' repeated Emily, firmly. 'A bad tooth is like a bad conscience, it may be stifled for a moment but never rests. You are never sure of being an hour free from pain.'

'I am really extremely obliged to you,' said I, deprecatingly, and observing with horror that the desperate dentist drew from her case a hideous instrument in form something like a boat hook and a corkscrew.

'At least allow me to examine your teeth.'

'Most really decline,' I replied, setting my jaws firmly together. If I once open my mouth I thought to myself, this demon is capable of breaking every bit of ivory I have in it. And I muttered a host of excuses which sufficiently showed my aversion to operations on the teeth. Dieffenbach did not seem to listen to me, but drew an arm-chair to the window, and bid the servant bring in a basin and water. Then with an angelic smile she invited me to sit down in the chair.

'Satan himself, thought I, must have brought me to this house; and straightway I declared that I could not consent to any operation, and that, as to tooth-drawing, it was clean against my principles.

'I will do nothing at all to your mouth,' replied Emily; 'but the teeth are one of my favorite studies, and I beg you will allow me to examine yours.'

I thought it rather an odd wish, but I did not like to refuse, lest she should think me a coward. I did make some further objections—would not give her the trouble and so forth; but all this was of no use. I had at last to sit down in the chair by the window, and open my mouth. Just as I did so the counsellor left the room. My heart sank within me, I was now completely in the power of this fiend and her forceps. She took a sort of probe and scraped and poked about my mouth in a manner that was anything but agreeable. I endured the pain, however, and said nothing. Then she took some other instrument, and scraped and scratched again. The sufferings of Job can hardly have exceeded mine.

'Have the goodness to wash out your mouth,' said the operator, handing me a glass of water. I did as I was bid, and discovered to my horror that my gums bled profusely.

'Nothing more dangerous,' said this infernal Dieffenbach, 'than to have the gums growing too low down upon the teeth. I have separated them a little.'

'Small thanks to you,' thought I and I hoped, with a sigh, that my tortures were at an end. Not a bit of it. Emily again rummaged in her instrument-case.

'I will not trouble you any more,' I said, closing my mouth.

'Only one moment,' said the determined dentist, and in an instant thrust some hideous piece of mechanism into my mouth, and grappled a tooth. Before I knew where I was, blue lights danced before my eyes, and I felt as if my jaw was breaking. The next moment a magnificent double tooth, with two prodigious fangs, was waved in triumph before my eyes.

'It must have come out very soon,' quoth Dieffenbach, with unperturbable calmness; 'decay had begun, and would shortly have spread to the other teeth, and caused you great pain.'

I was more dead than alive. My tongue convulsively sought the horrible gap left by my departed and irreplaceable grinder.

'You have two other double teeth that will not last you long,' continued Emily; 'if you please, we will take them out at once, to save future trouble. My hand is in and I should be of opinion to have them out.' She flourished her diabolical implement, but I shouted with terror, and sprang from the chair as if a scorpion had stung me.

'As you please, said Emily with a charming smile, and, gathering together her instruments, left the room with a gracious gesture, leaving me spitting blood and musing over this new and abominable adventure. Never was any suitor so inhumanly treated. Nearly shot through the head by one lady, and having his tooth wrenched out by another. I gazed sorrowfully at the recent occupant of my mouth, which had never caused me a moment's pain, when the counsellor, whose ear my shriek of agony had reached, hastily entered the room and enquired what was the matter.

'Your daughter,' replied I, in no very friendly tone, 'has been pleased to extract, in spite of my resistance, a perfectly sound tooth from my mouth; an exploit for which I am far from obliged to her.'

'Perfectly sound,' said Frager, shaking his head; 'there I must beg to differ with you. Emily understands teeth and is incapable of such a mistake. You should rejoice instead of lamenting. At the price of a momentary pang, you have been saved from such suffering. The operation has been highly successful thanks to my daughter's skill. If you complain now, what would you have done had your jaw been broken, as sometimes happens in tooth drawing? But you must need repose. A short siesta will do you no harm. If you will accompany me I will show you your room.'

I gladly accepted the offer, well pleased to have at least a refuge from Nimrod's gun and Dieffenbach's instruments. My host led the way to a comfortable and well furnished apartment, wished me a pleasant nap, and departed. Left alone, I fell to musing on the events of the day, and as I gazed through the window on the beautiful landscape without, I thought to myself what a pity it was that such a charming residence should be rendered untenable by the vagaries of the owner's daughters. The old gentleman was far too indulgent—very much indeed—and seemed to think Dieffenbach had done me a great service by robbing me of one of my best teeth. I made up my mind soon to depart. I would wait to have a look at Olken, that my uncle might not be able to say I had not complied with his wish, but I should see all three daughters. As to stopping a week, it was out of the question. Before that time elapsed I should loose a leg or an arm at the hands of Dieffenbach, or be laid low by the bullets of Nimrod. More beautiful girls I had never seen, and doubted that handsomer existed; but what is the value of beauty in whose presence there is no security for life or limb? My thought turned to the youngest sister, Ernestine. Judging from her portrait, she was of softer mood than her elders. Her father's account of her partiality to spiders and other vermin was not very encouraging, but at any rate with her one risked neither death nor mutilation.

I would gladly have smoked a cigar, my custom of an afternoon, but the state of my gums rendered it impossible. I was quite exhausted by the various extraordinary adventures that in so short a time had occurred to me, and I felt inclined to sleep. The afternoon was very warm, so I pulled off my coat and laid myself down in my shirt-sleeves on a soft and excellent sofa.—Sleep soon closed my eyes, but it was neither a pleasant nor refreshing slumber. The incidents of the day were reproduced and exaggerated in my dreams. First came Louisa, and shot my nose completely off, as it had been the break of a popinjay at a shooting-match. Then Emily appeared with a terrible screw, which she insisted on passing through my head. The dream was a succession of ghastly visions, each one more painful and oppressive than its predecessor. I tossed about and groaned, and prospered with terror, but my persecutors would not leave me. After Nimrod had shot a hole right through my body, so that the sun shone through, and the landscape behind me was visible to those in front, Dieffenbach approached me, wearing a string round her neck, on which were strung my thirty-one remaining teeth—So that I was as toothless as an old man of a hundred, and grievously did I bewail myself. Dieffenbach produced a slender sharp-pointed instrument of polished steel, and insisted upon operating upon me for disease of the heart. I naturally protested against this, and made a desperate defence, all was in vain: invisible hands seized me, fettered me, so that I could not stir; my breast was bared, and with a fiendish laugh, my persecutor drove the iron into my heart. Thereupon I screamed out loud and awoke. My dream was not all a dream, although it seemed one to me for some seconds after I opened my eyes. Emily stood beside me, a lancet in her hand; my arm was bandaged, and from the vein a dark red streamlet gushed into the basin, held by a maid servant.

'Merciful heavens!' I exclaimed, already awakened by the loss of blood, 'what is all this?'

'Hush Hush!' said my murderess, for such I now held her to be; 'keep yourself quiet or you'll bring on fever.'

'You want to bring me to my grave.'

'By no means. By this prompt bleeding I have probably saved you from it. Not aware that you were installed in this apartment, I accidentally entered, and found you in a high fever, quite delirious. There was nothing for it but the lancet. See how feverish your blood is.

I saw nothing but I felt weak. I let my head fall back upon the sofa-cushion and closed my eyes. 'Bled to death,' thought I to myself and stirred not, for I was quite resigned to my fate, and convinced that there was no chance of my escaping alive from Wiesenthal. I rather think my senses left me. At least I remember little of what passed, until, an hour and a half later, I found myself walking in the ground, with Frager. I walked but slowly, for the blood-letting had really weakened me.

'I go to fast for you,' said the counsellor, who observed that I had difficulty in keeping up with him; and he slackened his pace.

'My poor friend,' he continued, 'you little thought, when you started on a pleasure trip to Wiesenthal, that you would leave some of your blood behind you. I cannot imagine what evil spirit has taken possession of my daughters. I assure you that they are usually the gentlest kind-hearted creatures in the world.'

I ascribed this astonishing statement to paternal blindness, and, to avoid contradicting my host, I held my tongue.

'You must have been in real danger,' said Frager apologetically. 'Emily has excellent judgment and a quick eye, and certainly would not have bled you had it not been necessary; and to lose a few ounces of blood never does any one harm.'

I began to lose all patience with this absurd old councillor, who took his daughters' mad freaks for so many proofs of skill and wisdom. 'I believe if they had cut my head off he would have maintained them to be perfectly justified by the precarious state of my health. I examined myself to see if there were anything about me that could possibly afford Dieffenbach a pretext for another operation. Commencing with my head, I travelled down to my feet and rejoiced to find that, with the exception of my tortured mouth and punctured arm, everything was in a perfectly natural and healthy state. There was nothing to justify any further practice of surgery upon my unfortunate person. I resolved to be extremely on my guard, and to lock the room door whenever I was alone.

The day was near its close when we returned to the house, where we found the supper-table spread. The young ladies were all absent. Heaven only knows in what direction Nimrod was out shooting, Dieffenbach amputating and Olken collecting spiders. I must confess to a greater wish to see Olken than Minnie, perhaps, altogether would have appreased. At any rate, with her I should not be in bodily danger. She would hardly attempt to impale me on a corking-pin, like a beetle or a butterfly. I was very glad her two sisters did not make their appearance. To me their presence would have embittered the meal. We waited a while, expecting their arrival, and the counsellor, who could not but remark or suppose that the impression made upon me by the occurrences of the morning was not particularly favourable, filled up the interval with praises of his daughters, lauding the excellence of their hearts, and pointing out how much better it was that they should have been suffered to grow up half wild in the country than that they should have been exposed, without the guidance and protection of a mother, to the corrupt atmosphere and dangerous refinements of the town. When upon this theme, Frager was unbearable. I never saw a man so much in love with his own children. At last he declared he would wait no longer for the girls, and we began supper.

We had been at the table about a quarter of an hour, when the door opened, and Olken, long expected, came at last. Very different was the impression she made upon me to that produced by her sisters. She did not run past me, like Nimrod and Dieffenbach, as if I had been a part of the furniture, but bowed her head gracefully and courteously, apologised for her tardy arrival, and added that had she known I was at Wiesenthal, the most interesting researches in natural history should not have withheld her from returning home to welcome me. I was delighted to find her so pleasing a contrast to her sisters, and, but for thoughts of Minnie, I should at once have considered myself vanquished by her charms. She was tastefully dressed—her hair just a little blown about by the evening breeze. In her hand she carried a covered basket, which she placed upon a chair beside her when she sat down. The conversation turned on natural history. Out of complaisance, and to win her own good opinion, I professed a lively interest in the science, about which I had never in the least bothered my head. We were a most harmonious trio. Counsellor Frager was in the seventh heaven. It was clear to the worthy man that Ernestine and I were born for each other. For my part I forgot the disasters of the morning, and basked in the smiles of the lovely naturalist, who by this time was deep in the latest discoveries respecting amphibia. Concerning these I neither knew nor cared anything, but I pretended profound attention, and gazed with delight at the lovely mouth that spoke so learnedly. It was quite a little lecture on reptiles.

NOT TIME ENOUGH.—A correspondent of a Nashville paper tells a story about a person who was going to Chattanooga on the railroad. When the train entered the tunnel and all was total darkness, said person asked a stranger how long it would be going through "two hours." Person thought he would avail himself of the opportunity to don a clean shirt, and about the time he had "shaked himself," the train dashed out into daylight, exposing him to the astonished gaze of some hundred pairs of male and female eyes belonging to passengers. Had on no linen, and about as much other clothes as the Apollo Belvidere—and no chance to run.

CURE FOR A FELON.—As soon as the part begins to swell, get the tincture of lobelia, and wrap the part affected with cloth, saturate it thoroughly with tincture, and the felon is dead. An old physician says he has known this to cure in scores of cases, and it never fails if applied in season.

FINANCES AND SELF-GOVERNMENT.

The great mania of the day is progress. Railways, roads, canals, bridges, and an endless variety of things requisite to be built and arranged to keep pace with the spirit of the age and with the advancement alone has the civilization of the 19th century. So much so that extravagance is visible in every department of life, in corporations, companies, domestic concerns, in every position in every country. That these works are needed no one will attempt to deny; that they are a benefit to the country every one readily admits: but that they may be bought too dearly, we must as freely admit. Prosperity, in many instances, proves a curse: progression, when it proceeds too rapidly, may also become an evil of no trifling magnitude. A constant, steady pace is surer to gain the end of a journey in safety than a hurried, irregular one. The great evil of our municipalities is that they are inclined or compelled to go too fast. Not content with doing a little every year, the municipal bodies undertake too much at once, incur enormous costs, and are forced to borrow to meet their liabilities; and the beginning; being thus made, the end is seldom seen by those who commence the pernicious system. Those too, who commence the extravagance, seldom have the manly boldness to come forward and ask the people to foot the bill. They, instead of at once levying a rate to meet the expenditure, stave off the evil day by leaving an annual deficiency, that increases from year to year, till at last it must be met, and then the remedy is to borrow. Canada has become notorious in this way of late. All the cities, and innumerable towns, have heaped up a debt that their offspring to the third and fourth generation will not see paid off. Cobourg and Port Hope, among the more immediate towns, were not satisfied till they had harbors at immense cost, and railroads at any sacrifice; they now feel the burden and are suffering the consequence of their folly in the shape of crushing taxes. Toronto and Hamilton, among our Upper Canada cities, have not been behind in these matters; but Quebec has out-tripped the whole in reckless extravagance, so that the more considerate are desiring a change in municipal government if by any means a check could be put to the maladministration of the present. The deficiency in the Quebec accounts is said to be $120,000 this year. This, no doubt, is the result of a number of years' mismanagement. But we may fairly put the question to ourselves, how far are we behind in proportion to our population and the number of years since the deficiency commenced? Ours is the work of two years—theirs of many years. But if ours goes on increasing we bid fair to outstrip the others in deficits, although we may be said to be almost without debt, while the places mentioned are burthened with immense debts. While we wonder at the American debt and their lavish expenditure of money, we would do well to come nearer home, and enquire how much short of their debt ours is likely to be when we arrive at the same age and are required to give an account of ourselves. What is the cause of this state of affairs? In what does a remedy for the evil lie?

Does the evil lie in the fact that the people are not qualified to manage their own local matters, and thus ought not to be permitted to undertake the work? Or is it, as hinted by a contemporary, because the matter of local government, and hence of local expenditure, is too much in the hands of persons who have comparatively little real estate? In other words, because the local governments are too much under the influence of the man of small means, and not enough controlled by the rich. Our little experience tells us that the hard working, honest, careful mechanic or laborer who has earned for himself a little home, where he can rest after his toil and weary hours of labor, such a man is among the very last to cast his vote for burdening himself or any one else with an annual burden of heavy taxes. Only when he is deceived by some wily, cunning knave who has some interest in proposing and undertaking costly expenditure; only, we say, when he is deceived by the designing will he be found imposing a tax on himself or on any one else. Not the poor man with small property imposes on us the burdens, but the rich man who has property to sell, or sees how he can add a few thousands more to his already accumulated store; who by his eloquence, influence and threats, induces the poor man to give his vote or influence for increasing taxation. Who made the long speeches for railroads and other expenditures? Those who expected large salaries for their wind and labor, and cared not who would bear the burden if they but got the dimes. Who influenced the Directors, and controlled the expenditure of all our public works in the different localities? those who had land to sell, for which they obtained enormous prices. The man must truly be a hireling writing for the rich man, or otherwise very ignorant of the history of our country, who dares to insinuate that the poor mechanic worth $400 is not as desirous of limiting expenditures and keeping outlays within proper bounds, as the man, his neighbor, who may chance to be worth $1000. Such a scheme sounds like the idea of money makes the man. We can truly feel for such Mammon worshipers. If Nebuchadnezzar had set up his golden image we fear it would have many to fall down and worship it.

Another novel remedy for existing evils is to rob the poor man of his franchise, or nearly so. It is proposed to make some minimum standard of property qualification for a vote, and to make a scale of increase, giving to a man of five times as much property five votes, to the man of ten times as much property ten votes; then, necessarily, a rich man might have as many votes as fifty poor neighbors, just as honest, nay, perhaps more so than he. Is it not a pity that we have no Demetrius to make us silver shrines that we might worship them here in this Canada of ours, or a golden image—but have no iron or clay about it.

The best remedy is to give every man an equality of rights, with a limited property qualification, and make every year bear its own burden, and it will be found that the man of small means will be as chary of advising outlay as the man of wealth: and this will be a better check and guarantee for future prudence than putting the whole into the hands of a few—that the feudal days of a thousand years ago may not be brought about again in this age of progress and light.

CHRISTMAS.

The season of enjoyment is now upon us. The time of merry-making is at hand. Before we address our readers again Christmas day with all its festivities, visiting and hilarity, will be over, and another season of pleasure in prospect. These seasons should remind us of the passing away of all subluniary things; the seasons in their annual round tell sometimes of joy, sometimes of sorrow; sometimes they are gay, sometimes sad. At present, there is every prospect of beautiful sleighing, and many may be enabled to enjoy a pleasant sleigh-ride. The remembrances of the many Christmas days that have been misspent add sorrows to declining years and cause many a sigh, when, if well spent joy and gladness would follow. Let us take warning in time, and abuse not the returning season; yet we may enjoy ourselves without being cast down. Let our pleasures be of an elevating nature, and our sports such as leave no sadness behind—no train of remorse; and while we wish our readers many seasons of pleasure and occasions when joy shall abound, we particularly wish them the possession of that joy that knows no sadness.

As the season is now returned when the friendly visit and joyful welcome shall be heard in almost every hall, we fondly hope these visits will be tokens of real friendship—marks of genuine esteem. Many are the reflections the season brings with it—but, for the present, we must conclude.

We wish our numerous friends and patrons A MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Mr. Perry Elected Mayor for 1865.

At the meeting on Monday there were very few persons present, the people being rather careless about who may occupy the civic chair during the ensuing year.

It was moved by James Stevenson, Esq., and seconded by Mr. John Hewitt, That Charles Perry, Esq., be Mayor of the Town of Peterboro for the ensuing year. No other person being proposed within an hour, the Town Clerk declared Mr. Perry duly elected. There were no speeches, consequently, there is little to report.

The citizens are satisfied with Mr. Perry's conduct as a Mayor, fit may be fairly assumed, and are willing to submit the affairs of the Town into his hands for another term. That he will abuse his powers or misuse them there is not any fear, and we trust that he will be careful to keep the expenditure within the revenue. The folly of annual deficits must be palpable to every one. The beginning has already been made, we understand, and bids fair to go on, perhaps increasing. Timely attention may check the evil in the bud and put a stop to a course which must eventuate ruinously if continued. The old proverb says a "stitch in time saves nine"; before the evil becomes too great it would be wise to prevent its further course. The Mayor has both power and influence in the Council, and by applying himself to this matter he may purchase for himself a name worthy of respect; by allowing it to go on unchecked it will be a source of future trouble to the Town, and a future monument of want of ability to grapple with and settle forever (for if done now it may be fairly assumed it will not come up again) one of the greatest of Municipal abuses. What is ruinous to individuals must also prove ruinous to corporations. Another evil that requires a little attention in every Town and city is the little jobs. These jobs frequently cost more than they ought—but the worst feature of the affair is that they are considered as necessary to the very existence of a body corporate. Friends have to be more or less provided for. I do not wish to insinuate that the council of this Town is in any way remarkable for these things, but a word fitly spoken may prevent the introduction of any such thing. Prevention is better than cure.

THE DUMMER OUTRAGE.

This is one of the most cowardly outrages that have ever been perpetrated in any community. That any man should have his property wantonly destroyed for any cause whatever, much less for endeavouring to keep the peace, and for hindering a breach of law and order, speaks bad for the good township of Dummer. That men could be so fiendish—so beastly as to shave all his horses, cut the tails off his cattle and destroy his property speaks little for our civilization indeed; but we trust there are few such fiends in human shape in any locality. That they were Protestants and Orangemen can any one really believe, and yet it is so asserted. It is, one thing we know that they have wandered from the path of rectitude, do not subject themselves to the teaching of Protestantism or of the Bible which every Orange Lodge possesses, and are strangers to the principles which that book teaches. Let the Orangemen show that they have no sympathy with such deeds of darkness, and use every means to drag to justice and punishment the vile ruffians who have so disgraced their order. By offering a reward and using a little care the perpetrators may be discovered and driven from the abodes of decent men to take up their quarters with those who, like themselves, have violated the laws or injured their fellows. We say, let the Orangemen be the first to come forward and with money and labor aid Mr. Morrison, and show to him and others that they deprecate the deed, and will use their influence to bring to condign punishment the culprits, be they who they may. We trust for the sake of the community of men more or less implicated by the deeds of those few, that it will be found out that they are not orangemen who did it, but whoever may have done it is a blot on the community of no small magnitude.

We are requested to announce that the distribution of prizes in the Peterborough Union Grammar and Common School will take place to-day at half-past one o'clock, in the school-rooms. All interested in the progress of the school and the welfare of the pupils are respectfully requested to be present.

TEMPERANCE ACT.

In another column will be found an extract from an admirable address delivered by Judge Hagarty to the Grand Jury at London. It will amply repay perusal. It, in a marked degree, elucidates and illustrates the different principles and features of the new law. It shows that the loopholes which existed under former laws have been carefully guarded against. Dealers no longer can sell a cracker for three cents and give a glass of whisky along with it. They are not allowed even to give it away. The giving of liquor away under such circumstances is absolutely illegal, and subjects the guilty parties to all the pains and penalties by which the observance of the law is hedged around. To use a vulgarism, it is "down" on liquor dealers, and makes them personally responsible for their acts and evil doings. As the learned Judge says, they are "as a Railway Company would be if a person were killed on the road." This is right. It is just as it ought to be. We hope the day is past in which the families of the unfortunate drunkard have no remedy against those who have been the means of reducing them to beggary and robbing them not only of happiness but all prospects of it. And the day is past if the people will only take hold and enforce the present law—as all good and law-loving and law-abiding citizens are morally obligated to do. This is the trouble. Will the present law—pregnant as it is with so much hope and happiness in the future, if only carried out—be enforced, or will it remain a dead letter on the Statute Book? This is an important enquiry. We ask the people of Peterborough County to ponder it well and prayerfully, and then act in the matter as their consciences, enlightened by the Spirit of the Most High, dictates to them. In a very short time most of the Electors in our Townships will be called upon to vote "yea" or "nay." Let no true friend of humanity stay at home on the voting day. Let him be at the poll and manfully cast his vote on the side of God and Right. We fear more from the supineness and indifference of professing Temperance men and Christians than from the number or influence of the opponents of the law. This is no idle fear. It has been realised in other sections—where the "nay" has triumphed—just because of the reasons stated. We appeal, then, to all—young and old, rich and poor, men and women—to be up and doing, so that when the final contest comes "yea" may have handsome majorities in many Townships in our growing County. Teetotalers are not the only interested ones; all who wish to see intemperance put down, taxes lowered, progress and peace flourish, are interested—whether they are abstainers or not. All good and patriotic citizens are interested. Reader, are you a good and patriotic citizen? If so, do your duty.

FENIAN EXCITEMENT.

News reaches us from all quarters, especially from the West, of the fears caused by the reports that the Fenians are about to rise and murder and destroy all before them, ere we are aware. We are inclined to think that the people may rest quietly for some time. The Fenians have a very bad cause, which ever operates very perniciously on the minds of those who are in such a position. That they are inclined to do evil if they could but predict or imagine exemption from retaliation, is very certain; but we do not think they will undertake anything so hazardous as the invasion of Canada, or even the molestation of any number of Protestants, much less of Protestant communities.

The poor Irishman is the dupe both of his own countrymen and, also, of others. The Yankees want soldiers; these they cannot get unless by stratagem; this they resort to, and try to arouse the antipathies of the Fenians against Britain; by doing so they obtain a number into their ranks. These vainly imagine their training, etc., will fit them for revenging all their imaginary grievances. The Americans know how easily these Irish simpletons are deceived, and they keep up the howl against Britain in order to induce the poor dolts to join their ranks for the present, and when the present cursed rebellion is over, then—yes, then—then yankees will leave them to themselves to redress their grievances.

We believe the spirit of Fenianism is bad enough, but it is not bold enough. Our cause is the right one, and hence we need fear no evil. It is foolishly rumored that pikes are being brought or have been brought to this locality. We hardly believe it. The Fenians of this County know well that their wisdom is peace—for evil abides them the day they take up arms to annoy or destroy in this place. We do not say so in any insulting tone, nor with any threat—but, knowing their weakness, we advise them to cultivate kindness, for it is better than hatred. That they will be annoyed by any one we do not even imagine, but that they will be allowed to annoy their neighbours with impunity is not likely. We can say, however, that there are no signs of disturbance in our vicinity—all is peace and quietness. Our wish is that it may long continue so. We think the press is much to blame for allowing unfounded rumours to get into print. They only annoy the uninformed, without benefiting any one. Trouble is soon enough when it is real. Reports should not be given when they are likely only to disturb the public mind.

THE FAIR.

There were a great many people at the Fair, but very little business done. We heard several merchants say that they never did so little business, in proportion to the number of persons in Town. There were few cases of drunkenness—the people, therefore, are, so far, preparing themselves for the prohibition movement, by commencing beforehand to abstain. Too often we have the usual accompaniment of a Fair, a Row. There was none of this of which we have heard, on Tuesday. This speaks well for us, and leads us to expect peace and quietness in future. May our expectations be realized.

FIRE.—The shop in Keene occupied by Mr. Thos. Buchanan, tinsmith, was burned to the ground on Tuesday last. The fire is supposed to have caught from the stove and had made such progress before it was discovered that nothing could be done to save the building and its contents. It was with considerable difficulty that the adjoining buildings were saved. We understand there was no insurance.

PARLIAMENT meets on the 19th January for dispatch of business.

CONCERT.—Mr. Brown's concert was postponed, but remember it will be to-night.

THE AMERICAN WAR.

Sherman is said to have reached the outskirts of Savannah, and one report says he has captured that city. Another report says there is no positive news of the fall of Savannah, it is merely probable. Admiral Dahlgren announces that he is in communication with Sherman, and that he is within a few miles of the city. It is reported that before the messenger had more than left, the news had been received that the city was taken. Southern papers of the 14th say Beauregard is in the city, and not likely to give it up so easily. A Federal raiding party have been routed, and thirty of them captured.

In an attempt to cut the Charleston and Savannah railroad the Federals were repulsed.

TENNESSEE.

Hood has been attacked and forced to retire: the rebels lost 1,000 men and seven guns. That Hood has suffered very severely we cannot absolutely say; it is evident he has been worsted. In Nashville the business is not much interrupted. Every available man is ordered to the front, and another draft of 300,000 men demanded immediately. Now is about to take place the great struggle for supremacy. The North will put forth men and money at will—the South will do all it can to oppose them. The result will soon be known. To predict the consequences no one can. We must wait the end of the matter. The struggle has already lasted many years longer than anticipated, how much longer it may last no one knows. It will last till the cup of Divine vengeance is poured out, and the Ruler of events satisfied.

The pass system is again revived. There is no admittance into the United States unless they have a pass. This will restrict trade but not raids. The Government of the United States must see that such a frontier as is between Canada and themselves cannot be protected by a pass system. Thirty companies of volunteers have been called out to protect the frontier; this will do much to put a stop to raiders, and is a step in the right direction. The voice of the country is against these outrages being perpetrated from Canada, and the Government is acting out the popular will in this matter.

THE RAIDERS.

The decision of Judge Cursol in the affair of the St. Albans raiders gives general dissatisfaction, and ought to be condemned by all right thinking men. Whatever the law is on the matter, the decision was very hasty. Such a man is unfit for the position he occupies, and this act will do much to remove him from a post he has so disgracefully filled. The sooner the courts are cleared of such ninnies the better. They disgrace the bar, the country, and the government.

THE LADY'S FRIEND.

The January number of the Lady's Friend is already on our table, and fully bears out the high reputation of this new monthly, which is now entering upon the second year of its existence. The leading steel engraving, "Hush! it is Asleep," is a beautiful picture, and will doubtless go right to the hearts of the ladies. The Fashion Plate—a double one, as usual—is very handsome indeed, admirably engraved on steel, and richly colored. Then there is a colored design of a Work Table Companion, a very useful lady, as she seems, in red and yellow and blue; and numerous other engravings of the Fashions, Work Table Department, &c. The Music of this number is a piece entitled "I Stood Within our Cottage Hall. Among the literary contents, which are even usually excellent, we may specify "A Great Match," by Emma B. Ripley; "Little Mat;" "A Story of a Household," by Mrs. Hosmer; "False," by P. H. Case; "Cupid at the Cape," by Miss Donnelly; "Through the Paper Mill," by Virginia F. Townsend; "James Smith's Story," by Julia Gill; "Castle Linnloch," by Aunt Alice; "Mrs. Gordon's Prescription," by C. M. Trowbridge; "Sister Lil," by Mrs. Tucker; "Loved and hated," by Ida Mason; Editorials, &c. &c.

Price $2.50: 2 copies $4.00; 9 copies $16.00; 21 copies $35.00. Specimen numbers will be sent to those desirous of making up clubs for 25 cts. Wheeler & Wilson's celebrated Sewing Machines are furnished as Premiums. Address Deacon & Peterson, 319 Walnut street, Philadelphia.

Now is the time to send on subscriptions for 1865.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Monday, Dec. 19th, 1864.

Present: His Worship the Mayor and Messrs. Toole, Lawson, Whyte, Hamilton, Moffat, McNaughton, Lundy, Parnell, Chambers, Leonard and Burnham.

The minutes of the former meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication from Robert Dennistoun, Esq., to the Mayor, informing him that he had received a letter from the Plaintiff's Attorney, in the case of Woodruff vs the Corporation of Peterborough, intimating that they have abandoned the appeal.

A communication from Capt. Kennedy, soliciting assistance from the Council, to assist in liquidating liabilities incurred by said Company, was read.

A communication was read from C. A. Weller, Esq., giving his opinion on the merits of Mr. Henthorn's complaint about an assessment of some of his property to John Gollaher.

Communications were received recommending a Frenchman and Seneth Pearce as fit to receive charity.

Petitions from Bessie Howe and Mary Lowry, asking assistance; and from John Drake, Mrs. Jenkins, John Wilson and Robert Bain, asking the Council to remit their taxes, were referred to the finance committee.

A petition from John Leake and William Armstrong, complaining of unfair assessment: the matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

James Nevin complained to the Council of being assessed for a dog, he not having one: the Treasurer was ordered to refund the amount.

The Treasurer was ordered to hand over to James Nevin, $4, to be appropriated for the benefit of Mrs. Menice at the rate of $1 per week, and a similar sum to Mr. Derry and Miss Pearce, to be handed to the Ladies' Aid Society.

The Finance committee recommended the payment of sundry accounts, and recommended the prayers of E. Pearce and James O'Brien, but could not recommend the prayer of the petitions of Timothy Cooney, T. & H. McAuliff and Patrick Glinn: the petition of James McWilliams was reserved for further information.

A report from the Special Committee appointed at the last meeting of the Council was read and submitted, and after some discussion the Report was received.

On motion of Mr. Toole, a by-law for appointing Returning officers, and the places for holding the approaching elections, was passed.

On motion of Mr. Burnham, the sum of fifty dollars was ordered to be paid to Capt. Kennedy's Company.

On motion of Mr. McNaughton, the sum of one dollar be given to Mrs. Ormond for the benefit of Mrs. Jenkinson.

Mr. Burnham moved that the assessment on Mr. Henthorn's store, which is assessed to John Gollaher, be assessed at the actual value instead of the rental; the motion was lost.

On motion of Mr. Lawson, the Treasurer was instructed to pay to Joseph Gibbon, the sum of two dollars.

On motion of Mr. Lawson, the Council adjourned until Wednesday, the 4th day of January next, at 7 o'clock p.m.

ORANGE INTELLIGENCE.

BOYNE BRIDGE CHAPEL, Loyal Orange Lodge, No. 1163, met at the Orange Hall in the Township of Minden, on Tuesday the 13th inst., when the following officers were elected:—

PRINCE OF WALES, LOYAL ORANGE LODGE, No. 484, met at the Orange Hall, in Peterborough, on Wednesday the 14th inst., when the following officers were elected:—

Brother Robert Weir, W. M.; Brother Richard Kingdon, D. M.; Brother Wm. Brownscombe, Treas.; Brother John Smith, Sec.; Bro's James Elgar, John Watterson, John Leak, Henry Nen, Charles Nen, Committee.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.—Mr. D. Lemay advertises in to-days issue, an extensive stock of Toys, which would make handsome Christmas and New Years presents, besides a great assortment of confectionery.

We are requested to state that Mr. Menzies has been appointed agent by the Agricultural Society to receive money for the Agricultural papers.

ANNIVERSARY.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Peterborough Wesleyan Sabbath School was held on Monday evening last in the school room. The meeting was a large and successful one, upwards of 330 persons sat down to tea, provided by the ladies of the Church. After tea, Dr. Crowle was called upon to preside. W. J. Mason, the excellent Secretary of the school, presented his annual report, from which we make the following extracts:—

Total number of children in connection with the school, 403; average attendance, 221; official staff of the school, 23 teachers, 2 librarians, secretary and superintendent; No. of volumes in library, 654; Bibles and Testaments, 225.

The Secretary also, on behalf of the school, presented the following Address, accompanied by a beautiful and costly family Bible, to Mr. R. Rutherford, the Superintendent of the school.—

Dear Sir,—Having met this evening to celebrate the anniversary of our Sabbath school, we have thought it a suitable opportunity of conveying to you in this manner, our appreciation of the services you have rendered in the faithful discharge of those duties entailed upon you, as Superintendent of a large and flourishing Sabbath school, during the many years in which you have occupied this responsible position. We disavow all desire to imitate, merely, the custom which now so generally obtains in society, of presenting testimonials, &c., to those for whom a few friends may have a degree of partiality; we deprecate flattery in an address, whether of a public or private character, but more especially ought it to be condemned on an occasion like the present. And yet it may be difficult to those who are not fully aware of the facts, to distinguish between fulsome compliments and a laudable commendation of fidelity, and those qualities which have endeared you to teachers and scholars, and rendered you, for thirteen years so eminently successful a Superintendent of our school.

We take this opportunity, therefore, of expressing to you the deep obligation we are under, as officers and teachers, for the kind and courteous manner in which you have ever treated us while in the mutual discharge of our duties, and as scholars we are especially indebted for the interest you have so constantly manifested in our spiritual welfare: and unitedly we trust that through your labors in the Sabbath-school, many may be brought to the feet of Jesus.

We present for your acceptance, this Family Bible and Commentary, as a token of our esteem and affection, hoping sincerely that your life may long be spared to labor in that field for which God in his providence has qualified you, and that you may continue to see it your privilege, as it is your duty, to work while your day may last, knowing that for the talents committed to your care you shall have to give an account.

On behalf of the Teachers and Scholars,
W. J. MASON,
Secretary.

Mr. Rutherford briefly thanked the teachers and scholars for their kindness, expressing a strong desire that the same harmony that had marked their connection in the past, might ever continue.

The Rev. Mr. Brock and the Rev Mr. Chapple then addressed the meeting. The exercises were rendered unusually interesting by the singing of the children, about sixty of whom had been trained for the occasion, and sung some new and beautiful pieces under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly, who deserve great credit for the complete success of the singing.—Com.

United Canadian Alliance for the total Suppression of the Liquor traffic.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

DEAR SIR,—Will you allow me through the medium of your columns to say to all those who desire to arouse public opinion in their several neighbourhoods in favor of "The Temperance Act of 1864," that the services of our Lecturers may be obtained by making an early application to the Council of the Alliance, stating the District to be visited, and the time the services of the Lecturing Agent would in each case be required.

Yours respectfully,
J. WILLETT,
Secretary.

38 Great St. James St.,
Montreal, Dec. 8th, 1864.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

THE GREAT STRUGGLE!

SIR,—At no time in our Township's previous history were we about to commence a year with higher and nobler views of one great enterprise; with more confidence in its stronghold on the public mind, or with greater assurance of its ultimate success than at present. At the same time we feel deeply pained to think that many of the friends of temperance rest in quiet whilst this struggle for liberty is going on amongst us. If men are organized let them work. If there is no organization let them work. The time is come when apathy, sluggishness and inaction should be cast aside. Too much good has already been accomplished to be abandoned. Our prospects are too flattering to be disregarded and lost. I feel happy to notice that we as a township are not alone in thus strike for freedom, tho' many tell us we are not yet prepared for prohibition. We (they say) moral suasion in your churches, sabbath schools, day schools, temperance meetings, &c. until the minds of the people are prepared for it: then and only then need you hope for success. Is this the rule with the divine government? Does God wait till the people are instructed and prepared for it before he says:—Thou shalt do no murder. We aver that moral suasion is right, and prohibition is right, but that the one is essential to the other. By moral suasion we gain ground. By prohibition we hold it. In civilized and christian Canada the people have been in a course of moral education for many years. They have been and are taught that wickedness and oppression must be outlawed, and when laws are made they must be enforced. If a robber is murdering and taking the money of your son you do not want to educate the people to a law which shall forbid the act, but at once you cry for the people's help to stop him. and you would do so if among the most barbarous people on earth. But if to gratify some venders especially we should drop the whole subject and get the entire Temperance community with all the Ministers and Churches to engage in moral suasion, we (I fear) would find ere long that we were pushing a stone up the hill only to roll back upon ourselves. By moral suasion then, we take the man from the grog-shop, by prohibition—the grog shop from the man.

Other arguments have been urged against us, such as the loss of the revenue arising from the liquor traffic, and also that the temperance movement was tried here before and failed. That a move (but not out of this sort) was tried and failed is undeniable. If memory serves me right, in 54 a weak attempt was made for the lessening of the evils of intemperance in this township, but failed only in consequence of temperance and right minded men not being properly alive to the interests of the cause. I believe the number of votes polled on that occasion (yeas and nays) exceed a majority comparatively speaking of the votes of the township. The Council then passed the Limitation Act restricting the number of license holders to one only; this, however, did not suffice. But the present Temperance Act by which we are governed in this movement meets with the due appreciation of every right-minded man, and I feel assured, will fully suppress and cancel the traffic in that beverage whose cunning adherents have devised means to baffle all former enactments.

The argument adduced against us concerning the revenue is scarcely worth a refutation when we consider that an amount of only $131 annually is raised from the licenses of those dens of infamy. Levying this amount throughout the township, we find it amounting on each ratepayer to the paltry sum of 20 cents. Well might we cry shame in the face of him who, in possession of common sense, would use an argument of such shallowness, which is not worth the consideration of him who has at heart the love and wellbeing of his fellow creature. Where is the man who would not most willingly pay five times, yea ten times, the sum of 20 cents if, by so doing, he could alleviate the spiritless wretchedness of some poor whisky smitten family! Again I would say to those venders and their adherents who complain of coercion, if such exists, it is on the part of those who train up the youth of our land fit subjects for penetentiaries, lunatic asylums, jails and prisons the expense of which the sober minded and industrious man annually is compelled to pay. Where there is law there is conflict; and law is not made for the righteous but for the ungodly and profane.

That all distillers, brewers, and consumers will view prohibition either as expedient or right is a thing need not be expected. To expect universal acquiescence in any law which affects the appetites or poverty of men is idle in the extreme. Indeed I sometimes think that if many of our thoughtless consumers or zealous advocates of strong drink were to investigate and consider well the pitiable circumstances of those who peruse in such habits, they would feel horrified at their own folly and ignorance, and it wise would turn aside at once and forever from that body-blighting, soul-destroying, beggarly element of sin and wretchedness. But whatever man may think, and however they may act, still it is nevertheless true that the use of ardent spirits now so prevalent is one of the greatest evils that ever has befallen the human race, and tho' the removing of it from a township may at first sight appear small, comparatively speaking, with the large extent of our Canadian country: still I hope to see the day that the townships influence in the matter will be felt by the county, the county's by the Province, and that ere long this terrible evil will be trampled in the dust throughout the length and breadth of our fair land. The township, county or province that can keep drunkenness out of its borders, accomplishes for its population one of the greatest possible favours. And when the results of decided and efficient action are are so amazingly beneficial it is past finding out how any people should hesitate in the matter, for no township or county can lay any claim whatever to the virtue of the honour of economy which fails to stop the greatest existing drain upon our prosperity. We, as a township, in this movement, will be watched with eager eyes; and, as the principal one in the county, others will be animated by our energy and success, to toil for extrication; and both their faith and labor will, in a measure, be in proportion to our fidelity and progress. Let us then be convinced that smallness of principle is of vital consequence to the temperance movement and upon the 30th inst. cast away all personal jealousies, go forward determined that shoulder to shoulder, we will carry onward our banner, plant it upon the portal and shout the glorious song of ultimate victory.

R. S. N.

Otonabee, Dec. 21st 1864.

Judge Hagarty on the Temperance Act.

Judge Hagarty in his address to the Grand Jury at the London Assizes, on Monday the 31st ultimo, made the following remarks on the Temperance Act of 1864:—

"He would draw their attention to an alteration which had been made in the law of the land by an act passed last session, commonly called the Temperance Act of 1864. He wished, on all occasions, when he had an opportunity of so doing, to make the people acquainted with the precise state of the law, as regards the sale of intoxicating liquors. The act to which he referred gave the power to every municipality to pass a by-law totally prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors within its bounds. If such by-law is passed in any township, city, or town, forming a municipality, the selling of intoxicating liquors in small quantities is under the terms of the act, totally prohibited, and not only the sale, but the barter of liquor, or the giving of liquor under any other pretence is also illegal. The issuing of licenses can also be abolished under the same act. The by-law can be passed by any municipal council, as he had stated, and would at once become law; but, on the application of thirty ratepayers, the by-law might be submitted to the people for their decision, and a poll demanded as to whether it should take effect or not. If such a by-law was so passed, no intoxicating liquor could be sold within the municipality, except for medical or sacramental purposes. Brewers and distillers were also prohibited from selling less than five gallons at a time—the former might, however, sell bottled ale or porter in quantities of not less than a dozen bottles. Under the act, too, bar tenders are made responsible for the illegal sale of liquors equally with the proprietor of the house. The penalty for selling liquor in violation of the act was not less than $20, nor more than $50.

"The enforcement of the act, of course, depends upon the municipalities, whether they choose to enforce the statute or not. Another very important provision was, that in any place where intoxicating liquor is sold lawfully or not, any person who has been supplied with liquor, and while under the influence of the same, may have committed suicide or perish with cold in consequence, the tavern keeper or his bar keeper, who sold the liquor to such deceased person, might be sued by his widow or legal representative, for not less than $100 or more than $1,000: and if a person, while intoxicated, breaks windows, or commits an assault, the innkeeper who supplied liquor to the delinquent, may in like manner be proceeded against. They were as a railway company would be if a person were killed on their road. There was also a further provision in the case of habitual drunkards, any relative or wife of the person so addicted might give notice in writing to any tavern keeper not to furnish liquor to any such habitual drunkard and may sue the person, so notified, if such notice is not complied with, for a sum not less than $20 or more than $500. A married woman might bring such an action in her own name without the consent of her husband. This new act was a very formidable alteration of the law but it must be left to public opinion for its success or failure. If carried out in good faith, and supported by the force of public opinion, the result would undoubtedly be productive of great good: but if not carried into practice by the force of public opinion, the result would be a good deal of double dealing and rascality throughout the land. The heads of municipalities did not, he regretted to say, do their duty in this respect. In Toronto, where he, (the learned Judge) resided the late act had been set at defiance; such conduct was very disreputable. It was well known to every Judge on the bench, that the great mass of the crime committed in the country was occasioned by tippling in these abominable nests or dens which infested every part of the country. He alluded to the present law as a step in advance; it makes the innkeeper responsible for the conduct of those who use his house. He hoped that there would be a salutary effort to put the law into force, and thus aid in the suppression of intemperance, and he trusted that the Grand Jury would join him in praying that the crime of intemperance might be suppressed."

ONE WORD TO THE MISERABLES.

You that are covered with sores, Ulcers, and skin eruptions, sufferers from Salt Rheum, Ring worms, Pustules, Tetters, Blotches, and other marks of disfigurement that are repulsive to the sight and companionship of society; you that have tried the many mixtures of Sarsaparilla, HADWAY'S CLEANING SYRUP, called Radway's Renovating Resolvent. We guarantee that from one to six bottles will cure you. Dr. Radway's theory is, that if six bottles of any advertised medicine does not furnish to the sick satisfactory evidence of cure, it is worthless.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—Passing through the absorbents into the interior organs, this Ointment acts like a magic balsam on the inflamed and irritated parts, while the Pills by their action on the blood neutralize the elements of disease.

Sold at the manufactories, No. 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and No. 244 Strand, London, and by all druggists. If the reader of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the druggist in his place, let him write to me, 80 Maiden Lane, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit upon other person's make. 25c., 62½c., and $1 per box.

OUR FORTIFICATIONS.—It is now nearly fifty years since our fortifications have been looked after in any way, we think it is now high time, and that it behoves our government to put them in a proper state of defence, and have our Lakes and Rivers well protected, "one ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure; but while we are protecting ourselves against a foreign enemy we should not forget to fortify ourselves against bruises, frost-bites, chilblains, pains in the back and side, cholic, cholera morbus, the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" is the most effectual medicine. Sold by all Dealers in Medicine at 25 cts per bottle.

THE QUEEN'S DIAMONDS.—The Empress of France has diamonds by the peck. Such nonsense as jewelery and fine linen can constitute the bone and marrow of all such aristocracy. But when you are suffering from a cold, cough, sore throat, &c., you will find a real blessing in a box of Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, 25 cents a box; at all Druggists.

Death.

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY.

Testimony from L. A. Lamontayne, of the Journal de Quebec, C. E.

Mr. Seth W. Fowle,

DEAR SIR,—It is now three years since first I procured Wister's Balsam of Wild Cherry for my wife, who was troubled a long time with the Asthma, and a long continued cough, which prevented her from following her usual occupation. After having made use of four bottles she received great benefit from their use.

I am your obedient servant,
L. A. LAMONTAGNE.

Sketches.

A YANKEE BELL RINGER.

A [illegible] looking chap, just from [illegible] of Vermont, came on board one of our splendid North River boats the Albany.

His curiosity was amazingly excited at the [illegible] "pulling" to be made use of, into every nook and corner of the boat. The captain's office, the engine room, the barber's shop, all underwent his inspection, and then he went on deck and stared at the steersmen at the lever wheels, the chimneys, and other fixings, till at last he caught sight of the bell. This was the crowning wonder, and he stood it from every position, walked round it, got on his knees and looked into it, endeavoring—

"Well, really this beats the bell on our meetin' house, a great sight."

By this time the attention of the captain and several passengers were attracted to the genius.

"How much would you ask to let a fellow ring this bell?" cried the greenhorn.

"You may ring it for a dollar," answered the captain.

"Well, it's a bargain, all fair and agreed and no backing out."

"It's a fair bargain, sir," replied the captain.

Our hero went deliberately and brought a seat, and took hold of the bell rope, and having arranged everything to his satisfaction, commenced ringing, very slowly at first, and gradually faster and faster and faster, till everybody thought the boat was on fire, and rushed on deck, screaming with alarm.

There stood the captain, and there stood the Vermonter, ringing away first slow, and then fast—and two or three raps at the time. The passengers began to expostulate: the captain said it was a bargain.

But the passengers became urgent that the clamor should be stopped. All the while there sat our hero and strutted, ringing away more ways than a cockney chime ringer ever dreamt of. At last the captain began to think it time to stop the simpleton, but his answer was—

"A fair bargain, and no backing out,"—and he rang away for dear life.

"Well, what will you take to stop?" asked the captain.

"Well, captain, I guess I shouldn't lose nothin' if I take five dollars, and a free passage to New York, but not a red cent less."

"Well walk down to the office and get your money, and passage ticket," said the captain.

After that we all went to sleep.

AN AMUSING INCIDENT.

While teaching in the backwoods of Canada some three years since, and making my first visit to my "constituents," I came in conversation with an old lady who resulted in a substantial log house. Of course the school and former teachers came in for criticism; and the old lady, in speaking of my predecessor, asked:

"Well, master, what do you think he larnt the children?"

"Couldn't say, ma'am; pray what did he teach?"

"He told them that the earth was round, and went around; and that sort o' thing.

Now, master, what do you think about such stuff. Don't you think he was ignorant?"

Not wishing to come under the category of the ignorant, I cautiously said—

"It did seem strange, but there are many learned men who teach these things."

"If the earth is round, and goes round," she said, "what holds it up?"

"O, those learned men say that it goes around the sun, and that the sun holds it up by virtue of the law of attraction."

The old lady lowered her specs, and, by way of climax responded:

"If these high larnt men sez the sun holds up the airth, I should like to know what holds the airth up when the sun goes down."

A model husband, instead of pulling cracker bonbons with the young ladies at an evening party, filled his pockets with them to take home to his wife.

Never flirt with a young widow who calls you by your Christian name the second time you meet her, unless you have quite made up your mind to the worst.

A man in New Orleans was supposed to have died of disease of the heart, and was about to be embalmed, when he got up and requested to be allowed a hand in the operation. It was of course deferred.

"The wind was getting 'round'" remarked Bi be to his friend Buggins, the other day, when it changed from east to west. "Glad of it," replied Buggins; "it's been sharp' long enough."

When Henry VIII described Lincolnshire as "the most brutal and beastly shire of all my realm," he probably pictured fairly enough for his day, what is now one of the most fertile and prosperous of our English counties.

A little fellow going to church for the first time, where the pews were very high, was asked after he came out what he did in church, when he replied. "I went into a cupboard, and took a seat on a shelf."

"When I first married my wife," said a fond husband, "I loved her so much that I could have eaten her; and now," he added, with a sigh, "I wish to heaven I had."

A man applied to Dr. Jackson the celebrated chemist, with a box of specimens.—"Can you tell me what this is sir?" "Certainly I can, sir; that is iron pyrites."—"What, sir?" said the visitor, in a voice of thunder. "Iron pyrites." "Iron pyrites! And what's that?" "That's what it is," said the chemist, putting a lot on the shovel over the hot coals, where it disappeared; "dross." "And what's iron pyrites worth?" "Nothing." "Nothing! Why, there's a woman in our town who owns a whole hill of that—and I've married her!"

An ignorant fellow who was about to get married, resolved that he would make himself perfect in the responses of the marriage service; but, by mistake, he committed to memory the office of baptism for those of riper years, so when the clergyman asked him in church, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" the bridegroom answered in a very solemn tone, "I renounce them all." The astonished minister said, "I think you are a fool." To which he replied, "All this I steadily believe."

A country girl one morning went to market with a pig; the little one ran it, not content satisfied out a merry jig. A dandy, who was riding by, who wished to pass a joke, "My dear, how comes your child to cry when wrapped up in your cloak?" The country girl quite quick replied, "So had a breakfast had he, that squeal upon he must [illegible] of the land—the 43 regiment.

A HINT
TO THE
WORTHY CITIZENS OF CANADA.
BE WARNED IN TIME.

ALL parties purchasing my Pills and Ointment for their several complaints are respectfully warned against purchasing either Pills or Ointment purporting to be my preparations, that have a United States Stamp round the Box and Pots. There is no Treaty between the people of the States and the Home Government, therefore an United States Stamp does not protect my preparations. These are no stamps upon my Canadian style of Pills or Ointment, coming from the United States. I use only the protection on the water mark in book of directions around each Box or Pot. Before you purchase them, see that there stands U.S. Stamps upon the Box of Pills or Ointment. Purchase none that have United States stamps on.

L. LYONS' PURE OHIO
CATAWBA BRANDY,
AND
SPARKLING CATAWBA WINES.
Equal in Quality and Cheaper in Price than the Brandies and Wines of the Old World.

FOR SUMMER COMPLAINT, CHOLERA INFANTUM, BOWEL COMPLAINT, CRAMP, COLIC, AND DIARRHŒA.

A Cure is guaranteed or the money will be refunded.

Analysis of the Massachusetts State Assayer, Jan. 25, 1858.

When evaporated through clean linen it left no oil or offensive matter. In every respect it is a pure spiritous liquor. The oil which gives to this Brandy its flavour and aroma, is fusil, or grain oil. Its order partakes of both the fruit and oil of grapes. With acids, it produces ethers of a high fragrance. The substitution of this Brandy for Cognac Brandy will do away with the manufacture of fictitious spirits, sold under this name both at home and abroad. Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M.D., Assayer to State Mass.,
16 Boylston St.

By the same, in 1864.

I have analyzed "L. LYONS' PURE CATAWBA BRANDY," with reference to its composition and character, being the same as that produced in past years. A sample taken from ten casks afforded the same result with regard to purity; a slightly increased amount of the principle on which its flavor depends was determined by comparison with former samples.

The indication of analysis show that this Brandy is produced by the same process as most of the imported Brandy. Respectfully,

A. A. HAGES, M. D., State Assayer,
Boston July 20, 1864. 16 Boylston St

BLETCHER'S
CANADIAN
CLOTHES WRINGER

COMBINES more Strength of Frame, Capacity for Pressure, and Power of Action, than any other in the market. We manufacture five sizes intended for and adapted to Families, Hotels, Laundries, &c

Bletcher's Canadian Clothes Wringer
Saves Time, Labor, Clothes and Money.
It will wear for years without repair!
No Servant can break it!
A Child ten years old can operate it!
No caution or skill required in its use!
It will wring anything from a Thread to the Heaviest Quilt.

It saves its Cost in Clothing
Every six or nine Months.

The water can be pressed from large and small articles more quickly and more thoroughly than by the ordinary old fashioned back-breaking, arm-straining and clothes-tearing process.

It is easily and firmly secured to the Tub or Washing Machine and will fit Tubs of any shape or size. Every Wringer is Warranted in every particular, either with or without star gearing; and in the event of any part becoming broken or mislaid, we can replace it at once. We sell them at prices that defy competition, as the following will testify:

No. 1, nine inch roll,	$4 50
2, nine and a half inch roll,	4 75
3, ten inch roll,	5 00
4, twelve inch roll,	5 75
5, fourteen inch roll,	6 50

We keep all the sizes above on hand at all times at our Sewing Machine Office, over Mr. S. White's shoe store,

George Street, Peterborough.

Entrance by the Hall Door between Mr Samuel White's and I. Robinson & Co's.

In consequence of the great stagnation of trade in the manufacturing districts of England through the war having cut off the supply of cotton, a large quantity of Valuable Jewelry, originally intended for the English market, has been sent off for sale in this country, and must be sold at any sacrifice!

Under these circumstance, Arrandale & Co., acting as Agents for the principle European Manufacturers, have resolved upon a great gift distribution, subject to the following regulations:—

☞ Certificates, naming each article and its value, are placed in sealed envelopes, and well mixed. One of these envelopes will be sent by mail to any address, on receipt of 25 cents.

All articles sold at One Dollar each, without regard to value!

On receipt of the Certificate, you will see what you are going to have, and then it is at your option to send the Dollar and take the article or not. Purchasers may thus obtain a Gold Watch, Diamond Ring, or any set of Jewelry in our list, for One Dollar, and in no case can they get less than One Dollars worth, as there are no blanks. The price of Certificates are as follows:—

One for	25 cents.
Five for	$1
Eleven for	2
Thirty for	5
Sixty-five for	10
One hundred for	15

Agents will be allowed ten cents on every Certificate ordered by them, provided their remittance amounts to One Dollar. Agents will collect 25 cents for every Certificate, and remit 15 cents to us, either in cash or postage stamps.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?
A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!
CAN BE FOUND IN
Holloway's Pills.
Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!
BY THE USE OF
Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER shape internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was poured into the world. HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the universal remedy of all maladies. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the EVIL OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in the task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY RESTORATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritable stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs upon the blood, entirely change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless yet effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is pelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistible curative. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the white of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, flatulency, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dysentery, and the diseases connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Contireness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venral Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this Notice cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

*Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 38 cents, and $1 40 each.

COURTSHIP under DIFFICULTIES.

A HUMOROUS HISTORY.

FROM THE GERMAN OF FERDINAND STOLLE.

[Concluded.]

Presently Ernestine opened the basket beside her, and the next moment an extraordinary object writhed and danced within a few inches of my face. Its appearance was so sudden that I did not at the instant recognise its nature, but when I did, I thought I should have fallen from my chair with terror. A living and very lively snake stretched out towards me its horrible head and forked tongue.

'Here you have a most beautiful specimen of the ——' She wound up the sentence with some Latin name of a snake. I was almost beside myself. From my infancy upwards I had held serpents of every kind in extraordinary respect. Oken detected my discomposure. 'What,' she exclaimed, laughing scornfully, 'you would pass for a naturalist, and are afraid for a snake? Impossible!'

And the accursed head, with its quivering tongue and bright bead-like eyes, drew nearer and nearer, Oken seeming to enjoy my manifest uneasiness.

'For Heaven's sake,' I cried, 'take away that horrible creature.'

'I see nothing horrible in it,' quietly said Ernestine. 'Observe how gracefully its body undulates.' And again the reptile writhed itself just before my nose. I jumped up and retreated. Ernestine followed me, snake in hand.

'I have never been able to understand,' began the idiotic Counsellor, in a dictatorial tone, 'whence arose the peculiar aversion with which men regard all kinds of reptiles.'

'The deuce you have not,' cried I, still retreating from Oken and her opious pet 'The aversion is not very difficult to account for. For my part, I abhor the creatures.'

'Pshaw!' said Ernestine, angrily; 'you are but a counterfeit naturalist.' And thereupon she slapped me across the face with the snake. I could not restrain a cry of horror and disgust. Then she returned to her seat, and put the vermin into its basket.

In my estimation the counsellor's third daughter had now fallen into the same category with her sisters. Frager, who saw that I was unable to conquer my innate horror of snakes, ordered his daughter to discipline her unmanly pet. Ernestine, who evidently had old gentleman's authority in contempt, made a discount that day, and Oken with diabolical malignity, had continued to torture me until the perspiration rolled off my forehead.

Now may old Nick fly away with all three of you, said I to myself, as I passed my handkerchief across my dark brow. 'You have seen the last of me at Wiesenthal. At daybreak I pack up my traps and leave this place of torment, worse than a cell of the Inquisition, or a dungeon in Front de Bœuf's castle. A nice place to come a-wooing!—snakes, bullets, and tooth drawing!—pleasant welcome for a suitor!'

The evening wore wearily away. Miss Oken having ascertained that I was no naturalist, adopted her sister's system, and treated me with profound contempt; in fact she hardly seemed aware of my presence. For my part the sympathy with which she had at first inspired me had completely vanished. Frager was quite put out by the change in his daughter's demeanor, and of course cast the blame of it on me. 'I should never have thought,' he said, 'that you would be so alarmed by a little harmless snake.'

'Who could have supposed it!' cried Ernestine, applauding her father's words. 'We are different sort of people here.'

'It is impossible to change one's nature,' I replied.

'Nature!' repeated Ernestine; 'what do you know about nature? For Heaven's sake hold your tongue.'

This was really too rude. I was on the point of making a sharp reply, when I saw Oken extend her hand towards the reptile's cage. I kept silence and prepared for flight.

Never have I passed two more irksome hours than those that elapsed before bedtime came. The Counsellor proposed a cigar. I caught at the idea. With a glowing Havana in my mouth. I felt as if I should be safer from the assaults of that cobra de capello, or whatever else it was, that Oken kept beside her, like a grey hound in leash, ready to let slip upon her game. I vowed to myself to smoke the beast to death if possible. Again I was to be baulked.

'Bless me, papa,' cried the naturalist, 'you forget that my pet cannot bear smoke. Can you?' she said, raising, to my infinite alarm, the lid of the snake inhabited hamper.

'True, my dear,' placidly replied her father, 'I did not think of it;' and turning to me, 'excuse me, my dear friend,' he added, 'but the little animal really cannot endure tobacco.'

It is bad enough to be henpecked, but to be cluckenpecked, to be the slave of three daughters, and they possessed of the devil, appeared to me the lowest depth of human degradation. So, because a wretched viper objected to the fragrant vapor of a cigar, I was to be deprived of my after-dinner smoke. For a moment my impulse was to kick the Counsellor, jump upon the basket, and bolt from the house; but calmer thoughts succeeded, and I sat resigned, merely secretly wishing that Oken and the snake were sitting tete-a-tete in a Lybian desert or a Louisana swamp, and that I was a hundred leagues from Wiesenthal. I had suffered so much all day that my moral energy was completely gone. I was overwhelmed by the rapid succession of unpleasant events. I started at every noise, expecting to see Nimrod or Dieffenbach, or both of them, enter the room and perpetrate some fresh assault upon me. Nimrod would of course begin smelling the candles with pistol balls; and Dieffenbach, as soon as he observed my state of nervous excitement, would insist upon blisters and mustard-plasters, and perhaps open a little more phlebottomy. Hitherto I had had but one sister at a time to deal with. But if they formed a triple alliance and set upon me in concert, I was lost without a hope of rescue. Fortunately neither of the elder sisters made their appearance, and at last the youngest, to my great relief took up her basket and departed. No sooner was she gone than Frager, according to his custom, tried to remove the disagreeable impression she had made upon me. One got accustomed in time, he said, to her strange tastes and stranger pets, and when once she was married she would give up her researches in natural history, and settle down into an excellent wife. I was quite sick of the simple old creature's infatuation and apologies, and begged to be allowed to go to bed.

'At last,' said I to myself, on finding myself alone in my room, 'I shall have a little repose after the heat and burthen of the day, after all my dangers and adventures.' So tired was I that I immediately undressed, blew out the lights, and sought my bed. Pulling back the clothes, I stepped in, and much more hastily jumped out again. I had come upon some hard substance which moved between the sheets. If I was not greatly mistaken it was a live tortoise. Whilst I deliberated whether I should cry murder, sleep on the sofa, or dress and leave the house, something bit my great toe with such violence that I actually yelled with agony. A gigantic crawfish clung to my foot. I kicked about in so desperate a manner that I at last shook the creature off, and I heard it go with a crack against the wall. I fled to the sofa. A horrible thought assailed me. What if Frager, through absence of mind had pushed me into Oken's museum and menagerie. This appeared to me the more probable that on all sides I heard strange sounds, as if numerous creatures were crawling, trotting, singing and humming around me. Something flew up to me with a buzz and a bounce, and caught in my hair. I clutched at it, and shuddered as I found in my grasp a beetle as big as a sparrow. I dashed it furiously from me, and had the satisfaction of hearing it smash against some hard substance. Scarcely was I rid of the beetle when I was bitten sharply in the calf of the leg. I put down my hand, but the creature had done its work and gone, leaving a severe smarting and irritation. I know not whether it was he or one of his friends who the next instant made an onslaught upon my ankle. I began to hunt least she thy enemies.' I sought in vain, and was quite unable to conjecture the nature of the monsters that during my search pinched, bit, and stung, and assailed me in every conceivable manner. Once or twice I trod with my bare foot on hideous reptiles, whose cold, slimy touch made me leap into the air. My capers would doubtless have diverted any who saw them, but to me it was no laughing matter. No martyr of ancient times or victim of the vehmgericht ever suffered more than I did in that chamber of horrors. The monsters that congregate on the bottom of the sea can hardly surpass in variety the inmates of that room. The darkness and my excited imagination further embellished them. Presently I heard a hiss. 'A snake, by all that's horrible!' said I to myself, 'about to coil round and devour me.' And I set up such an infernal clamour, shouting and cursing, like Ajax when wounded, that I must have been audible half a mile round the house. To add to the turmoil, in my eagerness to escape from something which I heard coming after me with a sort of clappering noise, I upset the table. Several large boxes which stood upon it were opened by the fall, and I immediately perceived a great increase of animation around me. I continued to storm like a lunatic. It was all one to me whether any one in the house slept or not. The awful row I kept up at last roused the counsellor, who made his appearance in his dressing gown, candle in hand. He at once saw the cause of the disturbance.

'Hang the girl!' he cried, 'she will soon fill the whole house with her zoological collections.'

I put myself in mind of pictures I had seen of Adam on the sixth day of the creation, surrounded by all manner of beasts and creeping things. Frager led the way to another room, which as yet was not invaded by Oken's vermin.

'You have nothing to fear here,' said my host, and added, true to his system of making the best of everything, 'you will sleep all the better for your little misfortunes.'

'Heaven grant it!' sighed I, and thought that I should have slept quite well enough without them. After searching the whole room, under the bed, in the drawers and closets, and satisfying myself that no specimens of natural history either alive or dead, were there, I again got between the sheets—this time without encountering a tortoise, but not the less determined to fly Wiesenthal at cockcrow. With this wholesome resolve I stretched myself out and went to sleep, as I presume the tortoise did in the bed originally destined for me.

Scarce had Aurora, with her rosy fingers
Tinged the hill-tops and bathed the plains in dew,

when I was afoot and packing. Whilst thus occupied, I reflected that, under all the circumstances, French leave was decidedly the best leave for me to take, otherwise I should have a regular fight with Frager, who would never let me depart. When I halted for the night I would write him a letter, telling him that with the best will in the world, I had been unable longer to endure the eccentricities of his charming daughters. I would put it to him as gently as possible, so as not to hurt his feelings; and I felt sure when he reflected on all I had gone through under his roof, he would not feel surprised at my abrupt departure. Nor could my uncle blame me, when I told him of my tribulations and related the conduct of the three mad women.

Whilst pondering all these things, I completed my packing. I made sure that nobody would be stirring in the house at that early hour, and at any rate that the ladies would be deep in their feather-beds. I was deliberating whether I should bravely shoulder my portmanteau or leave it to be sent to me, and to my immense consternation, in strode Nimrod, a brace of duelling pistols in her hand.

'Merciful heavens!' said I to myself, 'torture begins again. It must be owned that these amiable females go to work early.'

Without salutation or ceremony Nimrod strode up to me,

'Your conduct last night,' she said, 'your ill-treatment of my sisters property, and barbarity to several of her pets, are an insult to the family and demand atonement. I have taken the business into my hands. We will exchange shots.'

'Are you out of your mind?' cried I impatiently.

'You will soon see that,' replied Louisa, coldly and decidedly. 'Answer me. Is it you who broke the claw of that rare specimen of the lobster tribe? Is it you who threw the horned beetle with such violence against the wall that the poor creature is still unable to walk or fly? And are you the delinquent who upset the case in which colonies of spiders, earwings, and centipedes had long led a tranquil and happy life? Do you confess all these offences?'

My politeness was clean gone. I had come to consider Nimrod as a man, and should as soon have thought of putting on white kid gloves to saddle a horse as of using towards her that subdued tone and those guarded expressions one unusually adopts with the gentler sex.

'May the devil fly away with the whole brood!' cried I, perfectly exasperated at being called to account for my defence against the menagerie.

'Follow me, sir,' said Louisa; 'such expressions as these can be washed out only with blood. Come, sir!'

'Nonsense!' I replied; 'I do not fight duels with young ladies.'

'Ha!' cried Nimrod, stepping up close to me, with raised pistol and an unwholesome sparkle in the eye; 'None-nse, did you say? Afraid, I suppose. But it won't do. Follow me, sir.'

'I tell you again that I will not.—How can I answer to God and my conscience for having levelled a pistol at you?'

'Need not level it without you choose. Fire it in the air. I am the aggrieved party and will fire at you.'

'A thousand thanks.'

'For the last time I ask if you will follow me? If not, I declare you the greatest coward that ever trod the earth and called

'Yes, but that is not all. You shall carry away a mark that will remind you, your life long, of your conduct this day.

'A mark,' said I to myself; what does the woman mean? She is capable of any crime.' And I confess I felt uneasy. Louisa came nearer and nearer, her pistol raised, her countenance threatening. In her eye there was something deadly and alarming. I began to retreat. As I drew back, she advanced, taking step for step with me, her pistol aimed at my head, her finger, as it seemed to me, actually pressing the trigger. I could bear it no longer.

'Friend!' I exclaimed, for Heaven's sake leave me in peace. I am about to quit this inhospitable house.'

'You are going away?' cried Louisa, in a highly joyful tone, and sinking the muzzle of the pistol.

'I heartily wish I had never come,' was my answer; nor would I but for my uncle's desire.'

'Speak the truth!' said Louisa, resuming her threatening tone. 'It was not your uncle's desire alone, but views of your own, that brought you to Wiesenthal. You wished to Marry me or one of my sisters.'

'Good heavens!' I exclaimed, 'marry you? I should as soon think of marrying a Minie rifle. Never dreamed of such a thing, I assure you. Besides, I am engaged to be married already.'

'What!' cried Louisa, perfectly overjoyed. And she threw the pistol away, and herself almost into my arms. 'What! you are engaged to be married? Why did you not say so before?'

'I was not asked the question,' replied I, quite taken aback by the sudden embrace and change of mood.

'You would have saved yourself a deal of unpleasantness, poor fellow!' continued Louisa. 'I would not have shot at you, nor would Ernestine have tormented you with her snake, nor Emily have let your blood nor drawn your tooth.'

'I should have been well pleased to have been spared the last operation,' said I.

'You would have found us all very amiable, good-tempered girls.'

'I have no doubt of it since you say so; but I really do not understand—'

'I will explain,' said the transformed Nimrod, who each moment became gentler and more charming. 'It is a secret; but we, too, are engaged to be married.'

'All three?'

'All three. Notwithstanding our rather masculine tastes, we are women at heart.'

'I am glad to hear it.'

'Are you? And surprised, too, apparently. Well, never mind; you will learn to know us better. But our father, kind and indulgent though he be, is a great deal too practical in love matters.—He thinks too much about what he calls 'good matches,' and unfortunately the men of our choice do not come under that head. One is a lieutenant with nothing but his pay, the other a clergyman without a living, the third an artist whose pictures nobody buys.'

'May I venture to inquire which of the three the beautiful Louisa has honoured with her preference?'

'The clergyman.'

'The clergyman?' I repeated, perfectly astonished.

'You think me rather too wild to be a parson's wife?'

'Well,' I replied, as her sharpshooting exploits occurred to my mind, 'A preacher of peace and a daring sportswoman—'

'Love levels everything,' returned Louisa, with enchanting frankness.—'And do you think I cannot be gentle when I please?'

'I think that to you nothing is impossible.'

'When it is pleasing to him—nothing!' she answered, with a touch of the old Nimrod energy. The next instant the woman resumed the ascendant. She cast down her eyes, and blushed plainly at the confession that had escaped her. 'Thus, recommencing herself; 'Not a word, I entreat, to my father of what I have told you. He would never forgive us. We pray to heaven day and night to improve the circumstances of the men of our choice, for whose sake we have already driven more than one wooer from Wiesenthal. [illegible] a danger of that kind approaches, we form our plans, and if one of us does not succeed repelling it, another surely does. Confess, however, even if you had not already given away your heart, you would have sought one of us as a wife after yesterday's adventures?'

'Not if you had had provence for your dowry,' was my uncivil but honest reply.

'Many thanks,' said Louisa, laughing. 'An excellent proof of the efficacy of our measures.'

I now had to tell my new friend about my love affairs, and how it was that I found myself nearly in the same position as herself, since my uncle had no idea of my attachment to Minnie, the poor widow's daughter. To make a long story short, I was misplaced over again to Dieffenbach, who no longer menaced my moustaches, or flourished a lancet, and, to Oken, now unaccompanied by her viper, and I found the three sisters as amiable as I the day before had thought them detestable. I was obliged to remain a few days longer at Wiesenthal. To confirm our alliance, prove my forgiveness, and heap coals of fire on the heads of my tormentors, I volunteered to undertake the delicate task of interceding with the counsellor, and declared that I would not leave the house until he had given his consent to his daughters' marriage with men they preferred. Upon receiving this promise the sisters were near hilling me with kindness and caresses. It was no small thing I had pledged myself to perform, but thus encouraged, I felt myself equal to any difficulty. We had a council of war and that same day the seige began. I worked hard in the trenches, was repeatedly under fire, and had to repel several smart sorties. On the first day I made little progress, but, encouraged by the heartened words of the female besieging army, I persisted and held my ground. Frager proved an obstinate old fortress. Food though he was of his daughters, and general [illegible] on the second day I had opened a breach, and on the third headed the storming party. Thereupon the enemy hung out the white flag, and asked for a day's truce. This was granted, but a strict blockade was maintained. The truce expired, the storming party again advanced, capitulation again ensued, and general rejoicings celebrated our triumph.

The betrothal of the three sisters was now officially announced, and the customary festival was to take place in a fortnight. I was to be there and bring Minnie with me. For, as a good deed rarely goes unrewarded, Frager, my conquered foe, undertook to intercede with my uncle and obtain his consent. And so, after another happy day at Wiesenthal, I departed, a tooth the poorer than on my arrival, but radiant with victory and rich with hope.

It was long since I had seen my worthy uncle laugh so heartily as at the narration of my adventures with the counsellor's daughters. It put him in such a fine humor that when Frager, true to his promise made her threatening tone. 'It was not your uncle's desire alone, but views of your own, that brought you to Wiesenthal. You wished to Marry me or one of my sisters.'

'Good heavens!' I exclaimed, 'marry you? I should as soon think of marrying a Minie rifle. Never dreamed of such a thing, I assure you. Besides, I am engaged to be married already.'

MUNICIPAL INSTITUTIONS.

The yearly bustle of municipal elections lead many who are of a quiet? disposition to doubt the advantages of our municipal institutions, and to utter the wish that something more congenial to their gentle spirit was instituted instead thereof. Since there is dissatisfaction, and that loudly expressed, we may ask ourselves the question: Is there just reason for such dissatisfaction? Is our present municipal system a benefit to the country or not? We are satisfied that the questions may be answered in the affirmative. Nor does it follow because both are true, that the system ought to be condemned. No man can serve the public without being found fault with. It is the share of man to be looking for the faults of others—often for no other purpose than that to eclipse, if possible, his own. Hence the man who desires the office of councillor, while he may desire a good office,' we may rest assured he desires a very thankless one—one for which there is little return except blame. It is a strong characteristic of noble patriotism that so many are ready to endure the censure of faultfinders for the public weal. Much of the faultfinding arises from our censoriousness; yet much is really deserved. Many who woo and win municipal honors are actuated by anything but patriotism. Selfishness appears as prominent in their actions as any desire to regulate matters for the general good. The people are the parties who are to be blamed in these matters. They do not discriminate in their selection as they ought; instead of bringing out tried men they allow persons to force themselves upon the public, who are utterly incapable to attend to anything that requires either reason or justice, as in many instances we find there are individuals who are devoid of both. Almost everywhere through the Province we hear complaints of the incompetency of those persons selected as municipal councillors. Corruption, bribery, self aggrandisement, are amongst the grievances complained of; and at once the cry is raised against the system, forgetting that it is the managers who are to blame. It is perfectly [illegible] honest and wise men were [illegible] all difficulties could arise from all the liberty given to the people by the Act. If there are evils the remedy is, remove from office all incompetent and unworthy persons; take greater care in the selection of fit and proper persons as municipal officers, and carefully watch over the workings of your local officers, and bring them to a strict account every season. This will keep them awake to the consequences of their actions, and will prove a strong incentive to right conduct on their part. Besides, it will fit the great body of the people for undertaking the management of the public business if the voice of the community should, per chance, call upon any one or several from time to time.. We do not mean to insinuate that there are no well qualified persons in the municipal councils of the country. There are many, we can truly say, in both the Town and County Councils who are an honor to those bodies; but are there not some who are far from qualified for the responsible positions they occupy? They are not qualified for the office they hold. Perhaps it would be impossible to elect a council all the members of which would be competent to discharge their duties with credit to themselves and advantage to the ratepayers. Nevertheless it is a duty the people owe to themselves to aim at this object, and if they aim at it, they will certainly come much nearer its accomplishment than if the attempt be not made. The management of the financial and other business of the town requires men of as much ability, intelligence and integrity as a member of Parliament. Every man that fancies he is quite competent to fill the office of councillor and trustee it is well known is not. Yet the people seem to sanction the fallacy, and act at elections as if they believed it. As long then as the electors allow incompetent persons to creep into office, so long they may expect the public business incompetently performed. The election is at hand. The important and responsible duty of selecting councillors and trustees will soon devolve upon us. If 'unsuitable men are returned and the coming year suffers through their mismanagement, bear in mind the electors are to blame, and if our taxes increase, our burdens become greater, and the business is mismanaged, the fault is our own, for no man can assume these offices unless by permission of the citizens. The kind of men required for councillors is the active, upright business man, or the active, intelligent, industrious mechanic. Not the idle, good-for-nothing creature, who, although he may have the necessary property qualification is fit for nothing more, and justly is unfit for any office or business, but who, because of his jovial good-nature, wins the support of the unthinking. Let there be neither personal nor party feeling in the matter, and choose such men as are likely to have regard for the property of the town.

We are pleased to call attention to the Holiday Concert advertised in this issue: from the programme we infer it will be all one could wish. The old soul-stirring English glees Æolian Lyre, and Here is cool Quiet, when properly performed are worth listening to, and we are fully persuaded from what we hear and know of Mr. Lasher's ability as a teacher, that they will be ably managed. We bespeak a big house, to-night in the Temple Hall.

Peterboro' Grammar and Union School.

The semi-annual distribution of prizes in this school took place on Thursday last. The severity of the weather, doubtless, rendered the attendance less numerous than it would otherwise have been. There were present,—Dr. Burnham, Chairman, Rev. Mr. Douglas, Dr. Harvey, Messrs. Coulter and Walton, Dr. McKeown, and several of the parents of pupils. The prizes were presented by the chairman, who spoke in terms of the highest praise of the successful competitors in the various branches of study. In many instances the competition had been so keen that it was by no means easy to decide upon the respective merits of the candidates.

Ashburnham School Examination.

The examination of Ashburnham school, prior to the Christmas Holidays, took place on Friday in presence of the Local Superintendent, the Trustees, and a number of the parents, and manifested that all the classes were well instructed in all the branches—grammar, geography and arithmetic. The scholars showed themselves quite at home in all their lessons,—reading easily, spelling correctly, and answering readily, and standing and moving quietly and easily. The whole exercises were well gone through, and wanted only a crowd of spectators, which the people will, we trust, supply next time. All present were highly gratified by the appearance made by the several classes, and after a few words of explanation and encouragement by the teacher and Local Superintendent, the pupils were dismissed, to meet again on the 9th of January, 1865.

After the scholars were dismissed the following address was presented by the Trustees to the Rev. J. S. Douglas, who in consequence of his removal to Toronto was obliged to tender his resignation.

Rev. Jas. Douglas:

Dear Sir,—It is a matter of deep regret to us, that in the order of Providence you are about to remove from amongst us. Your gentlemanly conduct during your residence here, your kind and obliging manner and your eminent abilities as Local Superintendent, together with your untiring zeal in behalf of education, we cannot allow to pass unnoticed.

It is with no mere ordinary expression of sentimentality, therefore, that we tender you our warmest wishes for your future welfare, as well as that of your family.

And we earnestly hope that your lot may be cast in a locality where your abilities will be duly appreciated, and where you will be able to use them for the advancement of sound education and of the rising generation around you.

Receive, therefore, this testimonial of our esteem for you as a citizen; consider it also as a memorial of our appreciation of your labors as our Local Superintendent, and permit us to express our sincere desire for your social and spiritual welfare in your new sphere of action.

We are, Dear Sir,
Yours truly,

Board of School Trustees of the village of Ashburnham.

Ashburnham, October 3rd, 1864.

Mr. Douglas feelingly replied:

I am much gratified, gentlemen, with this expression of your regard for myself personally, and of your approbation of my services as your Local Superintendent. It has ever been with peculiar delight that I have visited the school in Ashburnham, because I have ever been met with kindness and attention by the Trustees and all parties connected with the school, both at the examinations and also at my school lectures; and because I have seen the willingness on all occasions to profit by any hints that were thrown out by me for the improvement of the school, of which the Henderson School Building, both in itself and in its internal working, were sufficient proof.

Though absent from you and the young people, for whose benefit you have provided such educational advantages and taken such unwearied pains, I shall never forget the unwavering kindness with which I have been met, both by yourselves and all connected with the school, and even by the young people themselves; and this address that you have now presented at my departure, I will keep as a memorial of that kindly intercourse which heretofore we held in conference in this school. And for this expression of your regard, I would return you my sincere thanks.

MASONIC.

The festival of St. John the Evangelist falling on Tuesday this year, the Brethern of Peterborough Lodge, No, 155, met in their Lodge room for the Installation of Officers. The following Officers were installed by R. W. Bro. C. D. Macdonald, P. M., G. R. of C.:—

W. Bro. Henry Lawson, W. M.
W. Bro. George Burnham, P. M.
Bro. Peter C. Bleicher, S. W.
Bro. S. Redpath, J. W.
Bro. Geo. A. Cox, Chaplin.
Bro. J. S. Peter, Treasurer.
Bro. J. M. Burns, Secretary.
Bro. Charles Cameron, Sen. Deacon.
Bro. I. J. Davidson, Jr. Deacon.
Bro. Alex. Graham, Director of Cer.
Bro. Allan Huffman, I. Guard.
Bro. John Drake, Tyler.

After the installation, the Brethren repaired to the Huffman House, where they were entertained to a supper by the Worshipful Master, to which ample justice was done; after a few appropriate remarks were made, the brethren sung "Auld Lang Syne," which closed the evenings proceedings, when all separated highly pleased with the manner in which the evening had been spent.

CURLIANA.

According to previous arrangement the Otonabee and Peterboro Curling Clubs met on the "Little Lake," on Monday last, to enjoy a friendly contest at their "ain auld game." The weather was anything but favourable, there being a bright sun over head and a genial warmth in the air, that seemed more like the month of April than that of "cold December." The consequence was that the ice was very unfavourable for the "roaring game" of curling, it being dull and very uneven, owing to its expansion, by heat from the solar rays. However, as it the two competing clubs went determined to see which should be conquerors for the day. After a few "heads" were made, it appeared evident that little of the science of the game was requisite, it being reduced to a matter of mere muscular strength, owing to the extreme dullness of the ice and the inability of most of the players to give impetous to their stones so as to reach the "tee." However, be it either for lack of muscle or science, we have to record that the Peterboro club got,—to use a Yankee phrase, badly "licked," which "licking" we presume they will try to retrieve at an early day. SCHOOL EXAMINATION.

The examination of the pupils attending the Warsaw School, taught by Mr. Edmison, took place on Thursday, 22nd inst. There were a good number of pupils and visitors present considering the severity of the weather. After having been examined in the various classes, which acquitted themselves with great credit, prizes were awarded to the following pupils for having made the most progress in the various classes, namely:—Reading—Fifth class, E. Wason; Fourth class, M. A. Lumsden, and M. J. Espline; Third class, T. Choate; Second class, R. Bullock, and J. W. Bell; First class, C. Espline, and G. Moore. Writing, E. Wason and J. Cope. Spelling, James Gale. English History. F. C. Lumsden. Geography—Senior class, F. C. Lumsden, Junior class, M. A. Lumsden, and Jane Gale. Grammar—Senior class, A. F. Choate, Junior class, H. Payton. Mental Arithmatic, H. Payton. Arithmatic, R. Edwards. Cards were distributed among those who received no prizes.

It was unanimously considered by the visitors that the pupils had made great proficiency since the last vacation. Mr. Edmison has ingratiated himself into the affections of the whole school, and has justly merited the universal esteem of the Section.

A vote of thanks was given him by the visitors, for the zeal and diligence which he constantly manifests in the welfare of his school, and a universal wish expressed that he would be employed for another year.—Com.

The Quebec French papers announce the death, in St. Roche's, on Tuesday, the 20th inst., of Madam Francois Vernette, in the ninety-ninth year of her age, leaving fifteen children, one hundred and thirty-four grand children, and eighty great-grand children.

At a public meeting of the rate-payers, held on Friday night at Brantford, a resolution asking the Town Council to appropriate the sum of six hundred and fifty dollars to Captain Grant's Rifle Company No. 2, ordered on active service, was unanimously adopted.

South Monaghan.—This little township has led the way in the temperance movement in Northumberland. Dunkin's Act for Prohibition is carried, the vote being 91 "yeas," 9 "nays." We never had any doubt of South Monaghan.

Fenelon.—The good people of the township of Fenelon have declared by a majority of 36 votes, that there shall be no whisky sold or bartered among them. Success to Fenelon.

Robert Finnegan, who has been awaiting execution in the jail at Lindsay, has had his sentence commuted to five years' imprisonment in the Provincial Penitentiary.

FENIAN RAID INTO CANADA.

A "mock meeting" of the members of the Fenian Brotherhood and other friends of "the liberty of Ireland" was held in Faneuil Hall, Boston, on Wednesday evening last, and the papers say that, notwithstanding the severe storm, the hall was crowded, a numerous sprinkling of ladies being seen in the galleries. The meeting was presided over by Mr. T. B. Hennessey, "centre" of the order in Boston, who announced that Colonel O. Mahoney, "head centre" of the Brotherhood in the United States, was delayed on his way to Boston by the storm. He also read a letter from the Hon. J. G. Abbott, expressing his regret at being unable to be present. Mr. P. A. Sennott, of Boston, was then introduced and spoke of the principles of the Brotherhood, and that the pledge of the Fenians was that he would use all his endeavors for obtaining the independence of Ireland; that he would obey the orders of his superiors under the constitution, and use all his efforts to promote harmony among all classes of Irishmen, no matter at what altar they kneeled. He then continued:—

"The creed of Fenianism is that Ireland shall be a nationality, and that the Irishman who comes into Boston in 1866 shall have a flag to float over him and a consul to protect him. (Applause.) We are despised because we are not successful, but now you have an opportunity to make yourselves respectable by success. If you mean anything, go and strike at the nearest point—Canada. I don't mean that you shall violate international law, or go to Canada in an organized body, but go as quiet travelers and passengers, and form a Fenian Confederation in that country. If you can't reach the heart of England, at least dismember a portion of her frame. If the volunteers of 1748 and 1848 have passed away, there are those of the same blood still left. He urged the maintenance of a feeling of Irish nationality and a determination that Ireland shall be recognised as a nation, and that her sons may return to her and not feel that she is a pauper."

The next speaker was Captain M. H. McNamara, late of the 9th Massachusetts regiment, who said that there were now nearly half-a-million Fenians—about 175,000 in Ireland, as many in the United States, and the remainder in England, Canada, &c. He also described a visit to one of the Circles in Ireland, and the precautions necessarily adopted to guard them from outside interference. Many of the men in Ireland were armed and others would receive them from their friends in America. He closed by urging Irishmen, and friends of Irish nationality, to unite with the Brotherhood in their great object of freeing Ireland.

One Wm. J. Hynes next addressed the meeting, that in case a contest should speedily arise, England could not raise more than 50,000 men, while in Ireland more than twice that number would enter the field in twenty-four hours. In the British army and navy there were also many Irishmen who could be depended upon for their country, as that England would find that what she relied upon as her strength was really her weakness.

A paper was then circulated to receive names for the rolls of the Brotherhood, and after quite a number of names had been received, the meeting adjourned, amid much enthusiasm.

ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE.

A LONG-LOST HEIRESS DISCOVERED.

The Taunton (Mass.) Republican is responsible for the following story:

"A romance in real life has just came to light, and is at present the chief gossip of this city. The facts, as related by an intimate acquaintance of the fortunate family, are as follows:

"It appears that about twenty-seven years ago, Mr. [illegible] resided in Montpelier, Vermont, [illegible] of the estate of Mr. Henry E. Clifton, a wealthy gentleman of Richmond, Va. From some cause which still remains a secret, a difficulty arose between Captain Brown and Mr. Clifton, wherein the former considered himself the aggrieved party. To revenge himself for the supposed wrong, he stole Mr. Clifton's infant daughter (then but six weeks old) on the day she was christened. The child was brought to Mattapoisett, and secretly adopted by Brown and his wife as their own. She was named Julia and grew to be a woman. When only sixteen years old, she married Mr. Isaac O. Pierce, a printer, who learned his trade in Taunton, living for a while at East Taunton, but more recently at the Green. Two children have been born to them, one of whom is now living.

"During this long period Mrs. Pierce has lived in blissful ignorance of her high parentage, and Mr. Pierce, who took her for better or worse, has never imagined himself the husband of a heiress. He abandoned the printer's trade, shortly after learning it, and for several years has earned his daily bread by the sweat of his brow at Mr. Mason's works in this city. This is their history until within a short time. Now comes the denouement.

"Last summer while Rev. Mr. Talbot, of this city, was at Saratoga, he became acquainted with Mr. Clifton and wife, who, it appears, at the breaking out of the rebellion, converted their Richmond property into cash and moved to Baltimore. In the course of conversation with them Mr. Talbot remarked upon the striking resemblance of Mrs. Clifton to a lady parishioner of his in Taunton. Nothing particular was thought of it at first; but on his repeating the remark, Mrs. Clifton inquired the age of the lady. On being informed that she was about twenty-seven, Mrs. Clifton immediately said to her husband, 'Way, that would be just the age of our daughter that was stolen.'

'The matter then recived their serious attention. Mr. Talbot was taken into their confidence, and inquiry instituted as to the reputed parents of the young lady. He returned to Taunton; had a conversation with Mrs. Pierce in regard to her parentage; informed her of the Saratoga conversation, which led her to ask Mrs. Brown, who, she had never doubted was her own mother, if she really were such, at the same time telling her the reason of her enquiry. Mrs. Brown, who had kept the secret of the child's parentage for twenty-seven years, was so overcome by the question and the developement of facts, that she immediately became ill and died of the heart disease. Before her death, however, she acknowledged that Mrs. Pierce was not her own daughter. Captain Brown died a number of years ago. Within a few weeks the affair has developed itself rapidly. Mr. and Mrs. Clifton and Mrs. Pearce have met each other; and the old colored woman, who nursed the abducted infant, has recognized Mrs. Pierce as their real child by a mole on her shoulder! The identity of their long-lost daughter having been fully established, Mrs. Pierce and her husband have been invited to live with the Cliftons and share in their wealth; and this they are preparing to do, having broken up housekeeping and disposed of their furniture.

"The cream of the affair is that Mrs Pierce is an only child, and therefore sole heiress to an estate said to be worth hundreds of thousands if not millions of dollars, or as an old lady friend of Mrs. Pierce expresses it, 'a trifle less than two millions.' It having been rumored that Mrs. Pierce had applied for a divorce from her husband, she has published a card indignantly denying the slander."

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 29, 1864.

MUNICIPAL INSTITUTIONS.

The yearly bustle of municipal elections lead many who are of a quiet? disposition to doubt the advantages of our municipal institutions, and to utter the wish that something more congenial to their gentle spirit was instituted instead thereof. Since there is dissatisfaction, and that loudly expressed, we may ask ourselves the question: Is there just reason for such dissatisfaction? Is our present municipal system a benefit to the country or not? We are satisfied that the questions may be answered in the affirmative. Nor does it follow because both are true, that the system ought to be condemned. No man can serve the public without being found fault with. It is the nature of man to be looking for the faults of others—often for no other purpose than that to eclipse, if possible, his own. Hence the man who desires the office of councillor, while he may desire a good office, we may rest assured he desires a very thankless one—one for which there is little return except blame. It is a strong characteristic of noble patriotism that so many are ready to endure the censure of faultfinders for the public weal. Much of the faultfinding arises from our censoriousness; yet much is really deserved. Many who woo and win municipal honors are actuated by anything but patriotism. Selfishness appears as prominent in their actions as any desire to regulate matters for the general good. The people are the parties who are to be blamed in these matters. They do not discriminate in their selection as they ought; instead of bringing out tried men they allow persons to force themselves upon the public, who are utterly incapable to attend to anything that requires either reason or justice, as in many instances we find there are individuals who are devoid of both. Almost everywhere through the Province we hear complaints of the incompetency of those persons selected as municipal councillors. Corruption, bribery, self aggrandisement, are amongst the grievances complained of; and at once the cry is raised against the system, forgetting that it is the managers who are to blame. It is perfectly [illegible] men were able, no difficulties could arise from all the liberty given to the people by the Act. If there are evils the remedy is, remove from office all incompetent and unworthy persons; take greater care in the selection of fit and proper persons as municipal officers, and carefully watch over the workings of your local officers, and bring them to a strict account every season. This will keep them awake to the consequences of their actions, and will prove a strong incentive to right conduct on their part. Besides, it will fit the great body of the people for undertaking the management of the public business if the voice of the community should, perchance, call upon any one or several from time to time.. We do not mean to insinuate that there are no well qualified persons in the municipal councils of the country. There are many, we can truly say, in both the Town and County Councils who are an honor to those bodies; but are there not some who are far from qualified for the responsible positions they occupy? They are not qualified for the office they hold. Perhaps it would be impossible to elect a council all the members of which would be competent to discharge their duties with credit to themselves and advantage to the ratepayers. Nevertheless it is a duty the people owe to themselves to aim at this object, and if they aim at it, they will certainly come much nearer its accomplishment than if the attempt be not made. The management of the financial and other business of the town requires men of as much ability, intelligence and integrity as a member of Parliament. Every man that fancies he is quite competent to fill the office of councillor and trustee it is well known is not. Yet the people seem to sanction the fallacy, and act at elections as if they believed it. As long then as the electors allow incompetent persons to creep into office, so long they may expect the public business incompetently performed. The election is at hand. The important and responsible duty of selecting councillors and trustees will soon devolve upon us. If unsuitable men are returned and the ensuing year suffers through their mismanagement, bear in mind the electors are to blame, and if our taxes increase, our burdens become greater, and the business is mismanaged, the fault is our own, for no man can assume these offices unless by permission of the citizens. The kind of men required for councillors is the active, upright business man, or the active, intelligent, industrious mechanic. Not the idle, good-for-nothing creature, who, although he may have the necessary property qualification, has nothing more, and justly is unfit for any office or business, but who, because of his jovial good-nature, wins the support of the unthinking. Let there be neither personal nor party feeling in the matter, and choose such men as are likely to have regard for the property of the town.

We are pleased to call attention to the Holiday Concert advertised in this issue from the programme we infer it will be all one could wish. The old sea-stirring English glees Æolian Lyre, and Here in cool Grot, when properly performed are worth listening to, and we are fully persuaded from what we hear and know of Mr. Lasher's ability as a teacher, that they will be ably [illegible]. We bespeak a big house, to-night [illegible] Hall.

Peterboro' Grammar and Union School.

The semi-annual distribution of prizes in this school, took place on Thursday last. The severity of the weather, doubtless, rendered the attendance less numerous than it would otherwise have been. There were present,—Dr. Burnham, Chairman, Rev. Mr. Douglas, Dr. Harvey, Messrs. Coulter and Walton, Dr. McKeown, and several of the parents of pupils. The prizes were presented by the chairman, who spoke in terms of the highest praise of the successful competitors in the various branches of study. In many instances the competition had been so keen that it was by no means easy to decide upon the respective merits of the candidates.

Ashburnham School Examination.

The examination of Ashburnham school, prior to the Christmas Holidays, took place on Friday in presence of the Local Superintendent, the Trustees, and a number of the parents, and manifested that all the classes were well instructed in all the branches—grammar, geography and arithmetic. The scholars showed themselves quite at home in all their lessons,—reading easily, spelling correctly, and answering readily, and standing and moving quietly and easily. The whole exercises were well gone through, and wanted only a crowd of spectators, which the people will, we trust, supply next time. All present were highly gratified by the appearance made by the several classes, and after a few words of explanation and encouragement by the teacher and Local Superintendent, the pupils were dismissed, to meet again on the 9th of January, 1865.

After the scholars were dismissed the following address was presented by the Trustees to the Rev. J. S. Douglas, who in consequence of his removal to Toronto was obliged to tender his resignation.

Rev. Jas. Douglas:

Dear Sir,—It is a matter of deep regret to us, that in the order of Providence you are about to remove from amongst us. Your gentlemanly conduct during your residence here, your kind and obliging manner and your eminent abilities as Local Superintendent, together with your untiring zeal in behalf of education, we cannot allow to pass unnoticed.

It is with no mere ordinary expression of sentimentality, therefore, that we tender you our warmest wishes for your future welfare, as well as that of your family.

And we earnestly hope that your lot may be cast in a locality where your abilities will be duly appreciated, and where you will be able to use them for the advancement of sound education and of the rising generation around you.

Receive, therefore, this testimonial of our esteem for you as a citizen; consider it also as a memorial of our appreciation of your labors as our Local Superintendent, and permit us to express our sincere desire for your social and spiritual welfare in your new sphere of action.

We are, Dear Sir,
Yours truly,

Board of School Trustees of the village of Ashburnham.

Ashburnham, October 3rd, 1864.

Mr. Douglas feelingly replied:

I am much gratified, gentlemen, with this expression of your regard for myself personally, and of your approbation of my services as your Local Superintendent. It has ever been with peculiar delight that I have visited the school in Ashburnham, because I have ever been met with kindness and attention by the Trustees and all parties connected with the school, both at the examinations and also at my school lectures; and because I have seen the willingness on all occasions to profit by any hints that were thrown out by me for the improvement of the school, of which the Henderson School Building, both in itself and in its internal working, were sufficient proof.

Though absent from you and the young people, for whose benefit you have provided such educational advantages and taken such unwearied pains, I shall never forget the unwavering kindness with which I have been met, both by yourselves and all connected with the school, and even by the young people themselves; and this address that you have now presented at my departure, I will keep as a memorial of that kindly intercourse which heretofore we held in reference to this school. And for this expression of your regard, I would return you my sincere thanks.

MASONIC.

The festival of St. John the Evangelist falling on Tuesday this year, the Brethern of Peterborough Lodge, No, 155, met in their Lodge room for the installation of Officers. The following Officers were installed by R. W. Bro. C. D. Macdonald, P. M., G. R. of C.:—

W. Bro. Henry Lawson, W. M.
W. Bro. George Burnham, P. M.
Bro. Peter C. Bleicher, S. W.
Bro. S. Redpath, J. W.
Bro. Geo. A. Cox, Chaplin.
Bro. J. S. Peter, Treasurer.
Bro. J. M. Burns, Secretary.
Bro. Charles Cameron, Sen. Deacon.
Bro. I. J. Davidson, Jr. Deacon.
Bro. Alex. Graham, Director of Cer.
Bro. Allan Huffman, I. Guard.
Bro. John Drake, Tyler.

After the installation, the Brethren repaired to the Huffman House, where they were entertained to a supper by the Worshipful Master, to which ample justice was done; after a few appropriate remarks were made, the brethren sung "Auld Lang Syne," which closed the evenings proceedings, when all separated highly pleased with the manner in which the evening had been spent.

CURLIANA.

According to previous arrangement the Otonabee and Peterboro Curling Clubs' met on the "Little Lake," on Monday last, to enjoy a friendly contest at their "ain auld game." The weather was anything but favourable, there being a bright sun over head and a genial warmth in the air, that seemed more like the month of April than that of "cold December." The consequence was that the ice was very unfavourable for the "roaring game" of curling, it being dull and very uneven, owing to its expansion, by heat from the solar rays. However, as it the two competing clubs went determined to see which should be conquerors for the day. After a few "heads" were made, it appeared evident that little of the science of the game was requisite, it being reduced to a matter of mere muscular strength, owing to the extreme dullness of the ice and the inability of most of the players to give impetous to their stones so as to reach the "tee." However, be it either for lack of muscle or science, we have to record that the Peterboro club got,—to use a Yankee phrase, badly "licked," which "licking" we presume they will try to retrieve at an early day. The following is the score:—

SCHOOL EXAMINATION.

The examination of the pupils attending the Warsaw School, taught by Mr. Edmison, took place on Thursday, 22nd Inst. There were a good number of pupils and visitors present considering the severity of the weather. After having been examined in the various classes, which acquitted themselves with great credit, prizes were awarded to the following pupils for having made the most progress in the various classes, namely:—Reading—Fifth class, E. Wason: Fourth class, M. A. Lumsden, and M. J. Espline; Third class, T. Choate; Second class, R. Hillock, and J. W. Bell; First class, C. Espine, and G. Moore. Writing, E. Wason and J. Cope. Spelling, James Gale. English History. F. C. Lumsden. Geography—Senior class, F. C. Lumsden, Junior class, M. A. Lumsden, and Jane Gale. Grammar—Senior class, A. F. Choate, Junior class, H. Payton. Mental Arithmatic, H. Payton. Arithmatic, R. Edwards. Cards were distributed among those who received no prizes.

It was unanimously considered by the visitors that the pupils had made great proficiency since the last vacation. Mr. Edmison has ingratiated himself into the affections of the whole school, and has justly merited the universal esteem of the Section.

A vote of thanks was given him by the visitors, for the zeal and diligence which he constantly manifests in the welfare of his school, and a universal wish expressed that he would be employed for another year.—Com.

FENIAN RAID INTO CANADA.

A "mass meeting" of the members of the Fenian Brotherhood and other friends of "the liberty of Ireland" was held in Faneuil Hall, Boston, on Wednesday evening last, and the papers say that, notwithstanding the severe storm, the hall was crowded, a numerous sprinkling of ladies being seen in the galleries. The meeting was presided over by Mr. T. B. Hennessey, "centre" of the order in Boston, who announced that Colonel O. Mahoney, "head centre" of the Brotherhood in the United States, was delayed on his way to Boston by the storm. He also read a letter from Hon. J. G. Abbott, expressing his regret at being unable to be present. Mr. P. A. Sennott, of Boston, was then introduced and spoke of the principles of the Brotherhood, and that the pledge of the Fenians was that he would use all his endeavors for obtaining the independence of Ireland; that he would obey the orders of his superiors under the constitution, and use all his efforts to promote harmony among all classes of Irishmen, no matter at what altar they kneeled. He then continued:—

"The creed of Fenianism is that Ireland shall be a nationality, and that the Irishman who comes into Boston in 1866 shall have a flag to float over him and a consul to protect him. (Applause.) We are despised because we are not successful, but now you have an opportunity to make yourselves respectable by success. If you mean anything, go and strike at the nearest point—Canada. I don't mean that you shall violate international law, or go to Canada in an organized body, but go as quiet travelers and passengers, and form a Fenian Confederation in that country. If you can't reach the heart of England, at least dismember a portion of her frame. As the volunteers of 1748 and 1848 have passed away, there are those of the same blood still left. He urged the maintenance of a feeling of Irish nationality and a determination that Ireland shall be recognised as a nation, and that her sons may return to her and not feel that she is a pauper."

The next speaker was Captain M. H. McNamara, late of the 9th Massachusetts regiment, who said that there were now nearly half-a-million Fenians—about 175,000 in Ireland, as many in the United States, and the remainder in England, Canada, &c. He also described a visit to one of the Circles in Ireland, and the precautions necessarily adopted to guard them from outside interference. Many of the men in Ireland were armed and others would receive them from their friends in America. He closed by urging Irishmen, and friends of Irish nationality, to unite with the Brotherhood in their great object of freeing Ireland.

One Wm. J. Hynes next addressed the meeting, thus in case a contest should speedily arise, England could not raise more than 50,000 men, while in Ireland more than twice that number would enter the field in twenty-four hours. In the British army and navy there were also many Irishmen who could be depended upon for their country, as that England would find that what she relied upon as her strength was really her weakness.

A paper was then circulated to receive names for the rolls of the Brotherhood, and after quite a number of names had been received, the meeting adjourned, amid much enthusiasm.

ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE.

A LONG-LOST HEIRESS DISCOVERED.

The Taunton (Mass.) Republican is responsible for the following story:

"A romance in real life has just come to light, and is at present the chief gossip of this city. The facts, as related by an intimate acquaintance of the fortunate family, are as follows:

"It appears that about twenty-seven years ago, in Montreal, [illegible] family of the late Mr. Henry E. Chilton, a wealthy gentleman of Richmond, Va. From some cause which still remains a secret, a difficulty arose between Captain Brown and Mr. Chilton, wherein the former considered himself the aggrieved party. To revenge himself for the supposed wrong, he stole Mr. Chilton's infant daughter (then but six weeks old) on the day she was christened. The child was brought to Mattapoisett, and secretly adopted by Brown and his wife as their own. She was named Julia and grew to be a woman. When only sixteen years old, she married Mr. Isaac O. Pierce, a printer, who learned his trade in Taunton, living for a while at East Taunton, but more recently at the Green. Two children have been born to them, one of whom is now living.

"During this long period Mrs. Pierce has lived in blissful ignorance of her high parentage, and Mr. Pierce, who took her for better or worse, has never imagined himself the husband of a heiress. He abandoned the printer's trade, shortly after learning it, and for several years has earned his daily bread by the sweat of his brow at Mr. Mason's works in this city. This is their history until within a short time. Now comes the denouement.

"Last summer while Rev. Mr. Talbot, of this city, was at Saratoga, he became acquainted with Mr. Clifton and wife, who, it appears, at the breaking out of the rebellion, converted their Richmond property into cash and moved to Baltimore. In the course of conversation with them Mr. Talbot remarked upon the striking resemblance of Mrs. Clifton to a lady parishioner of his in Taunton. Nothing particular was thought of it at first; but on his repeating the remark, Mrs. Clifton inquired the age of the lady. On being informed that she was about twenty-seven, Mrs. Clifton immediately said to her husband, 'Why, that would be just the age of our daughter that was stolen.'

'The matter then received their serious attention. Mr. Talbot was taken into their confidence, and inquiry instituted as to the reputed parents of the young lady. He returned to Taunton; had a conversation with Mrs. Pierce in regard to her parentage; informed her of the Saratoga conversation, which led her to ask Mrs. Brown, who, she had never doubted was her own mother, if she really were such, at the same time telling her the reason of her enquiry. Mrs. Brown, who had kept the secret of the child's parentage for twenty-seven years, was so overcome by the question and the development of facts, that she immediately became ill and died of the heart disease. Before her death, however, she acknowledged that Mrs. Pierce was not her own daughter. Captain Brown died a number of years ago. Within a few weeks the affair has developed itself rapidly. Mr. and Mrs. Clifton and Mrs. Pearce have met each other; and the old colored woman, who nursed the abducted infant, has recognized Mrs. Pierce as their real child by a mole on her shoulder! The identity of their long-lost daughter having been fully established, Mrs. Pierce and her husband have been invited to live with the Cliftons and share in their wealth; and this they are preparing to do, having broken up housekeeping and disposed of their furniture.

"The cream of the affair is that Mrs Pierce is an only child, and therefore sole heiress to an estate said to be worth hundreds of thousands if not millions of dollars, or as an old lady friend of Mrs. Pierce expresses it, 'a trifle less than two millions.' It having been rumored that Mrs. Pierce had applied for a divorce from her husband, she has published a card indignantly denying the slander."

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY.

Testimony from L. A. Labontaigne, Editor Journal de Quebec, C. E.

Mr. Seth W. Fowle,

Dear Sir,—It is very three years since I purchased Wister's Balsam of Wild Cherry for my wife, who was troubled a long time with the Asthma, and a long continued cough, which prevented her from following her usual occupation. After having made use of four bottles she received great benefit from their use.

I am your obedient servant,

MUNICIPAL INSTITUTIONS.

The yearly bustle of municipal elections lead many who are of a quiet disposition to doubt the advantages of our municipal institutions, and to utter the wish that something more congenial to their gentle spirit was instituted instead thereof. Since there is dissatisfaction, and that loudly expressed, we may ask ourselves the question: Is there just reason for such dissatisfaction? Is our present municipal system a benefit to the country or not? We are satisfied that the questions may be answered in the affirmative. Nor does it follow because both are true, that the system ought to be condemned. No man can serve the public without being found fault with. It is the nature of man to be looking for the faults of others—often for no other purpose than that to eclipse, if possible, his own. Hence the man who desires the office of councillor, while he may desire a good office, we may rest assured he desires a very thankless one—one for which there is little return except blame. It is a strong characteristic of noble patriotism that so many are ready to endure the censure of faultfinders for the public weal. Much of the faultfinding arises from our censoriousness; yet much is really deserved. Many who woo and win municipal honors are actuated by anything but patriotism. Selfishness appears as prominent in their actions as any desire to regulate matters for the general good. The people are the parties who are to be blamed in these matters. They do not discriminate in their selection as they ought; instead of bringing out tried men they allow persons to force themselves upon the public, who are utterly incapable to attend to anything that requires either reason or justice, as in many instances we find there are individuals who are devoid of both. Almost everywhere through the Province we hear complaints of the incompetency of those persons selected as municipal councillors. Corruption, bribery, self-aggrandisement, are amongst the grievances complained of; and at once the cry is raised against the system, forgetting that it is the managers who are to blame. It is perfectly possible, if honest and wise men were elected, no difficulties could arise from all the liberty given to the people by the Act. If there are evils the remedy is, remove from office all incompetent and unworthy persons; take greater care in the selection of fit and proper persons as municipal officers, and carefully watch over the workings of your local officers, and bring them to a strict account every season. This will keep them awake to the consequences of their actions, and will prove a strong incentive to right conduct on their part. Besides, it will fit the great body of the people for undertaking the management of the public business if the voice of the community should, perchance, call upon any one or several from time to time. We do not mean to insinuate that there are no well qualified persons in the municipal councils of the country. There are many, we can truly say, in both the Town and County Councils who are an honor to those bodies; but are there not some who are far from qualified for the responsible positions they occupy? They are not qualified for the office they hold. Perhaps it would be impossible to elect a council all the members of which would be competent to discharge their duties with credit to themselves and advantage to the ratepayers. Nevertheless it is a duty the people owe to themselves to aim at this object, and if they aim at it, they will certainly come much nearer its accomplishment than if the attempt be not made. The management of the financial and other business of the town requires men of as much ability, intelligence and integrity as a member of Parliament. Every man that fancies he is quite competent to fill the office of councillor and trustee it is well known is not. Yet the people seem to sanction the fallacy, and act at elections as if they believed it. As long then as the electors allow incompetent persons to creep into office, so long they may expect the public business incompetently performed. The election is at hand. The important and responsible duty of selecting councillors and trustees will soon devolve upon us. If unworthy men are returned and the coming year suffers through their mismanagement, bear in mind the electors are to blame, and if our taxes increase, our burdens become greater, and the business is mismanaged, the fault is our own, for no man can assume these offices unless by permission of the citizens. The kind of men required for councillors is the active, upright business man, or the active, intelligent, industrious mechanic. Not the idle, good-for-nothing creature, who, although he may have the necessary property qualification, has nothing more, and justly is unfit for any office or business, but who, because of his jovial good-nature, wins the support of the unthinking. Let there be neither personal nor party feeling in the matter, and choose such men as are likely to have regard for the property of the town.

We are pleased to call attention to the Holiday Concert advertised in this issue: from the programme we infer it will be all one could wish. The old soul-stirring English glees Abelian Lyre, and Here in cool Grot, when properly performed are worth listening to, and we are fully persuaded from what we hear and know of Mr. Lasher's ability as a teacher, that they will be ably managed. We bespeak a big house, to-night in the Victoria Hall.

The eighth annual Soiree of the North Monaghan Intellectual Improvement Society, will be held at the Town Hall, on Monday, the 2nd of January, when several first and lay gentlemen will address the meeting. Tea to be served at five o'clock.

Peterboro' Grammar and Union School.

The semi-annual distribution of prizes in this school took place on Thursday last. The severity of the weather, doubtless, rendered the attendance less numerous than it would otherwise have been. There were present,—Dr. Burnham, Chairman, Rev. Mr. Douglas, Dr. Harvey, Messrs. Coulter and Walton, Dr. McKeown, and several of the parents of pupils. The prizes were presented by the chairman, who spoke in terms of the highest praise of the successful competitors in the various branches of study. In many instances the competition had been so keen that it was by no means easy to decide upon the respective merits of the candidates.

Ashburnham School Examination.

The examination of Ashburnham school, prior to the Christmas Holidays, took place on Friday in presence of the Local Superintendent, the Trustees, and a number of the parents, and manifested that all the classes were well instructed in all the branches—grammar, geography and arithmetic. The scholars showed themselves quite at home in all their lessons,—reading easily, spelling correctly, and answering readily, and standing and moving quietly and easily. The whole exercises were well gone through, and wanted only a crowd of spectators, which the people will, we trust, supply next time. All present were highly gratified by the appearance made by the several classes, and after a few words of explanation and encouragement by the teacher and Local Superintendent, the pupils were dismissed, to meet again on the 9th of January, 1865.

After the scholars were dismissed the following address was presented by the Trustees to the Rev. J. S. Douglas, who in consequence of his removal to Toronto was obliged to tender his resignation.

Rev. Jas. Douglas:

Dear Sir,—It is a matter of deep regret to us, that in the order of Providence you are about to remove from amongst us. Your gentlemanly conduct during your residence here, your kind and obliging manner and your eminent abilities as Local Superintendent, together with your untiring zeal in behalf of education, we cannot allow to pass unnoticed.

It is with no mere ordinary expression of sentimentality, therefore, that we tender you our warmest wishes for your future welfare, as well as that of your family.

And we earnestly hope that your lot may be cast in a locality where your abilities will be duly appreciated, and where you will be able to use them for the advancement of sound education and of the rising generation around you.

Receive, therefore, this testimonial of our esteem for you as a citizen; consider it also as a memorial of our appreciation of your labors as our Local Superintendent, and permit us to express our sincere desire for your social and spiritual welfare in your new sphere of action.

We are, Dear Sir,
Yours truly,
Robinson Moore,
Daniel McDonald,
Philip Sagent,
Robt. D. Rogers,
Absalom Ingram,

Board of School Trustees of the village of Ashburnham.

Ashburnham, October 3rd, 1864.

Mr. Douglas feelingly replied:

I am much gratified, gentlemen, with this expression of your regard for myself personally, and of your approbation of my services as your Local Superintendent. It has ever been with peculiar delight that I have visited the school in Ashburnham, because I have ever been met with kindness and attention by the Trustees and all parties connected with the school, both at the examinations and also at my school lectures; and because I have seen the willingness on all occasions to profit by any hints that were thrown out by me for the improvement of the school, of which the Henderson School Building, both in itself and in its internal working, were sufficient proof.

Though absent from you and the young people, for whose benefit you have provided such educational advantages and taken such unwearied pains, I shall never forget the unwavering kindness with which I have been met, both by yourselves and all connected with the school, and even by the young people themselves; and this address that you have now presented as my departure, I will keep as a memorial of that kindly intercourse which heretofore we held in reference to this school. And for this expression of your regard, I would return you my sincere thanks.

MASONIC.

The festival of St. John the Evangelist falling on Tuesday this year, the Brethern of Peterborough Lodge, No. 155, met in their Lodge room for the Installation of Officers. The following Officers were installed by R. W. Bro. C. D. MacDonald, P. M., G. R. of C.:—

W. Bro. Henry Lawson, W. M.
W. Bro. George Burnham, P. M.
Bro. Peter C. Bleisher, S. W.
Bro. S. Redpath, J. W.
Bro. Geo. A. Cox, Chaplin.
Bro. J. S. Peter, Treasurer.
Bro. J. M. Burns, Secretary.
Bro. Charles Cameron, Sen. Deacon.
Bro. I. J. Davidson, Jr. Deacon.
Bro. Alex. Graham, Director of Cer.
Bro. Allan Huffman, I. Guard.
Bro. John Drake, Tyler.

After the installation, the Brethren repaired to the Huffman House, where they were entertained to a supper by the Worshipful Master, to which ample justice was done; after a few appropriate remarks were made, the brethren sung "Auld Lang Syne," which closed the evenings proceedings, when all separated highly pleased with the manner in which the evening had been spent.

CURLIANA.

According to previous arrangement the Otonabee and Peterboro Curling Clubs met on the "Little Lake," on Monday last, to enjoy a friendly contest at their "ain auld game." The weather was anything but favourable, there being a bright sun over head and a genial warmth in the air, that seemed more like the month of April than that of "cold December." The consequence was that the ice was very unfavourable for the "roaring game" of curling, it being dull and very uneven, owing to its expansion, by heat from the solar rays. However, as it the two competing clubs went determined to see which should be conquerors for the day. After a few "heads" were made, it appeared evident that little of the science of the game was requisite, it being reduced to a matter of mere muscular strength, owing to the extreme dullness of the ice and the inability of most of the players to give impetous to their stones so as to reach the "tee." However, be it either for lack of muscle or science, we have to record that the Peterboro club got,—to use a Yankee phrase, badly "licked," which "licking" we presume they will try to retrieve at an early day. The following is the score:—

SCHOOL EXAMINATION.

The examination of the pupils attending the Warsaw School, taught by Mr. Edmison, took place on Thursday, 22nd inst. There were a good number of pupils and visitors present considering the severity of the weather. After having been examined in the various classes, which acquitted themselves with great credit, prizes were awarded to the following pupils for having made the most progress in the various classes, namely:—Reading—Fifth class, E. Wason; Fourth class, M. A. Lumsden, and M. J. Espline; Third class, T. Choate; Second class, R. Hullock, and J. W. Bell; First class, C. Espine, and G. Moore. Writing, E. Wason and J. Cope. Spelling, James Gale. English History, F. C. Lumsden. Geography—Senior class, F. C. Lumsden, Junior class, M. A. Lumsden, and Jane Gale. Grammar—Senior class, A. F. Choate, Junior class, H. Payton. Mental Arithmatic, H. Payton. Arithmatic, R. Edwards. Cards were distributed among those who received no prizes.

It was unanimously considered by the visitors that the pupils had made great proficiency since the last vacation. Mr. Edmison has ingratiated himself into the affections of the whole school, and has justly merited the universal esteem of the Section.

A vote of thanks was given him by the visitors, for the zeal and diligence which he constantly manifests in the welfare of his school, and a universal wish expressed that he would be employed for another year.—Com.

FENIAN RAID INTO CANADA.

A "mass meeting" of the members of the Fenian Brotherhood and other friends of "the liberty of Ireland" was held in Faneuil Hall, Boston, on Wednesday evening last, and the papers say that, notwithstanding the severe storm, the hall was crowded, a numerous sprinkling of ladies being seen in the galleries. The meeting was presided over by Mr. T. B. Hennessey, "centre" of the order in Boston, who announced that Colonel O. Mahoney, "head centre" of the Brotherhood in the United States, was delayed on his way to Boston by the storm. He also read a letter from the Hon. J. G. Abbott, expressing his regret at being unable to be present. Mr. P. A. Sennott, of Boston, was then introduced and spoke of the principles of the Brotherhood, and that the pledge of the Fenians was that he would use all his endeavors for obtaining the independence of Ireland; that he would obey the orders of his superiors under the constitution, and use all his efforts to promote harmony among all classes of Irishmen, no matter at what altar they kneeled. He then continued:—

"The creed of Fenianism is that Ireland shall be a nationality, and that the Irishman who comes into Boston in 1866 shall have a flag to float over him and a consul to protect him. (Applause.) We are despised because we are not successful, but now you have an opportunity to make yourselves respectable by success. If you mean anything, go and strike at the nearest point—Canada. I don't mean that you shall violate international law, or go to Canada in an organized body, but go as quiet travelers and passengers, and form a Fenian Confederation in that country. If you can't reach the heart of England, at least dismember a portion of her frame. If the volunteers of 1745 and 1848 have passed away, there are those of the same blood still left. He urged the maintenance of a feeling of Irish nationality and a determination that Ireland shall be recognised as a nation, and that her sons may return to her and not feel that she is a pauper."

The next speaker was Captain M. H. McNamara, late of the 9th Massachusetts regiment, who said that there were now nearly half-a-million Fenians—about 175,000 in Ireland, as many in the United States, and the remainder in England, Canada, &c. He also described a visit to one of the Circles in Ireland, and the precautions necessarily adopted to guard them from outside interference. Many of the men in Ireland were armed and others would receive them from their friends in America. He closed by urging Irishmen, and friends of Irish nationality, to unite with the Brotherhood in their great object of freeing Ireland.

One Wm. J. Hynes next addressed the meeting, that in case a contest should speedily arise, England could not raise more than 50,000 men, while in Ireland more than twice that number would enter the field in twenty-four hours. In the British army and navy there were also many Irishmen who could be depended upon for their country, so that England would find that what she relied upon as her strength was really her weakness.

A paper was then circulated to receive names for the rolls of the Brotherhood, and after quite a number of names had been received, the meeting adjourned, amid much enthusiasm.

ROMANCE IN REAL LIFE.

A LONG-LOST HEIRESS DISCOVERED.

The Taunton (Mass.) Republican is responsible for the following story:

"A romance in real life has just come to light, and is at present the chief gossip of this city. The facts, as related by an intimate acquaintance of the fortunate family, are as follows:

"It appears that about twenty-seven years ago, Mr. Henry E. Clifton, a wealthy gentleman of Richmond, Va., resided in Massachusetts, and had charge of the estate of Mr. Henry E. Clifton, a wealthy gentleman of Richmond, Va. From some cause which still remains a secret, a difficulty arose between Captain Brown and Mr. Clifton, wherein the former considered himself the aggrieved party. To revenge himself for the supposed wrong, he stole Mr. Clifton's infant daughter (then but six weeks old) on the day she was christened. The child was brought to Mattapoisett, and secretly adopted by Brown and his wife as their own. She was named Julia and grew to be a woman. When only sixteen years old, she married Mr. Isaac O. Pierce, a printer, who learned his trade in Taunton, living for a while at East Taunton, but more recently at the Green. Two children have been born to them, one of whom is now living.

"During this long period Mrs. Pierce has lived in blissful ignorance of her high parentage, and Mr. Pierce, who took her for better or worse, has never imagined himself the husband of a heiress. He abandoned the printer's trade, shortly after learning it, and for several years has earned his daily bread by the sweat of his brow at Mr. Mason's works in this city. This is their history until within a short time. Now comes the denouement.

"Last summer while Rev. Mr. Talbot, of this city, was at Saratoga, he became acquainted with Mr. Clifton and wife, who, it appears, at the breaking out of the rebellion, converted their Richmond property into cash and moved to Baltimore. In the course of conversation with them Mr. Talbot remarked upon the striking resemblance of Mrs. Clifton to a lady parishioner of his in Taunton. Nothing particular was thought of it at first; but on his repeating the remark, Mrs. Clifton inquired the age of the lady. On being informed that she was about twenty-seven, Mrs. Clifton immediately said to her husband, 'Way, that would be just the age of our daughter that was stolen.'

'The matter then recived their serious attention. Mr. Talbot was taken into their confidence, and inquiry instituted as to the reputed parents of the young lady. He returned to Taunton; had a conversation with Mrs. Pierce in regard to her parentage; informed her of the Saratoga conversation, which led her to ask Mrs. Brown, who, she had never doubted was her own mother, if she really were such, at the same time telling her the reason of her enquiry. Mrs. Brown, who had kept the secret of the child's parentage for twenty-seven years, was so overcome by the question and the development of facts, that she immediately became ill and died of the heart disease. Before her death, however, she acknowledged that Mrs. Pierce was not her own daughter. Captain Brown died a number of years ago. Within a few weeks the affair has developed itself rapidly. Mr. and Mrs. Clifton and Mrs. Pearce have met each other; and the old colored woman, who nursed the abducted infant, has recognized Mrs. Pierce as their real child by a mole on her shoulder! The identity of their long-lost daughter having been fully established, Mrs. Pierce and her husband have been invited to live with the Cliftons and share in their wealth; and this they are preparing to do, having broken up housekeeping and disposed of their furniture.

"The cream of the affair is that Mrs Pierce is an only child, and therefore sole heiress to an estate said to be worth hundreds of thousands if not millions of dollars, or as an old lady friend of Mrs. Pierce expresses it, 'a trifle less than two millions.' It having been rumored that Mrs. Pierce had applied for a divorce from her husband, she has published a card indignantly denying the slander."

Mr. Seth W. Fowle,

Dear Sir,—It is now three years since I purchased Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry for my wife, who was troubled a long time with the Asthma, and a long continued cough, which prevented her from following her usual occupation. After having made use of four bottles she received great benefit from the use.

I am your obedient servant,

Select Poetry.

THE COTTAGE DOOR.

How sweet the rest that labor yields
The humble and the poor,
When sits the patriarch of the fields,
Before his cottage door!
The lark is singing in the sky,
The swallow on the eaves;
And love is beaming in each eye
Beneath the summer leaves.

The air amid his fragrant bowers
Supplies unpurchased health,
The flowers are bounding 'mid the flowers,
More dear to him than wealth;
Peace, like the blessed sunlight, plays
Around his humble cot;
And happy sights and cheerful days
Divide his lowly lot.

And when the village Sabbath bell
Rings out upon the gale,
The father bows his head to tell
The music of its tale.
A fresher verdure seems to fill
The fair and dewy sod,
And every infant tongue is still
To hear the Word of God.

O! happy hearts! to him who fills
The ravens when they cry,
And makes the lily 'neath the hills
So glorious to the eye—
The trusting patriarch prays to bless
His labors with increase;
Such ways are 'ways of pleasantness,'
And all such 'paths are peace.'

A POOR CLERK'S STORY.

(Any interest which may be attached to this narrative will be heightened when it is explained that the circumstance related are in no point fictitious.)

They were certainly inferior lodgings, even for that by neighborhood, and the moderate prices I paid for them; but money was a weak point with me those days, and, at the same time, I never cared to bargain or make conditions when I hired apartments; for so long as I had a decent room to sit in in bad weather, with a "practicable" fire place, and a corner where I could turn in at night for sleep, I cared little for convenience, and less for appearances, and was quite contented [as my "laissez faire" character disposed me to be] under circumstances which were frequently trying, and occasionally aggravating. I cannot imagine now why I ventured into such strange out of the way districts. Certainly it was no love for adventure that induced me; for I was naturally timid, and disinclined to face danger, however largely the element of romance might have entered into it. Perhaps it was that unfashionable pride which accompanies reduced means that prompted me to seek lodgings in neighborhoods where even my humble and threadbare garments proclaimed the 'gentleman' among classes in which a coat at all was the exception. Be that as it might, I wandered, at the time, into the humblest district of western London; and after some failures in my applications for a lodging, I lighted upon a fairly presentable house in a shambling sort of terrace, not very distant from the principal thoroughfare of that section of the town. I was admitted—after repeated knocks, and just as my patience was becoming exhausted—by an old woman of about sixty-five, though it is possible that she might have been prematurely aged by want and illness. When I enquired of the portress the terms of the lodgings, the poor old creature, who was shaking in voice and body from a sort of palsy, stammered out that she would call her daughter to answer my question, but "would I please step inside a moment." I complied, and waited on the ragged mat in the dingy passage while the old woman babbled and jerked herself down the stairs to the kitchen. I knew when she arrived at the door, for a dull sound of voices, which I had noticed upon entering, suddenly expanded into a confused roar, in which I detected both male and female laughter. The occupants of the kitchen who were evidently carousing (though it was about 3 o'clock in the afternoon) seemed to greet the old woman with shouts of derision. Something hard was flung at her at her entrance, I am sure, for I heard her cry out in bean quaky treble, and the missile, whatever it was rolling upon the wooden floor. A great laugh was raised at this sally, after which I recognised the trembling old tones, declaring, I presume, the reason which had so unreasonably interrupted the mirth of the kitchen. There was a lull directly; and I shortly afterward heard a younger and lighter step ascending the staircase, and my landlady stood before me. She was a bold, slattish looking woman of about thirty, with a face which, though not positively ill-looking, was of a low stamp and certainly unattractive. She instantly assumed a smirk and curtsey to the prospective lodger; but I perceived a trifling thickness of utterance, and a peculiar lack of luster in her eyes, which were the outward and visible signs of excess. She excused herself for not waiting upon me immediately: but 'it was all along of that old woman-servant which she kept out of charity, though, Heaven knew, she did nothing for the use of the house it return for all the eatin' and drinkin' which was provided," and so on. Abusing the wretched old woman, and denying in every word the fact that it was her mother of whom she spoke so evily, the landlady preceded me to the drawing room floor, and threw open the door with a conscious pride. They were, as I have stated, very inferior lodgings. I believe if any other time I should have incontinently left the spot; but something prompted me, and I agreed to stop there for a month. I had become interested in spite of myself, and I was determined to know something more about my shaky old friend. I shall not describe these lodgings for the account would not be very appetizing to my readers; but I shall hasten to give an account of my adventure there some time, afterward, on a terrible Christmas eve.

I had agreed upon taking the lodgings from the first day of December till the New Year's day following; and on beginning my reign in my new quarters, I found the wisdom of using apartments of this kind weekly, a plan I ever adopted afterwards. Nothing could have been more completely inconvenient as far as accomodation and attendance were concerned, and yet I stayed, for I had already found an interest in the place. The shaky old woman was the servant of all work, the factotum, the fag of the lodgings. Often I have my elf relieved her of the breakfast tray, when the cup and saucer and butter-boat and teapot have been trembling responsively, and the egg designed for my humble repast has been divorced from its cup and has been rolling from side to side, like a barrel on a deck in a storm. She cleaned the boots, she swept the stairs, answered the bell, fetched the beer [no sinecure] and performed, in short, every menial office, while her shameless daughter and reciprocal son-in-law ate, drank, (and were drunk,) and slept at ease, with all household burdens, save the light one of receiving the lodger's money, shifted from their young shoulders to her crazy care. After a due amount of patience on my part, I ventured to inquire of the old hand-maid as to the meanage of the slip shod household.

Why do you do all the work? I said kindly to her one morning, after I had extricated my breakfast (at the expense of the egg) from entire dissolution at her hands. It is too much for you.

To my surprise the poor old woman sat down on a chair, and burst into tears. I was not a little astonished; but held my tongue till she had somewhat recovered. I again remarked, "I'm afraid this is too much for you, day after day."

The old creature rose suddenly and tottered to the door. I humbly pray your pardon, sir, she stammered. I forgot myself. I've not been well lately, sir, and the children have——

Say, I said. Shut the door and tell me all about it. I am anxious about you, and if I can do anything——

Oh, no, dear sir, cried the poor old wretch, trembling with fear, in addition to her usual palsy. Don't notice me sir if you please; pray don't. If they were to know that I had been crying or talking to you, they'd——. Here she paused and looked nervously at the door.

What would they do? I asked.

They'd beat me, sir. She often does, if I forget anything; and he, oh! he's awful—swearing and flinging pewter pots at me. I was ill once for weeks from a blow he gave me.

Why on earth do they ill treat you? I asked. You do all the work while they are idle. There must be some other reason?

Sir, said the old woman, with some pride in her voice—cracked, jerked and feeble as it was—I was once worth more than a thousand pounds—I mean when my husband died, and before she was married. I set them up; and they know it, and keep me here and ill-treat me in consequence.

Why do you stay? I asked; but I repent after I was conscious of the folly of my question, for the old woman answered,

Where could I go to sir?

The simplicity and despair in this response convincing me that I should do no good by personally interfering in the domestic misunderstanding, I refrained from further questioning, and waited for some issue to this course of ill-treatment, when I might, though an outsider, be justified in stepping in as a check. It soon came. In the Christmas week the poor old mother took to her bed, thoroughly conquered by the hard weather and increasing work. Every day I heard angry voices and loud curses through the thin wainscotting which separated my bedroom from the wretched old creature's sleeping den. A feeble squeaking was all that rough usage, neglect, or execration elicited. My blood used to blaze within me at the cowardice and low triumph of that disreputable pair, who junketed while their mother was gasping for breath, or calling for common assistance. I did not forget my position and attempted to expostulate with the daughter, my landlady, who came into my room, attended by a rumple haired child with a dirty face [which was a pretty likeness of her mother's] on the morning of the twenty fourth of December.

Bedizened was the landlady and ribboned all over. Evidently she was bound upon merry making with friends that Christmas eve: and I was so struck with the heartlessness of a daughter, (who owed her fortunes, such as they were, to the poor woman starving and neglected in the next room) leaving a parent, dying perhaps, in the care of a child five years old, that I mildly reflected upon the remarks which the neighbors might make on the occasion. I was speedily silenced by that indescribable manner which a low bred woman always can assume to those whom she considers as interfering in her concerns; and on her departure her husband, his eyes still dazzled and lusterless from last night's excesses, merely put his head inside my door and gave me a look; but that look decided me against interfering any further. I was doomed to a cheerless Christmas eve alone in a wretched lodging, with no other companion than a bed ridden old woman and a miserable child. I had taken a rather more expensive dinner than usual that evening, in honor of the day; and when I returned finding my fire rather low, I called out to the little child, who was, I supposed, in her granny's room, to come and show me where the coal cellar was. A shrill "Yes sir," answered me, and I waited for my little guide. She was a long time coming, and I was getting wearied and cold, when I heard a strange bobbling outside my door, and, to my horror and amazement, the old mother staggered in with a coal scuttle in her hand, the little child grasping her dress tightly and smiling the while.

Gracious Heavens! I grasped; how's this? Why are you here? Whatever induced you to get up to do this? I would have gone without a fire a hundred times rather than you should have run the risk.

The old woman smiled as I seized the coal scuttle out of her palsied hands. I'd do it for you, sir—for you; but not for them. God bless you sir! Good night, and a merry Christmas to you. Come Nancy darling.

For God's sake! I cried, go back to bed; you'll kill yourself in this bitter cold. Go back I beseech you.

I'm going sir, said the shivering creature; but are you sure you want nothing fetched, or anything?

In Heaven's name, no! I cried again. Do go back to bed; you'll kill yourself.

No, muttered the poor old wretch, as I watched her retreating to her den. I shall not have killed myself. And so murmuring she hobbled out of sight.

My terrors were increasing. I poked the fire, but could get no addition to my spirits by watching the friendly blaze.—At last worn out, and at a late hour, I determined upon going to bed, and trying to overcome the sad forebodings which had come upon me, by sleep. I lay a long time awake but at length I went off into a deep slumber. How long I remained unconscious I do not know; but troublesome dreams affected my sleep, increasing in horror till they culminated in my starting up in bed with a loud cry ringing in my ears. Believing it to be the effect of a disordered brain, I was preparing to sleep again, when my blood was icily through my veins at a repetition of the former cry. It was a child's voice. Yes; and in the next room. I listened, and heard a struggle and then the pattering of naked feet upon the boarding of the adjoining chamber. I was frozen with fear. Suddenly I heard the child cry out in the panic of fear—Granny, granny; don't! go away! I don't know you; you are so ugly. Go away! And a struggle again. This time the child's voice was almost to a shriek. Go away! go away! Who are you? Let granny alone. Oh, mother, mother come back; come to Granny. And a moment after the little naked feet went pattering down and up stairs, while the child moaned piteously. Oh, mother, come back. Mastering my fears as well as I could, I leaped out of bed, huddled on some clothes, and cautiously opened my bed-room door. It was pitch-dark outside; but I could hear the child moaning, descending the stairs. Feeling my way to the old woman's room. I reached the door and paused a moment to listen. There was silence over the house, save when the wailing of the little girl could be indistinctly heard below. Carefully pushing the door open, I entered and nearly shrieked aloud at the sight which met my eyes. Crumpled up in bed, with face and knees together, sat the old woman. Her eyes were wildly glaring, her hands grasping the wretched quilt, her jaws dropped, her face the color of stone, and as inflexible. She was dead.

Taking a hasty inspection of the miserable room to insure that no one was concealed there, and that there had been foul play, I carefully and shudderingly retired, and had just lighted my candle in my room when I heard the child ascending the stairs again. I called her by name, and she ran, sobbing, to me, speechless with horror. As soon as I could obtain answer from her, I asked her what she had seen? Was it a man?

No, no; it wasn't a man nor a woman, she didn't know what it was; but it was so ugly. Oh, poor granny, poor granny.

This was all I could learn from her.—I put her into my bed, and leaving the candle lighted went out of the house and walked about the streets until daylight.—The carousers had returned and knew the worst then. They were sobered after the shock; and were civil to me, and thanked me for the care I had taken of the child whom, however, they studiously kept away from me. The old woman was decently buried, and on New Year's day I left my lodgings. I shall never forget that night as long as I live. But what was it as the child saw?—Once a Week.

The Man who won't Pay the Printer.

May he be shod with lightening and compelled to wander over gunpowder.

May he have sore eyes, and a chestnut burr for an eye-stone.

May he never be permitted to kiss a pretty woman.

May he be bored to death by boarding-school misses practising their first lessons in music, without the privilege of seeing his tormentors.

May 2-40 night-mares trot quarter races over his stomach every night.

May his boots leak, and his gun miss fire, and his fishing lines break.

May his coffee be sweetened with flies and his teacup seasoned with spiders.

May his cattle die of murrain, and his pigs destroy his garden.

May a troop of printer's devils, lean, lack, and hungry, dog his footsteps each day, and a regiment of cats caterwaul under his window each night.

May the famine-stricken ghost of an editor's baby haunt his slumbers, and hiss 'Murderer!' in his dreaming ear.

May his cows give sour milk, and his churn rancid butter.

In short, may his business go to ruin, and he go to—Parliament.

BRAIN WORK.—Within a recent period death has been busy with persons engaged in literature and art. Men of mark have been called away, when, by years of experience of human life, by long observation of nature in its various phases, and by the acquisition of the mechanical skill which is needed in the production of books or of pictures, they had fitted themselves for greater things, so that we might, if it had been allowed for them to have lived [illegible] lotted time of mans age, [illegible] much that would have [illegible] the labourers and advantageous to the community. The pursuit of literature [illegible] especially when employed in [illegible] lications, involves an incessant [illegible] brain. There is a never-[illegible] for the provision of [illegible] and the mind is quickened [illegible] The mill is incessantly at work; the bow is always bent; and, before the last time comes, the mill stops; the bow is broken.—Builder.

The Mysterious Quarter of Mutton.

The following incident, said to have occurred "out West," proves that it is not always safe to judge by appearances.

In a district adjoining a large forest wolves were so plenty that it was almost impossible to keep sheep, and only now and then a "corset" was raised in a pot. A good deacon had reared one, and as it had become rather troublesome, he killed it.—Mutton was a great treat in those parts; so he reserved one quarter for himself and one for the minister, and divided the remainder into smaller portions, and distributed it among their few neighbors. The minister's portion was placed in an outbuilding for safe keeping until the next day, but in the morning it was no where to be found; some one had stolen it, and the pail in which it was wrapped.

Greatly disappointed, the deacon and his wife resolved to make some amends for his loss to the minister, and so selected their nicest cheese, and placed it in a covered basket, and sent it; with a polite note by their two boys. It was berry thee, and the boys made frequent stops, both in going and coming. When they returned, great was the surprise of the deacon to find a note from the minister, cordially thanking him for the present of a quarter of mutton, and asking him to accept the gift contained in the basket as an expression of his regard.

"Mutton! mutton!" said the deacon; "he was probably thinking of the sheep I killed yesterday, when he wrote the note.—But let us examine the basket." He did so, and there was a flat stone! The deacon was a good man, but this roused his indignation, and he could not refrain from speaking harshly of such treatment from one he always considered his friend. By the advice of his wife, in the afternoon he called on the minister for an explanation, taking with him a small cut of mutton for a peace offering. The minister and his wife had just gone out, and as the deacon was talking with her little girl, he happened to look into an open pantry, and there spied the very quarter of mutton stolen from him the night previous; he knew it by the marks he had made in dressing it. Without another word he seized it and went home in great wrath, convinced that the minister was a thief, and determined to have nothing more to do with him. The minister on his return was equally indignant at the conduct of the deacon, but prudently resolved to say nothing about the matter.

For three weeks after the deacon and his wife were absent from church. Everybody wondered why; but he made no explanation, neither would the minister. Finally a meeting of the church members was called, with a determination to have the strange actions of the deacon explained, and he resolved to let the whole story out. He told the circumstance, and expressed great grief at what he considered the shameful conduct of the minister. The latter gentleman then made his statement. He said that the deacon's boys had brought him a quarter of mutton in a basket, and that in return he had placed there a neat family bible.—Everybody now looked at his neighbor, wondering what it could mean; some were of opinion that both were crazy, others thought of witchcraft. All was still as the grave for some minutes, until up rose a man formerly known as wicked Will, who had lately reformed, and had joined the church.

"Brethren," said he in a trembling voice, "I stole that quarter of mutton. On my home in the night I was chased by wolves, and climbed a tree for safety, where I had to stay until they went away in the morning. Being afraid to take the meat home by daylight, I hid it in the woods; but to make sure of it I stayed near the place, intending to carry it away early in the evening. While there the deacon's boys came along, and from my hiding place I heard them speaking of what had happened. I also found that it was too warm for the meat to keep during the day, and so, when they were busy gathering berries I dipped the cheese out of the basket and put in the meat. When they returned they stopped again, and hearing them speak of a present for the deacon, I examined the basket, and finding a nice package there, I thought it might be valuable, and took it out and put in the stone. But this is not all. Upon reaching home safely. I opened the package to examine my prize. While carelessly turning over the leaves, my eyes fell upon the passage—'Thou shalt not steal,' and from that moment I found no peace until I became a changed man."

Then the whole mystery was solved; the deacon and the minister were not long reconciled, but they heartily rejoiced together that their temporary loss of peace had resulted in such a good as the reformation of Wicked Will.

Don't Despise small Things.

Some years ago a gentleman visiting a farmer took from his pocket a small potato, which somehow had got in there at home. It was thrown out with a smile, and the farmer taking it in his hand to look at it, a curious little boy of twelve standing at his elbow asked him what it was. "O," said he, "nothing but a potato, my boy; take and plant it, and you shall have all that you can raise from it till you are free. The lad took it, and the farmer thought no more about it at the time. The boy, however, not despising small potatoes, carefully divided it into as many pieces as he could find eyes, and put them into the ground. The product was carefully put aside in the fall, planted in the spring, and so on till the third year, when the yield being good, the actual product was four hundred bushels! The farmer seeing the prospect that the [illegible] would by another year, enter [illegible] farm, asked as he returned from his [illegible]! Let us not despise small things.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 5, 1865.

Another year is gone, its events must henceforth be numbered with the things that are past. Thus year after year passes away, and the things that have transpired, whether for weal or for woe, leave their impress on the historic page, and are blotted (rather forgotten) only by the hand of Time. We are unable to give proper decisions on the importance or non-importance of any one of the transactions of the year. What appears to us important may sink into nothingness, while the trifle may magnify itself into greatness and become the engrossing topic of the future. That curse of nations, war, has not devastated much of our earth during this year. North America, Denmark and New Zealand are the countries that suffered principally from its effects. Mercifully we have been delivered, although often threatened to be involved in the troubles of the neighboring Republic. The United States and England are the only countries that have suffered commercially to any great extent during the year. The war caused a falling off of cotton supplies in England, which, for a time, caused distress in the manufacturing districts; but this distress induced the manufacturers to look elsewhere than to the United States for the raw material, and the consequence is that a supply has been provided in a great degree for the present, and the fear of any such future crisis in a manner prevented: hence out of this great evil has arisen a great good. Italy has been comparatively quiet during the year, arising more from fear of French interference than satisfaction with their domestic concerns. Poland has had its day of sorrow; its yoke is yet as heavy as ever—Russia still grinds its victim. France has done something towards settling the Roman question. French troops are to be withdrawn and the Pope left under the protection of the King of Italy. Rome, the once mistress of the world and the tyrant of the nations, is about to sink into insignificance—Florence is henceforth to be the capital of Italy, and all this, no doubt, at the bidding of Napoleon III. Mexico, too, has become a tributary, so to speak, to France. Maximillian is but the creature of the French Emperor. Spain appears not to manage her affairs to advantage. Her efforts to subdue the St. Domingo rebellion are, hitherto, ineffectual. The rest of Europe has undergone little change or suffered little commotion. Greece has received a King. Turkey has become more open for the advancement of civilization and the reception of the truth, while Russia has been extending her sway Eastward as well as strengthening her power Westward. China has had its civil commotion, but affairs there appear more satisfactory than at the begining of the year.

Ireland has had its riots, which show the unfriendly state of the religious factions of that unhappy island, and point out the necessity for some great change in the principles of both classes of professed religionists, before that good will may be expected between them.

The United States, however, are the great scene of historic events during this as well as the last revolution of time. The great rebellion, which has lasted almost four years, still continues to destroy and devastate that once happy and prosperous country. The centre of attraction, of both armies, during the year has been Richmond. General Grant, with a pertinacity almost amounting to stubborness, has held to the one great idea, during the whole year, of "on to Richmond:" and to attain this object has not failed to sacrifice the lives of thousands, whose bones lie on the bank of the Rapidan, at the Wilderness, and almost all along the way to where he now sits. And to oppose his progress, Lee has left thousands to fertilize the soil of Virginia. The Valley of the Shenandoah has witnessed deeds of death and plunder, such as are rarely recorded in the annals of warfare. While the west from Tennessee to Atlanta, and the south from Atlanta to Savanah, have been the fields of carnage and destruction. Charleston has undergone one of the greatest seiges recorded in history, and yet holds out. And Sumter, the scene of the first shot of the great Rebellion still witnesses and repels all the efforts of the North to subdue or silence it. Petersburg will be a name famous in history because of the struggle that has taken place before it. Here power and strategy have been exhibited in no common degree. Grant has had men and means; Lee position and skill. And now for months this spot has been literally ploughed and re-ploughed by the shells, balls, and mines of the opposing forces; what the result will be we cannot yet divine. On the whole the advantages appear on the side of the North. The South has been kept in check; their raids northward prevented; a large army has traversed their territory from side to side with little hindrance; several places have fallen before the victorious forces of the North, and two great armies are now drawing a coil around the fated city. We await the result. The determination of both parties, however, appears as strong as ever to gain their object since the commencement of the struggle. One thing is certain, that the rebellion is the death knell of slavery, and thus, without intending it, that curse of the United States will receive its death-blow from the very people who cherished it longest.

While the United States are endeavoring to discover the bond of union between them, and have been endeavoring to establish two independent republics, the British colonies in North America have been uniting themselves more closely, and endeavoring to form a confederation out of the discordant, dissimilated elements of the Provinces; while one people are madly using every effort to get away from each other, we have been doing much to unite ourselves more closely. This was brought about in a great degree by the state into which our political parties had brought the affairs of the Provinces. The two parties, Reformers and Conservatives, had become so nearly balanced in the House that no business of importance could be proceeded with, when it was found necessary to form some coalition of parties in order to get rid of the unsatisfactory state into which politics had been forced. This coalition proposed, and will probably complete, the union of the Provinces, and is all probability completes the Inter-Colonial Railway as a means of communication between the maritime provinces and the west.

The unsatisfactory state of the finances of the United States has rendered the traffic with those States less advantageous than is desirable, and the spirit of speculation which pervades the minds of all classes has caused such a demand in the money market as that the rates of interest have become so high as to cripple trade and ruin thousands. This is also putting the property of the country into the hands of the more cautious and safe and careful speculators, and will eventually, if proceeded in, change the whole face of domestic affairs in this country.

The discovery of Gold in Canada; the disaster on the Grand Trunk at St. Hilaire, and the Fenian outrages of the 5th of November, are the principal events of the year connected with us.

The first will be of advantage to few except those of large capital; the second will bring about greater care in the travelling facilities of the country; the third event has caused the taking of precautionary measures for the prevention of any plot or commotion that Feniarism might try to bring about.

We have thus endeavored to give a synopsis of the events of the year 1864. We trust that 1865, its successor, will be more prolific in great efforts to bring about a cessation of hostilities, and that at the end thereof we may have less strife to recount, and more unanimity and good-will among nations and men to narrate.

THE NEW JAIL.

This new edifice which was found necessary for the accomodation of this County, and for the comfort of the human beings that may be committed to it, is now almost completed. The workmen are at present bestowing the last coat of paint, and the last fittings are being rapidly added to it. The greatest praise is due the contractor, H. Grant, Esq., for the energy, dispatch, and satisfactory manner in which he has completed the work. Through his kindness we were conducted through the building, and were enabled to take a view of both inside and outside of the work. The building is 70 ft. by 43. The walls from the plinth are 22 ft. high. The foundation is 4 ft. below the surface line, and 3 ft. thick; above the plinth the walls are 2½ ft. The outside of the wall is all of coursed work, of stone from Bobcaygeon; the inside is lined with white brick. The roof is covered with slate from the Walton Slate Quarry, which are said to be unequalled by any other slate. They are all laid in mortar, thus making the neatest roof possible, and at the same time very durable.

The old Jail walls have been raised three feet higher, and coped with wood; the yard is also separated in divisions by protection walls of brick, completely excluding the possibility of egress to the gateways of the outer walls, unless by scaling these first walls. The principal entrance is from the Court House, through a passage 30 by 23 ft. of brick, and the grated entrance of iron, into the belly of the building weighs 12½ cwt. On one side of this passage is the Jailor's office, and also store rooms for the convenience of the building. On the other side, a doorway opens into the yard, and a bathing room, supplied with every necessary washing apparatus for cleansing those who may be in need of an application of soap and water before admittance into the interior of the sacred enclosure. On the lower flat there are two rows of vaulted cells, on one side what are called double cells—on the other side, single. The outside facings and Jambs of the cells are of stone from the T'p of Dummer, many of which are 7 ft. 3 in. long, 2 ft. wide, and 2 ft. thick, and weigh 6 tons, the cells are all lined with brick. The grates of the cells are of strong round inch bars with cross bars of 2½ by 1 in., the locks being set in the solid stone.—Thus rendering any possibility of escape beyond hope. The cells and ward passages are floored with oak. There is ample provision made for ventilation, each ward having several ventilators—showing that due regard has been had to the health of the unfortunates who may chance to take up their residence from time to time in the castle.

On the second flat the landing is intended for a chapel, due regard being had to the arrangements to bring the inmates both above and below, within sight and hearing of whoever may be their instructor at stated times; to the west of this chapel are two rooms for hospitals, one for each sex, and to the east of the chapel two more wards of cells of similar construction to those below. At the back part of the building is a cistern capable of containing 500 barrels of water, and in it a forcing pump which supplies two large water vats, calculated to discharge their contents to the desirable parts of the building by means of pipes, affording means for cleansing and use wherever and whenever needed. The inner doors are double, barred and bolted. The outer doors are also double, with sheet iron between the wood, and bolted with 288 bolts each, evidently with a design to the substantial. The plan of the building was by T. F. Nicholls, Esq., County Engineer, and reflects great credit on the taste and judgment of that gentleman. We learn also that he has watched the progress of the work carefully and continuously, and must be proud to see it brought to such a satisfactory finish.

The greatest praise is due to the contractor, and when we mention that the work has been completed five months sooner than the terms of contract imposed, it will be seen that we accord him no more than his due. The workmanship, however, is there, a lasting monument of his skill, and the satisfactory manner in which that work has been done testifies to the wisdom of the Council in awarding to him the contract, as all the building committee witness that the work has been done in a manner exceeding their expectations.

The Provincial Inspector of Prisons considers that the building surpasses anything of the kind in the Province; neither the Lindsay jail nor Toronto jail at all comparing with it, either in convenience, appearance, or substantiality. The original contract was $12,250, additional expenses $3,500, making a total of about $14,000, a considerable sum for the county to have to pay for the suppression of crime, but at the same time in the present case wisely expended, for which we have a reasonable offset in the work now almost completed.

We may further add that the members of the County Council deserve their due meed of praise for the manner in which they attended to the letting of the contract and the outlay upon it. Very few councils can give so satisfactory an account of their stewardship as the one which has managed the business of the county during 1864, and few if any, better deserve to be re-instated.

In no way can the people better show their appreciation of the services rendered, than by unanimously sending them back, and we trust that no undue love of change will induce the rejection of any one who faithfully and uprightly has discharged the duties devolving upon him during the past, for no new man can enter into and occupy the places of the old one until he has acquainted himself with the working of the situation he is assuming.

TOWN ELECTIONS.

EAST WARD.

In this Ward Messrs. W. Lundy, D. McNaughton, C. Ormond, and T. Chambers, were the candidates.

Mr. Lundy not being desirous of running, at 25 minutes to one o'clock resigned, taking advantage of some question of legality; consequently the other three were declared duly elected. At that time the poll stood:—

Lundy	19	Ormond	19
McNaughton	23	Chambers	11

CENTRE WARD.

In this ward there appears to have been numerous aspirants—Geo. Tanner, A. Williams, W. Helm, Jas. Stevenson, R. Kingan, Walter Patterson, assuming the offensive. At the close of the poll they stood as follows:—

Stevenson	59	Tanner	31
Helm	55	Patterson	20
Williams	47	Kingan	11

SOUTH WARD.

E. Chamberlain	12	E. Burnham	14
T. Leonard	15	W. Coulter	4

NORTH WARD.

W. Toole	102	H. Lawson	93
John Whyte	81	R. Walton	31
		E. Wilson	63

The Councillors for 1865 are:—

East Ward,—Messrs. D. McNaughton, C. Ormond, T. Chambers.

South Ward—Messrs. E. Burnham, E. Chamberlain, T. Leonard.

Centre Ward—Messrs. Jas. Stevenson, W Helm, A. Williams.

North Ward—Messrs. W. Toole, H. Lawson, J. Whyte.

The elections passed off very quietly, the only hurry or bustle being to get in voters.

ASHBURNHAM ELECTION.

The old Councillors have all but one been re-elected. The new Council will consist of Messrs. Robt. D. Roger, H. Bennet, H. T. Strickland, Wm. McGregor, and John Ludgate.

The election passed off very quietly, those present discussing their Municipal matters in good humor and friendliness. There was no more than five proposed within the first hour, and no apparent desire for proposing any more being exhibited by those present. These five were declared duly elected.

North Monaghan Township Election.

The following are the members elect for 1865:—

Ward No. 1	.....	J. W. Gilmour, Esq.
" 2	.....	W. Collins.
" 3	.....	W. Robson.
" 4	.....	J. Dundas.
" 5	.....	G. Lockie.

OTONABEE ELECTION.—In Ward No. 4, E. Ingram, Esq., was returned by acclamation. A better choice could not be made.

MAYORS.

Hamilton—C. Magill, Esq.
Toronto—F. H. Medcalf re-elected, majority for him 1531.
London—D. Glass, Esq.
Brantford—James Wayne, Esq.
Stratford—P. R. Jarvis, Esq.
Belleville—Dr. Holden.
Ingersoll—Adam Oliver, Esq.
Whitby—N. W. Brown, Esq.
Woodstock—John McWhinnie.

Dunkins Act Carried in Otonabee.

Majority for bill	112.

We learn also that the majority might have been much larger but the friends of temperance were confident of success from the very first: this was strengthened on the first day by the fact that very few were opposing the bill, consequently there was no necessity to go out. Two noble minded Tavernkeepers, Messrs. McLaughlin, Keene, and Morton, on the River road, voted for prohibition and brought their friends to vote also, thus setting an example worthy of being imitated by others of the same business.

Frank Leslie's Lady's Magazine for January 1865 is now on our table. It contains a well executed colored fashion plate: a four paged engraving of the latest styles of dinner, evening, carriage, and walking dresses for January, besides a variety of other articles of dress. The engravings are numerous.—The reading matter alone is worth the subscription.

Every number contains patterns of the full size, of the most fashionable article of female dress, thus making every lady her own dressmaker.

TERMS:—One copy $3.50. Four copies to one post office, $14.00. One copy each of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper and Lady's Magazine to one post office $7.00.

DEDICATING TEMPLARS HALL AT INDIAN VILLAGE, RICE LAKE.—About three months ago a Lodge of Good Templars was organized amongst the Indians at Rice Lake, they now number about seventy members, and have fitted up a new Hall which will be dedicated on the 12th inst., at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, connected with which services there will be a public tea. Good music by the Indians will enliven the proceedings. Go one, go all, and encourage the Indians.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.—We had intended to have noticed the distribution made by this society to the poor on Christmas last, but owing to the pressure of other matter we have been compelled to defer any extensive notice until next week.

THE PASSPORT SYSTEM.

TRAFFIC INTERRUPTED.

The American papers led us to believe that Mr. Seward would either have withdrawn his recent order or not enforced it. But we learn from those places more immediately concerned, that the authorities are rigidly enforcing the order.

At Detroit, and at the Suspension Bridge every man, woman and child passing into the States from Canada, through passenger as well as residents of the Province, are stopped and their passports demanded. Many consequently were turned back, not having taken the precaution to procure the needful document. Such a system must seriously injure the passenger traffic of the great thoroughfares, and injure those investments in the eyes of capitalists. The unwise course of those who have brought about such a state of affairs is now visible to all. The cost of travelling is by this system greatly increased, and a few favored individuals only benefitted. A Mr. Cameron is issuing passports at the rate of 30 per day, at a cost of $1.50 each. These tickets have to be viseed by another individual who charges $1.00, so that a trip to any of the American towns will cost $2.50 additional to the railway fare.

The following from the Globe is much to the point in the present position of our communication with the United States:—

"We cannot help regarding the introduction of the passport system as a piece of stupidity on the part of the Washington Government. Mr. Seward will not be able to prevent residents crossing the frontier by this means. The passport system has been abandoned in Europe even by Austria and France, it having been found utterly inoperative to prevent the transit of political conspirators. Its introduction on our frontier is utterly useless: and we hope that our Government will take immediate steps to represent the matter to the Government of Washington, and have it abolished. If Mr. Seward will not be reasonable on the subject it will be necessary for our Government to take other steps. We can find a score of ways of making the Americans feel the advantage of treating us fairly. We hope that no such warfare may arise, but that Mr. Seward will see the propriety of abolishing negotiations which are a serious injury to our people, while they are of no benefit to their neighbours. Our Government are doing all they can in their power to prevent raids from our shores, and there is no reason to doubt that they will be successful. At all events the passport system will not help them; and we have full right to demand that while we are doing our duty in the premises, no burdensome penalties shall be laid upon us.

AMERICAN NEWS.

There is no war news this week. The holidays may have extended to all classes, and army and reporters be thus permitted to have a little repose.

General Sherman will no doubt give his men some rest before he undertakes anything more, and as there is nothing being done by the others, we must rest satisfied with civil gossip for a few days.

FORT FISHER.

The retirement of the Federals from before Fort Fisher takes us by surprise; we cannot account for the act. The place had been bombarded by a powerful iron-clad fleet of 52 vessels, which hour after hour had thrown shells into it at the rate of 115 per minute. The guns of the fort had been silenced or else did not deign to return the fire. General Butler was also enabled to land from his transports 3000 men. A portion of these did some execution, capturing the water battery and taking five guns and 250 prisoners. The 142nd New York got so near that the guns of the fort could not be depressed enough to bear upon them, and they actually took away a flag from the fort. Other troops were ordered to their support, and had advanced a short distance when they received orders to retire.

Gen. Butler, in his letter to Admiral Porter, explains that the fort mounted seventeen guns, whose concentric fire bore upon a narrow neck of land: that out of these seventeen guns only two had been dismounted by the fire of the fleet, consequently he deemed the place too strong for assault, as the storming parties would have been swept down by the enemy's fire. If this be the case, it is rather curious that the 142nd New York, apparently without any loss, got so near to the fort as is set forth, and a portion of them actually into one of its redoubts.

Those who defend General Butler, assert that the confederates were only in their bomb-proofs, and could at once have rushed to the guns. Perhaps they could. But could the fleet do nothing to prevent them? There appears some grounds to find fault with Butler for lack of energy and pluck.

The Whig states that Archibald McLennan, Captain of the ferry-steamer "Gazelle," plying between Kingston and Wolfe Island, was accidently killed on the 22nd inst. It appears that the "Gazelle" got frozen in about half way between Garden and Wolfe Islands. In the evening the steamer "Watertown" broke through the ice and came to her assistance. She hitched a line to the "Gazelle" for the purpose of towing her to the city, and while it was being made fast, the deceased stooped into the wheel-box of his steamer for the purpose of clearing it of ice, and the wheels beginning to revolve in consequence of the "Watertown" moving ahead, he was carried around and instantly killed.

From the Globe we learn that, on Sunday afternoon, a man named Timothy Cashman, residing on Edward street, left his home, and not having returned, a search was made for him yesterday, when his lifeless body was found in a creek on the west side of college avenue. Deceased was of intemperate habits, and as the water was frozen it is supposed that he died from exposure. An inquest was held on the body and a verdict as above given.

From the Lindsay Post, we learn that Mr. W. H. Thompson, Inn keeper, Cannington, while quelling a disturbance in his barroom on Wednesday last, was stabbed several times in the arm, back and breast. His ruffianly assailant was at once taken into custody, and is now, doubtless, safely housed in Whitby Jail. We have not learned his name.

THE HAMILTON TIMES.—This enterprising paper which is published in the city of Hamilton, has commenced the new year, considerably enlarged in size, and robed in a new dress, which has added greatly to its appearance; this speaks well for the publishers. We wish them success.

ACCIDENT AT COPESTOWN.—About eight o'clock on Tuesday night last a freight engine and tender were precipitated down an embankment across a mill dam just west of Copestown. The engine driver escaped injury, though two trainsmen on the freight train were very much, though not dangerously cut and bruised. A broken rail is said to have caused the mishap.

Temperance Convention.

At a Preliminary Meeting held in Montreal, December 16th, 1864.

The Hon. James Ferrier in the Chair.

It was resolved to convene a General Provincial Convention, to consist of representatives of the several Temperance Organizations of Canada, Clergymen, and the friends of Temperance generally, to be held in Montreal, on Friday afternoon at two o'clock, January 27th, 1865, in Mr. Becket's long room, 38 Great St. James Street, Montreal.

As the interest of the entire Province are involved in the success of this Convention, it is earnestly hoped that as many as can make it convenient will be present from all parts of Canada so as to give the Convention a truly Provincial character.

The present must be regarded as a critical period in the history of the Temperance Reformation. The means of its advancement and consolidation being placed within our reach, of which, if we do not avail ourselves, the future effect will be disastrous, but if wisely and effectively taken advantage of, the good may be incalculable.

OBJECT:—The best and most available means of carrying out the Temperance Act of 1864, throughout the Province, and for other kindred questions.

COMMITTEE OF MANAGEMENT.—Hon. M. Cameron, Quebec; Hon. James Ferrier, Dr. Dawson, James Court, Esq., John Dougall, Esq., J. A. Mathewson, Esq., G. B. Mair, Esq., J. C. Beukes, Esq., J. S. LABOUR v. PROPERTY.

WHICH CONFERS THE RIGHT OF VOTING?

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

MR. EDITOR,—Our rights in society are numerous; some of which are the right of enjoying life and property—the right of enjoying physical and mental powers: but the greatest right of all, and without which there is, in fact, no right, is the right of taking a part in the making of the laws by which we are governed. This right is founded in the law of nature: it springs out of the very principle of civil society. Minors are excluded from this right, so are criminals and insane persons &c.

In a late number of the Review it is advocated with a zeal befitting a better cause, that property confers the right of voting! Now property springs from labour, and not labour from property; so that it there is to be a distinction here, we ought to give the preference to labour. All men are equal by nature; nobody denies that they all ought to be equal in the eye of the law; but how, Mr. Review, are they to be thus equal, it the laws begin by suffering some to enjoy this right to the full extent, and refusing an equal enjoyment to others? It is the duty of every man to defend his country against an enemy, a duty imposed by the law of nature, as well as that of civil society; and without the recognition of this duty, there can exist no independent nation and no civil society. Yet how are you to maintain that this is the duty of all men, when you advocate the propriety of giving to the squire, or the aristocratic shopkeeper, two, three or half a dozen votes, while you give only one to the honest labourer or artizan. Upon what principle are you to contend for equality in the eye of the law, when you allow to some a greater number of votes, than you allow to others. I am afraid, Mr. Editor, that the Review ought to be numbered with that class of idolaters, (alas! too common in our day,) whose object of worship is "the golden calf."

In cases of civil commotion, Mr. Editor, the matter comes still more home to us. On what ground is the Rich man to call the artisan from the workshop, or the labourer from the field to join the Militia &c., if he refuses to the labourer and artizan an equal right in the making of the laws of his Country? Why are they to risk their lives here? Perhaps Mr. Review will answer.—"To uphold the laws, and to protect property?" What! laws in the making of, or assenting to, which, they have not been allowed an equal share,—property, of which they are said to possess little or none! What! Mr. Review, compel men to come forth and risk their lives for the protection of property, and then in the same breath tell them that they must not be put upon an equal footing with the rich in the making of the laws, because, and only because, they have not as much property as the rich! Not because they have committed any crime—not because they are idle or profligate—not because they are vicious in any way—but solely because they have not the same amount of property as the rich man: and at the same time compel them to come forth and risk their lives for the protection of property. What an absurdity!

Finally Mr. Editor, in order that every man may act well his part as a member of the community, he ought clearly to understand what his rights are, for on the enjoyment of these depends his duty: right goes before duty, as value received goes before payment. I know well that just the contrary is taught by those who fatten on the toil of the many; and the doctrine preached by the Review and others of his stamp, is just the same as that once taught by Horsley, the tory Bishop of Rochester, to the Reformers and Dissenters of England and Scotland, that all that the masses have to do with the laws is just to obey them.

I am, Mr. Editor,
Yours Truly,
NONCONFORMIST.

A Prohibitory Law for the County of Peterborough.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

WASHINGTON TEMPLE, No. 379.
Lakefield, Dec. 28th, 1864.

DEAR SIR,—I have been requested by our Temple to communicate with the friends of Temperance, and lovers of good order throughout the County, soliciting their co-operation in a united and decided move for the passage of the Prohibitory law in this County. We acknowledge that all honor is due to those Municipalities that are moving in this important matter, and do also entertain the most sanguine hopes of securing the passage of the Act in Douro; but think that the entire County (and Town as well) of Peterboro should move in a matter of such vital importance, so as to effect the greatest possible good.

Difficulties like the following present themselves, which might be avoided in a great measure by having the Law for the County; one township suppresses the sale, an adjacent township or village does not. Now this throws monopoly into the hands of the vender of strong drink in places that do not suppress the evil, and leaves it an easy matter for those persons disposed to drink, to obtain the evil by merely crossing the street.

And now in conclusion we do say to the various Temperance organizations there is no room for supineness or indifference in this great work. If we are true to our professions, we will work incessantly for the accomplishment of the end aimed at—the driving forever from our land the blighting influences of intemperance.

I am, Dear Sir,
Yours, &c.,
W. J. SMYTH,
Secretary.

TERRIBLE RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

(From the Cleveland Leader, Dec. 24.)

It is our painful duty to record another terrible railroad calamity, by which five persons lost their lives, and a large number have been seriously, if not fatally, injured.

As our readers have already learned, the accident happened to the mail train on the Cleveland and Pittsburg road, which left this city at eight o'clock yesterday morning. The train had arrived as a small trestlework bridge, about a mile north of Hudson, when the locomotive struck a rail which, it is supposed, had been broken or displaced by the frost. The locomotive, baggage car and the first passenger coach passed safely over, but the second coach struck the bridge, entirely demolishing it, and precipitating the second and third coaches into the ravine—the second breaking in two and falling on the west side of the bridge, where it was entirely destroyed by fire; and the third falling on the east side, where it now lies, pretty badly smashed up. After passing the bridge, the first passenger coach caught fire from the upsetting of the stoves, and was completely consumed.

The conductor of the train, Mr. O. F. Jenkins, had a narrow escape from death or serious injury. He had just stepped into the forward passenger car as the accident happened. Had he remained in the second car a moment longer the painful duty of chronicling his death might have been ours.

There were a number of soldiers on the train, several of whom, we understand, received slight contusions and scratches. It is reported that these soldiers left Cleveland with [illegible] bayonets. If this be so, it is the greatest wonder in the world that no greater number were fatally injured.

As soon as they could extricate themselves from the wreck those of the passengers who were uninjured immediately set to work removing the dead and those who were wounded and unable to free themselves from the mass of seats, cushions, broken windows, burning coals, &c., under which they were buried. Among the first taken out was Oliver H. Perry, who had with him his gun and a valuable dog, being on a hunting excursion—a pastime which he dearly loved. It is said he would go, in the cold bleak winter, and stay several days in the woods, with no shelter but a hut made of boughs. A pocket-book, containing several hundred dollars in greenbacks, thirteen dollars in silver and a receipt for some kind of dog medicine was found, which, it is supposed, belonged to Mr. Perry.

The most melancholy and heart-rending bereavement is that of the little daughter of J. H. Robinson. Her father, mother and self were on the way from their home in Michigan to make a holiday visit to friends in Pennsylvania, when death, unheralded and unthought of, thus rudely tore them from her, and she is left alone in this wide world, an orphan. Her lamentations were piteous in the extreme.

Some of the wounded were taken to houses in the vicinity of the accident; but the dead and the greater portion of the injured were removed to Hudson as speedily as possible, where the killed were washed and laid out, side by side, in an unoccupied hotel, and the wounded received every attention, medical and otherwise, at the hands of the good people of Hudson.

During the day, yesterday, the city was wild with excitement, and the telegraph offices and depot were besieged by anxious friends and persons eager to learn the particulars of the sad affair, which has cast a deep gloom over many a household. The news of the calamity spread through the country like wild fire, and hundreds of people flocked to the scene of the accident. The town of Hudson was literally filled with country conveyances of every description.

At the first intimation of the accident, wrecking trains were immediately sent out, which were soon followed by trains containing bridge materials and the necessary implements for the erection of a new bridge. The company intend to have the road in running order in the shortest possible time. In the meanwhile arrangements have been perfected for the transfer of passengers and baggage from one side of the bridge to the other.

The company are not in the least to blame for the accident, as the bridge was nearly new and the road in perfect order, the cause of the accident being clearly the breaking of a rail by frost.

Fatal Accident.

BOWMANVILLE, Dec. 30.—Mr. Russell, an old and respectable inhabitant of this neighbourhood, was killed yesterday when on his way to town, in crossing the track, by a locomotive and tender of the Grand Trunk Railroad. It appears they were running backwards, and the tender catching the cutter and horse, both were completely smashed up and carried some distance up the line. The poor old gentleman was thrown into the ditch. It is stated that the parties in charge of the engine stopped and threw the remains of the cutter off the track, and went on, leaving the unfortunate man to die. He was picked up shortly afterwards by a person in the place and conveyed to his residence. Medical skill proved unavailing. He breathed his last about two hours after the occurrence. He leaves a large number of relatives and an extensive circle of friends to mourn his melancholy death. An inquest will be held to-day.—Globe.

Another Steamer Lost.

NORTH AMERICA GONE DOWN

197 LIVES LOST.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—The steamer Arago arrived here last night. She fell in with, off Egg Harbour, the bark Mary E. Libby, of Portland, and took from her Captain Marshman, of the steamship North America, foundered at sea, and 47 of his officers, passengers and crew.

The North America left New Orleans on the 16th December, with 203 sick soldiers and 12 cabin passengers, and a crew of 44 men. She sprung a leak on the 22nd, and at 2 p.m. spoke the bark Mary E. Libby, which promised to stay and receive everybody aboard, if necessary. At 2.30 the water put the fires out. The boats were got ready at 3.30, and the first boat started with the chief engineer and all the lady passengers. Six boat loads were got aboard, and the seventh boat left at dark, with the purser (Pettite) and eight men, all of whom are supposed to be lost, as they never reached the bark. The eighth and last boat, with the captain, first and second officers, and eight men, left the North America at 7.30 p.m. The boats were hoisted aboard of the bark at 9 p.m., it being impossible to return to the steamer that night. The bark then made sail and proceeded toward the steamer. Her lights were all in sight when about six miles distant. About 1 a.m. the lights disappeared suddenly, and the steamer is supposed to have sunk. At daylight nothing was in sight except a water cask. She then made sail and cruised all around until noon, when the bark proceeded on her course.

Sixty-two passengers were saved and 197 lost.

PEACE MOVEMENT.—The New York papers have despatches from Washington, stating that Messrs. Francis P. Blair, sen. and his son Montgomery, have gone to Richmond, and it is understood that their errand is one of peace—in other words, to see whether any termination of the Northern struggle is now attainable. The New York Tribune says:—"We presume their mission is not in terms official; but it were absurd to pretend—considering who they are, and what are their personal relations to the President—that it is unauthorised."

The Quebec Fencible Case.

(From the Quebec News.)

It is our painful duty to record this morning one of the most deplorable accidents which has occurred in this city for some years past, and which has resulted in the death by poisoning of a most amiable and promising young man, while the lives of his two companions are all but de-paired of. Yesterday afternoon, about three o'clock, the three above-mentioned parties, whose names are Henry Murney, son of the late Hon. Wm. B. Murney, for years a member of the Legislative Assembley and Legislative Council, Geo. Rankin, son of Arthur Rankin, Esq., M. P.P., and Charles Scott, son of the late W. S. Scott, Esq., agent of Molson's line of steamboats, and brother of Mr. Scott, manager of the Express company, who were staying at the Russell Hotel, started to promenade St. John street. On their return to the hotel, they stopped in the drug store of Messrs. Stanton & Co., corner of St. John and Stanislaus streets, and ordered a stimulating drink made up of chemical compounds. The elder Mr. Stanton, who is represented one of the best chemists of the Province, was absent, but his son, who is his partner, was present, and made up the potions as ordered. Unfortunately he mistook one bottle for another, and gave his patients a draught of digitalis—a deadly poison instead of gention bitters, as he intended. The party had no sooner left the store than the effects of the poison began to manifest itself. Each of them complained, on leaving the store, that their fingers and the extremities of their toes were affected alike; that a burning sensation, as if pierced by needles, was troubling them, but did not suspect for a moment that they had been poisoned. Although the distance from Mr. Stanton's drug Store to Russell's Hotel is scarcely one hundred yards, yet the deadly draught had such an effect that Mr. Murney fell twice from exhaustion before reaching Palace street, and immediately after entering the hotel his companion, Mr. Rankin, fell senseless on the table in the reading room. They were immediately conveyed to their respective rooms and medical aid called in. The noxious draught had, however, taken too deep a hold, and although Dr. Marsden and one or two other physicians were in immediate attendance, and the stomach-pump and a free application of antidotes were used, yet they were found of no avail. Mr. Murney, after suffering for an hour-and-a-half, expired, while his friends, Mr. Rankin and Mr. Scott lay in a very low condition, their medical attendant, Dr. Marsden, remaining with them all night.

The news of the melancholy and fatal accident soon spread around the city, and the hotel was crowded with anxious and enquiring friends of the victims.

Mr. Murney, the deceased, as well as Mr. Scott and Mr. Rankin, were all connected with mining companys on the Chaudiere. During their stay in town the St. Louis or Russell House was their stopping place, and while here they had formed a large circle of acquaintances by whom they were generally esteemed.

At a late hour last night Mr. Scott was reported out of danger, while Mr. Rankin was said to be improving. The dose taken by each was sufficient to kill any ordinary man, but as they are in the prime of life it is hoped that their vigor and strength of constitution will bear them over it. Mr. Murney's untimely end will be regretted not only by his friends in Quebec, but by his relatives and acquaintances in the Upper Province, to which he belonged. The Coroner will hold an inquest on his remains to-day. We did not learn that any steps were taken to arrest the druggist, Mr. Stanton, although it is clearly evident that the poisoning was an act of culpable negligence.

THE FENIANS.

THE CAUSE OF STRAINING.
THE CAUSE OF STRAINING.
THE CAUSE OF STRAINING.

If those who suffer either Constipation, Indigestion, Costiveness, Piles, Dyspepsia, &c., would use Dr. Radway's Regulating Pills, in place of the common aloe pills, they would avoid the unnatural habit of straining and quickly rid themselves of the disease. This straining that is forced upon the patient when at stool, is caused by the irritation of the mucus membrane of the lower bowels. Bear in mind, that all of these common pills of aloes, &c., never dissolve in the stomach or exert the least influence on the liver, but are carried to the lower bowels, and there, by their drastic and unnatural influence occasion irritation, and instead of securing a natural movement or evacuation, induce an irritation discharge, which involves cramps, wrenching pains, straining, tenesmus, frequently sending the patient to the water closet on futile errands. DR. RADWAY'S PILLS, are the only safe pills to take—they act directly on the Liver and purify the blood. One to six boxes will cure any disease that the most popular of pills are advertised to cure.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Feeble Constitutions.—Thousands of persons with weak constitutions, die early from sheer debility. Nature should, in such cases, be assisted with Holloway's Pills. They give tone and stamina to the system, and vigor to the circulation.

Sold at the manufactories, No. 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and No. 244 Strand, London, and by all druggists. If the reader of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, 80 Maiden Lane, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many druggists will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other person's make. 25c., 62½c., and $1 per box.

TOM THUMB ECLIPSED.—We read there has been a race between the New York showmen to obtain possession of one George Washington Nutt, who is said to be several inches shorter than General Tom Thumb, and that P. T. Barnum has succeeded in getting him for three years for $30,000, board and expenses. Is it not a great thing to be a small man! and is it not equally as great to have a Medicine that can be depended upon for curing colds, rheumatism, burns, bruises, summer compl

SCOTTISH AMERICAN JOURNAL.

THIS Enterprising and widely Circulated weekly journal will commence the opening chapters of a new story, on Saturday, Nov. 26, 1864, entitled

SON AND HEIR.

This charming story has made a profound sensation throughout Great Britain; receiving the encomiums of the leading British press.

The London Saturday Review pronounces Son and Heir superior to anything of the kind offered to the British public for many years.

The critics are quarreling over the question, "Who is the author of Son and Heir?" but as this must remain a secret for the present, all statements as to the authorship are mere guess work. In due time the name of the brilliant author will be made known to the public.

As the publication of this beautiful story on this side the Atlantic will be confined exclusively to the Scottish American Journal, the publisher has concluded to print an extraordinary edition of the paper containing the first chapters in order that new subscribers may obtain the story complete. The cost of the English edition is $25 of our currency. By subscribing for the Scottish American Journal for one year the public may obtain the story—besides reaping the benefit of its

Extensive Summary of Scottish News;
English Miscellaneous News;
Choice Excerpts and Essays from the leading British Periodicals;
Editorials on the leading Questions of the day
Summary of Events of the week—prepared with care, and entirely reliable;
A weekly list of the prices of Produce and Provisions in New York City; and a great variety of miscellaneous matter for family reading, of a quality only to be found in the columns of a paper of the known respectability of the Scottish American Journal

Poetry.

OLD WINTER IS COME.

Old Winter is come at last—alack!
How cold and icy is he!
He cares not a pin for a shivering back,
He's a saucy old chap to white and black,
He whistles his ditties with a wonderful knack
For a jolly old fellow is he.

A witty old fellow this old Winter is,
A mighty old fellow of glee!
He cracks his jokes on the pretty sweet miss,
The winky old maiden audit to kiss,
And freezes the dew of their lips—for this
Is the way with such fellows as he!

Old Winter's a frolicsome blade, I wot
He is wild in his humor, and free—
He'll whistle along for the want of thought,
And set all the warmth of our furs at nought,
And ruffle the lace the pretty girls bought,
For a frolicsome fellow is he!

Old Winter is blowing his guests along,
And merrily shaking the tree!
From morning to night he will sing his song,
Now moaning and short—now howling and long;
His voice is loud, and his lungs are strong,
A merry old fellow is he.

Old Winter's a wicked old chap, I ween—
As wicked as ever you'll see—
He withers the flowers so fresh and green,
And he bites the pet nose of the miss of sixteen,
As she flippantly walks in maidenly sheen—
A wicked old fellow is he!

Old Winter is a tough old fellow for blows,
As tough as ever you'll see,
He'll rip up your trosters, and rend your clothes,
And stiffen your limbs from fingers to toes,
He minds not the cry of his friends or his foes
A driving old fellow is he!

A cunning old fellow is Winter, they say,
A cunning old fellow is he!
He peeps in the crevices day by day,
To see how we're passing our time away,
And marks all our doing from grave to gay.
I'm afraid he's peeping at me.

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

A countryman walked into the office of lawyer Barns one day, and began his application—

Barns, I have come to get your advice in a case that is giving me some trouble.

Well, what is the matter?

Suppose now, said the client, that a man had one spring of water on his land, and his neighbor living below him should build a dam across the creek through both farms, and was to back the water up into the man's spring, what ought to be done?

Sue him, sir, sue him by all means, said the lawyer, who always became excited in proportion to the aggravation of his clients' case.

You can easy recover heavy damages, sir, and the law will make him pay well for it. Just give me the case, and I'll bring the money from him; and if he hasn't great property it will break him up, sir.

But stop, Barns, cried the terrified applicant for legal advice, it's I that have built the dam, and it's neighbor Jones that owns the spring, and he threatens to sue me.

The keen lawyer hesitated a moment before he tacked his ship, and kept on.

Ah! well, sir, you say you built a dam across that creek. What sort of a dam was it, sir?

It was a mill-dam.

A mill-dam for grinding grain was it?

Yes, it was just that.

And it is a good neighborhood mill, is it?

So it is, sir, and you may well say so.

And all your neighbors bring their grain to be ground, do they?

Yes, sir, all but Jones.

Then it is a great public convenience, is it not?

To be sure it is. I would not have built it but for that.

And now, said the old lawyer, you told me that man Jones is complaining just because the water from the dam happens to put back into this little spring, and he is now threatening to sue you. Well, all I have to say is, to let him sue, and he'll rue the day as sure as my name is Barns.

CONSTITUTIONAL OPINION.

Sambo and Dinah were made on India rubber about the time when the war commence. Dinah was so happy that she work harder than ever at her washing an' ironing; and Sembo was so happy that he gave up white-washing entirely, and spent his ruin and politics all that Dinah earned. He soon became an uncommon drunkard, quarrelled with Dinah and left her, because she refused to give him any more money. After violating his constitution for more than three years, he returned, sick but not contrite, and asked to be received again; but Dinah was inexorable.

"Now, Dinah, honey, be so good as to 'muff die cruel war be obar."

"Obar! It is obar."

"Obar! What?"

"It is obar three years, you black rumpig!"

Sambo now plied a husband's right to govern, and being up to the spirit of the age, he said:—

"Dinah, gal, I had suffered some, and now dis chile wants to come back, on de basis ob de Constitution and de Union."

"Yah, yah!" said Dinah, "ye can't foul me on polytics. All gubberment describes its jus powers from the consent ob de gubbarned; and I don't consent. So ye may jus go. Clar de kitchen!"

STORY WITH A MORAL.—A young man who was paying special attention to a young lady, met with the following incident during one of his visits:—

Being invited into the parlor to await the lady's appearance, he entertained himself as best he might for some time, and was becoming very weary, when a little girl about five years old slipped in and began a conversation with him.

"I can always tell," said she, "when you are coming to our house."

"You can?" he replied, "and how do you tell it?"

"Why, when you are going to be here Julia laughs to sing and get good; and she gives me cake, and pie, and anything I want, and she sings so sweetly—when I speak to her she smiles so pleasantly. I wish you would stay here all the while; then I would have a good time. She gets mad, and if I ask her for anything she slaps and bangs me about."

This was a power to the young man.—"Fools and children tell the truth," quoted he; and taking his hat he left, and returned no more.

MORAL.

Parents wishing their ill-natured daughters married should keep their small children out of the parlor when strangers are there.

There seems to be no doubt that Gen. Thomas is hard pressed by Hood. The former has had to abandon his strong position at Franklin, where he had gained a victory and retreated upon Nashville, which he covers, and where a great battle is expected to take place.

BE WARNED IN TIME.

ALL parties purchasing my Pills and Ointment for their several complaints are respectfully warned against purchasing either Pills or Ointment purporting to be my preparations, that have a United States Stamp around the Boxes and Pots. There is no Treaty between the people of the States and the Home Government, therefore an United States Stamp does not protect my preparations. There are no stamps upon my Canadian style of Pills or Ointment, coming from the United States. I rely only for protection on the water mark in book of directions around each Box or Pot. Before you purchase them, see that there are no U. S. Stamps upon the Box of Pills or Ointment. Purchase none that have United States stamps on.

BLETCHER'S

CANADIAN

CLOTHES WRINGER

COMBINES more Strength of Frame, Capacity for Pressure, and Power of Action, than any other in the market. We manufacture five sizes intended for and adapted to Families, Hotels, Laundries, &c.

Bletcher's Canadian Clothes Wringer

Saves Time, Labor, Clothes and Money.

It will wear for years without repair!

No Servant can break it!

A Child ten years old can operate it!

No caution or skill required in its use!

It will wring anything from a Thread to the Heaviest Quilt.

It saves its Cost in Clothing

Every six or nine Months.

The water can be pressed from large and small articles easier, quicker and more thoroughly than by the ordinary old fashioned back-breaking, wrist-straining and clothes-destroying process.

It is easily and firmly secured to the Tub or Washing Machine and will fit Tubs of any shape or size. Every Wringer is Warranted in every particular, either with or without star gearing; and in the event of any part becoming broken or mislaid, we can replace it at once. We sell them at prices that defy competition, as the following will testify:

No. 1, nine inch roll, ... $4 50
2, nine and a half inch roll, ... 4 75
3, ten inch roll, ... 5 00
4, twelve inch roll 5 75
5, fourteen inch roll, ... 6 50

We keep all the sizes above on hand at all times at our Sewing Machine Office, over Mr. S. White's store,

George Street, Peterborough.

In support of the above statements, are presented the Certificates of Dr. Jas. R. Chilton, Chemist, New York; Dr. Hiram Cox, Chemical Inspector, Ohio; Dr. James R. Nichols, Chemist, Boston; Dr. N. E. Jones, Chemical Inspector Circleville, Ohio; Prof. C. T. Jackson, Chemist, Boston; Dr. Chas. Upham Shepard, Charleston, S. C.; and J. V. Z. Blaney, and C. A. Mariner, Consulting Chemists, Chicago, all of whom have analyzed the Catawba Brandy, and commend it in the highest terms, for medical use.

Analysis of the Massachusetts State Assayer, Jan. 25, 1858.

When evaporated through clean linen it left no oil or offensive matter. In every respect it is a pure spirituous liquor. The oil which gives to this Brandy its flavour and aroma, is fusil, or grain oil. Its order partakes of both the fruit and oil of grapes. With acids, it produces ethers of a high fragrance. The substitution of this Brandy for Cognac Brandy will do away with the manufacture of fictitious spirits, sold under this name both at home and abroad. Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M.D., Assayer of State Mass,
16 Boylston St.

By the same, in 1864.

I have analyzed "L. LYONS PURE CATAWBA BRANDY," with reference to its composition and character, being the same as that produced in past years. A sample taken from ten casks afforded the same result with regard to purity; a slightly increased amount of the principle on which its flavor depends was determined by comparison with former samples. The indication of analysis show that this Brandy is produced by the same process as most of the imported Brandy. Respectfully,

A. A. HAGES, M. D., State Assayer,
Boston July 20, 1864. 16 Boylston St

Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF

Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that wherever and in what form skin internal diseases exist, this disinfecting, searching and healing principles of these remedies are fully equal to its subjection and cure. And this with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, nor even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicine to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering person of humanity, and one entirely free from mercury and other deleterious particles was [illegible] powerful medicine was thrown into the world: HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE: they attack the RADIX OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system. ASSISTANCE NATURE in her task of VITAL AND FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. The effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs upon the blood, they change the state of the system from sickness to health by exercising a simultaneous and whole some effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all time be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of scores of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c

In whatever form disease attacks the liver it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistible curative. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness, debility, &c., are relieved and removed by its remedy, with a celerity which astonishes sufferers and their friends. Let the sick who the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and restoration to health and activity will be an unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, all the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Contractions,	Liver Complaints,
Dysentery,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venral Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

. Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 63 cents, and $1.00 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33

Select Poetry.

DEATH OF THE OLD YEAR.

BY ALFRED TENNYSON.

Full knee-deep lies the Winter snow,
And the Winter winds are wearily sighing:
Toll ye the church-bell sad and slow,
And tread softly and speak low,
For the old year lies a dying.
Old year, you must not die:
You came to us so readily,
You lived with us so steadily,
Old year, you shall not die.

He lieth still; he doth not move;
He will not see the dawn of day;
He hath no other life above;
He gave me a friend and a true love,
And the new year will take 'em away.
Old year, you must not go;
So long as you have been with us,
Such joy as you have seen with us,
Old year, you shall not go.

He froth'd his bumpers to the brim;
A jollier year we shall not see,
But though his eyes are waxing dim,
And though his foes speak ill of him,
He was a friend to me.
Old year, you shall not die;
We did so laugh and cry with you;
I've half a mind to die with you,
Old year, if you must die.

He was full of joke and jest,
But all his merry quirks are o'er.
To see him, across the waste
His son and heir doth ride post-haste,
But he'll be dead before.
Every one for his own.
The night is starry and cold, my friend,
And the New-Year, blithe and cold, my friend,
Comes up to take his own.

How hard he breathes! over the snow
I heard just now the crowing cock;
The shadows flicker to and fro;
The cricket chirps; the light burns low;
'Tis nearly twelve o'clock.
Shake hands before you die;
Old year, we'll dearly rue for you!
What is it we can do for you?
Speak out before you die.

His face is growing sharp and thin;
Alack! our friend is gone!
Close up his eyes; tie up his chin;
Step from the corpse, and let him in
That standeth there alone,
And waiteth at the door.
There's a new foot on the floor, my friend
And a new face at the door, my friend,
A new face at the door.

Literature.

THE BAND OF FORGERS.

The story which I am about to relate is founded on facts, and although the names and the characters are changed, doubtless some of my readers will recognize them. Many years ago at the time when the state of Michigan was flooded with almost worthless trash known as 'wild cat money,' there arose many bands of coiners. Some of them were so skillful in their nefarious work that it required the closest examination to detect the money.

At that time I was a police detective in Detroit, and business being very dull, I determined to ferret out some of these scoundrels, and, if possible, to bring them to justice. Accordingly, one cold winter morning, I disguised myself as a countryman, and engaged a passage for myself in a stage-coach to Novi, a very small town in Oakland county.

The stage was nothing more than an open sledge drawn by one horse, and our progress necessarily very slow, as in many places the road was filled with drifting snow, and it required some labour to remove it. My only compation besides the driver, was a thick set, dark looking man, and so closely muffled did he keep himself that it was by the slightest chance that I obtained a view of his features. When at last I did succeed, a strange suspicion entered my mied that he was in some way connected with the band of coiners whom I was about paying a visit to. I know not what caused me to suspect him; but, do what I could, I could not drive the thought from my mind, and I determined to watch him closely. At the numerous wayside taverns he spent his money quite lavishly; in short he seemed to have no regard for money—a fact which only served to strengthen my suspicions.

At one of the little hotels, where he had spent a considerable amount of money, I requested the landlord to let me look at it. The landlord, seeing the man had left the room, he hesitated not in complying with my request. After a close examination of it I was convinced that it was base coin, although so skilful had the work of the makers been done, that one less used to the handling of money would easily have been deceived. I handed the spurious money back to the landlord, and informed him of my discovery. He appeared quite astonished, and would not at first believe me but when I pointed out to him many of the peculiar marks by which I discovered it, he was forced to feel the truth of my assertion.

'Here,' I said, handing the landlord a check on a Detroit Bank for one hundred dollars, 'ask him when he enters if he can cash that.'

The landlord placed the cheque in his pocket, and giving me a nod, took his place behind the bar to attend to the wants of a customer.

The man soon after entered, and taking a seat before the fire, began reading a small book which he took from his pocket.

'Can you cash a check of one hundred dollars for me?' asked the landlord coming forward to where the stranger sat.

'Let me see your cheque,' said the man, looking up from his book.

The landlord placed the cheque in his hand and after examining it for a moment, he took a huge roll of notes from his pocket and silently counted out one hundred dollars.

The landlord gave me a nod which I instantly understood; and rising and walking up to the stranger I said:—'Sir, I arrest you for a forger!'

With a muttered oath he sprang to his feet and quickly drawing a pistol, exclaimed:—'How know you that?'

'Easily enough,' I replied coolly; 'so put up your pistols, for surrender you must.'

'Not while I have got strength to defend me,' he said pointing the weapon at me.

The landlord seeing my danger, sprang forward and seizing the man by the collar forced him to the floor. In a moment I had him securely ironed, and the pistol removed from his grasp.

'Now then,' I said, 'for your papers, if you have any.'

'I have none,' he muttered savagely.'

Not believing him, I at once began to search. In his pockets I discovered quantities of counterfeit money, but no papers.

'Let us look into your boots,' I said, pulling them off.

In this last I was more successful; for in the toe of one of them I found a small wad of paper closely rolled up. Smoothing it out, I found it to be a letter written in some sort of a cypher. After much time and trouble I succeeded in getting the meaning of it. It was a letter of introduction from a large party of forgers, whose headquarters were somewhere in the State of New York, to the very band that I was trying to discover. It stated that the bearer was their agent, and that he would negotiate with them for the purchase of a large amount of their money, which the latter said would be easily passed in New York.

When I had made out the latter I conceived a desperate plan; namely, to change clothing with the agent, assume his name, and pay a visit to the forgers in his stead. I hoped by representing myself to be in the 'profession' to obtain them which I could succeed in by no other means.

Leaving my prisoner securely ironed, and in the custody of the landlord, I jumped into the stage, which had been delayed several hours by a snow drift. Towards sunset we had the good fortune to arrive at Novi, a small place consisting of several rude log houses and a hotel. At the latter I obtained supper and a warm room for the night. Feeling somewhat fatigued from my journey, I retired to rest early, and slept soundly through the night.—When I arose the next morning I found the gold tinted sun already up, and a savoury vapor which ascended from the kitchen announced to me that breakfast would soon be ready. Hastily donning my clothes—or rather the forger's clothing, I descended into the barroom where several of the neighbours were already congregated and talking over the news. Calling for some liquor, I invited those present to drink with me, which they readily did.—This accomplished and a friendship established, I took a seat before the fire, and engaged in a conversation until the little silver bell announced that breakfast was ready.

As soon as I had partaken of breakfast, I asked the landlord if he could tell me where Jacob Gordon—the man to whom the letter I had taken from the agent—lived.

'Why yes,' replied my host; 'he lives about five miles from here.'

'Have you a boy that you can send with me to show me the way.'

'I believe so.'

And the man stepped to the door and bawled out lustily:

'Sam! Samuel Jones, come here!'

Samuel Jones soon made his appearance and the landlord taking him by the collar, said:

'Sam here's a man as wants you to show him the way to Jake Gordon's.—Now go with him and hurry back, 'cause there's a lot o' wood to be sawed for the kitchen stove, and the stables haint been cleaned out yet.

Thus admonished the youthful Samuel gave his hat an extra jerk, and coming forward announced himself ready to accompany me.

After a long and tiresome walk over rough and untrodden snow, we at last came in sight of a low, rude log house.

'That's Jake Gordon's,' said Samuel, pointing his finger in the direction of the house.

'Then you can go back now,' I said, handing him a silver dollar.

The youth greedily clutched the shining coin, and making an awkward bow, turned and hastened back.

I approached the house, and applying my cane, I gave three distinct raps.

'Come in,' was the response growled out.

I lifted the latch, pushed the door open and slowly entered.

'Is this Jacob Gordon?' I said stepping up to a middle aged man who was busily engaged poking the fire, which blazed and sparkled right merrily on the hearth before him.

'Well, I suppose so.'

And the man paused from his work and looked up.

'Then you are my man,' I said and taking the letter from my pocket I placed it in his hands.

He looked hurrally over the contents, and then looking up he reached out his large sun browned hand, exclaiming joyfully:

'Welcome old boy, welcome. But sit down; you must be very tired.'

I accepted the proffered chair and sinking down into it said:

'Well, how is business?'

'Oh, tolerable, tolerable. Of course you are going to stay with us all day?'

I signified my intention of doing so, and he resumed:

'Well, then, to-night, when all's quiet we'll go over to the mint.'

During the day I learnt almost everything relating to the forging and coining business, and about ten o'clock at night, Gordon proposed that we should pay a visit to the 'mint,' the name which he had bestowed on the building wherein they prosecuted their nefarious work.

Silently we passed out of the house, and after travelling some two miles, we came to a large swamp. In this we fearlessly penetrated, and as the ground was frozen we made very good progress. After walking some two or three miles, we came to a low and roughly constructed house.—My companion stepped up to the door, and gave a peculiar whistle, which was instantly answered to from within, and in a moment more the door itself was flung open, and without hesitating we entered. My companion introduced me to the workmen, stating my business, and after a visit of about two hours we took our departure, returning to Gordon's house.

The next day I returned to the little hotel, and meeting the constable, I confided to him my discovery. He appeared elated at my success, and promised to assist me to capture the villains. About twenty men whom the constable informed me could be implicitely relied on were engaged; and towards nightfall we set out for the 'mint,' taking a roundabout road so as not to meet any of Jacob Gordon's family. Our journey need not be described; suffice it to say that at about eight o'clock my men were all secretly posted around the building known as the mint.' Taking the constable aside I was about to commence a conversation with him, when footsteps were heard approaching us. Silently we waited and a moment later two dark forms came to view, and hurriedly passing they entered the mint.

'What is the meaning of this?' asked the constable turning to me.

'I do not know,' I replied; 'but I am going in there, and if you hear a signal come to my assistance.'

'All right responded the man as I turned and left him.

The door of the building I found unfastened, and pushing it slowly open I passed in. As I did so a man with a vice-like grasp seized me by the throat and forced me to the floor. I looked up and beheld the forms of Jacob Gordon and the agent I had left in the custody of the landlord at Detroit stand over me.

'So he, my fine detective, you're foiled this time,' said the agent sneeringly.

'Not quite,' I said, striving to regain my feet.

'No you don't old fellow;' and the giant form of Jacob Gordon forced me to the floor.

Placing my fingers to my lips I gave a loud shrill whistle.

'What does that mean?' said Gordon, staring at me savagely.

'Nothing, only that I am not without friends, as you see,' I replied, as the constable, followed by his men, bounded into the room.

With a muttered curse the villain released me, and springing to his feet, dashed to the open door. But the constable was too quick for him, and seizing him by the throat, [illegible] upon the floor.

But a few moments more sufficed to secure the coiners, and then safely guarding them we made our way back to the tavern. The villains were the next day removed to the county jail, and were shortly afterwards tried for their crimes.

I returned to my home in Detroit, and business flowed upon me steadily for several years; then, having gathered together sufficient of this world's good to maintain myself and family for life, I returned to private life, in which I hope to pass the remainder of my days.

The Duties of the Force on the Frontier Defined.

Lord Monck accompanies the calling out of the Volunteers with the following general orders, which are conceived in a most commendable spirit:—

In calling out for active service this portion of the Volunteer Force, the Commander-in-Chief desires to express the gratification he has experienced at the numerous offers of service he has received from Volunteer Companies all through the Provinces as soon as it became known that men were required for permanent duty. The Commander-in-Chief desires to impress upon the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the force called out for duty, that they are embodied not for the purpose of warfare, but with the object of aiding the civil power in its efforts to prevent aggression on the territories of a friendly State, on the part of persons enjoying the right of asylum in Her Majesty's dominions; and to maintain, as regards Canada, that complete neutrality with regard to the war now existing in the United States, which Her Majesty has enjoined on all her subjects. With these objects in view, it will be the duty of all officers commanding detachments on the frontier to take special care that the territorial rights of the Government of the United States shall be carefully respected, and that no infringement by the men under their command shall under any circumstances take place of such regulations for the security of their borders as may be made from time to time by that Government. It will be the duty of officers, should suspicious circumstances be brought under their observation, immediately to report any such to the civil authorities, and to place themselves under their guidance.

VANITY OF WORLDLY HONORS.

When the University of St. Andrew's, Scotland, sold her honors, a certain minister who deemed that his ministrations would be more acceptable if he possessed what the Germans call the doctor-hat, put £15 in his purse and went to St. Andrew's to 'purchase for himself a good degree.' His men servant accompanied him, and was present when his master was formally admitted to the long desired honor. On his return "the doctor" sent for his servant and addressed him as follows: "Neo, Sandy, ye'll aye be nae to ca' me the doctor; and gin ony body spiers at ye about me, ye'll be aye sure to say the doctor's in his study, or the doctor's engaged."—'That depends," was the reply, "whether ye ca' me the doctor too!" (The Rev. Doctor started.) "Ay, its just so," said Sandy, "for when I fooed it cost us little I o'en got a diploma mysel, an ye'll be just good enough to say 'doctor, put on some coals,' or 'doctor, bring some water,' and gin ony body spiers at ye about me, ye'll be aye sure to say, 'the doctor's in the stable,' or, 'the doctor's in the pantry,' or, 'the doctor's digging potatoes,' as the case may be."

The Inner Voice.

I saw a little spotted tortoise stealing himself in the shallow water. I lifted the stick in my hand to kill the harmless reptile; for, though I had never killed any creature, yet I had seen other boys, out of sport, destroy birds, squirrels, and the like, and I felt a disposition to follow their wicked example. But all at once something checked my little arm and a voice within me said, clear and loud, "It is wrong." I held my uplifted stick in wonder at the new emotion—the consciousness of an involuntary but inward check upon my actions—till the tortoise and the rhodora both vanished from my sight.

I hastened home and told the tale to my mother and asked what it was that told me it was wrong. She wiped a tear from her eye with her apron, and taking me in her arms, said,—

"Some men call it conscience, but I prefer to call it the voice of God in the soul of man. If you listen and obey it, then it will speak clearer and clearer and always guide you right; but if you turn a deaf ear, or disobey then it will fade out, little by little and leave you all in the dark and without a guide. Your life depends on heeding this little voice.

A FEW REASONS FOR VOTING

For the by-law prohibiting the issuing of licenses for selling intoxicating liquors in these counties.

1. Because groggeries are not necessary.
2. Because they are a hindrance to business and improvements of all kinds.
3. Because they fill our jails, penitentiaries and lunatic asylums.
4. Because a large amount of money is spent on dram drinking within the counties, which would be spent more usefully if there were no dram shops.
5. Because we have tried the experiment of licensing liquor selling for a long time, and have no reason to be satisfied with it.
6. Because it is quite time that we tried some other plan, and our legislators have made it easy for us to try this.
7. Because no one will be injured by the refusal to license except those who make a gain of their neighbors' loss.
8. Because while thousands have been injured by frequenting groggeries, not one has ever been benefitted by it.
9. Because the licensed groggery is a standing denial of the truth of Christianity and the most useful weapon in Satan's hands for prosecuting its extension.
10. Because we have no right to license anyone to tempt his fellow creatures to evil habits.
11. Because no one can deny that the habit of dram drinking is an evil habit.
12. Because so long as licensed groggeries exist, many will be tempted to drink habitually who otherwise would seldom taste liquor.
13. Because while we license liquor selling, we are responsible for all the evils directly or indirectly produced by excess in drinking.
14. Because it is unworthy of an enlightened community to foster an institution which does no good to any one, whi'e it increases fearfully the amount of destitution and crime in the country, and paralyzes every effort for temporal or spiritual improvement.

THE MOTHER'S INFLUENCE.

A mother stood at her garden gate, holding by her right hand a son of sixteen years old, mad with love of the sea. 'Edward,' she said, 'they tell me that the great temptation of the seaman's life is drink. Promise me before you quit your mother's hand, that you will never drink.' Said he, for he told me the story, 'I gave her the promise. I went the broad globe over; Calcutta, the Mediterranean, San Francisco, the Cape of Good Hope, and during forty years, whenever I saw a glass of the sparkling liquor, my mother's form by the garden gate on the hill side, rose up before me; and to-day, at sixty, my lips are innocent of the taste of liquor.' Was not that sweet evidence of the power of a single word? And yet it was but half, 'for,' said he, 'yesterday there came a man into my counting room, and asked me, 'Do you know me?' 'No, said I.' 'I was brought once, said he, drunk into your presence on shipboard; you were a passenger; the captain kicked me aside; you took me into your berth and kept me there until I slept off my intoxication, and then you asked me if I had a mother. I said never that I knew of; I have never heard a mother's voice. You told me of yours at the garden gate; and to-day, twenty years later, I am master of one of the finest packets in New York, and I came to ask you to come and see me.' How far back that little candle throws its beam—the mother's word on the green hillside! God be thanked for the almighty power of a single word.

CLANNISH PRIDE.

A dispute arose between Campbell and McLean upon the subject of genealogy. McLean would not allow that the Campbells had any right to rank with the McLeans in antiquity, who, he insisted, were in existence as a clan from the beginning of the world. Campbell had a little more biblical lore than his antagonist, and asked him if the clan of McLean was before the flood.

'Flood! what flood?' said McLean.

'The flood, ye ken, that drowne all the world but Noah and his family and his flocks," said Campbell.

'Pooh! you and your floods!" said McLean, 'my clan was afore the flood.'

'I have nae read in my Bible,' said Campbell, 'o' nan o' the name of McLean gaes into Noah's ark.'

'Noah's ark!' retorted the other in contempt, 'who ever heard o' a McLean that had nae boat o' his nan!'

THE MILITIA.

When any new subject is brought into being, and the people are unacquainted with it, there is too generally very great alarm; and so it is with the new Militia draft. Every one, rather we would say, very many dread the idea of soldiering. The great enquiry of the day is—What does this suffering mean?

A very general misunderstanding appears to prevail regarding the draft. Many imagine that it is but the prelude to a grand military organization to be immediately called out for active service, offensive and defensive, and that whenever the ballot is completed, and that those whose names are among the drafted will be compelled to assume the gun and bayonet in place of the civil avocations of life. This is a mistake and arises from want of acquaintance with the Militia Law as lately amended. The present draft has taken place under a provision of that Law which requires that a certain number from the first-class service militia men shall form reserve battalions, that is a reserve to the volunteer force, and for this purpose the draft has been made, in order to furnish the Adjutant General with a list of such force. It is true in case of war, insurrection, invasion, or danger of any of them, he may call out the Militia or any part of them, but it is not likely that such call shall be made for a long time to come. The only call that is likely to be made is for the purpose of drill.

The 31st Sec. of the Militia Act, for 1863, provides:—"That the Service Militia or any Battalion or company thereof may at any time, in each year be called out by General Order of the Commander-in-Chief for drill instruction, within each Regimental Division, for a period not exceeding six days, under and pursuant to such rules and regulations in that behalf, as may be prescribed in any such General Order;' and each non-commissioned officer and man shall be paid for each days actual and bona fide drill, as aforesaid, the sum of fifty cents."

The draft shall serve for three years, after which date another draft will be made, and so on every three years. These six days of drill is all we have to complain of yet. Those whose names are drafted may quietly follow the business for the three years, and then they will have served their bloodless term, and another party will be chosen and serve in the same way. The drafted ones may take their rest as they have heretofore done. The brave volunteers that have gone to the frontiers are all that are likely to be called out, at least, for the present.

There are disadvantages with these six days drill that fifty cents per diem more would have obviated, and rendered the drill more popular, perhaps this may hereafter be remedied. We however, do not go for offering too great inducements to young men to become soldiers, even domestic ones, it is better to cultivate the principles of peace than the art of war, and as people do not admire business that does not pay, we say the present law is not so bad after all, as many represent it. It appears, however, that when actual service is needed, the pay, is reasonable, as the pay of the volunteers ($1.00 per day,) testifies. Yet the desire for a soldier's life is in a great degree checked by not offering inducements to any unless when actual and needful service is exacted.

THE PASSPORT SYSTEM.

We could hardly bring ourselves to believe that the American people were so easily alarmed as they really are. A few daring outlaws who made a rush on one of their banks and carried off a few hundred dollars, has driven General Dix and the whole north almost into fit And what is the consequence? No man, woman or child shall put a foot on American soil until a license to do so is granted in the shape of a passport. Was ever anything so childish imagined as that these bits of paper will or can, or could prevent raiding, if the people are so inclined. The only general effect it can have is to restrict our traffic with the United States, and this, we believe, it is already doing. It will also affect the business of the towns and cities of the Republic which lie along our borders. But this is not all. There appears to be something wrong in the whole passport system. That persons who wish to cross over into the United States should first pay in gold six dollars, when only one dollar goes into the hands of the agent, shows that the system is the invention of some speculating Yankee who has conceived this plan of adding a little to the exhausted coffers of the Republic.

[illegible] speaks louder than one, as it has [illegible] to suppose. Many American citizens have come over to us to avoid the exigencies of the great rebellion. These have friends on the other side, and they might desire to go to see them; if they do, since they fled from direct taxes, they will be forced to pay in some way—they must pay for a pass. Some Canadians have shown Southern sympathies, for this all Canadians must pay through restricted trade and annoying fines, in the way of passports that stop a great part of our trade, and thus materially injure us. The sooner something is done to remove this obnoxious order, the better, and as our government is doing all it can be expected to do to prevent raids and raiders from our side, we think that some representations from the government would have the effect of removing it.

Since writing the above we learn that it is a false idea that has gone abroad that the cost of a passport is six dollars in gold. The matter, is very different. Naturalborn subjects of her Majesty can obtain a passport for one dollar.

Naturalized subjects cannot obtain one from Canadian authorities as British protection to naturalized subjects extends no further than British territory. There, however, can obtain one from the American Consular agents, and for this six dollars [illegible]

THE ST. ALBAN'S RAIDERS.

In this case the decision of Judge Coursol has been reversed [illegible] that the case does not come within the jurisdiction of the Court. Things have come to a pretty way lead us to infer that extradition parties; only [illegible] ered and dealt with by the Court. What other nice technicality may yet arise we dare not predict, as there are so many nice points to be considered before the matter is determined. The jurisdiction of the United States is now challenged. It is contended that the crime was against the State of Vermont, and consequently not against the United States, and as the treaty deals only with the Federal States, it can take no cognizance of a crime against the State of Vermont only. Justice Smith was to give his opinion on this matter on Tuesday. Every effort is being put forth, both for and against those raiders, who have for so long a time occupied the attention of our Courts in Montreal. The case affords some nice picking for those hungry creatures who are ever on the alert for such things.—They discuss the technicalities, the country foots the bill.

INTERNATIONAL CURLING MATCH.

This great match has at last come off, and with honor to Canada. We are glad that the day was everything that could be desired. Great numbers were present to witness the game; many who understood it and many more who did not. There were only 23 American clubs to 26 Canadian, consequently some of the Canadian clubs had no part in the days proceedings, other than as spectators, which must have been galling after going so far.

The score stood, at the close, as follows:

Canada	658
United States	474
Majority for Canada	180

There were two outside rinks for those who had been disappointed, in order that all might have some sport. The whole was brought to a close by the boom of a cannon, when the parties proceeded to the American Hall, where dinner was provided, at the conclusion of which toasts, speeches, music and songs, till an early hour next morning. A return match is anticipated next year.

IRELAND.

The people of Ireland are, from situation, not by nature, of very different views and sentiments. The North holds opinions materially different from the South, and sometimes gives vent to the consequent workings of the mind, in a way that may not be satisfactory to those who reside towards the sunny South. But so does the South, and that in a manner as aggravating and foolish as those of the North. In Canada, of late, the Roman Catholics of Toronto, and we suppose elsewhere, would lay the blame of all their folly and fanaticism on the fact that a body of men called Orangemen are permitted to exist; yet we think that they can read their ire on others, and against others than Orangemen, even on those of their own denomination, if, perchance, any one among them should hold views different from the great mass.

Very lately, at Skibbereen, a Parish Priest, the Rev. Daniel Collins was burned in effigy by his own flock. This astounding event, without precedent in the annals of Ireland, has produced a profound sensation in the Roman Catholic community.—Their organs are almost unable to account for the act that in an Irish Town, almost entirely Catholic, a Roman Catholic Priest should be burned in effigy. A large number of people from Skibereen and the surrounding country took part in the affair. A figure dressed up as a Roman Catholic Priest, bearing spectacles, was burned; by setting fire to both ends of it, the crowd shouting:—"So perish all our enemies, O Lord!"

The clergyman who was the object of this outrage, was the Rev. Daniel Collins, parish priest of Rath. The Cork Examiner states that during the time of the famine he assisted to rescue hundreds from starvation. In the street of Cork he begged from door to door for the perishing people of Skibbereen and in the lobby of the House of Commons he implored money on their behalf in the cabinets of Ministers of State he supplicated for assistance in impassioned accents; in the board-room, in the press, he fought the battle of those poor creatures who were helpless as children. And what was the offence of this good priest that the children whom he thus preserved alive by begging bread for them should turn against him and wreak their vengeance on him by burning him in effigy? He denounced the Fenians from the altar of Rath; and through his instrumentality a person named Keane was committed by the magistrates for administering unlawful oaths; and so the friends of Keane, who must include almost the entire population in that quarter, else they would have punished the offenders, resolved to vent their wrath against their own spiritual adviser, as a "false prophet." The Morning News makes the following remarks upon this subject, from which it appears that the Bishop also has been insulted by his own people:—

"The population of Skibbereen is almost exclusively Catholic; and some time ago, at least, it yielded to none in Ireland in public spirit, Catholic zeal, and in patriotism. Within the past five years a startling change would seem to have taken place in Skibbereen. Fenianism has taken a choice selection of the rising generation under its hallowed guidance. Nowhere else, we are told, is 'the movement' so well forward; nowhere else are the pupils so 'advanced;' they have got to priest-burning in effigy, and bishop-insulting in person, in the public streets. How often during the past year have we cried out that ravening wolves were among the flock, slowly, cautiously, stealthily, stealthily tutoring the members of the flock against their pastors? How often have we told young, ardent, and probably well-meaning Irish Catholics that they were in the hands of guides who would not let them rest at once the advanced stage to which they would be brought gradually, carefully, and craftily. . . . A sad and bitter experience is vindicating our warning; and those who once imagined that we exaggerated the danger now think we understand it. The Catholic Bishops and priests of Ireland have been painfully awakened to that danger. They have seen occurrences which they once believed impossible to happen in Ireland. They find a Mazzinian spawn on Irish soil.'

The effects of Fenianism is now being felt at head-quarter, so to speak. The Sanhanscrapie not to attack the Church itself, and thus cause the priesthood to tear. Hence a new political society is likely to be started under the management of the Clergy, we suppose, to counterbalance the dangers that spread to spring from Fenianism. Thus while Bishop Lynch is pleading the cause of Fenians in Toronto—The prelates and Clergy of Ireland are under the necessity of devising means and ways to crush them. They will work their own cure.

A NIGHT WITH BURNS.

We learn that it is the intention of the Peterboro' Curling Club to give a concert in the Victoria Hall, on the 25th Instant. We trust the affair will prove successful, and from what we have heard, so far, regarding the entertainment, we have every prospect that it will be appreciated by the public. The programme will consist of the very best vocal and instrumental music which can be obtained in our county, as the leading stars have kindly consented to assist the club in their undertaking. Besides, the entertainment will be inter-spersed with select recitations from adepts in the art. This, combined with the fact that the occasion selected for the concert will be the anniversary of the immortal Barns' birth day, justifies us, we think, in prognosticating in advance, that the affair will prove successful,

In our next issue we hope to be able to go further into the details of the matter.

BIBLE CHRISTIAN ANNUAL MEETING.—We would remind the friends of the Bible Christian Church that the annual public meeting will be held this evening, commencing at seven o'clock p.m. Some of the resident ministers, and Messrs. Gale and Watt are expected to address the meeting. The choir will favor with suitable music for the occasion.

LITTLE LAKE CEMETERY.—We would invite the attention of all interested to the advertisement in relation to the above company in to-day's issue. The meeting will be held on Monday next, at 3 p. m., in the new Council Chambers.—Full meetings are always most satisfactory.

NEW ARRIVALS.—Norris advertises to-day a fresh supply of Groceries, which he will sell cheap for Cash; his store is opposite A. Stewarts Stove Depot.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—A paragraph appeared in your paper of the 22nd ultimo, headed "Dummer Outrage," in reference to a disgraceful and fiendish outrage committed on Mr. Morrison, Reeve of Dummer, by some persons unknown, but from the tenor of the same, it convey's the idea that it was perpetrated by the people of Dummer. This is also implied in Mr. Morrison's, communication to the Review; yet I do not believe Mr. Morrison had any intention of disgracing this township with such a fiendish act, and I think he owes it to his constituents to exonerate them from all blame.

I cannot imagine why a township that has never forfeited its reputation for a law-abiding people, should suffer when the people of an adjoining township trespass within her borders.

From a careful reading of the communication before referred to any person can see who are the guilty parties, and it is a great pity that there is not positive proof so that the law could have its course and such rascals get their deserts.

I am sorry to learn that those who are implicated in the crime are orangemen, but instead of imputing their conduct to the teachings of the order, no one acquainted with the requirements and regulations of the institution can for a moment entertain the idea that this is legitimate fruit of their connection with that body; we must rather suppose that these are but wolves in sheep's clothing—they may be members of the order, but they certainly are not bound by obligations so [illegible] principles of honor.

DUMMERONIAN.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—At the regular meeting of L[illegible] Orange Lodge, No. 862, it was moved by Brother James Reid and seconded by Bro. W. Youmans, and

Resolved—That this Lodge do [illegible] sympathize with the Master of this Lodge brother Robert Morrison, for the loss he has sustained in the dastardly outrage committed on the destruction of property, on the night of the seventh of October last, and hope that the villains who committed the deed may yet be brought to justice.

P.S. Sir,—You will please give this insertion in your paper to show the public that we as Orangemen do disconten[illegible] such gross outrages.

JOHN STEWART,
Belmont, January 6, 1865.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—In the Peterborough Review a [illegible] of the Queen's Birthday Ball at Dummer [illegible] night election this year, I observe with very great astonishment that Mr. Crow's name is therein given as one of those, and not elected, but placed as the head of the list showing to the world that this proud honour is really the most popular man in Dummer. I wish, Mr. Editor, to place this in its proper light before the public, and shall do so, occupy a very small space. In consequence of recent action by the County Council in the dissolution of the United Townships of Dummer, Burleigh and Anstruther, we were obliged by law to have our election by general vote instead of by wards as heretofore, and thus you will see a rare opportunity occurred for testing the oft repeated boast of this road chiseler's popularity. I have but one fault to find with the Review's notice, and that is, that it is contrary to fact. Instead of Mr. Crow's name heading the poll, it should have been placed so far behind as to be counted out from amongst the number chosen. The following is the state of the poll at its close:

Thos. G. Choat	187	John Kidd	170
Hugh Drain	162	Wm. Wigmore	160
Jno. Carveth	126	F. Crow	126

The Returning Officer, Mr. Thomas Hume, a very worthy gentleman indeed, and one well fitted for his office, gave his casting-vote in favor of Mr. Carveth. There were three more candidates, Messrs. Morrison, Spence, and Ferguson. Morrison and Spence each took a vote he may well feel proud of, and which indicated that these gentlemen will at no distant day take a prominent part in our public affairs; while Ferguson, Drain's opponent, was beaten so far out of sight as to be scarcely even recognised by his copperheads. In justice to Mr. Morrison, I beg here to state that he would now positively be elected but for the anomalous circumstance of leaving the North Ward entirely unrepresented, and at his own request no more votes were recorded for him after three o'clock the second day.

The election has been fruitful of two important results—first, that the people understand their business thoroughly when at the polls,—second, that chiselling politicians like Mr. Crow and Mr. Ferguson, cannot be tolerated as elective councillors in Dummer, the former having been accused of refusing to render to the Council an account, showing to whom he paid certain road-moneys drawn from the Treasurer on Mr. Crow's order, without date, payable to Mr. Crow and receipted by Mr. Crow; the latter certainly of having made an affidavit that he was an elected Councillor for 1864, when he was positively not, and after he had resigned in presence of many witnesses.

About half past two the second day the Crow party were jubilant. Crow was seven ahead, and thoughtby his party out of danger. One drunken fellow poo-hoo'd right out with delight, while another spluttered "Crow would roost another year"; but alas! when four o'clock came, horror could be seen depicted on their every countenance, even Wig., who prior to this was very affable to the abominable grits, could not now see one of them.

When the decision was finally made in favor of Mr. Carveth, round after round of deafening cheers from the sturdy yeomen of Dummer told how they appreciated the result.

Yours, &c.,
C.
Dummer, Jan. 8th, 1865.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR,—Having sent a letter to the Peterboro' Review, and obtained a promise that it should be published in the issue of that paper of the following week, with a view to correct some misstatements made in a communication from Mr. Morrison of Dummer, and to give a true account of my conduct in relation to what he styles "a disgraceful affair." I was astonished to find that my letter was not only unpublished, but some remarks inserted instead, calculated to mislead the public with reference to its meaning. Believing, sir, that I will find in you a more honest and less biased man, I beg a space in your valuable paper for the following remarks:

On the day previous to the affair alluded to, Mr. Morrison came to me in the village of Norwood, (it being the fall show in that place) requesting me to assist him in putting a stop to the fight which was to take place on the following day, stating that if I would lodge an information with him, telling what I knew about the affair, he would have both parties arrested forthwith, and bound over to keep the peace. Being importuned by him, I done so, but not until I received a promise from him that they both should be immediately arrested. I told him that if he did not act upon it on that day, I would not consider the information further binding upon me: but notwithstanding all this, I was surprised to find that he made no effort whatever to arrest either party. On that night Mr. Morrison came to my house to inform me that it was his intention to be on "the battle ground" on the following morning, and that he wished me to take particular notice of everything which took place there, as he would expect me to act as his chief witness in case of there being any law afterwards. I then told him that I would not act as such, neither did I consider myself bound in any way to do so, as the information which I had given was with the understanding that if not acted upon on the day when given, it should be no further binding upon me. My impression then was that he had some hidden motive for neglecting to have the parties arrested and bound to the peace, and his after conduct in the affair has fully borne out all that I then suspected. The challenging and challenged parties were both in Norwood on the day I lodged the information, and he could then have stopped the fight had he done his duty; but no, this "just Magistrate's" (?) object must be carried out, and by letting them meet in battle array, "fees" would be much more likely to accumulate than if the peace had been kept. Mr. Morrison violated his promise to me with regard to their arrest, and every other statement or promise he made to me he disregarded, though pledged on the honor of a gentleman. I will leave the public to judge how much can be relied on any other assertion such a man would afterwards make.

As an instance of the justice boasted of by this "polished peace-maker," I will relate a little incident which took place at the trial—Mr. McBurney did, while on oath, call John Burgess a liar, used very violent language, and shook his clenched fist in his (John Burgess') face, said he "would bore him through," all because the truth was told by him; notwithstanding all this, the clemency of the magistrate sitting was such that the insult to the law was overlooked—another glaring act of injustice was the over-charges made by them. I would ask is it justice to allow one party not only to insult another with foul, abusive language, but to all intents to assault him, and that without rebuke from the magistrates? But enough of their justice for the present; I might add more, but I will forbear, deeming it sufficient to give the public a true idea of the matter.

I stated in the letter which I sent to the Review that Mr. Morrison had not only enemies abroad, but was exceedingly unpopular at home; from this the Review must have been led to pretty broadly hint that I was either implicated in, or knew who were the perpetrators of the outrage on Mr. Mor[illegible]'s property. Of the fallacy of these [illegible] I am willing to give abundant proof, but my character in the vicinity in which I have lived since boyhood, will be my defence; such a refuge I fear would afford but a poor protection to him who now screens me with the crime of perjury. As to his unpopularity at home, if any should doubt the truth of the statement, I will refer them to the records of the late municipal elections, which will corroborate my statement, and if, sir, he has rendered himself unpopular amongst those even by whom he is surrounded, such men understand the whole transaction and he cannot blind them by his falsehoods or polished paragraphs, published in a paper biassed to his cause. Knowing that I am innocent of everything in connection with the outrage against Mr. Morrison, and that there may be other more likely for its perpetration than anything arising out of the challenge, which I thought to prevent coming to a fight, but which he in his magisterial capacity permitted to go on, I conclude by subscribing myself,

Yours truly,
ROBERT RUDGESS.

Essay on the History of Civil Liberty.

NO. I.

"A day, an hour of virtuous liberty
Is worth a whole eternity of bondage."

MR. EDITOR,—It may not be an unprofitable [illegible] to trace the History, and give the [illegible] of that spirit of Civil Liberty which [illegible] the patriots of other times, and secured [illegible] a season at least, the rights of their people both British and American.

The History of Liberty is the history also of [illegible]; for it is the history of a mighty [illegible] breaking in pieces, at intervals, the chains of consolidated oppression: and in tracing this History] must revert to the condition of modern [illegible] the commencement of the 16th century. [illegible] Rome had extended its dominion by the sword over a great portion of Europe, Asia and Africa. This republic fell by the expansion of its empire (a warning to modern republics) and the corruption of its citizens; and the Cæsars bound upon her neck the yoke which she had fastened upon the neck of the nations she had subjugated. Imperial Rome became divided into the Eastern and Western Empires—Constantinople the seat of the former, and Rome, the haunted mistress of the world, the seat of the latter. The former fell under the yoke of the victorious Ottomans: while the latter was divided and conquered by the barbaric Goths and Vandals.

These warlike tribes were the descendants of those ancient barbarians who fled before the victorious legions of all-conquering Rome.—They fled to their mountains for freedom, or took refuge in the inaccessible caverns of the North. There, defended by lakes and rivers, the indignant barbarians lived until time had ripened the seals of destruction. Then rushing forth like an impetuous flood, and sweeping every thing before them, they overturned the vast fabric of the Roman Empire, the work and the wonder of ages, taking vengeance on the murderers of mankind, establishing on its ruins new governments and new manners, and accomplished the most signal revolution in the history of nations."

Having overthrown this gigantic fabric of despotism, these fierce barbarians established upon its ruins numerous tyrannies not less galling and debasing. The victorious leader of the barbarous hosts having subdued a Roman province, claiming himself the sovereignty, distributed the territory among the officers of his host, whilst the great body of the people became vassals, held by feudal despotism. "In this state," says Roscoe, "the nations of modern Europe, almost without exception, were beheld at the commencement of the 16th century—some lorded over by one, others groaning under the yoke of oppression;" and in addition to these stupendous systems of civil despotism, "there was another power which made heavier this iron yoke, and riveted still firmer the chains of oppression, a power to which almost all the christian world did homage, whose influence, if it had not been destroyed, was potent enough to check, in its very commencement, the emancipation of mind, and which therefore, by perpetuating the reign of darkness, it maintained the security of its own throne, was the guardian of every other system of oppression by which the world called "christian" was enslaved." That power was the "church," a power whose nature, greatness and duration, are among the most surprising phenomena that history presents to our contemplation. While Kings bowed in abject servility before its power, the Masses were crushed still lower by civil tyranny by the dreadful pressure of spiritual despotism, aided by the aristocracy of the petty and petty lordlings.—Seizing upon the strongest principle of our nature—the religious principle—and identified therewith, its control over its vassals was complete. Established under the sanctions of religion, and protected by all the authority of its sanctities, the huge colossus seemed invulnerable, and with the pride of its imagined omnipotence scorned hostility.

With the commencement of the Reformation in England began the establishment of her liberty. By the overthrow which Henry gave to this power of despotism in South Britain, there was inflicted on it a wound of which he little dreamed. Thence with the genius of tyranny found England to be a congenial soil. In Scotland the Reformation was the dawn of genuine liberty, and in her struggle for liberty, to which the efforts of Knox, Bruce, Welch and others gave birth, and with ardour and perseverance. In that struggle the civil as well as the religious rights of the Scotch, were involved; and the advocates of the one, were found the resolute asserters of the other. During the period in which the last four princes of the house of Stewart filled the united thrones of England and Scotland, royal tyranny met with the firmest and most successful resistance. Long, and with marvelous patience, did the people bear the encroachments of their oppressors, and fondly did they hope that some auspicious revolution would take place in their measures, but their hopes were vain; even the voice of adversity failed to give wisdom to their rulers; one outrage on their rights after another was brought to their endurance till roused to indignation by accumulated wrongs, they expelled the last of the "tyrant race" from the land, and determined that thenceforth it should not be ruled by any of the race. It was in this gigantic struggle that the principles of civil liberty were most fully developed. The limitation of arbitrary power was the [illegible] which Scotland's martyrs were compelled to decide, and their example may instruct and [illegible] posterity. "They investigated and fought, under the guidance of feeling, the reciprocal obligations of Kings and subjects, the duty of self-defence and resisting tyrants." While Russell, Sidney, and others in England were plotting against Charles, from a conviction that his right was forfeited, the covenanters in Scotland under the same conviction, had the courage to declare war against him. "Both the plotters and warriors fell: but their blood has watered the plant of renown, and succeeding ages have eaten the pleasant fruit."

"Patriots have toded, and is their country's cause,
Bled nobly: and their deeds, as they deserve,
Receive proud recompense. * * * *
But fairer wreaths are due, tho' never paid,
To those who, posted at the shrine of truth
Have fallen in her defence * * *
* * * with their names
No bard enshrined [illegible]
And Hatred [illegible]
Is cold on the [illegible]

FENIANISM.

From the Intelligencer.

MR. EDITOR,—The people throughout the back country, are waking up to the danger which, at present, seems to hang over our country, from foes without, and foes within. I find that within the past week, the feeling of impending danger is gathering strength, and many of our Protestant population are becoming fearfully excited. What is all this excitement to lead to? Persons are constantly coming to me and enquiring what is best to be done, how are they to guard themselves against midnight assassination.

The general opinion is, that parties are drilling, and preparing for some purpose other than peaceful, and that arms and pikes are being brought into the country, and are being secreted for after use. Now, I would not wish to be an alarmist, but after the exhibition at Toronto, and from all that can be gathered from the American Press, I feel that to be unprepared for any emergency that might happen, would be shameful neglect of duty. I have therefore, advised, and shall continue to advise our Protestant friends to prepare, and if nothing turns up to mar our peace, no harm will come of being watchful. I have advised that our friends unite in neighborhoods and form vigilance committees, and watch narrowly the proceedings of those who are suspected. There are plenty of lordy young men, who, no doubt, will feel it a duty to become watchful protectors, over their fathers, mothers, brothers, and sisters, and who could, if a case of emergency should arise, at once spread the alarm, and in the mean time allay, to a great extent, the present feeling of insecurity that now exists among the people. I am satisfied, in my own mind that there is not a neighborhood, but might, by timely preparation, make themselves perfectly safe, and more especially during the present winter, as there is not much else to attend to. If secret organizations exist amongst us forboding harm (and I believe they do); if those who love them intend to sever Canada from the British Crown, and, in endeavouring to accomplish their object should make an attempt upon their fellow men, and families, surely there can be no harm in those who hold allegiance to our Gracious Queen, to organize peacefully and stand on the defensive. If the danger is real then there will be a state of preparedness to meet it. If only imaginary, then no harm need arise from loyal men being ready to meet any emergency. There is a report here that in some book, a prediction of some Saint, that at this time "the trouble will be of short duration, only lasting a night or two, and that a stocking log will hold provisions enough for its final consumation." I give you the above prediction for what it is worth, an old adage "that children and fools always tell the truth." If so, then, as those things are talked over amongst a class of people, who hate not only the British Government, but also all who uphold and respect it, may it not be true when their own children tell it to their playmates.

I trust under the exigencies of the case, that every loyal neighborhood will form its vigilance committee, and also a Home Guard for mutual protection, and all will be well.

Yours, &c.
BILLA FLINT.

CONSOLATION FOR THE MISERABLES.

ONE TO SIX.

There is no disease either infectious, organic malarious, epidemic, scrofulous, chronic, acute or inflamatory, but that ONE TO SIX bottles or boxes of Dr. Radway's Remedies will give to the patient satisfactory evidence of cure; and any advertised remedy that fails to do the same, is unworthy of public confidence, and its use should henceforth be discontinued

AT ONCE.

Is the patient, suffering with pain, either internal or external, use RADWAY'S READY RELIEF, no matter what may be the cause, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Headache, Sore Throat, Pains in the Back, Chills and fever, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Bilious Cholic, or if Cramps, Spasms, Burns or Scalds, Bruises, relief is immediately experienced, and a cure rapidly follows.

DR. RADWAY'S PILLS

Are likewise quick and thorough in their influence in expelling disease from the system, for all diseases where it is essential to use purgative medicines, from one dose to six boxes will effect a through cure. Biliousness, Constipation, Indigestion, Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, are cured rapidly; they do not afford merely temporary relief, but effect a thorough cure. No pain or uneasiness, wrenching pains or hard straining follow their use.

DR. RADWAY'S CLEANSING SYRUP,

Called Renovating Resolvent, cures the worst skin diseases, Scorfula, Salt Rheum, sores of all kinds, Sore Heads, and Venereal sores, Pimples, blotches, &c., by the use of from one to six bottles.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Unlike the Mineral preparations that drive the virus of eruptions and sores into the vital organs, this marvellous Ointment discharges the poison before it heals the flesh. The Pills inevitably cure Dyspepsia, and all bilious disorders.

Sold at the manufactories, No. 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and No. 244 Strand, London, and by all druggists. If the reader of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, 80 Maiden Lane, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other person's make. 52c., 62½c., and $1 per box.

THE RAT HOLE FLEET.—The Yankees have sunk some 20 vessels loaded with stone at the mouth of Charleston Harbour, which will doubtless prevent any vessels drawing over a few feet of water, entering that port for all time to come, this must prove a serious loss to the property owners there, but it will not at all interfere with the supplies of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer" for the cure of rheumatism, Tictoloureux, neuralgia, toothache, and all complaints of that nature. Sold by Medicine Dealers everywhere, price 25 cts per bottle.

AFFLICTION.—Why will you suffer the terrors and afflictions incident to a disordered state of the liver or digestive organs, when a certain remedy is within your reach?—Hoofland's German Bitters will cure you. If you will only discard your prejudice, and give this a trial, you will never regret it. Your stomach will be strengthend and regain its original vigor, and you will be able to digest your food satisfactorily. These bitters are for sale by all druggists and dealers in medicines.

NOT HARD TO CATCH.—You may catch a cold quicker and far easier than you can catch a mackerel: but you try Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, your cough, cold, hoarseness, and sore throat will soon disappear. 25 cents a box. All Druggists sell them.

Death.

At Peterboro, on the 10th inst., Mr. Samuel Hartley, Sr., aged 68 years.

MADAME DIMOND

ONE of the most eminent Clairvoyants of the day is at Caine's Hotel in this Town, at Parlor No. 1, first floor. Great numbers are availing themselves of her rare powers in the treatment and cure of the most stubborn diseases, some of which have hitherto proved incurable. When in a Clairvoyant state, her mind can be trathcerred to the past, present and future events of life. Madame Dimond is also an adept in the science of Phrenology. Wherever she has visited the press has spoken in the highest terms of her abilities and skill. We advise those afflicted to call and see her.

SEWING MACHINE DEPOT.

OVER S. WHITE'S SHOE STORE

AND DIRECTLY

Opposite W. Claxton's Store,

GEORGE STREET,

PETERBOROUGH.

THE very great demand existing here for Sewing Machines has induced the undersigned to open an office in Peterboro' for the sale of Sewing Machines. He will at all times keep on hand a variety of the most

Improved Machines

BY DIFFERENT MAKERS,

Which he will supply at the very lowest rates, and will give his personal attention to instruct parties who may purchase from him in their use, and also keep the machines in good running order for one year.

The most popular Sewing Machines now before the public, and which he will keep on sale, are

Wanzer's Singer's

SEWING MACHINES,

FOR MANUFACTURER'S USE,

Sold usually at $95, now offered for $45.

WANZER'S COMBINATION,

For Family use and light Tailoring.

Worth $45, now offered at $40.

Wanzer's Wheeler and Wilson's,

For Dressmakers and other fine work.

worth $45, now offered at $40.

C. W. WILLIAMS & Co's

UNEQUALLED DOUBLE THREAD

FAMILY SEWING MACHINES,

Equal to the Grover & Baker's $60 Machines, offered now at $30.

Patterson's Sewing Machines,

Manufactured at and known as the Belleville Sewing Machine, and a favorite with many persons, now sold for $30.

WAXED THREAD MACHINES,

for Harness or Shoemaker's work at reduced prices.

The advantages offered by the establishment of this depot, are a great choice of makers, and that all Machines will be guaranteed to be kept in order for one year.

VERY LOW PRICES.

These Machines are all made in Canada, and in the event of any part becoming broken, it can be replaced at once.

No Family should be without a Sewing Machine.

Call and see the Machines and the Certificates of parties using them.

CERTIFICATES:

Peterborough, Feb. 27th, 1864.

The undersigned have had in use for some time Sewing Machines from the Manufactory of Messrs. WANZER & Co., of Hamilton, purchased from Mr. THOMAS BLETCHER, and we have much pleasure in testifying to the satisfaction we have experienced in their use. We believe the Sewing Machines sold by Mr. Bletcher are among the best in the market.

MR. BLETCHER,

Sir,—The Combination Sewing Machine I bought of you one year ago, gives me good satisfaction. I have no hesitation in recommending it to the public, as one of the best Sewing Machines now in use.

Yours, &c.,
WILLIAM MILLAR.

Hastings, Nov. 4th, 1863.

THOMAS BLETCHER, Esq., Agent for Wanzer's Sewing Machines.

Dear Sir,—We have much pleasure in stating we have used two of your Singer's Machines in our Woolen Mills, for the past twelve months, and have every reason to be satisfied with them

We remain, yours respectfully,
THOS. W. NEILD & Co.

These Certificates are all from persons residing in the immediate vicinity; they are not like those shown by American vendors, which may or may not be genuine.

Call at the office over S. White's Boot and Shoe Store, and examine the Machines for yourselves.

THE KISS.

I fancy the honor that once must be,
Conferred with elegance and taste on thee
By ladies fair;
Whose tidy forms and lightning speed,
Will deeply trench on minds that heed,
With anxious care.

The whistling clouds by tempests driven,
Along the azure vault of heaven,
In lawless bands;
Will not in all their pride so gay,
Be match for those who boasting play—
As art commands.

The snowy land that round we see,
Contrasts so well with belles that flee
Along the Rink,—
And beauties mingling in the train,
So apt to turn the simple brain,
When passions think.

Let pity kindly lift her eye,
And look where'er the weeping lie,
With sobs so loud;
And with a soothing, tender voice,
Lift them gently from the ice,
Far from the crowd.

BEAT IT WHO CAN!

There was a farmer (somewhere) who devoted his attention exclusively to growing pumpkins, and succeed in bringing them to an enormous size, so that he could chop with an axe a cart load of pieces to take to market without sensibly diminishing the size of the pumpkin. But one day he was cutting away at a new pumpkin when his axe slipped and fell through into the pumpkin; he procured a lantern and descended into the pumpkin; but when he got to the bottom he was surprised to find there another man who immediately demanded of him what he came down for.

'I've come,' said he 'to look for my axe which I have lost in here.'

'Well,' says the other, 'you may go back again, for I have been here these three weeks looking for my horse, and have not been able to get a sight of him.'

'These notes enliven me,' as the gentleman said on receiving a remittance.

'Each moment makes thee dearer,' as the parsimonious tradesman said to his extravagant wife.

The gunpowder explosion at Erith, England, on the 1st of October, was heard sixty-four miles.

Some people think the country will be very healthy, because the physicians are raising their fees.

'When's the next train?' said a tourist to an Irish railway porter. 'Oh, it's just gone, yer honor, worse luck!' replied Paddy.

'Is that clock right over there?' asked an old gentleman of a little urchin. 'Right over there!' said the boy; 'taint nowhere else.'

One asked another why learning was always called a republic. 'Forsooth,' quoth the other, 'because scholars are so poor that they have not a sovereign among them.'

A lady who was asked to join one of the Daughters of Temperance. She replied, 'That is unnecessary, as it is my intention to join one of the Sons in the course of a few weeks.'

Lay it down as a rule never to smile, nor in any way show approval or merriment to any trait in a child which you should not wish to grow with his growth, and strengthen with his strength.

Stubbs said to one of his debtors,—'Isn't it about time you paid me that little bill?' 'My dear sir,' was the consoling reply, 'It's not a question of time, it's a question of money.'

What more precious offering can be laid upon the alter of a man's heart than the first love of a pure, earnest, and affectionate girl, with an undivided interest in £10,000, and more in prospective.

An urchin suffering from the application of the birch, said "Forty rods are said to be a furlong. I know better; let anybody get such a licking as I've had, and he'll find out that one rod makes an acher."

"Oh, dear, Mr. S. you jest when you say my baby is the handsomest you ever saw; you must be soft soaping." "Well, madam," returned the blunt old gentleman, "I think it needs soap of some kind."

A few sabbaths ago, a minister, who was giving an address in one of the schools near Halifax, asked the question, "What is a feast?" when a chubby-faced boy gave the following answer, "A fatty cake wi' currans in't.

APPROPRIATE.—"How do you and your friends feel now?" said an exultant Whigling to the leader of the defeated party in the late division. "I suppose," said the latter," we feel just as Lazarus did when he was licked by the dogs."

In the streets of Leicester, one day, Dean Swift was accosted by a drunken weaver, who, staggering against his reverence, said,—"I have been spinning it out."

"Yes," said the Dean, "I see you have, and now you are reeling it home."

The following sally of wit took place one day at Dr. Whately's dinner table, between him and the present Bishop of Cork, shortly after the consecration of the latter:—"My Lord of Cork," said Archbishop Whately, "you stop the bottle." "If I do," replied John of Cork, "I ought to be screwed."

PUTTING A STOP TO PILGRIM'S PROGRESS.—Jemmy Gordon, meeting the prosecutor of a felon named Pilgrim, who was convicted and sentenced to be transported at the Cambridge Assizes, exclaimed, "You have done, sir, what the Pope of Rome could never do; you have put a stop to Pilgrim's Progress."

Dumas was excoriating the other day to a fellow litterateur on the beauty of Naples and disparaging Paris. The Parisian thought that city so dirty that it was impossible to put a foot down anywhere in safety. "But the sky is pure and celestial," said Dumas. "Yes," responded the antagonist, "but why? because it is beyond the reach of the Neapolitans to dirty it."

Non-paying subscribers are thus talked to by a Southern Editor: Wagons cannot run without wheels—boats without steam—bullfrogs jump without legs, or a newspaper be carried on an everlasting long time without feeds, no more than a dog can wag his tail when he has none. Our subscribers are all good, but what does a man's goodness do when it don't do you any good? We have no doubt that every one thinks that all have paid except him, and as we are a clever fellow, and he is a small matter, it will make no difference. It would not if it were only confined to every dozen or a hundred cases, but when the slow fever seizes most all, the complaint is altogether too general. As the bullfrog said, 'Its fun to you but its death to us.'

A HINT
TO THE
WORTHY CITIZENS OF CANADA.
BE WARNED IN TIME.
ALL parties purchasing my Pills and Ointment for their several complaints are respectfully warned against purchasing either Pills or Ointment purporting to be my preparations, that have a United States Stamp around the Boxes and Pots. There is no Treaty between the people of the States and the Home Government, therefore an United States Stamp does not protect my preparations. There are no stamps upon my Canadian style of Pills or Ointment, coming from the United States. I rely only for protection on the water mark in book of directions around each Box or Pot. Before you purchase them, see that there are no U. S. Stamps upon the Box of Pills or Ointment. Purchase none that have United States stamps on.

BLETCHER'S
CANADIAN
CLOTHES WRINGER
COMBINES more Strength of Frame, Capacity for Pressure, and Power of Action, than any other in the market. We manufacture five sizes intended for and adapted to Families, Hotels, Laundries, &c.
Bletcher's Canadian Clothe's Wringer
Saves Time, Labor, Clothes and Money.
It will wear for years without repair!
No Servant can break it!
A Child ten years old can operate it!
No caution or skill required in its use!
It will wring anything from a Thread to the Heaviest Quilt.
It saves its Cost in Clothing
Every six or nine Months.
The water can be pressed from large and small articles easier, quicker and more thoroughly than by the ordinary old fashioned back-breaking, wrist-straining and clothes-destroying process.
It is easily and firmly secured to the Tub or Washing Machine and will fit Tubs of any shape or size. Every Wringer is Warranted in every particular, either with or without star gearing; and in the event of any part becoming broken or mislaid, we can replace it at once. We sell them at prices that defy competition, as the following will testify:

No. 1, nine inch roll,	$4 50
2, nine and a half inch roll,	4 75
3, ten inch roll,	5 00
4, twelve inch roll,	5 75
5, fourteen inch roll,	6 50

We keep all the sizes above on hand at all times at our Sewing Machine Office, over Mr. S. White's shoe store,
George Street, Peterborough.

L. LYONS' PURE OHIO
CATAWBA BRANDY,
AND
SPARKLING CATAWBA WINES.
Equal in Quality and Cheaper in Price than the Brandies and Wines of the Old World.
FOR SUMMER COMPLAINT, CHOLERA INFANTUM BOWEL COMPLAINT, CRAMP, COLIC, AND DIARRHŒA.
A Cure is guaranteed or the money will be refunded.
Analysis of the Massachussetts State Assayer, Jan. 25, 1858.
When evaporated through clean linen it left no oil or offensive matter. In every respect it is a pure spiritous liquor. The oil which gives to this Brandy its flavour and aroma, is fusil, or grain oil. Its order partakes of both the fruit and oil of grapes. With acids, it produces ethers of a high fragrance. The substitution of this Brandy for Cognac Brandy will do away with the manufacture of factitious spirits, sold under this name both at home and abroad. Respectfully,
A. A. HAYES, M.D., Assayer to State Mass.,
16 Boyleston St.
By the same, in 1864.
I have analyzed "L. LYONS' PURE CATAWBA BRANDY," with reference to its composition and character, being the same as that produced in past years. A sample taken from ten casks afforded the same result with regard to purity; a slightly increased amount of the principle on which its flavor depends was determined by comparison with former samples.
The indication of analysis show that this Brandy is produced by the same process as most of the imported Brandy. Respectfully,
A. A. HAQES, M. D., State Assayer,
Boston July 20, 1864. 16 Boyleston St

ATTENTION is directed to the rate of premiums adopted by this Company, which will compare favorably with that of any other institution in Canada. Investments of Company's funds to the large amount of nearly five hundred thousand dollars have been completed in Canada; and as all business transactions are finally disposed of in the Province, the Scottish Provincial offers all the facilities presented by a purely local Company, while it possesses the additional advantage of a large capital, and an influential and responsible body of shareholders in Great Britain.
Policies effected on or before 31st January next will receive a full year's bonus over those effected thereafter.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?
A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!
CAN BE FOUND IN
Holloway's Pills.
Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!
BY THE USE OF
Holloway's Ointment.
THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER SHAPE internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are
The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.
This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.
These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick
The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the RADIX OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.
Disorders of the Stomach
Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs UPON THE BLOOD ITSELF, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.
Woman in all her Difficulties
Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.
Be it Understood,
That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.
Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.
In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable curative. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.
Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.
The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.
Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Vernal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.
If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they can not make as much profit as on other persons' make.
None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.
 Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 63 cents, and $1 40 each.
☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 32

Select Poetry.

The Song My Mother used to Sing.

When memory wakes her notes of cheer,
And through the heart their echoes ring,
How apply steal o'er fancy's ear
The things my mother used to sing!
It gladdens me to recal the day,
When folded gently on her breast,
She sang the low, sweet lullaby
That hush'd my infant woes to rest.

In childhood hours when sickness came,
And paled my little brow and cheek,
She was beside me still the same
Kind watcher o'er the wan and weak,
Dear mother, in that helpless hour
What senseless tenderness was thine!
To guard so carefully the flower,
That health and bloom might yet be mine.

And life, and bloom, and hope were given,
Once more my mother sang and smiled,—
Our home was like a cloudless heaven,—
I grew, a healthy, happy child!
O, childhood's gay and laughing hours,
Why do ye roll so swiftly by,
When fairer bloom the summer flowers,
And stars shine brighter in the sky?

Old time may spread his tireless wings,
And onward sweep with rapid flight,
Bearing earth's fairest, loveliest things
Beyond the ken of mortal sight;
Yet memory's harp shall still be near—
I'll bid her strike each golden string;
And once again shall charm my ear,
The song my Mother used to sing.

The flowers that round my pathway bloom,
The glorious stars that nightly shine,
May fade away in endless gloom—
But memory's gift shall still be mine;
And when the last dark hour shall come,
Her sweetest harmonies she'll bring,
While angels wait to bear me home,
With songs my mother used to sing.

Miscellaneous.

Doesticks Skates with his Lady Love.

I used to skate; who didn't when he was a boy? I never knew a boy who didn't skate. I used to be well versed in all the slippery tactics of the mill-pond, and could do the backward run, the inside circle, the postman's knock, and all the other legitimate elegances, to say nothing of many involuntary variations, generally of that description elegantly designated by boys as 'belly-flop-pers,' therefore you may imagine that, when Laura Jane asked me to go up to the Central Park and join the skaters I acceeded with a blissful hope of triumph to come, for Laura Jane had never yet seen me skate. So I said I would go; and I did go. To tell the truth, I intended to skate into her affections, and supplant Jobley, who had rather got ahead of me in that quarter.

So I got skates, $25, and patent-leather boots to match, $17. I was resolved to win my bride by sheer force of legs; legs were trumps, and I thought I held two that couldn't be beat. I took her to the ice, where she donned a dainty pair of skates and sailed away.

This was a new idea. I had no notion that she intended to skate. I supposed, merely, that she was to be a spectator, and would have full leisure to watch my graceful evolutions. However I flattered myself that she would soon tire, and that by the time I had fully recovered my early skill, she would be prepared to have a look at me.

We reached the ice; hundreds of people were there—in fact I may say thousands. There were no poor skaters; the poor skaters knew too much to exhibit themselves in the gaze of such a multitude. Flattered myself that I'd soon astonish the multitude.

'Ha, ha!' I said, as I watched their meanderings and evolutions, 'ha, ha, silly multitude, meander away, evolution on, boys and keep on meandering; I'll be with you presently, and then you'll see!'

My beastly boots gave me an extra twinge, as if the calf, of whose hide they were made, had been dancing a hornpipe on my cornicet toe.

Laura did wonderful things; she dashed straight forward; she dodged about sharp corners; she glided this way, she serpentined that—all the time going at the highest speed, but never having a collision; some fellows tried extempore collisions with her. They pretended not to see her coming, and then threw themselves suddenly in her way, and threw out their arms to clasp her to save her from falling. Not a bit! She was too smart; and she got out of the way every time, while the would-be-huggers tumbled heels over head. By the way, I noticed that this hugging business was made much of by certain old maids. They put on skates, short dresses, curls, and all the false lights to lead unsuspecting navigators to their arms. One took her position in the way, watched for a good looking man, and when he came near This blessed old girl got four good hugs in as many minutes; three of them she stood manfully, but the fellows got away too quick; so she watched for a rather slim young man, threw herself violently at him, and the poor fellow caught her, squeezed her tight, lost his balance in trying to save her, and the pair roll on the ice over and over together, she got a good half minute hug before he could get away. She liked it so well, that the next one that came, she pitched herself at him like a she thunder bolt; down they went; then, when he picked her up with many apologies, and was going to leave her, she feigned a sprain; leaned on his shoulder, and he had to absolutely carry her off by main force. It took her five minutes to find out that she could stand without having his arm around her, and her head on his shoulder. In the course of the day she had four sprains of the ankle, two broken legs, and a fractured knee-pan—all of which were cured in from five to fifteen minutes, according to the good looks and the patience of the captive she had taken.

But now about my skating. Well, I suppose I must come to it at last—though to say the truth, I didn't win such a tremendous triumph as I had hoped—my success was not so transcendently brilliant as I could have wished; I didn't shine with quite the woodrous glory that I had hoped would so completely eclipse all the others—In fact I didn't triumph at all; I didn't succeed; I didn't shine; I didn't eclipse everybody, or, for the matter of that, I didn't eclipse anybody.

Those beastly boots! If each one had been a leather devil, with a special spite against me, they couldn't have tormented me more effectually. Then my skates; I had to strap them on tightly over my already blistered toes. Imagine a man with his toes in a vice, giving an extra turn to the handle himself; I felt as if some one was trying to draw of my toe nails with a red hot cork screw; got on my skates at last. Laura got up; she waltzed way down the pond with Jobley; he skate indeed! Laura asked me to hurry up and go down the lake with her; hurried on my skates; smiled such a smile as a man smiles when he drinks a cup of scalding tea and the eyes of his lady love are on him; gazed half a minute contemptuously at Jobley before I got up; then I got up with dignity. Something was the matter with the skates; my legs instantly spread apart like a pair of compasses; thought I was split clean thro' to my chin, knew, however that no ordinary tumble would split me through the selvige of my scull. Got up with a ghastly grin; muttered something about my skates not being strapped on tight; tried again to go; got about two yards, when my legs flew from under me again.

I came down; I can scarcely say that I sat down, for I hardly know whether my head didn't strike before any other part of my anatomy. Result—hat flew clean across the pond; my gloves flew in different directions, and were seen no more; my dinner was shaken up as violently as if I had come from the moon by the shortest cut, and struck sitting down on a marble quarry and on the ice there were two large stars where certain parts of my frame that first struck the ice had made their impression. These stars were large, and the widely radiating rays showed that I had come down solid. Grinned a ghastly grin; Jobley offered to help me up; disdained to take his hand. Got up most myself—went down again—more stars on the ice, and more ghastly grin. Jobley did help me now, without asking my permission. Tried again,—more stars, more grin, ghastlier than ever. Everybody laughed at me. Was so full of mad inside that I felt that I must soon explode if something wasn't done—I had more than a thousand pounds of mad to the square inch, but I still grinned. About this time I became aware that the Central Park ice is cold. There was a lovely rip in my pantaloons, all up my leg. Ice was cold—also snow. Made one more desperate attempt, but only succeeded in making more stars.

The ice—(by this time the muscles of my face had frozen into a ghastly grin)—the ice was cold, as I found it by actual application to the bare Doesticks. Another rip dereloped itself in that part of my pantaloons that is usually covered by my coat-tail; to say nothing of the wind which blew chill; the ice was cold. My acquaintance with the ice was intimate and touching; and I cannot positively aver, tha' the said ice is cold. Jobley and Laura did wonderful execution on the ice, and the ice is cold; they were much admired, and so was I; they came around occasionally to see how I got along, and after making many more stars of various sizes, and discovering to my entire satisfaction, that this winter's crop of ice is cold, I had at last mastered my legs so that I could keep them under me, or thereabouts. Put into port for temporary repairs, and by the aid of half-a-dozen pins, I so far repaired damages that I thought myself presentable. Went to my lady-love, got her hand for an ice reel or waltz. Smiled defiantly at Jobley, and we started; she smiled, I smiled; she laughed I laughed, and all was going merry as a marriage bell, when there was a smash; my legs, with the skates on the ends of them, scattered about, and at last tangled themselves in Miss. Laura's skates, and we came down in one promiscuous heap. Nobody was hurt; she laughed, and quickly got up; I laughed but I couldn't get up; it was no laughing matter, for ice was cold; it was colder now than before, and there seemed to be more of it.

The bare Doesticks made direct acquaintance with the ice, and I can safely swear that the ice was really cold. She asked me to get up; I told her I couldn't. She got frightened, and asked me if she couldn't help me up? This was what I didn't want her to do; I lay on the ice in such a way as to cover the torn part of my pantaloons—and the ice was so cold! She didn't know what was the matter, but thought my ankle was sprained. I told her no; then she asked why I didn't get up. I said that I enjoyed lying there—that I liked to recline on the ice. She thought that I was deceiving her, and that I was hurt. I couldn't get up, and she wouldn't go away; and the ice was really so cold. At last, seeing she wouldn't go away and let me pin myself together again. I confessed to her that I should be obliged to ask her to go for a doctor; that I had frozen my toes, broken one leg, sprained both ankles, and thrown my hip out of joint, and that I must have help at once. She went away after a doctor; and immediately on her departure I arose, took of my skates, put the pins in again to keep the ice out of my wardrobe, cut a number of holes in these beasts of boots to ease my feet, and departed over the hills before she got back with the doctor. As I left the grounds I saw Jobley talking to her; and they were both in high glee, I have no doubt he was explaining to her why I liked to lie there on the ice, and was loth to get up. I haven't seen her since; but I have given up trying to skate myself into any woman's affections. Woman is always heartless; and at this time of the year the ice is so cold.

PHILANDER DOESTICKS, P. B.

OUR MINISTER'S TRIAL.

A good man was our pastor, Rev. Mr. Thornton Harree, and one of no common eloquence. Our best—I had almost written good—church members loved him. I am sorry to say that a few, thorned by the words that fell from his line when he endeavored to excite his brethern and sisters to "A closer walk with God," regarding him with other emotions than the fruits of the spirit. Like all good men he was carefully watched by those who would have been transported with fiend-like delight could they have found a flaw in his conduct. "Well! well!" said Mrs. Monroe, the wheelwright's wife, to her husband as they sat at the breakfast-table one morning, "suppose Mr. Haven did kiss Fanny Lawton. She was almost one of the family—what was the harm?" "But," said the wheelwright, "I don't believe that he did kiss her." "Fanny herself said he did," replied the wife. This seemed to be a clincher to Mr. Monroe. He deliberately wiped his face with his handkerchief, and with a downcast, thoughtful look, and slower pace than usual, went to his shop. He had hardly taken his own shave in hand and commenced to play it on an unfinished spoke, before Deacon Brown came in. The Deacon stood a while chewing a small bit of shaving, and talking about this that and nothing. Suddenly he said—"Brother Monroe have you heard this about our minister?" "Yes," replied the brother. Then there was not a word spoken for several minutes. The wheelwright steadily worked on at the spoke—the Deacon looked out of the window. At length Mr. Monroe, in a low voice, said, "What is to be done?" "Something must, was the Deacon's answer, "or the cause will suffer." And the Deacon walked rapidly up the street. "What is this story about Mr. Haven's improper treatment of young ladies?" asked the cynical lawyer, Thompson, of Woodward, the tavern-keeper. "Why," said the mixer of sherry-cobblers and drawer of beer, "the parson is no better than others." "Something must be done," were the words of Deacon Brown, "and that soon," he thought, but did not speak. So from the wheelwright's he went to the house of another deacon,—one Benton Johnston. He had heard the story, and being an enemy believed it, and was determined to deal with the offender. The deacon called upon the minister, and Deacon Johnston was spokesman. The story in full was, that Mrs. Barnard, a grass widow—that is, a woman whose husband had gone off because he could not live with her—had heard, as she was passing the parsonage, Fanny Lawton say to one of the children—"You lost a kiss from your father by not being in the house when he got home from the lower village, and I got it." Mr. Haven denied ever having kissed that girl, and suggested that the Deacon should write to Fanny, who was teaching school about twenty miles distant, to get the truth of the matter. The deacon did. They stepped into the minister's study and wrote. In a few days the reply came' "You ask me if on one occasion Rev. Mr. Haven gave me a kiss—where we were, and who were present. In answer, I state, Mr. Haven did on one occasion, while I was staying at his house, and in the sitting-room give me a kiss. No person but ourselves were present.' Deacon Johnston was elated, and immediately wrote to his wife's cousin, a young candidate, that there would soon be a vacant parish where he, no doubt, would receive a call. Deacon Brown was thunderstruck—Miss Lawton's words were not to be doubted—it was so plain a matter that there could be no mistake. Still the minister denied the charge. He could not do such a thing without being aware of it, and he knew he had never kissed anybody but his wife, since his marriage. Deacon Johnston brought the matter before the church. The charge contained two distinct allegations. First—That Rev. Mr. Haven had been guilty of a great impropriety, which rendered it expedient that he should be dismissed from the pastorate. Second—he had lied in the matter. Fanny Lawton was sent for, and the church called together. Rev. Solon Dickinson, the pastor of the neighboring church was present to moderate the meeting. The meeting house was filled. Every member of the church, but old bed-ridden Polly Stearns, was present. The tavern was well represented. All the scoffers and scorners within half a dozen miles who could get there, were present. The church meeting was duly opened. Deacon Johnston then brought forward his charge. Fanny was called to testify. Her testimony was—"One afternoon—I think it must have been early in March—three of Mr. Haven's children and myself were all alone in the sitting room; their mother had gone to the sewing circle. Mr. Haven came into the house, from the other village; the children met him at the door which opened from the sitting-room into the hall; as he came in they went out, and he gave each, as they met him, a kiss, and then coming in, gave me one." A painful silence followed Miss Lawton's testimony. At length Deacon Johnston put the question: "Did he close the door before he came into the sitting room?' The answer was, "I think he did." Had a pin fallen on the floor it would have been heard in any part of the spacious sanctuary. Then Mr. Haven rose up and said—"Miss Lawton, what did you do with the kiss I gave you?" "Here it is," said Fanny, holding up one of those articles of confectionary commonly called "kisses." Then there was another pause, and a silence that was oppressive. All were too much amazed, and either too gratified or disappointed to move. Most of those present held their breath while Mr. Haven asked—"Fanny Lawton, did I ever kiss you?" "No, never; I never said you did." And so ended the minister's trial.

A manufacturer down west having got by some accident a severe cut across the nose. And having no court plaster at hand, stuck on his unfortunate proboscis one of his gum tickets, on which was the usual estimation,—"Warranted three hundred and twenty yards long."

ELOQUENCE OF A THUNDERER.

One Paul Denton, a Methodist preacher in Texas, advertised a barbacue, with better liquor than usually furnished. When the people were assembled, a desperado in the crowd cried out, "Mr. Paul Denton, your reverence has lied. You promised us not only a good barbacue, but better liquor. Where is the liquor?"

"There," answered the Missionary, in tones of thunder, and pointed his finger at the matchless double spring gushing up in two strong columns, with a sound like a shout of joy, from the bosom of the earth.

"There," he repeated, with a look terrible as the lightning, there is the liquor which God, the Eternal, brews for all his children! Not in the simpering stuff, over smoky fires, chocked with poisonous gasses, and surrounded with the stench of sickening odors and rank corruptions, doth your Father in Heaven prepare the precious essence of life, the pure cold water; but in the glade and grassy dell where the red deer wanders, and the child loves to play—there God brews it; and down, low down in the deepest valleys, where the fountain murmurs and the rills sing; and high upon the tall mountain tops where the naked granite glitters like gold in the sun, where the storm-cloud brews and the thunder-storms crash; and away far out on the wide, wide sea, where the hurricane howls music, and the big waves roar the chorus, sweeping the march of God—there he brews it, that beverage of life, health-giving water. And everywhere it is a thing of beauty; gleaming in the dew drop; singing in the summer rain; shining in the ice gem, till the trees all seem turned to living jewels; spreading a golden veil over the setting sun, or a white gauze around the midnight moon; sporting in the cataract; sleeping in the glacier; dancing in the hail shower; folding its bright snow curtains softly about the wintry world; and weaving the many colored iris, that seraph's zone of the sky—whose warp is the rain-drop of earth, whose woof is the sunbeam of Heaven—all checkered over with the celestial flowers, by the mystic hand of refraction. Still always it is beautiful—that blessed life-water! No poison bubbles on its brink; its foam brings no madness and murder; no blood stains its liquid glass; pale widows and starving orphans weep no burning tear in its depth; no drunkard's shrieking ghost from the grave curses it in words of eternal despair! Speak out, my friends! would you exchange it for the demon's drink, alcohol?"—A shout like the roar of a tempest answered—"No!"

A Terrible Case of Suicide.

A brief notice appeared in the World, of yesterday morning, of a suicide which took place on Sunday at No. 87 West Twenty-sixth street, the particulars of which had not transpired. The testimony in the case, as elicited at the inquest on the body of the deceased, before Coroner Ranney, disclosed some facts which show the affair to have been one of the most deliberate suicides that has been brought to the public notice during the past year. There is an air of romance also surrounding the occurrence, a woman being in the case, and being the cause, also, if we may take the suicide's own excuse, for the commission of the deed.

Deceased was a young man, not above twenty-eight years of age, respectably connected, and of good business habits. About two years ago, he visited Boston, Mass., and became acquainted with a young woman named Smith, of whom he became enamored, and who he shortly afterwards married. Miss Smith was informed that deceased had previously been married, and that his first wife was still living; but as deceased showed his papers of divorce, she consented to an alliance with him. The parties then came to this city and lived together, though not very amicably. Some time ago, Lawyer Blankman told Mrs. Tuttles that the divorce papers showed her by deceased were forged, and that, consequently, he was still bound to the first wife. Up to this time, Mrs. Tuttles had been engaged in the business of pattern and dress making, having one store on Broadway and another in Canal street. Upon learning the fact that deceased was not legally divorced from his first wife, she went to Boston, and deceased followed her soon afterwards and induced her to return.—They then boarded together a week or two; when an open breach was made between the parties, and Mrs. Tuttles took rooms at 551 Broadway. Deceased took rooms at the Sewall House, on the opposite side of the way, and they continued visiting each other, she remaining at his rooms occasionally, and he at hers; matters did not go on any more smoothly between the parties, however, and on Saturday she paid a visit to the house of Mr. Ezra Gildersleeve, a well-known merchant residing at No 87 West Twenty-sixth street. Mrs. Gildersleeve and cousin, and Mrs. Tuttles, went on a skating party, and on returning at twelve o'clock at night, found deceased there awaiting them; he told Mrs. Tuttles that her brother had come to the city, and desired to see her, and that she had better go to her rooms; this she refused to do; he then left her, but on the following day, Sunday, called again. He then asked her if she would go home to her rooms. She replied: "Yes, when some one can go with me." He next said: "Do you then refuse to live with me?" She replied in the affirmative. He then arose to go, and as he passed out into the hall, opened the hall-door and said: "You will make me do something this afternoon that you will always be sorry for."

He drew off his glove, which he had put on but a moment before, and, drawing a pistol from his pocket, applied the muzzle to his forehead. She rushed toward him, exclaiming, "Don't don't," but was too late to prevent the fatal deed. The ball entered the forehead, near the temple, and lodged in the body of the brain. He fell over on the steps, his head striking with great violence, and the blood and brains issuing from the wounds. In twenty minutes he was a corpse.

The jury rendered a verdict in accordance with the facts as above stated.—N. Y. World.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 19, 1865.

THE COMING SESSION.

Parliament opens this day for the dispatch of business. The only business of importance that is likely to engage their attention is the Confederation scheme. The Government will no doubt submit the resolutions of the Conference and ask their adoption.—We do not think they will or should be adopted without due consideration; for although we have advocated Union we do not advocate a Union unless the conditions of that Union be well understood and properly defined. It is of very great importance that the people be fully aware of all the conditions and stipulations of the proposed Union before it be finally perfected: for otherwise how can they give an intelligent decision on the matter.

It is rumored that counter-resolutions are likely to be made, in order at least to change some of the features as settled by the Conference. Some of these may, probably, require modifying. The educational interest of the Provinces, for instance, should not be left in the manner it is. That we could be expected to submit to allow the present Parliament, or any other Parliament, to settle the vexed question of the education of our youth, and that for all time, is unreasonable. And it is more unreasonable when we consider that the system that is to all appearance about to be saddled upon us will be the work of Messrs. Galt and McGee—pruned and dressed and nicely shaped by the hierarchy of Lower Canada—in order to gain them over to aid in carrying out the great scheme of Confederation. Anything may be bought too dear; and we certainly think Confederation will be bought at too dear a rate, if, to obtain it, we give up the right of dealing with our local matters, and especially the matter of the education of our children, when and how the majority of the free and independent electors of the Province may from time to time demand and direct. Another resolution that is about to be offered will be in favor of an elective Upper House instead of an appointed one. We trust that this amendment, it offered, will be carried. The elective principle is most in accordance with the progress and spirit of the times.—It has been tried, and no great defect or disorder found in its working. Why then should we return to the old effete system, family compacts and Crown appointments? To do so will only be sowing the seeds of dissolution, which will ripen perhaps sooner than we are ready now to imagine.

We need not bring to mind the abuses of the old system, against which reformers fought so long and energetically until they obtained justice and equal rights for every class of Canadians to whom noble talents had been granted. And now to allow this to be snatched from us, all to soothe and soften that insatiable spirit of domination which almost always accompanies a certain class, would be to stultify ourselves in the eyes of all right thinking men. By all means let us have an elective House, both Upper and Lower. It is enough for the Crown to have the appointment of a Viceroy; to grant any more would be to allow too much, for which we might have cause hereafter to be sorry. We wish to be nothing more or less than a Colony of Great Britain. The people of Canada do not even anticipate independence—when they do it will be time enough to discuss the matter. To begin to build up a Colonial aristocracy with the idea of a McGee Regiomania—Kingly Court, and Grandees—'feudal realms of old Romance'—exhibits a retrogressiveness that we trust the people of the Provinces will not be guilty of admitting.

Now that the whole matter is about to be discussed, let us watch the affair carefully and watch the action of our representatives in the matter, that by timely action we may (if possible) hinder anything from being done that cannot (if wrong) be as easily undone.

The following extract from a dispatch from Secretary of State to the colonies, to His Excelency the Govenor General will show that the Imperial Government sees the germ of future trouble in an appointed Upper House:—

"The second point which Her Majesty's government desire should be reconsidered, is the Constitution of the Legislative Council. They appreciate the considerations which have influenced the Conference in determining the mode in which this body, so important to the Constitution of the Legislature, should be composed. But it appears to them to require further consideration whether, if the members be appointed for life and their number be fixed, there will be any sufficient means of restoring harmony between the Legislative Council and the popular Assembly, if it shall ever unfortunately happen that a decided difference of opinion shall arise between them."

"These two points, relating to the prerogative of the Crown and to the Constitution of the Upper Chamber, have appeared to require distinct and seperate notice.

THE LAST PAPAL BULL.

Pius the Ninth has issued an encyclical letter to the Venerable brethern, Patriarchs, Primates, Archbishops, Bishops, &c., in communion with the Apostolic See. In this he declares that the following principles and practices are radically inconsistent with christian peace and progress:—

1. The non-recognition of the Catholic religion by the civil power.
2. Liberty of conscience and worship.
3. The doctrine of popular Sovereignty.
4. The refusal to the Clergy of the right to educate their youth.
5. The denial that the Church is entitled to obedience in political and temporal matters, as well as matters of faith and morals.

Pio Nono, claims as much as any of his predecessors of illustrious memory; but one thing he does not do—he does not issue his anathemas and excommunications so freely as they did. The temper of the people has to be considered, and no greater burden imposed, than they are evidently willing to bear. He may sit upon the seven hills; but not interfere with the powers that be, they are ordained of God. And we feel assured, that if he but attends to ecclesiastical concerns, some of even the heretical powers will trouble him. His troubles all originate in his over stretch for temporal power, and among his own communion.

THE PROHIBITORY LIQUOR LAW.

CAN IT BE ENFORCED?

From the feeble opposition offered to the passage of Dunkin's Prohibitory Liquor Law, in those Municipalities where it has been submitted to popular vote, we might be led to believe that the people were nearly of one mind on the matter. But when we consider that, in Otonabee and Smith, at least, a very small vote was cast; we may be permitted to ask does this small vote not imply indifference as to the results of passing or rejecting the Law? The friends of intemperance, perhaps, regard the whole thing as a matter of form, and consider that they will still be allowed to carry on their traffic without molestation, or rather, with increased facilities, as they will not be troubled about paying for License. They may, therefore, wish for the passage of the Law, in order to get free from the expense of License, and License Inspector's fees, and regulations in regard to houses of entertainment.

If the passing of a Prohibitory Law will, to any degree, mitigate the evils of intemperance, we hail it with delight; but if, on the contrary, it will be the means of adding increased facilities to those engaged in the Liquor traffic, none would regret it more than ourselves. That the Law itself will do much, we never believed, although there is much in it, if rigidly enforced, that would work good. The principle of trying to regulate the traffic in public houses has been found to be as difficult as anything that can arise in trying to enforce Prohibition. The difficulty in the working of the old Law did not arise out of, or belong necessarily, to the Law, but because of the general indifference of the people in the matter. The idea that attaches itself to the word Informer prevented many from taking action, and thus, those who carried on their business as illegitimately as any one can do under the new Law, were allowed to go unpunished. The great number of persons who were called respectable, patronizing the taverns on Saturday night and Sunday, prevented the friends of Temperance from taking action to suppress the illegitimate traffic, which thus set at defiance both human and Divine Law.

But these things can now be easily remedied. The Municipal Corporations, where the Law has been passed, can assume the responsibility of enforcing its own By-law, and to this end may assume the management of endeavouring to convict.—Thus the odium of Informer will be removed from individuals and be placed against the Municipality. The difficulty of convicting under the old Law hindered many from lodging information against parties whom they believed to be violating the Law. This difficulty is greatly removed by the new Law, and consequently there is every reason to believe that greater efforts will be put forth to enforce the conditions of Dunkin's Act.

By the Municipalities appointing an individual to see that the Laws of the Municipality are enforced, and giving him a certain remuneration for his labor, and requiring him faithfully to perform the duties imposed a great check would thus be put on those who would desire to violate the Law, and the traffic would be materially restricted by such a course. An excellent plan to effect respect for the Law would be for all professing Christians to set the example of Law abiding subjects, and thus refrain from violating the laws of our land by not countenancing the violation of Law by those who are not Christians. And if Churches would aid the good work by refusing fellowship to those who would be found engaged in the traffic in contravention of the Law, and also to those who would encourage the violation of the Law, by buying or bartering for, or indirectly evading the requirements of such Law, we would soon find that it would be respected. For it is because of dereliction of duty on the part of Churches that the vice of intemperance has arrived at such an appalling magnitude. We do not think that the working of the Act lies wholly on temperance men; if others will do their duty Temperance men will have a lighter task to perform than the secret enemies of temperance would fain have imposed on them. The last scheme that we would propose for enforcing the Law is—that temperance Communities or organizations engage men, and pay them, for the purpose of convicting all whom they may be able to discover contravening the Prohibitory Liquor Law. By giving an active man a yearly salary and reckoning all the shares of fines that he might receive for the year as part of said salary, and making up the deficiency out of some common fund, the traffic would, in all probability, be greatly limited thereby, and intemperance be materially lessened, the poor inebriate himself would soon come to his right mind and join in supporting the Law.

If each of the above parties will do its duty, we have no hesitation in saying that the Prohibitory Law can be enforced.

Opening of the New Church at Haliburton.

The new Church at Haliburton, in the English Company's township, was formally opened on New Years Day. The Rev. Mr. Sanders, of Toronto, performed the service, and preached a very impressive sermon on the occasion. The Church is a pretty little frame structure, situated on a rising ground commanding a fine view of the beautiful scenery around Head Lake, and Haliburton. The Church was well filled on the occasion by the Company's settlers. The ceremony of baptism was at the same time performed on the part of a child born in the settlement. It was christened by the appropriate name of Samuel Dysart—the name of the township the company is now settling, with great rapidity and success. The opening of the Church gave great satisfaction to the whole of the surrounding districts. We understand that a school will be opened in Haliburton very shortly.

We regret to have to chronicle the death of Mr. George Warren, Station Master at Port Hope. He was seized with a paralytic stroke on the 4th inst., and died on Friday night last.

Mr. W. J. Fowler, who has been Station Master in this Town for a number of years, has gone to fill his position; Mr. V. M. Clementi is to fill Mr. Fowler's place here.

Not Honest.—While a respectable lady was making some purchases in the store of Mr. T. Menzies, the other day, she left her basket down on the floor: some person whose honesty, we presume, might be disputed, extracted therefrom a paper of Coffee, and skedaddled unnoticed. Such an act is surely contrary to the 8th Commandment.

Mr. W. Coulter was elected by a majority of 13 over Mr. J. M. Burns, for School Trustee, in the South Ward.

BIBLE SOCIETY.

PETERBOROUGH BRANCH.

The collectors for this Society are now endeavoring to raise funds for this Institution. Of all human enterprises this one deserves our warmest sympathies and most material support. No other has such claims on our liberality; nor does any other promise so sure and so abundant reward. Missionary and benevolent societies are worthy of being liberally supported, as the designs of these are worthy, and they are calculated to do a great amount of good. But there may have something in connection with the modus operandi not agreeable to the wishes, or conscientious conviction, of many very worthy individuals: those engaged in the working of missionary and benevolent societies may not hold the views or perform the duties agreeable to the opinions, or after the mind, of a very respectable class of our citizens.—But the Bible Society sets forth no peculiar dogmas: inculcates no isms: interferes with no sectarian bias or doctrines: and is the only institution over which christians, especially protestants, can unite, and become coworkers. It therefore has the first claim on those who believe that the distribution of the Word of God, without note or comment, is the simplest and safest way of enlightening men in the ways of life and righteousness. Very soon the Agent of the society may be expected to visit us, and as Peterboro' has always stood among the first in this good work, we trust that she will not lose the good name heretofore acquired. Yet there is cause to fear that our wishes may not be realized. We are credibly informed that the amount of subscriptions has been falling off of late. If this is so, and we have no reason to doubt its correctness, we can only say it ought not to be so. Our town has been steadily increasing in population, and that of a class highly respectable and intelligent. It is with surprise then that we receive the information that the subscriptions to this society is less than formerly. We trust that the friends of truth will see to it that this shall not be so again, and that the Secretary and Treasurer will be enabled to report increased subscription, greater liberality, and united action in the noble work of endeavouring to place the Word of Life in the hands of every individual in the land.

LITTLE LAKE CEMETERY.

At the annual meeting of the Stockholders of the Little Lake Cemetery Company, which took place in the new Council Chamber, Simcoe Street, on Monday last, the following gentlemen were elected Directors for the current year:—Messrs. Dennistoun, Wm. Hall, Sheriff Hall, Clinton, Wm. Eastland, Rev. J. M. Rogers, Rev. John Gilmour, B. Walton and Robt. Kingan.

The Treasurer presented his report, showing cash on hand, after paying the balance on the Keepers Lodge, and other incidental expenses, of $20.32.

The Secretary also presented the following report:—

To the Directors and Stockholders of the Little Lake Cemetery Company.

Gentlemen,—Your Secretary begs leave to present the following report. That he has sold during the year,

18 Lots, amounting to	$156.00
5 Single Graves, at $1.00 each,	5.00

Of Burials during the year there has been Fifty-four: 29 males and 25 females. 19 have died under the age of 5 years; 3 between 5 and 10; 6 between 10 and 20; 10 between 20 and 40; 10 between 40 and 60; 4 between 60 and 80; and 2 over that age.

Their nationalities are, Scotch, 7; English, 5; Irish, 11; and Canadians 31.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. Stewart, Secretary.

Peterboro', January 16th, 1865.

The Prohibition carried in Smith.

Dunkins Bill for the prohibition of Licenses to sell spirituous liquors has been carried in the Township of Smith also. The votes stood 83 "yeas," 7 "nays" We have therefore already Aspodel, Otonabee and Smith, in this County, that by popular vote declare that there shall be no intoxicating liquors sold within their jurisdiction. No doubt other Municipalities will follow the example and ere long we may see our entire County free from the dominion of Alcohol. In the Township of Cavan, the second day of polling, the "yeas" were 83 ahead, and considerable stir; great determination was exibited on both sides. We learn that on the first day there were 400 votes polled.

Since writing the above, a friend writes:—

Millbrook, Jan. 17th, 1865.

Dear Sir:—After three days polling in the Township of Cavan, the "Dunkin Bill" was carried by a majority of One Hundred and Thirty-six. The number polled for the bill, was Three Hundred and Fifty-six, and against it, Two Hundred and Twenty. The friends of good order and morality have great reason to rejoice and feel proud of the victory they have gained. The contest was conducted with great spirit on both sides, and I am happy to be able to state that there was not any disturbance or breach of the peace.

DISAPPOINTED.

A farmer purchased a bottle of Aqua Vitæ in the store of Mr. Lewis Glover, on Saturday evening, and left it down till he would be ready to go home. Two gentlemen? named respectively, Kelly and McMahon, observed the farmer leaving down his bottle, and, although their neighbour's goods, coveted it—or its contents; and removed it to a corner outside. After a fruitless search for the brandy; Mr. Glover had occasion to go to the back door, and while standing quietly there, observed some biped removing something, and suspecting what it was gave chase: our hero however dropped the eyewater rather than fall into his pursuer's grasp—and thus Messrs. Kelly and McMahon were disappointed of their wee drop, to their no small annoyance no doubt.

FIRE IN MILLBROOK.

An Insurance fire broke out this morning, consuming seven Stores and Crober's Hotel. The loss will be very heavy. Granville Richardson, formerly of the Wellington Hotel, lies in a very precarious state, in consequence of a portion of a chimney having fallen on him, which he was engaged, with some others, endeavouring to push over, after the fire had ceased. The chimney broke in the middle, and part of the top fell back on him, and injured him severely. The principal sufferers are Jas. Johnston, Thos. Story, Henry Gillett, R. Howden, Jas. Gott, and — Crober; also, Henry Greet, J. W. Southerau, and — Deaneto smaller amounts.—Cdn.

We are informed that these is a partial insurance.

We regret to learn, since we received the above communication, that Mr. Richardson has died. His funeral will take place this evening.

At the close of the meeting a discussion took place about receiving North Monaghan into the Smith and North Douro Agricultural Association. A motion was finally put and carried to receive Monaghan. Mr. James McEwen made some very appropriate remarks on ploughing, and the wisdom of encouraging good ploughmen by offering suitable prizes. Mr. I. Garbutt, who was appointed one of the Judges at the fall ploughing match between Otonabee, spoke very favourably of the work done, but said the work was nearly all done by Old Country ploughmen. He further state I that those Townships were willing to challenge any other Township in the County to a match.

AMERICAN NEWS.

There appears a calm in the war departments. Since Sherman took Savannah, the reports, despatches, and correspondences have been relating to his whereabouts, or destination. Peace rumours are becoming more consistent, and both President Davis and President Lincoln are pretty unanimous in commencing peace negotiations. We trust that both parties have come to their right minds, and that no unnecessary obstacles will be presented. Already the Richmond papers announces the arrival of peace commissioners from Washington, having the confidence of the President: at the same time commissioners of high standing in the Southern Confederacy, are said to be preparing to proceed to Washington. Butler has been relieved of his command and replaced by Major-General E. O. C. Ord, while Butler is ordered to report from Lowell, Mass., to the Adjutant General. He has been removed, it is said, at the request of the South, in order to conciliate Jeff. Davis, so as to open a way for the reception of peace proposals.—Hood is completely outgeneraled: his forces, captured or destroyed, and without possibility of re-organization. Lee and Beauregard are the only Southern Generals that have maintained their position from the begining of the war to the present time. Of the numerous ones who were on the side of the North at first, very few remain to tell the story of the Great Rebellion. We give elsewhere the principal rumours of peace proposals, and the conditions of reunion. What they may amount to in the end, few are willing yet to predict. The Washington Government are about to send a Minister to the Mexican Court. The hollownes of the Monroe Doctrine is admitted by the Americans themselves.

The Reciprocity treaty has been repealed in the American Congress by a vote of 85 to 9, and the President will no doubt soon give the 12 months notice (necessary) to the British Government.

The latest news brings the intelligence that Fort Fisher has been captured, with heavy losses on both sides.

☞ We find that the peace rumors have been crowded out of this issue.

Good Templars' Soiree.

We would call the attention of the friends of Temperance and others to the Good Templars' Soiree, which is about to come off on Thursday, the 26th inst. Every effort is being made to get up an excellent Tea; it is enough to say, that department is in the hands of the Ladies. Good Speakers are to be present on the occasion, and the intervals will be filled up with sweet music by the Choir.

The Concert, under the auspices of the Curling Club, which was announced in our columns last week, to come off on the 25th, is unavoidably postponed—sine die, because of a Curling Match that is to take place between the clubs of the Counties of Northumberland and Durham, and Peterboro', and which will be played on that day, at Peterboro.

Miss. E. Rutherford announces her intention of opening a Primary School in the School room adjoining the Wesleyan Methodist Church. We may mention that it is no way in opposition to the Grammar and Union School, but because of the crowded state of the latter department of that institution, that Miss Rutherford has been advised to open her School. At some future time we may refer to the matter of such Primary or ward Schools for the Town.

Bible Christian.—Remember the Tea Meeting in connection with this church will be held to-night. Several excellent addresses and good music, may be expected.

Temperance Act.—The three day's polling on the adoption of Dunkin's Act, in the Township of Hamilton, resulted in the defeat of the measure by a majority 45.

TOWN COUNCIL.

The members of the newly elected Town Council met on Monday last.

There were present, Charles Perry Esqr. the Mayor elect, and Messrs. Toole, Lawson, Stephenson, Williams, Helm, Ormond, McNaughton, Chambers, Leonard, Chamberlin, and Whyte.

The minutes of the former Council were read and confirmed.

The Clerk stated that the Councillors had made and deposited with him the requisite declarations of qualification.

At the suggestion of Mr. Chambers, the Rules of order were read over by the Clerk, when it was moved by Mr Toole and seconded by Mr Lawson, that the Rules of order be adopted as the Rules of this Council so far as they are consistent with the Statutes.

Mr. Wm. Eastland and Edgecomb Pearce, were appointed Auditors for the present year.

The Council adjourned untill next Monday night.

ASHBURNHAM COUNCIL.

The Councillors Elect for this village met on Monday, at 12 o'clock, noon, and after making and subscribing the necessary declarations of qualifications and of office, organized by re-appointing Robt. D. Rogers, Esq., Reeve.

The Council, being thus organized, appointed Jonathan Stephenson and D. McDonald, Jnr., Auditors for the current year.

The accounts of J. Z. Rogers, and A. Graham, were ordered to be paid: and also the Assessor and Clerk's Salaries for 1864.

The Council then adjourned to meet again on the first Monday in February next, at 7 o'clock, p. m.

MONAGHAN TOWNSHIP COUNCIL.

January 16th, 1865.

The members of the new Council met, in conformity with the Act, when John W. Gilmour, Esq., for Ward No. 1, H. Collins, for Ward No. 2, W. Robson, for Ward No. 3, and John Dundas, for Ward No. 4, severally, qualified and took the oaths of office. Mr. Lockie, absent.

The Clerk took the chair, and called upon the members to elect their Reeve.

Moved by Mr. Collins, seconded by Mr. Dundas,—That John W. Gilmour, Esq., be re-Elected Reeve for the present year.—Carried unanimously.

The Reeve called the Council to order, for the discharge of public business.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

In his official capacity, the Reeve appointed Robert Laing, Jr., Esq., as Auditor of Township accounts: and, on the motion of Mr. Collins, seconded by Mr. Dundas, E. Chamberlin, Esq., was appointed as the other.

In consequence of Robert Rowe's name having been omitted on the Path Master's List for 1864, to be allowed to perform statute labour during the coming season, and the amount deducted from Collector's Roll.

The statute labour charge against John Dobbin and Thomas Birney, to be remitted, in lieu of labour previously given.

A petition from Wm. Fowler, praying for remission of statute labour tax charged against him on Collectors Roll, as the same was performed on the boundary line.

Mr. Fowler was heard on the subject.

Moved by Mr. Collins, seconded by Mr. Dundas, and Resolved—That whereas, Wm. Fowler, Jr. neglected to perform his statute labour on Lot 6, in the 11th concession, under Thomas Wilson, Path Master, that he be allowed to perform the same next year, and that in the interim, the amount charged in the Collectors Roll be deducted from his taxes.

Mr. White's account, for Printing, Stationery, &c., for 1864, amounting to $14.26, was received, and an order given for the amount.

Mr. Chamberlin informed the Council that he had, agreeable to the resolution of the Council, dated Nov. 5th, 1864, let the contract for repairing the bridge at Law's Sand Pit, to Joseph Langton, at the sum of $14, and that he had performed the same to his satisfaction. An order was given for the amount.

A By Law to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors, and the issuing of licenses therefor, received two readings.

On the motion of Mr. Robson, seconded by Mr. Dundas, the Council adjourned till Saturday, the 4th day of February, at 10 o'clock, then to meet for the appointment of officers, and for the transaction of other public business.

COUNCIL OF SMITH and HARVEY.

The first meeting of this Council for the present year was held at the Town Hall on the 16th inst., the persons duly elected to represent each Ward are as follows:—For Ward No. 1. Mr. John Walton, for Ward No. 2, Mr. M. S Dean, for Ward No. 3 Mr. George Fitzgerald, for Ward No. 4 Mr. Isaac Garbutt, and for Ward No. 5 Mr. John Galvin.

Each of said Councillors having made the necessary declarations of qualification for office, Mr. John Walton was elected Reeve, and Mr. Isaac Garbutt Deputy Reeve.

Garritt J. Galvin and William Fitzgerald were appointed Auditors.

The Clerk was allowed for advertising a Requisition, for the taking of a poll under the terms of the Temperance Act for 1864, for acting as Poll Clerk at such poll and delivering a certified copy thereof to the Collector of Inland Revenue, the sum of of $3, and the Reeve for presiding thereat the sum of $3.

Andrew Young was authorized by the Council to prosecute any person or persons for the contravention of a By-law adopted by the Municipal Electors of this Municipality in terms of the Temperance Act of 1864.

A petition was presented and read from Mr. Samuel Strickland, and others praying the Council to name a price to be paid for timber cut on any allowance for Road in the Township of Harvey.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Fitzgerald, and seconded by Mr. Galvin, That T. F. Nicholl, agent for this Council, do demand the sum of one dollar for each stump from off which saw logs or timber have been cut, on any of the allowances for Road in the Township of Harvey.—Carried.

The Clerk was instructed to notify J. C. Hagheton to remove his fence from off the road in the fourth Concession of Smith.

The Treasurer was directed to pay to Mr. Jas. Walton and M. S. Dean, the sum of ten dollars each for expenses incurred in the case of appeal by Lawrence vs. Geo. Steele.

The Council then adjourned till the 30th inst.

Scandal and Scandal Mongers.

For the Examiner.

Mr. Editor,—Scandal is one of those sins which seldom, by any chance, gets its desert of condemnation. People in every station in life are to a greater or less extent the subjects of it; but especially the men who hold, public offices, such as Municipal Councillors, School Trustees, and Teachers, must ever and anon, expect to have their characters assailed, and their motives misrepresented; and who are the parties generally who indulge in this degrading sin? It is often found among the uneducated; but it is not confined to that class; for it is found everywhere in the world, and in the Church—in the city pastimes and in the farm-house. The Palace courts it among the pastimes of royalty; the cottager hails it to supply the lack of useful topics of conversation; in all lands and in all classes it is a favourite and common vice. How often do we find the man of education and integrity opposed and maliciously abused by some ignorant aspirant "after fame," whose knowledge, if properly tested, will be found inferior to that of many a School boy; and the Teacher, no matter how faithful he may be, or how extensive his attainments are, often becomes the subject of malice by the man who (while he assails and finds fault with the Teacher,) can scarcely scroll his name, and instead of being able to give an opinion on Educational subjects, never read a book on the subject in his life; for the less he knows the more he intermeddels. How applicable to him and others who copy his example is the words of the poet:

"Lest men suspect your tale untrue,
Keep probability in view."

What is scandal? To satisfy ourselves on this point, Mr. Editor, we need only consider its constituent parts, viz: acquaintance with the affairs of your neighbours—a pleasure in hearing their sins, short-comings, and foibles commented on and discussed—rash judgment passed upon imperfect knowledge of facts—and last, though far from least—the satisfaction of having discovered that others are, if not worse, at least as bad as ourselves. If such be the nature of the vice, what must be the motives which prompt to its indulgence? What but envy, hatred, and malice, and all uncharitableness? Or if it does not go to this extent, it must be ascribed to the coldest indifference for the feelings of others, or to the gross selfishness of gleaning amusement from the contemplation of the sufferings or the degradation of our fellow men.

Other vices stand alone in their deformity, and their unhappy victims are shut out, as it were, from their fellows by a ban—lepers without the camp—but the scandal-monger is permitted to pass unrebuked among the purest and the best, and to drop poison, and death, where and when he will—alas! too often a not unwelcome guest.

Scandal is a respectable sin, (altho' I cannot see how the person who indulges in it is worthy of the name "respectable.") In fact it often puts on the garb of the grave moral censor, not unfrequently that of the grieved and wounded friend. Legitimate scandal is always filled with regret: and the piquant dish, for which a dozen reputations have been ruthlessly slain, is served up with a salad of sighs and sanctimonious reluctance, that would fain hide the secret triumph that lurks beneath. Your true scandal-monger is never mistaken, (altho' the most of his charges are mere "hear-say") and should any luckless wight have the temarity to hint such a thing, the "best authority" is always at hand to put him down. No lawyers brief is more carefully prepared than the scandal-monger's material for a case: there is this difference however—your scandal-monger never appears for the defence, whatever the nature of the theme in hand is, it is the dark and not the bright side of the shield that falls to his lot to behold. As the bee is said to possess the power of extracting honey from poisonous flowers, so the scandal-monger may be said to have the faculty of extracting poison from the fairest, sweetest blossoms.

What a state of morals is the prevalence of this vice indicative! How opposed, in essence to the spirit of censorious, slanderous, backbiting scandal is the teachings of the Bible.—How opposed to the "Golden Rule," to do unto others as you'd wish others to do to you." Scandal is a low degrading vice, and none but the low will engage in it. The truly respectable will scorn to indulge in it, and in nine cases out of ten, it will be found that the man so calumniated, let him be Councillor, Teacher, or School Trustee, &c., is a far more respectable character than the base individual is, who indulges in it.

Otonabee, Jan. 13th, 1865.

Wreck of the Steamer Melville from New York to Hilton Head.

TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE.

From the N. Y. World Jany. 13.

Bark Rechabite, of New Glasgow, Seaman, from Ragged Island, Dec. 27th arrived at this port this morning, reports as follows: 8th instant, lat. 38, long. 74, about 3 o'clock A. M., our attention was attracted by calls.

On laying to and sending a boat, we found on a piece of a hurricane deck, part of a wreck, Albert L. Baydon, who stated, that he had taken passage on board one of the Whitney and Hatheway's steamers, the Melville, which sailed from New-York on the 5th instant, bound to Hilton Head and had encountered heavy southwest winds, with a heavy sea, untill the 7th about 9 P. M.; the bows were stove in by the sea. The captain ordered the boat lowered, when he, the first engineer, the first cook and one seaman, with several others, were swamped in it. The passengers by bailing with buckets, were able to keep her afloat untill about 11 o'clock the next day—Sunday morning—when we lowered the remaining boat—a metalic lifeboat—but before we could get the lady passengers into it, the Melville went down, port bow first upsetting the life-boat. There was a vessel in sight about 12 o'clock at night, which was seen often untill we foundered, when she was seen no more.

THE SAVED.

I saw a great many perish and many clinging to pieces of the wreck. I was in company with the life-boat, and within hailing distance of her until about sunset. She was then free of water, and had only three persons in her—I think two men and one lady. They answered my call, but kept clear of me. We were in sight of a portion of the wreck untill sunset.

CONDUCT OF THE MEN.

The boats crew made no effort to save any who were clinging to the wreck. We burned our mail, consisting of three newspaper bags and one letter bag, with all the mattresses and every other combustible thing on board to signalize the vessel in sight. We had about sixty-five passengers, five of them ladies and about sixteen officers and crew.

THE MELVILLE.

The Mellville was an iron vessel built at Hartlepool, England, in 1857, and was of about 500 tons burden. $15,000 had been spent just before the present trip, in improving her machinery. She was originally a blockade runner captured off Mobile, and afterwards became the property of Messrs. Whitney & Hatheway, to whom she belonged at the time of the accident.

The value of the ship and cargo was about $130,000, which is fully covered by insurance.

The Progress of Fenianism.

That the progress of the Feniins in Canada has alarmed many of the Roman Catholics as well as Protestants is becoming justly obvious. The priests of Canada do not wish to be carried over to the States at all, and they would be specially averse to such a conclusion of any sudden invasion or revolution. They are sufficiently wise to let well alone, and they know that their parochial and tythe system would stand a poor chance under the constitution of the United States. If they were in any case to go over, they would wish to organize terms, &c, and not be rushed in blindfold by a secret organization. For this and other reasons, we may expect uncompromising opposition to Fenianism on their part, unless, indeed, that organization become too strong for them, in which case they would, doubtless, side with and try to direct the new movements. So with leading Roman Catholic Irishmen, they stand a better chance now in proportion to numbers than any other class of the community for good offices and fat berths; and they see that a secret Irish Roman Catholic organization inimical to the government, more or less compromises the whole of them, as there is no saying which is which. Their prospects for the situations are, therefore, lessened by Fenianism, and hence their vehement disclaimers of all connection, not only of themselves but of their own countrymen, with that organization; these disclaimers, however, effect nothing. They do not alter the opinion of their own countrymen who know the facts, and they do not alter the opinion of others who do not know them, but who hear all sorts of rumors and reports concerning them.

Nor is the fear of exclusion from office unfounded. They themselves have been loud and persevering in demanding the exclusion of Orangemen from office, though the only distinctive test of the Orange association is an oath of fidelity to the Soverign; and with much more force may the tables be turned upon those whose test is understood to be an oath of enmity to the British Government. But it may be said that Orangemen are known, and can be excluded whilst Fenians are not known and therefore cannot be excluded from office, and this brings us again just to the point at which we arrived concerning the appointment of a Chief of Police. Is it well to appoint any one who may for aught we know, be a Fenian, if another equally good man, concerning whom there is no doubt can be found? The Hon. Mr. McGee, who honored our last paragraph on the subject with a notice, may say this one also is replete with mischief. In our opinion it is replete with common sense. There is no doubt that the Irish Roman Catholics are holding meetings throughout the States characterized by the deepest hatred of Britain, at which they announce that they are preparing for immediate action, and there can be as little doubt that Canada is, for them, England's most assailable point. Still further, there can be no doubt that the American Fenians are seeking to extend their organization in Canada as well as in Ireland, and we ask if it would be comfortable for the other classes of the community, in case of a Fenian invasion or Fenian insurrection to find our police force under a Fenian Chief?—Witness.

A HEAVY FAILURE.

Mr. J. H. Clint, director of the Quebec Bank, since June, 1863, has stopped payment. His statement of liabilities is $212,000, with further liabilities indirectly for endorsation and accommodation, amounting to $25,000. His assets are under $50,000. His largest creditors are Messrs. Cook & Bros., Williamsburg, $22,000, and Messrs. Isaac Bell & Wilson, Port Hope, $12, 000. The creditors here are Mr. William Withall, $30,000; Messrs. A. Fraser & Co., $21,000; Messrs. Lemesurier & Bro., $18,000; Messrs Thibaudeau, Thomas & Co., $18,000, secured; Messrs. Flanagan & Roche, $18,000, secured; Messrs. Duncan, Patton & Co., $10,000; Mr. M. J. Wilson, $9,000; Messrs. Price & Son, $7,000; Messrs. Forsyth, Bell & Co., $7,000; Messrs. D. C. Thomson & Co., $6,000. The sufferers for $5,000 and under are Messrs. M. Stevenson & Co., E. Hurstall, W. Walker, B. Bennett, Forsyth & Pemberton, A. Joseph, J. Tibbits, J. Burstall & Co., Falkenberg & McBlain, Dunn & Home, E. C. Jones, Toronto.

Another Threat Exploded.—For several years the admirers of a new government based on slavery, have asserted that the South could never be subjugated. This, however, appears in a fair way of accomplishment. Then again, it has been declared that the people of the South if subdued, could never be governed by the North after this war. We find however, that usually, wherever the Northern armies get a footing, the hatred of the people suddenly appears to die out:—and they quietly submit, perhaps gladly, to the change of rule. It has always been acknowledged that the change from confederate rule to that of the Federal government has been one from anarchy to good order—from disquietude to peace—in fact the people, as at

Mr. McGee on the Fenian

[illegible] speech delivered [illegible] at Montreal on Wednesday night, the Hon. T. D. McGee made the following remarks:

There is another subject which more immediately concerns ourselves, in Montreal and in Canada, which has lately occupied a good deal of the attention of the press—I allude to the alleged spread of a seditious Irish society, originating at New York, and which has chosen to go behind the long Christian record of their ancestors, to find in days of Pagan darkness and blindness an appropriate name for themselves. (Laughter.) A statement having been made the other day in the Toronto Globe, on the authority of its Montreal correspondent, that there is 1500 of these nineteenth century Pagans in Montreal—a statement (made, I do say, without intentional malice on the correspondent's part) I felt bound, as I suppose ye may have seen, to deny absolutely, (Cheers) The denial was not given in my own words, but the alleged fact was denied, and that was the main point. (Cheers.) I now, in your presence, repeat that denial on behalf of the Irish Catholics of this city. I say they could not be 15 such scamps associated together—not to say 1500—without your knowledge and mine, I repeat absolutely that there is no such body amongst us, and that the contrary statements are deplorably untrue and unjust, and impolitic as well as unjust. (Cheers.) I regret that persons of great circulation should lend themselves to the propagation of such statements, which have a direct tendency to foster and embrace the very evil they intend to combat. (Hear, hear.) The Montreal Daily Witness of Monday last, for example, had a little article, full of mischief, asserting that the members of the City Council were in favor of appointing a Fenian Chief of Police. (Laughter.) Yes, gentlemen, you may laugh, but here is the statement. (Here Mr. McGee read an article from the editorial page of the Daily Witness of Saturday last, to the foregoing effect.) He then proceeded to say: See what the result has been in some parts of Upper Canada. Any two or more mischievous or nervous magistrates—and with 11,000 men in the commission of the peace there must be some of both these sorts—any two of these may subject a neighborhood to all the rigors of martial law. Already unpleasant and unauthorized searches have been made for concealed arms in Catholic churches; already, as in some of the towns of Essex, the magistracies are very improperly, in my opinion, arming one class of the people against the other. What consequences of evil may flow from this step should make any responsible man shudder, and what is all owing to? Why, to those often inventions and always exaggerated, newspaper reports. (Cheers.) Observe the absurd figure Upper Canada is made to cut in all the business—the protestant militia are made to tremble before a mention of a fraction.—for if there are Fenians in that quarter of the world I venture to say they are as wholly insignificant in numbers as in every other respect. (Cheers.) At the risk, however, of sharing the fate of all unasked advisers, I would say to the Catholics of Upper Canada, in each locality, if there are any, the least proof that this foreign disease has seized on any, the least among you, establish at once, for your own sakes, for the country's sake, a cordon sanitaire around your people; establish a Committee which will purge your ranks of this political leprosy; weed out and cast off those rotten members, who, without a single governmental grievance to complain of in Canada, would yet weaken and divide us, in these days of danger and anxiety. (Cheers.) In fact of sympathy for the punishment they are drawing upon themselves, there ought to be general indignation at the perils such wretches would, if permitted to exist among us, draw upon the whole community, socially, politically, and religiously. How would any Catholic who hears me like to see the Parish Church a stable, and St. Patrick's a barrack? How would our working men like to see our flocks desolate, our canals closed, our new buildings arrested, ruin in our streets, and famine shivering among our ruins? And this is what these wretched conspirators, if they had the power, would bring to pass as surely as fire produces ashes from wood or cold produces ice from water. (Cheers.) I repeat here deliberately that I do not believe in the existence of any such organization in Lower Canada, certainly not in Montreal, but that there are or have been Emissaries from the United States among us, for the purpose of establishing it, has been so often and so confidently stated, that what I have said on the general subject will, I hope, now be considered untimely or uncalled for. (Hear, hear.) By the law of Lower Canada the administration of an oath of membership in any secret, seditious society is a penitentiary offence punishable by 20 years imprisonment; and the taking of such an oath is punishable by seven years imprisonment. By the law of the church—membership in any such society, if preserved in et-its ipso facto, the penalty of excommunication. I will just refer to an excellent recent work—the Lectures on Modern History, by Professor Robertson, of the Catholic University of Ireland, the chief decrees on this subject, collated by Professor Murray, of Maynooth College, shows that Pope Clement XII., Pope Benedict XIV., Pope Leo XI., Pope Pius VII., and the present Pope Pius IX., have all strongly condemned these Societies. [Mr. McGee here cited the titles of the several decrees by which this description of Societies had been condemned.] By all those solem Acts of ecclesiastical legislation, secret seditious societies are expressly and in the most emphatic terms condemned; and as we, in this Society, are all Catholics, I feel that I am justified in strengthening my own position by a circumstantial reference to these august authorities. Causa finita est!—(Cheers) Mr. President, I have been led to speak at greater length than is usual with me on these occasions, because I may not again have for some months have an opportunity of meeting you all, face to face. We, the Irish inhabitants of Montreal, are doing very well as we are; our mechanics compare favorably with those of any other origin; our young professional men are putting forth the promise of great talents; our civil and religious rights are respected by our fellow-citizens, whose equal right we, in turn, equally respect.—(Cheers.) I dare assert—and I speak from some degree of knowledge—that there is not, take them all in all, a more respectable community of Irishmen and their descendants to be found anywhere throughout the new world. (Loud Cheers.) I say this with pride—for it is a proud thing to be able to say. (Che rs.) When I contemplate this community, rejoicing as I well may in their joy and sharing in all their trials,—when I contemplate their peaceful, steady, onward career, exacting respect and confidence on all sides, I cannot but feel keenly that any newspaper, here or elsewhere, should attempt to asperse them as a band of conspirators, or that any one should dare associate them as a body, with lawless and anti-social designs. Mr. President, in any good cause, you know and I trust every one who knows me, can at any time command my slender services; but still you will grant me, as I am sure our fellow-citizens at large will grant men, the cheerful right of unrestricted free speech, whenever I am called out to address either a special Society, or a general body of the citizens of Montreal. I have exercised that right to-night, forgive me if I have gone beyond my limits; it was my zeal for your welfare, believe me, that prompted what I have mentioned to you. But this I think I may say, that whenever the flag above us is at stake—whenever our community is in question—we will be found in word and deed to shed the last of our Irish blood in defence of the common liberties we enjoy (Loud cheers, amid which the hon. gentleman retired.)

THE ONLY TRUE PURGATIVES.
THE ONLY TRUE PURGATIVES.

DR. RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS.

"I would rather have one box of Dr. Radway's Pills, than all other pills in the world. They are pills that cure. When you take a dose of these pills, you can depend upon the expulsion of the deceased humors from the system: the Liver, Bowels, Stomach, Kidneys, System, Skin and Blood are acted upon and the bowels, after an operation induced by Radway's Pills, are left as clean and healthy as the stomach would be after a dose of lobelia. No straining, weakness, or wrenching pains, or piles or tenesmus, but a through and natural evacuation is the result."

This is the te timony of one of the most distinguished physicians in the world. Never were truer words uttered. "Radway's Pills are pills that cure." The sufferer of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Biliousness, Costiveness, Jaundice, Dropsy, &c., may rely upon an absolute cure, by the use of one to six boxes. It is not necessary to take these pills for months or years to accomplish a cure. They should be used in all cases where a cathartic is required.

DISINTERESTED ADVICE.—Wear your old coat a week longer, and your hat a month. Old hats feel best, so do old boots: but the latter having a sole above pavements, sometimes wear out, and create a necessity for a new pair, and if you do not get them your feet get damp, you catch a cold, and hence the necessity of using something to cure it. Try Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers, only 25 cents a box, sold by all Druggists.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Delicate Females who are harassed and debilitated by complaints peculiar to their organization, are uniformly relieved by Holloway's Pills.—For hysteria, spasms, hot flashes, sick headache, pains in the back and loins, they are a safe and reliable remedy.

Sold at the manufactories, No. 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and No. 244 Strand, London, and by all druggists. If the reader of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, 80 Maiden Lane, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other person's make. 50c., 62½c., and $1 per box.

ENGLAND AND THE UNITED STATES.—It cannot be denied that things have looked rather squally lately, though we believe that England intends to remain perfectly neutral in the matter; should war, however, break out between them, we hope for humanity sake that the armies will be well supplied with the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," the best thing in the world for sudden colds, rheumatism, neuralgia, burns, &c. 25 cents per Bottle. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

Death.

At his residence, Peterborough, on the 16th inst., Mr. William Chambers, formerly of Rock Corry, County Monaghan, Ireland, aged 80 y'rs.

Deceased has resided in Peterboro 27 years, and was about the oldest Orangeman in the Province.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry in Canada.

Ballou's Pictorial of the 24th July says:—

Realizing the true sense of responsibility attaching to the Editor of, and publisher of, a widely circulated Journal, we should deem it little less than a crime to recommend any Medical compound the real virtue of which we could not conscientiously indorse. This balsamic compound has become a home fixture; and all persons who suffer, and have in vain attempted to cure their Coughs, Colds, Bronchial or Pulmonary Complaints, make use of this unequaled remedy. 2-4in

Good News! Good News!!

E. MORRIS,

THE FAR-FAMED

HERB DOCTOR,

FROM LONDON, ENGLAND,

IS now in Peterboro' performing his most Astonishing Cures, as usual.

The mercurial Quacks may prate and gabble,
With Latin names for every nostrum;
But Morris' Herbs excels such rabble,
He explains their virtues from his rostrum.

He is well known o'er Canada,
In every City, Town, and Village;
He'll effect a cure for half the pay
Charged by those Quacks who live by pillage.

To those afflicted with RHEUMATISM try Dr. Morris' justly celebrated

Electric Invigorating Fluid,

for dispelling Rheumatic and other pains that may afflict the human system, internal or external.

He doth use such Balms as have no strife,
With nature or the laws of life:
With mercury his name he'll never stain,
Nor poison men for sake of gain.

Our Father whom all goodness fills,
Provides the means to cure all ills;
The simple herbs beneath our feet,
Well used, relieve our pains complete.

The invigorating Fluid acts upon the system like electricity, giving relief instantly, in almost every case. PRICE PER BOTTLE, according to size, from 25 cents to One Dollar.

If you are afflicted with Rheumatic pains, Cramps, Colics, and such painful brood, Caused by exposure to cold and rains, Try Morris' Invigorating Fluid.

For COUGHS, COLDS, and all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, use Dr. Morris'

Cough Drops,

They will be found a never-failing remedy for the above complaints.

If you should take a severe cold,
Returning from the waltz and hops,
Go where the medicine is sold,
Enquire for Morris' Cough Drops.

To those afflicted with Liver and Billious complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sick and Nervous Headache, Costiveness, Weak and Disordered Stomach, &c., &c., try

DR. MORRIS' WORLD-RENOWNED

DANDELION PILLS

For Renovating the Blood, Correcting and Strengthening the Liver and Bowels, the Dandelion Pills have no equal.

If you feel nervous, with spirits low,
Disordered system, and other ills,
Take a friend's advice and straight you'll go,
For Morris' Dandelion Pills.

WORMS! WORMS! WORMS!

If you would expel those monsters from your dear children, try a box of Dr. Morris'

WORM DESTROYER.

If you have a son or daughter dear,
And the monstrous worms annoy her,
There's relief at hand, dry off that tear,
Get Morris' Worm destroyer

Dr. Morris can furnish reliable testimonials from some of the most respectable inhabitants of Peterboro' and other Towns and Cities of Canada West. For Testimonials see his Pamphlets The above medicines can be obtained at PROFF. MORRIS' BOTANIC LABORATORY, Simcoe Street, nearly opposite Phelans Hotel, Peterborough.

Dr. Morris invariably treats with success diseases of a secret nature.

SUBMISSION.

I never understood, but once, said Tim, to set at naught the autocracy of my wife. You know her they—quiet, quiet, but determined as ever grew. Just after we were married, and all was nice and cosy, she got me into the habit of doing all the churning. She finished breakfast rather before me one morning, and slipping away from the table, she filled the churn with cream, and set it down where I couldn't help seeing what was wanted. So I took hold readily enough and churned till the butter came. She didn't thank me, but looked so nice and sweet about it that I felt well paid.

Well, when the next churning day came along she did the same thing, and I followed suit and fetched the butter. Again and again it was done just so, and I was regularly set for it every time. Not a word said, of course. Well, by and by this began to be rather irksome; I wanted her to ask me, but she never did, and I wouldn't say anything about it to save my life. So on we went.—At last I made a resolve that I would churn another time until she asked me.

Churning day came, and when my breakfast—she always got nice breakfast—when first was swallowed, there stood the churn. I got up, and standing for a few minutes just to give her a chance, I put on my hat and walked out of doors! I stopped in the yard to give her time to call me, but never a word said she, and so I moved on. I went down town, and my foot was as restless as was that of Noah's dove. I felt as if I had done a wrong. I did not feel exactly how—but there was an indescribable sensation of guilt resting on me all the forenoon.

It seemed as if dinner time would never come, and as for going home one minute before dinner. I would as soon have cut my ears off. So I went fretting and moping around till dinner hour came.

Home I went, feeling very much as a criminal must when the jury is out, having in their hands his destiny—life or death.

I couldn't make up my mind exactly how she would meet me, but some kind of a storm I expected. Will you believe it—she even greeted me with a smile—never had a better dinner for me than on that day; but there stood the churn just where I left it. Not a word was said; I felt confoundedly out, and every mouthful of that dinner felt as if it would choke me.

She didn't pay any regard to it, however, but went on exactly as if nothing had happened. Before dinner was over, I had again resolved, and shoving back my chair, I went at the churn. Splash, dip, rattle—I kept it long in coming; I suppose the cream standing so long had got warm, and so I redoubled my efforts.

Obstinate matter, the afternoon wore away while I was churning. I paused at last from real exhaustion, when she spoke for the first time.

"Come, Tim, my dear, you have rattled that buttermilk long enough—it is for fun you are doing it!"

I knew how it was in a flash. She had brought the butter in the forenoon and had left the buttermilk in for me to exercise with.

HUMOUR OF DIOGENES.

A hypocritical scoundrel in Athens inscribed over his door, "Let nothing evil enter here." Diogenes wrote under it, "By what door does the owner come in?"

Being asked what was the best hour for dinner, he replied, "For the rich when they please; for the poor when they can."

Seeing a wicked boy throwing stones at the gallows, he replied, "well aimed, boy! you will hit the mark at last."

He called a bad singer Mr. Cock; being asked the reason, replied, "his notes are a signal for a general rising."

When told that his countryman, the Synopians, had sentenced him to banishment, he replied, "I have condemned them to a worse punishment—to stay at home."

Being asked by a student of natural history, what was the worst beast, he replied, "of the wild, the Slanderer; of the tame, the Flatterer."

Seeing a scolding wife who had hanged herself on an olive tree, he exclaimed, "O, that all trees would bear such fruit."

One lawyer unjustly charged another with theft; Diogenes being umpire, condemned both, declaring that the accused was a thief, but the accuser had lost nothing.

Seeing the son of a courtesan throwing stones at a crowd, he called out, "Take care, boy, lest you hit your father!"

Hearing a handsome youth speak foolishly, he exclaimed, "What a shame to see a leaden sword drawn from an ivory scabbard!"

Seeing an unskilful archer shooting, he went and sat down by the target, declaring it the only place of safety.

INVISIBLE HARMONIES.—We are apt to "limit the Holy One of Israel," and to say "some things have worked together for our good," God says, "All things"—Joys, sorrows, crosses, losses, prosperity, adversity, health, sickness; the ground bestowed, and the ground withered; the cup full, and the cup emptied; the lingering sick-bed, and the grave! Often, indeed, would sight and sense lead us to doubt the reality of the promise. We can see, in many things, scarce a dim reflection of love. Useful lives taken, blossoms prematurely plucked, spiritual props removed, benevolent schemes blown upon. But the gospel does not say, "We see," but we know."—It is the province of faith to trust God in the dark. The uninitiated and undiscerning cannot understand or explain the revolution and dependencies of the varied wheels in a machine; but they have confidence in the wisdom of the artificers, that all is designed to "work out" some great and useful end. Be it ours to write over every mysterious dealing. "This also comes from the Lord of Hosts, who is wonderful in counsel, and excellent in working."

THE BATTLE FIELD AT NASHVILLE.—The correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette thus describes the field after the second day's fight near Nashville:—"I passed over the bloody path which our soldiers had trodden in their unsuccessful as well as their successful effort to carry the hill. Never did I see the dead and dying so thickly strewn upon a battle field. White and black seemed to have bled in about equal numbers. They had died in almost every attitude that the imagination could conceive. In one place, at the foot of a small stump, two dead bodies of colored soldiers lay across the dead body of a third. Passing up the hill, the debris of the battle-field was terrible to behold. Muskets beat double were lying beside the dead bodies of those who but a few moments before had loaded and fired them. Unused shell and cannon balls were scattered in every direction; and camp equipage, fire and fragments in the mud was mingled with shattered artillery wheels and fragments of exploded caissons. The ground in every direction was ploughed into furrows by our cannon shot, and the trees were everywhere literally shivered to pieces."

TO THE

WORTHY CITIZENS OF CANADA.

BE WARNED IN TIME.

ALL parties purchasing my Pills and Ointment for their several complaints are respectfully warned against purchasing either Pills or Ointment purporting to be my preparations, that have a United States Stamp around the Boxes and Pots. There is no Treaty between the people of the States and the Home Government, therefore an United States Stamp does not protect my preparations. There are no stamps upon my Canadian style of Pills or Ointment, coming from the United States. I rely only for protection on the water mark in book of directions around each Box or Pot. Before you purchase them, see that there are no U. S. Stamps upon the Box of Pills or Ointment. Purchase none that have United States stamps on.

BLETCHER'S

CANADIAN

CLOTHES WRINGER

COMBINES more Strength of Frame, Capacity for Pressure, and Power of Action, than any other in the market. We manufacture five sizes intended for and adapted to Families, Hotels, Laundries, &c.

Bletcher's Canadian Clothe's Wringer

Saves Time, Labor, Clothes and Money.

It will wear for years without repair!

No Servant can break it!

A Child ten years old can operate it!

No caution or skill required in its use!

It will wring anything from a Thread to the Heaviest Quilt.

It saves its Cost in Clothing

Every six or nine Months.

The water can be pressed from large and small articles easier, quicker and more thoroughly than by the ordinary old fashioned back-breaking, wrist-straining and clothes-destroying process.

It is easily and firmly secured to the Tub or Washing Machine and will fit Tubs of any shape or size. Every Wringer is Warranted in every particular, either with or without star gearing; and in the event of any part becoming broken or mislaid, we can replace it at once. We sell them at prices that defy competition, as the following will testify:

No. 1, nine inch roll,	$4 50
2, nine and a half inch roll,	4 75
3, ten inch roll,	5 00
4, twelve inch roll,	5 75
5, fourteen inch roll,	6 50

We keep all the sizes above on hand at all times at our Sewing Machine Office, over Mr. S. White's shoe store,

In support of the above statements, are presented the Certificates of Dr. Jas. R. Chilton, Chemist, New York; Dr. Hiram Cox, Chemical Inspector, Ohio; Dr. James R. Nichols, Chemist, Boston; Dr. N. E. Jones, Chemical Inspector Circleville, Ohio; Prof. C. T. Jackson, Chemist, Boston; Dr. Chas. Upham Shepard, Charleston, S. C.; and J. V. Z. Blaney, and G. A. Mariner, Consulting Chemists, Chicago, all of whom have analyzed the Catawba Brandy, and commend it in the highest terms, for medical use.

Analysis of the Massachusetts State Assayer, Jan. 25, 1858.

When evaporated through clean linen it left no oil or offensive matter. In every respect it is a pure spiritous liquor. The oil which gives to this Brandy its flavour and aroma, is fusil, or grain oil. Its order partakes of both the fruit and oil of grapes. With acids, it produces ethers of a high fragrance. The substitution of this Brandy for Cognac Brandy will do away with the manufacture of factitious spirits, sold under this name both at home and abroad. Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M. D., Assayer to State Mass., 16 Boylston St.

By the same, in 1864.

I have analysed "L. LYONS' PURE CATAWBA BRANDY," with reference to its composition and character, being the same as that produced in past years. A sample taken from ten casks afforded the same result with regard to purity; a slightly increased amount of the principle on which its flavor depends was determined by comparison with former samples.

The indication of analysis show that this Brandy is produced by the same process as most of the imported Brandy. Respectfully,

A. A. HAGER, M. D., State Assayer,
Boston July 20, 1864. 16 Boylestoo St

ATTENTION is directed to the rate of premiums adopted by this Company, which will compare favorably with that of any other institution in Canada. Investments of Company's funds to the large amount of nearly five hundred thousand dollars have been completed in Canada; and as all business transactions are frankly disposed of in the Province, the Scottish Provincial offers all the facilities presented by a purely local Company, while it possesses the additional advantage of a large capital, and an influential and responsible body of shareholders in Great Britain.

Policies effected on or before 31st January next will receive a full year's bonus over those effected thereafter.

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the RADIX OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs UPON THE BLOOD ITSELF, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable curatives. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dysepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Vernal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 63 cents, and $1 40 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33

Select Poetry.

THE DRUNKARD'S RAGGIT WEAN

Some of our friends, when in Glasgow, the other day, was made to tarry in the street by the plaintive notes of a child singing the following song, several copies of which the boy was selling for a half-penny. He purchased one, and our readers have the benefit of the investment.—Sarnia Observer.)

A wee bit raggit laddie gangs wan'rin thro' the street,
Wadin' amang the snaw wi' his wee bookit feet,
Shiverin' i' the cauld blast, greetin' wi' the pain,
Wha's the puir wee callan'? he's a drunkard's raggit wean.

He stands at ilka door, and he keeks wi' wistfu' e'e,
To see the crowd around the fire, a' laughin' flood wi' glee;
But he daurna venture ben,' tho' his heart be e'er sae fain,
For he gaunna play wi' decent bairns, the drunkard's raggit wean.

Oh, see the wee bit bairnie, his heart is nocо fou,
The sleet is blawin' cauld, and he's dreepit thro' and thro',
He's speerin' for his mither, and he wonders what she's gane;
But, oh! his mither she forgets her puir wee raggit wean.

He hasna ane father's luve, an' he ken's nae mither's care,
To soothe his wee bit sorrows, or kame his tauntit hair,
To bless him when he wankens, or smooth his bed at e'en,
An' oh! he fears his father's face, the drunkard's raggit wean.

Oh, pity the wee laddie, see guileless and me young,
The cauld that leaves the father's lip 'ill settle on his tongue,
An' aiefu' words his mother speaks, his infant lips 'ill stain.
For oh, there's nane to guide the bairn, the drunkard's raggit wean.

Then surely we might try an' turn that sinfu' mither's heart,
An' try to get his father to set a father's part.
An' make them tea' the drunkard's cup, an' never taste again,
An' cherish wi' a parent's care their puir wee raggit wean.

Miscellaneous.

OUT OF WORK.

'It's of no use Maria, I've tried everywhere.'

'But you are not going to give it up, Peter.'

'Give it up? How can I help it? Within four days I have been to every bookbindery in the city, and not a bit of work can I get.'

'But have you tried everything else?'

'What else can I try?'

'Why anything you can do.'

'Yes I've tried other things. I have been to more than a dozen of my friends, and offered to help them if they would hire me.'

'And what did you mean to do for them?'

'I offered either to post up accounts, make out bills, or attend to the counter.'

Mrs. Stanwood smiled as her husband thus spoke:

'What makes you smile?'

'To think that you should have imagined you would find work in such a place. But how is Mark Leeds?'

'He is worse off than I am.'

'How so.'

'He has nothing in the house to eat.'

A shudder crept over his wife's frame now.

'Why do you tremble wife?'

'Because when we shall have eaten our breakfast to-morrow we shall have nothing.'

'What?' cried Peter Stanwood, starting from his chair 'do you mean that?'

'I do'

'But our flour?'

'All gone I baked the last this afternoon.'

'But we have pork.'

'You ate the last this noon.'

Then we must starve,' groaned the poor man, starting across the room.

Peter Stanwood was a bookbinder by trade, and had now been out of employment for more than a month. He was one of those who generally try to keep about square with the world and considered themselves very fortunate if they keep out of debt. He was thirty years of age, and had a wife and three children to support besides himself, and this with house rent, was a heavy draught upon his purse, even when work was plenty, but now—there was nothing.

'Maria,' said he,' we must starve for I have not a single penny in the world.'

'Do not despair, Peter. Try again for work tomorrow you may find something to do. Anything that is honest is honourable. Should you make but a shilling a day we should not starve.

'But our house rent?,

'Trust to me for that. The landlord will not turn us out. If you will engage to find something to do, I will see that we have house room.'

'I'll make one more trial,' uttered Peter despairingly.'

'But you must be prepared to do anything.'

'Anything reasonable Maria.'

'What do you call reasonable?'

The wife felt inclined to smile, but the matter was too serious for that and a cloud passed over his face. She knew her husband's disposition, and she felt sure he would find no work. She knew he would look for some kind of work which would not lower him in the social scale, as he expressed it. However she knew it would be of no use to say anything to him.

On the following morning the last bit of food in the house was put upon the table. Stanwood could hardly realize that he was penniless and without food. For years he had been gay and fortunate, making most of the present and forgetting the past, and leaving the future to take care of itself. Yet the truth was naked and clear, and when he left the house he said—

"Something MUST be done."

No sooner had the husband gone, than Mrs. Stanwood put on bonnet and shawl. Her eldest child was a girl seven years and her youngest four. She asked her next door neighbor if she would take care of the children until noon. Then Mrs Stanwood locked up the house and went away. She returned at noon bringing food for her children, and then went away again. She came home again in the evening before her husband, carrying a heavy basket on her arm.

'Well Peter, she asked, after her husband had entered and sat down,' What luck.'

'Nothing, nothing, he groaned,' I made out to get a dinner from an old chum, but could find no work.'

'And where have you been to day?'

'O—everywhere, I've been to more than a hundred places, but it is nothing but an eternal no—no—no! I am sick and tired of it.

'What have you offered to do?'

'Why I even went so far as to offer to tend a liquor store down town.'

The wife smiled.

'Now what shall we do,' uttered Peter, spasmodically.

'Why, we will eat supper first, and then talk the matter over.'

'Supper—have you got any?'

'Yes, plenty of it.'

'But you told me you had none.'

'Neither had we this morning, but I've been after work and found some'

'You been after work! Where?' uttered the husband in surprise.

'Why first I went to Mrs. Snow's, for I knew her girl was sick, and I hoped there would be work to do. I knew her and told my story, and she set me at work at once doing her washing. She gave me food to bring to the children, and gave me three shillings when I got through.'

'What—you out washing for the butcher's wife,' said Peter, looking surprised.

'Of course I have, and earned enough to keep us through to-morrow. Oh, I have just seen Sampson, and told him just how we are situated, and offered my watch as a pledge of the payment of our rent within two months. I told him I did the business because you were away hunting for work.'

'So he's got your gold watch, Maria.'

'No—he would not take it. He said if I would become responsible for the rent, he would let it rest. Then we need not despair—for Mr Snow has engaged me to carry small packages, &c., to his customers.'

'What do you mean, Maria.'

'Just what I say. When Mr. Snow came home to dinner I was there, and asked him if he had light articles which he wished sent to his customers. He did happen to want such work done, and he promised to let me have all he could, and I am to be there in good season in the morning.

'Well, this is a pretty go. My wife turned butcher's boy. You will not do any such thing.'

'And why not?'

'Because—because—'

'Say, because it will lower me in the social scale.'

'And so it will.'

'Then is it more honorable to lie still and starve, and see one's children starve, too, than to earn honest bread by honest work. I tell you Peter, if you cannot find work, I must. Oh, give me the liberty of living on my own deserts, and the independence to be governed by my own conviction of right.'

'But me wife, only think—you carrying butcher's stuff. Why, I would sooner go and do it myself.'

'If you will go, I will stay at home and mind the children,' said she with a smile.

It was hard for Peter Stanwood, but the more he thought upon the matter the more he saw the justice of the path into which his wife had thus led him. Before he went to bed he promised to go next morning'

And Peter went. Mr. Snow greeted him warmly. The new carrier worked hard all day, and made 27 cents. It had been a day of trials, but no one sneered at him; and all his acquaintances whom he met greeted him as usual. He was far happier than when he went home the night before, for he was independent.

Next day he earned over a dollar; and thus he continued to work a week, at the end of which time he had earned five dollars and seventy-five cents, besides having paid for all the food of his family.

One day Peter had a basket of provisions to carry to Mr. Wilson, his former employer. He took the load upon his arm, started off, and just as he entered the yard met his former employer, Mr. Wilson, coming out.

'Ah, Stanwood, is this you,' he asked, kindly. 'What are you up to now?'

'I'm a regular butcher boy, sir. You see I've brought provisions for you.'

'And how long have you been doing this.'

'This is the tenth day.'

'But I suppose you find it hard?'

'Nothing comes hard so long as it is honest, and will furnish my family with bread.'

'And how much can you make a day at this?'

'Sometimes a dollar, and sometimes not over fifty cents.'

'Well look here, Stanwood, there has been a dozen of my old hands hanging round my counting-room this fortnight, wishing for work. They are steady able men. Last Saturday I took pity on Leeds, and offered him a job of doing my hand-sawing a dollar and a quarter a day; and he turned up his nose and asked me not to insult him! Yet he owned that his family were suffering. But do you come to my place to-morrow and you shall have something to do if it be only to hold your bench I honor your manly independence.

Peter grasped the old man's hand with a joyous, grateful grip, and blessed him fervently.

That night he gave Mr. Snow notice that he must quit, and on the morrow he went to the bindery. For two days he had but little to do, but on the third a heavy job came in and Peter had steady work. He was happy, more than ever, for he had learned two things; first, what a noble wife he had; and second, how much of resource for good he had left within his own energies.

Our simple picture has two points to its moral. One is—no man can be lowered by any kind of honest labour. The second is—while you are enjoying the fruits of the present, forget not to provide for the future, for no man is so secure but that the day may come when we will want the squanderings of the past.

The Black Spot.

One day a man suddenly thought to himself, "I would like very much to eat an apple." So he went to the basket containing a large number and picked out the largest, finest-looking one among them. Beating himself again in his chair, he looked at it and said—"Who ever saw a finer apple than this? Large, red as the cheek, Not a spot or defect upon it."

By this time his knife was ready, and off came a slice large enough for a good mouthful, and lo! the whole inside of this beautiful apple was black and bitter! 'Now,' said he, "this is too bad! But I know that this apple did not become bad all at once. First there was a little spot in the center, and it began to work out, and out and out. By-and-by one half of the apple was spoiled, and at length it was nothing but one mass of bitterness and blackness, covered up with a beautiful skin."

Now I have sometimes seen groups of beautiful children! Such eyes, and cheeks, and such merry prattling tongues! And then I have opened the Bible, and what do you think I read there? "The heart," that is, the human heart, man's heart, woman's heart, children's hearts, all hearts, "the heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked." Oh, what a black spot on every heart, every heart!

"But, my lie," says Hettie, "may be it will not grow any bigger." Ah! set it will it is growing bigger all the time! And what awful work it makes where it has polluted everything within!

There was once a little baby, and as he lay on his mother's knee she thought he was so beautiful and lovely! Years after I saw a most wretched-looking man. His clothes were ragged and filthy. His face was red and bloated. He could hardly walk, and as he staggered along he muttered curses and blasphemies! Oh! children, this man was that sweet little baby grown up! And the black spot did it all!

Sometime ago a man crept into the bedroom at midnight where an old man slept, and killed him! It was the black spot in the heart that was the cause.

In the prison you may find men, women, and children. Some have been sent there for stealing, some for fighting, and others for other crimes—but the black spot in the heart is at the bottom of all!

All the swearing and drunkenness, all the gambling and Sabbath-breaking; all the lying and cheating in the world comes from the black spot in the heart.

Yes, and all the anguish in the pit of woe among lost souls comes from the same source.

Children, that spot is in your heart. Every cross word you speak comes from it. Every act of disobedience or disrespect to your parents; all dislike of your Bible, or the Sabbath, or prayer, comes from it.

Do you wish that spot to grow and grow until it covers all your heart, and pollutes all within you? If not, it must be taken away. Who can take it away? Jesus, by his Spirit. Ask him, pray to him. Give your heart to him, and he will cause it pure and holy. Those who keep this spot hid they do go down among the devils; those who have it taken away go up among the angels. Whither do you wish to go?

BEGINNING RIGHT.

The new Kingdom of Italy is beginning right. A bill has been presented to the Italian Chambers by the Minister of Justice for the suppression of all religious corporations and cert tinctural benefices throughout the Kingdom:

"Art. 1 provides that all religious corporations shall cease to exist from the moment of the promulgation of the law, and their property devolve to the State. Art. 2 grants civil and political rights to all the members of the corporations thus dissolved. By Arts. 3 all monks and nuns having taken the vows before the 19th of January, 1864, are entitled to a pension of 500f. each; lay brethren and sisters 250f. each; and servants sixty years old and upwards, having served at least ten years in a monastery, may receive a pension of 120f. By Art. 5 a few monasteries are set aside for the reception of such monks and nuns as may wish to continue their monastic life; but there must not be fewer than six in one monastery. Mendicant friars may continue to ask alms under restrictions. By Art. 6 all chapters of collegiate churches, abbeys, ecclesiastical benefices not attached to parishes, lay benefices, and all brotherhoods and foundations in which an ecclesiastical service is annexed, are suppressed. Arts. 7 and 8 regulate the interests of present holders of such benefices. Art. 9 regulates the transfer of ecclesiastical property to the State. Art 10 excepts from the transfer all property liable to reversion to third parties &c., also by lay or ecclesiastical benefices in the gift of lay patrons, the property of which reverts to the patron on condition of his paying the present holder of the benefice the annual revenue of the property, and one third of the revenue for the execution of the ecclesiastical duties attached to the benefice as the present holder's demise."

So radical a measure can be justified only on the ground that "all religious corporations" in the Kingdom are the "Romish monastries whose stables have been the curse of the land till, at last, it spoils upon out.—Ed. papers.

Wonderful Discovery.

THE BOTTOM OF PURGATORY, ONE ...

The Pope has made a wonderful discovery, throwing the discoveries of ... science into oblivion. His Holiness ... not informed the world, as far as we ... how it was made, but his communications ... intelligence to the Bishops, they have ... formed the Princes and they have ... known to the people. The discovery will ... create a revolution among millions of the human race, and furnish employment for tens of thousands for ages to come.

Being in the township of Albion, very ... cently, in the immediate neighborhood ... Roman Catholic Chapel, and being ... ed that Bishop L. had been paying ... to the first ist, I was led to enquire ... concerning the nature of the visit and ... things of interest to my mind. Among the important items of intelligence gleaned ... the wonderful discovery, which must, I ... sure, astonish the world.

Well, what is it? The bottom of purgatory is entirely gone—burnt out. We say Roman Catholics; they get their information from the priests, and as the Roman Catholic Church is infallible; consequently it must be true. But mark another thing, it must be repaired again—a ... bottom put in—and an immense sum of money is required to accomplish the undertaking. That's significant!

Reader, this is not a jest or a burlesque, I am serious. The Roman Catholics of Albion, C. W., in 1865, are giving money to put a new bottom in Purgatory. And they make no secret of it.

Surely there never was such a imposition as Popery. In the latter part of the 19th century, in the midst of the meridian blaze of intelligence, such back-such ... abomination is dealt out as truth! O, what darkness attends Popery!

As we are ignorant concerning such connected with Purgatory, would some of the faithful please inform us on the following points, or answer the following queries. Where is Purgatory? What are its dimensions? How did the Pope discover that the bottom was burned out? Who are the contractors, and what amount of material will it take to re-bottom it? What time will be required to complete the job? What has become of the souls who fell through when the floor gave way? What will be done with the souls of Roman Catholics who die between the wrecking and the repairing of Purgatory?—Cor. Christian Journal.

A Little Comical Nonsense.

A laugh may occasionally be enjoyed by reading right across the columns of a newspaper; subjects get mixed up sometimes in a very comical manner. Here is a specimen:—"Auction! There will be sold this day, in front of Jacob H. Keep's store, at ten o'clock, A. M., one horse, one harness, and another horse.—Also, at the same time and place—Wanted, a wet nurse, square at the—Packing-house of Murray and King, where all kinds of—Perfumery are sold and—Sausages—Made to order and warranted to fit, or no sale. MAKE THE HOMESTEAD ATTRACTIVE.—It need not cost much money to make the place one loves us. Begin by digging out the briars and thistles of the door yard. Plant a few trees; thus add several flowering shrubs. Perhaps that will answer for one year. Next year, make a gravel walk or two, and set a few flowering plants on their sides. Your wife and children will sow some flower seeds, if you will only prepare a neat border for them. Look at these few improvements, some bright morning next June, and we guarantee you will be glad you made them. And these labors so rewarding, will lead on to others. Fences and buildings will be kept in repair. Trees will be set out along the roadside. The house will have window-blinds, rooms will be papered and painted; and furniture will be provided, and books, papers will not be missing. All these things will be regulated according to one's means. And, as a general rule, whatever one does it is better to make improvements by degrees, from year to year, than to do them all up at once, "by the job." The want of this is the way to find the most happiness in home allowing. And, remember, the influence of such improvements does not end with the individual family. They will silently, but with great effect, open around. Every neighbor and every passer by will see them, and many are led by such examples to go themselves and do likewise.

PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

As is generally the case, the first sittings of Parliament are spent without doing much. Notices of bills to be introduced, and movements of copies and reports relative to other matters, are the only topic before the house up to the present. On the whole we are not likely to have a long Parliament; the opposition is not strong enough to delay the business. Some useful bills are likely to be introduced and passed—one that will be hailed with pleasure by many, is to provide for imprisoning offenders, in default of payment of fines, on conviction, for vending spirituous and manufactured liquors without license.

Mr. McDonald's Alien Bill is also a very important one, but its existence will only be one year.

A BELLICOSE PARLIAMENT.

Messrs. Blanchet and Paquet, M. P. P's, have organised a drill association of Members of both Houses, about sixty Members have joined. The Western Members are —Messrs. Walbridge, Stirton, Rymal, Thompson, McGiverin, W. Ross, J. S. Ross, MacFarlane, Bowman, Dunsford, Walsh, Parker.

It is reported that the Government will remove to Ottawa on the 1st of May next.

Attorney General Macdonald has given notice of his Alien Bill. The objects of the Bill are best given in the words of its promoter:—

Mr. John A. Macdonald asked leave to introduce a bill for the prevention and suppression of outrages on the frontier of this Province, and for other purposes.

Mr. Holton asked the Attorney-General to state generally the purport of the bill.

Mr. John A. Macdonald said the first part of the bill was to provide a check on those parties who had found an asylum in this country and some of whom had abused the hospitality and asylum afforded them, by using Canada as a base of hostile operations against the United States. For that purpose some of the provisions of the Alien bill, the Imperial Act of 1848, were proposed to be introduced to confer on the Government power to give notice to certain persons who had proved themselves unworthy of the hospitality of this country by abusing it for improper purposes to remove from beyond it. There were also clauses giving additional powers as to the seizure and examination of vessels supposed to be fitted out for hostile purposes, and some of the clauses also of the Act of the United States Congress of 1838 would be included in the bill. It would be remembered that the United States then stood in precisely the same circumstances with regard to Canada as we now stand in with reference to the United States. They found at that time the law of the United States was insufficient for checking inroads into Canada, and that vessels were being fitted out to convey hostile troops into Canada Congress, accordingly passed an exceptional act to meet those circumstances to exist for a period of two years. The circumstances were now precisely the same, and he believed his honorable friends opposite would agree that the present law was insufficient, and that new provisions should be enacted. Some of the clauses adopted by Congress in 1838 for our protection were now incorporated in this bill for the protection of the United States. There were also clauses providing that should there be reasonable ground to suspect parties of being engaged in the manufacture of arms, ammunition, or anything of that kind to be used for hostile purposes, those parties should be called to show what they were manufacturing these arms and ammunition for, and to prove that there were good reasons for these clauses, as the Government knew that arms had actually been in process of construction in this Province with the view of being used for hostile purposes.

THE RECIPROCITY TREATY.

The Americans are bent on doing every thing in their power to annoy us, and that at the cost of annoying themselves. They first instituted a passport system that has in a great degree cut off intercourse between us and them, to the no small disadvantage of both; next they go about abrogating the reciprocity treaty merely because they imagine they can thus spite us, for not giving up the raiders at their bidding. They themselves however are the very first to dread the result: their Press is beginning to speak out on the matter, and point out the evil consequences to themselves of their present unwise policy.

In 1863 the exports to us were.....$2,724,423
In 1863 " " " 31,213,036
In 1437 their imports were.....6857,696
In 1863 " " " $24,025,423

This whole trade will be almost cut off by the present policy, to the great disadvantage of the frontier towns of the United States, and to the inconvenience of Canadian trade. No great benefit it is urged can flow from such abrogation, while great evil is a certain consequence.

The best of feelings at present exist on our part towards our neighbors. This non-intercourse system will destroy it materially, begetting a coldness and indifference that may, after a few years, end in open rupture.

For the present fifty millions of commerce are to be cut off. Intercourse withdrawn, and the jealousy that is sure to follow can have no civilizing or healthy influence on either of the parties concerned. It is to be hoped that the American people, before it is too late, will see that they are only cutting off their own nose to spite their face, by in their present policy towards Canada and Britian.

Orange County Meeting.

The annual County Meeting of the Loyal Orange Association of the County of Peterborough, will be held in the new Orange Hall, over the Telegraph office, in this town, on Tuesday next, to commence at 12 o'clock noon.

GOOD TEMPLARS' SOIREE.

According to notice, the Soiree under the auspices of the Good Templars' of Peterborough Lodge, came off on Thursday evening last. The Wesleyan Sabbath School room, which was kindly given for the occasion, was crowded. The tea was the best that could be provided. The Ladies who assisted to this department deserve great praise for the manner in which they did their part. They had everything prepared that could tempt the appetite, and perfect justice was done in the demolishing line. After tea, the meeting was called to order, when W. Glover Esq., was called to the chair. The meeting was opened by the Rev. Mr. Brock, in a most impressive and appropriate prayer.

The Chairman in his opening speech alluded to the large and influential assembly as indicative of the progress of Temperance principles, and especially as indicative of the healthy state of the Good Templars in this Town. From the report of the Secretary, Mr. J. Chambers, which was short yet full and comprehensive, and which was evidently got up with great care,—we learn that during the past year the Society has prospered exceedingly. Many Temples then were almost dead, have been revived—above one hundred new Temples have been instituted. Fifteen hundred new members have been added to their number, which now amounts to fifteen thousand. In reference to the Temple in Town the following extracts will show that it is in a very healthy state. 'At present there is a membership of one hundred and fifty—an increase on the last year of sixty members.' The finances of the Temple are also in a very prosperous state. Before reading the Report, the Rev. Mr. Brock addressed the meeting. His style was easy, free, convincing and effective. He showed the progress of Temperance principles in the last thirty years, contrasting the present with the past. Thirty-five years ago nothing could be done without whisky, now every thing can be done without it.—Then it was a shame not to have it at births, baptisms, marriages and even funerals, burying the brains of those who attended in drunkenness as they buried the remains of their departed friends; and he concluded by saying that the Temperance movement legitimately carried on, had his warmest sympathy, and most cordial co-operation. The Rev. gentleman considered amongst bursts of applause. The next speaker was Mr. Fairbairn whom we have never heard more happy in his remarks. His remarks related to the source of true strength in working the Temperance movements of the day. He also referred to the Temperance Act—stating that while it was not everything the Temperance men could desire, notwithstanding it was the best they have had, and was a step towards complete prohibition. He was succeeded by P. Pearce, Esq., Ex-Warden of this County, who is ever a friend of the great and good cause. He pointed out some defects in the Act, and referred to a remedy for them. He stated that the authorities whose duty it was, did not try to have the License law respected; they allowed the violations of the law to pass unpunished, and then laid the blame of its failure on Temperance men. He also spoke in favor of a County movement for Prohibition. Mr. Stratton also made a few remarks to show that if the Temperance movement was a failure because it did not effect all intended and desired, by a parity of reason everything with which man has anything to do may be declared failures. For no work to which he puts his hand fully works out all intended or desired. He urged that in the same way of reasoning it might be asserted every enterprise ought to be given up, and man told his arms in indifference, for he could not realise all he desired. Temperance had done much and was doing much, and ought not to be given up because it had not enlisted the world under its banner. The intervals were filled up with sweet music by the Choir in connection with Friendship Temple—and this tended very much to the pleasures of the evening. Some of the pieces were deservedly encored. The whole proceedings were brought to a close by pronouncing the Benediction, when all dispersed satisfied that the whole was a great success; the best meeting of the kind yet held in Peterboro.

SOIREE AT LAKEFIELD.

The First Presbyterian Church, Lakefield, intend holding their second Anniversary Soiree on Monday, the 13th instant, at two o'clock, P. M.

Col. Strickland will preside. The speakers are Rev. Messrs. Rogers, Blain and McNamara, and Dr. Crowle, and T. M. Fairbairn, Esq'rs.

Good music will be provided under the management of our well known friend Mr. Graham. Tickets can be had at Nicholls & Hall's, and T. Menzies, in Town, and at Mr. Graham's store, Lakefield.

The drive to Lakefield is both short and pleasant. It is hoped, therefore, many will avail themselves of the occasion and be found there.

Orange Soiree.

The district of Cavan intend holding a grand Orange Soiree, in the Town Hall in the Village of Millbrook, Tuesday afternoon the 7th inst.

As the proceeds of the Soiree are to be appropriated to the widows and orphans Fund of the Society, we hope to see a good turn out of the Brethren from this part.

The names of some excellent speakers are announced.

The price of admission is only 35 cents.

Lakefield Bazaar.

We beg to remind our readers that the Bazaar, in aid of the Church Building Fund, will be held in the village of Lakefield, on Thursday next, the 9th instant. The various articles, useful and ornamental, will be offered for sale, on this occasion, at very moderate prices. We venture to bespeak a large attendance from Peterboro and the neighborhood.

AGRICULTURAL.

At a meeting held on the 21st of January, the following officers of the County of Peterborough Agricultural Society for 1865 were appointed:—

John Walton, Esq. President.
Jos. Walton, " 1st V President.
I. Gardner, " 2nd V President.
J. Carnegie, " Sec. Treasurer.

DIRECTORS.

Rev. V. Clementi, J. H. Walton, Esq.
J. W. Gilmour, Esq. M. Sanderson, "
Jas. Stoddart, " W. Helm, "
T. Stoddart, Esq.

Messrs. Christie, Burnham, and W. Ferguson, Kingston, received the nomination of the Society for the board.

FIRE! FIRE!

Fires are the order of the day: every paper brings us the intelligence of another, yea, and sometimes two or three fresh fires. The Hamilton Spectator brings us the information that the Ontario Packing House was consumed on the 26th inst., thereby destroying a large amount of property and throwing 30 men out of employment.

The following is an inventory of the stock consumed:—

4,000 Hogs, salted and dressed,	$70,000
200 Bbls. unpacked Pork,	4,000
300 Bbls. More Pork,	6,000
50 Tierces Grease,	1,000
30 Boxes Bacon	900
150 Tubs Lard,	675
50 " " surrendered,	250
	$82,825

Together with several thousand hams, barrels, tubs, &c. Total loss, $120,000. Insured for $45,000. $20,000 in Phœnix, $20,000 in Provincial.

The building was insured for $4000; $2000 in the Royal and Phœnix each.

And all this supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

ERIE.

Buffalo is visited and $500,000 worth of property consumed and three men lost their lives.

London has had its several fires. St. Catharines has come in for a share in the conflagration. Kingston has suffered; besides the numerous other fires of less note, and less destruction of property.

A large fire at Seaforth, loss $11,000, insured $4000; two fires in the county of Oxford; loss, $3000 [illegible] 1000.

What leads to so many fires? Why is it that there are so many more fires now than formerly? Searching inquiries should be made into every fire: this, we think, would tend to stop them.

The Burley Case.

On Friday four Judges: the Chief Justice of the Queens Bench, the Chief Justice of the Court of Common pleas, and two puisne Judges gave judgment in the Burley case, sustaining the decision of Recorder Duggan. That so many Judges have agreed on the main points, there can remain little doubt concerning the matter. From their decision it would appear that Burley's offence comes within the Extradition treaty, he is once to be rendered up to take his trial before a United States court. The charge is robbery. The high standing of those Legal Judges who have given their decision in the matter will no doubt satisfy all that the judgment is according to law, and the delay will tend to give renewed assurance of the fairness of our manner of dealing with persons arraigned, affording them opportunity of defending themselves that none may be found guilty or acquitted without full and satisfactory investigation. The delay will further show the American people that no threat nor action of theirs can either intimidate or influence Canadian Courts, as justice and equity are the best foundations for national and individual safety. But one, of the whole party of twenty five, who were engaged in the Philo Parsons affair, has been arrested, and in all probability he will do dealt very severely with.

HAMILTON ELECTION

The writ for the city election is issued, and several candidates spoken of. Among these is, Mr. Brydges, but the Hamilton Times thinks the Tories are not prepared to bring forward a candidate. The following we clip from that paper:—

Toryism Defunct.—The Constitutionals are snuffed out. After days of agony, they, yesterday evening, gave their last kick. They called aloud for some man with a long purse to come to their aid, but a man with a long purse came not, so they disconsolately died. There was not in all Torydom to be found one who would feed the hungry orphans with the gilded dross called gold, and they yielded up the ghost—dying from financial starvation. We think Toryism will now know its real strength in Hamilton. So long as they had at their head one like Mr. Buchanan, whom they could bleed at pleasure, they grew fat. Now that the long purse is removed, they rot away. Bury the corrupt carcase, while we, even with divided ranks, triumphantly elevate the banner of Reform over the city once thought the stronghold of Toryism.

Melodeons and Cottage Organs.

Our enterprising Townsman, Jos. R. Walton, Esq., advertises for sale Melodeons and Cottage Organs of the best make, and possessing the sweetest tone, with a variety and power that the best judges declare unequalled by any instruments of the kind they have heard. The instruments for which Mr. Walton is agent have improvements in structure and combination of power, with a beautiful Harmonic Attachment, and manual subbass which causes them to be greatly admired and praised. Besides purchasing from an individual in Respectable standing, and at home with us, ensures the purchaser that he may expect everything satisfactory and according to announcement. Mr. Walton has done business in this Town for several years, and always in the most honorable and satisfactory manner. Intending purchasers would do well to patronise him. There are also the certificates of well known citizens attached that will serve as a guarantee that the Cottage Organ and Melodeon will give satisfaction.

AMERICAN NEWS.

No news of importance since our last. Wilmington is the centre of interest just now. General Grant is waiting to meet Gen Sherman. Sheridan has been with Grant, it is said, and some of Gen. Thomas's force have moved to aid in the East. Charleston, it is thought is too strong to be attacked from the land side and it has proved the same from sea. Blockade running at Wilmington is over, but the place is not yet taken. Peace is doubtful yet. Blair's mission done yet bear much fruit. The Passport system is likely to be revoked, as it effects nothing unless expense and trouble.

Messrs. Hopkins & Donnelly announce their readiness to supply every thing in the Saddlery and Harness line, at greatly reduced prices, for ready pay. It would be well for intending purchasers to give them a call.

Hamilton Election.—The writ for this election has been received. The nomination will take place on Friday, the 10th instant, and the polling, if a poll be demanded, on the 17th and 18th inst.

To Correspondents.—Several communications have been crowded out this week. They will appear in our next issue.

A communication from Mr. McGann, Head Master of the Deaf, Dumb and Blind Institution, at Hamilton, was referred to the Committee on Finance and Assessment.

The Report of the Committee on Roads and Bridges was received and adopted.

Messrs. Pearce, Grover, Birdsall, Garbutt, Walton, Gilmour, Ingram and Carnegie were appointed a Committee to report on the desirableness of making any alterations or amendments in the Municipal or Assessment Laws now in force, pursuant to a circular to that intent: said report to be transmitted to the Clerk of the House of Assembly.

A By Law was passed confirming the award made between the Town of Peterboro' and the County. The following is the award:—

The Town to pay the County the sum of $1,645.41 for the expenses of the administration of justice. Of this sum $235.41 is a set off from the Town as interest due from the County on $6692.87, which was the amount of the interest of the Town in the County buildings. The arbitrators could only go back two years, at which time the seperation from Victoria was effected.

The Committee appointed to erect the new Jail reported: the Report is as follows:

The Committee appointed to superintend the erection of the new Jail, beg leave to report:—

That the Jail is now completed, together with the Walls, Yards, &c., the levelling of the Yards, and the putting in a necessary tank has added largely to the extra work, and that there was no extra work undertaken until ordered or suggested by the Inspector of prisons, and that notwithstanding a large bill of extra work, the whole has been completed for a less sum than a tender for the Jail alone, that was urged upon this Committee, and less than the estimate, (and satisfactory.)

And the contract was for.....$12,054 00
Extra work allowed..... 1,449 73

$13,623 73

Your committee, are pleased to state, that they have settled with the contractor for the extra work without trouble, and find due him $2,711 86.

Your committee cannot close this report without expressing great satisfaction at the manner with which the contractor has conducted the work, and in bringing it to completion at such an early date, and also to bear testimony to the attention paid by your Engineer, Mr. Nicholl.

All of which &c.

P. M. GROVER,
Chairman.

Committee Room, Jan. 24, 1865.

A motion to grant the sum of $400, to aid in erecting a proposed new Bridge at the narrows across the river Trent, in addition to the sum already granted, was lost.—Yeas, 6. Nays, 9.

On motion of Mr. Carnegie, an advance of $700 was directed to be paid to Robert Grant, on account of the money due him by the County for the construction of the new Jail.

In discussion on the report of the Committee on appointments, it was moved in amendment, to place the name of Wm. Sargent in the room of John K. Benson, as Inspector of Weights and Measures, but the amendment was lost.

The sum of $350 was ordered to be paid to Mr. T. Clementi, on account of his survey of Harvey.

The Council then adjourned to 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Friday, Jan. 27th, 1865.

The Council met according to adjournment: All the members present.

The minutes of previous day were read and approved.

It was agreed that uniform seals should be procured for the different Municipalities, similar to the one procured for Burleigh, and each Municipality charged with the cost, viz: $5.00.

A new seal for the County was also adopted.

Mr. Garbutt was appointed Commissioner to expend the sum of twenty dollars on the Boundary line, between the Township of Smith and the Town of Peterboro'.

A memorial to His Excellency the Governor General, on the subject of the waters of the Otonabee river, between the Little Lake, at Peterboro', and Buckhorn Lake, was read and signed.

The Report of Committee on Printing was received and adopted.

The Council then adjourned to 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Saturday, Jan. 28th, 1865.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment: the Warden in the chair: all the members present.

The minutes of previous day were read and approved.

The Warden and Treasurer were instructed to negotiate a loan for such a sum of money as they think necessary, to meet the liabilities of the present year.

It was moved by Mr. Sullivan, seconded by Mr. Birdsall, that a memorial be forwarded to the Governor General, by this Council, praying for assistance to aid the Municipalities in erecting a Bridge across Chemong Lake.

The time for collecting the taxes of 1864 was extended to the 1st of April.

Wanted, a Candidate.—Torydom in Hamilton is in a quandary. The Constitutional Association is at its wit's end (no great distance to travel) to find some one willing to run in the interest for the representation of the city. Nightly caucuses and daily street-corner deliberations are wearing the members of that important body to mere shadows. Must some enthusiastic Conservative rush to the rescue, and sacrifice himself and his purse to the good of the constitutionals?—Times.

Personal.—It is with pleasure we learn that W. Rutledge, Jr. Esq., has been appointed Passport Agent for this Town.

THE ALIEN BILL.

The following is a summary of the Bill introduced by Attorney General Macdonald, intituled "An Act for the prevention and "suppression of outrages in violation of the "peace on the frontier of this Province."

The preamble sets forth:—"Whereas it is expedient to provide for the due security of the peace and tranquility of this Province by temporary enactment, therefore Her Majesty, &c., enacts."

The first two clauses read as follows:—

1st. Where and so often as the Governor of this Province shall have reason to believe, from information given to him or to the Secretary of the Province, in writing, by any person subscribing his or her name and address thereto, that for the preservation of the peace and tranquility of this Province in its expedient to remove therefrom any alien or aliens who may be in this Province, or who may hereafter arrive therein, it shall be lawful for the Governor, by order under his hand to be published in the Canada Gazette, to direct that any such alien or aliens who may be within this Province, or who may hereafter arrive therein, shall depart this Province within a time limited in such order; and it any such alien shall knowingly and wilfully refuse or neglect to pay due obedience to such order, or shall be found in this Province contrary to such order after such publication thereof as aforesaid, and after the expiration of the time limited in such order, it shall be lawful for the Governor, or for any Justice of the Peace, to cause every such alien to be arrested and to be committed to the common goal of the county, district or place where he or she shall be so arrested, there to remain without bail or main prize until he or she shall be taken in charge for the purpose of being sent out of the Province under the authority hereinafter given.

2nd. Every such alien, knowingly and wilfully refusing or neglecting to pay due obedience to any such order as aforesaid, shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and on being convicted thereof shall, at the discretion of the Court, be adjudged to suffer imprisonment for any time not exceeding one month, for the first offence, and not exceeding twelve months for the second and any subsequent offence.

Clause 3rd provides for any alien, who does not depart within the time specified, being conveyed out of the Province by warrant of the Governor. It provides also that where any such alien, not having been convicted as aforesaid, shall allege any reason why the order should not be enforced, it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council to judge of the sufficiency of such reason and to allow or disallow the same, either absolutely or in such conditions as he shall think fit. The clause also provides that, when the alien is in custody, with the view of being removed from the Province, and alleges reason why the order should not be enforced, the execution of the warrant for his removal shall be suspended until the matter is finally determined by the Governor in Council, and that the Governor shall cause to be delivered to such alien in writing a summary of the matters alleged against him, and allow him reasonable time to prepare for his defence, and it shall be lawful for such alien to summon and examine witness upon oath before the Governor in Council, and to be heard before them personally or by counsel.

Clause 4th provides as follows:—In every case in which power is given by this Act to commit any alien to gaol without bail or main-prize, it shall be lawful for any Justice of any of Her Majesty's Superior Courts in this Province, if upon application made he shall see sufficient cause, to admit such person to bail, he or she giving sufficient security for his or her appearance to answer the matters alleged against him or her.

Clause 5th provides that, when any alien committed to remain in charge for the purpose of being sent out of the Province is not sent out within one month after such commitment, or within one month after the opening of the St. Lawrence navigation, any of the Judges of the Superior Courts, any Police Magistrate or Recorder, any two Justices or the Peace, or any Judge of the Sessions in Lower Canada, may on application by the person so committed consider the case, and order him to be discharged or to be continued in custody, according to his discretion.

Clause 6th provides as follows: If any person shall within this Province begin or set on foot, or prepare the means for, or shall engage, aid, or assist in the beginning or setting on foot or in the providing or preparing the means for any military expedition, raid, or enterprise, to be carried on from thence against the territory of any foreign State, or against the lives, liberties or properties of any one or more of the inhabitants of any territory or dominions of any foreign State with whom Her Majesty is at peace, every person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour, and on conviction thereof shall be fined in a sum not exceeding three thousand dollars, and imprisoned for a term not exceeding two years.

Clauses 7th and 8th authorize the seizure and detention of any vessel, arms or munitions of war, when the circumstances render it probable that they are to be employed for hostile purposes against any foreign State with which her Majesty is at peace. Authority to make such seizure is given to any Sheriff, Collector of Customs, County Attorney Police Magistrate, Recorder, Judge of Sessions in Lower Canada, any field officer or captain of Her Majesty's service, or of the Volunteer Militia, or of the Service Militia being at the time in actual service, or any other persons specially empowered by the Government for that purpose.

Clause 9th provides that any officer other than a Police Magistrate, Recorder, Judge of Sessions in Lower Canada, making such seizure, shall apply with due diligence for a warrant to justify the detention of the property thus seized. If no such warrant is issued within ten days after the seizure the property seized shall be restored to its owner.

Clause 10th gives jurisdiction to the Superior Circuit and County Courts to try the claim of the owner of the property so seized, for its restoration. In Upper Canada, all issues of fact in such cases shall be decided by a jury.

Clause 11th provides that while the case is pending, the owner may have his property restored, on giving bonds for double its value, that it shall not be used on any military expedition, raid, &c.

Clause 12 provides that the venue may be laid in any county or district in the Province.

Clause 13th provides for the issue of warrants to visit suspected places, and to search for and seize arms, munitions, &c., on information upon oath that it is believed they are intended to be used for hostile purposes.

Clause 14th provides the manner in which owners of property so seized shall proceed in claiming restoration of such property.

Clause 15th provides that nothing in the Act shall be construed to interfere with any law in force in this Province respecting the writ of habeas corpus.

Clause 16th and 17th define what shall be considered arms and munitions of war.

Clause 18th provides that the Act shall continue in force for one year from the passing thereof, and until the end of the then next session of Parliament.

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough.

"Let the galled jade wince,
It shows that the saddle is on the right horse."

The above couplet of the poet never received a stronger confirmation of its truth than is furnished in the fly-sheet addressed to you by "A Practical Temperance Man" on the subject of the By Law to prohibit licensed Grog Shops. I need hardly point out to you that his assumed name, as well as his profession of Temperance principles, are all intended to lead you to wrong conclusions, by endeavouring to make you believe that he is very candid and honest in his intentions.—Be not deceived—he is neither one nor the other; his interests are bound up in the Grog business, and, like the Ephesian God maker, his craft is in danger. Just let me direct him a little. He says that he is such a strong temperance man and holds the sin and traffic of intoxicating liquors in such abhorrence that he would destroy it root and branch. All brash: he would'nt do anything of the kind; or else why is he so anxious to prevent the passage of the Dunkin By Law,—surely half a loaf is better than no bread. The Legislature very properly wish to test the people on this question and if the people say no thereon, their representation in parliament will soon follow with prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors.—Again, he says that the only effect of the passage of the law would be to close the respectable houses, and thus prevent the farmers and business men from coming to town to transact business. Now it is certainly no compliment to say that the farmers cannot do their trading without purchasing intoxicating liquor, and that in order to gratify their low desires for rum we must have so many places to accommodate them. But the insinuation is false: the sturdy, noble-hearted farmers of Smith, Otonabee, Asphodel, Monaghan and Cavan, have declared by their votes that they neither want grog for themselves nor will they allow such demoralizing sinks of iniquity to exist in their Townships. All honor to them. But admitting that the farmers do require places to stop at, could they not be accommodated without intoxicating liquor? Could not the money spent in that which destroys both body and soul be spent in purchasing wholesome food? Could we not have Coffee and Eating Houses with all the necessary accommodations for travellers, teams, &c.? Certainly we could, and it is an insult to farmers and travellers to say that they require Grog shops to exist for their use while the tremendous evils of the liquor traffic meet them at every step. But Mr. Practical is interested directly in the sale of liquor himself, and in order to hide his supreme selfishness he wishes to play the taxation dodge, an old dodge, often tried with you by parties who wish to serve themselves and advance their own purposes, and he has the unblushing assurance to insult your intelligence by stating that if you were to vote no license, your taxes would be increased 8d. in the £. Now Mr. Practical is advised by a member of the Finance Committee and he knew when he wrote that he was affirming a falsehood: it would not require one half that amount to raise $2,000. But he tells you nothing about the $800 that is paid to the Mayor for attending the police court, to try cases, eight out of every ten, arising out of this very Licensed Liquor Traffic.—He did'nt tell you about the cost of the New Lock-up, several hundred dollars, to confine the poor wretches made drunk by law, by the very men the town select for that purpose. He did'nt tell you that the Chief Constable's salary, $400 yearly, is paid almost exclusively for picking up out of the gutter those legally made drunkards. He did'nt put in the scale against his $2,000, the amount paid out of the taxes to widows and orphans, the suffering and helpless victims of the Rum traffic. He did'nt tell you about the $1,600 paid by the Town to the County, in two years, for the administration of justice, two thirds of which amount is for the maintenance and support of those poor desolate wretches who cannot pay the fine and expenses for getting drunk. He did'nt point out to you the scenes of vice and immorality springing from the same source, the young men that crowd our gilded Saloons and fashionable Hotels, who are taking lessons nightly in gambling with money perhaps not their own. He entirely overlooked the immense loss to the legitimate business of the Town, by the numerous half fed, half clad and idle, desolate families, made so by Grog. Oh no, these were too small items to be seen through the distorted vision of Mr. Practical, he only thinks of diminished sales from his respectable calling; and in order to secure the spoils for a little longer he wishes you to continue partners in this horrible business. But I much mistake the character of the virtuous, moral, christian Ratepayers of Peterboro', if, when the proper time comes, you do'nt teach this bogus temperance Grog Champion that you don't weigh the bodies and souls, and happiness of your fellow townsmen in the scale of dollars and cents. Mr. Practical may also rest quite easy in his mind about the consistency of temperance men, for I can assure him that, whatever may be their faults, they can walk the streets with a clear conscience. They never shrink from the gaze of the desolate widow or starving, ragged orphan, whose husband or father was murdered by rum, according to law. Their hands are clear from the blood or unlawful gains of the Heaven defying traffic. They may also be very obtuse, but they have hitherto failed to discover any differences between a man ruined with liquor in a fashionable Hotel or at the lowest groggery, if there is any difference at all it is against the so called Respectable Houses, for their victims are generally of a class whose mothers and wives are susceptible of a deeper wound. I would also tell him that though the temperance men have been cheated out of the law by official dodging this time, twelve months will bring them the opportunity again; and in view of the certain passage of the Dunkin Law I would give him the following passage from Gods Divine Law: "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbour drink, that puttest thy bottle to him and makest him drunken also," and if that and similar passages sufficiently purify his moral perceptions, the Good Templars may then have compassion on him, if he washes his hands of the bad business, and admit him within the pure atmosphere of the Temple.

THE FIRST SHOT.

The Arrest of Captain Bell.—The following from the New York Commercial Advertiser raises the presumption that Captain Bell was abducted from Canada. The capture of three other Confederate officers appears to have taken place in the same manner:—The detectives employed by General Dix to ferret out the incendiaries engaged in the attempt to burn this city have been quietly at work for several weeks, and have at length succeeded in arresting Captain Bell, a rebel officer, and three other men, against whom there is said to be an abundance of proof. Bell was found flourishing at a fashionable Canadian hotel, under the pseudonym of Baker; but unluckily for him, there were loyal citizens of the United States at his elbow who knew him too well, and they contrived a plan to get him over the line, and then, discombulance being necessary, they revealed their knowledge, and delivered him into the hands of detective Young and his assistant.

Melancholy Suicide.—We regret to learn that the wife of Mr. John Copeland, 10th con. of Ennismore, came to an untimely end on Wednesday last. It appears that several months Mrs. Copeland has been labouring under mental aberration, and required almost constant watching. On Wednesday her husband had occasion to go from home and left his eldest a little girl 10 or 12 years of age to look after his wife. During the day the unfortunate woman took an axe, and struck the girl a severe blow on the head. The girl on her she could, proceeded to a neighbor's house to procure assistance; but on returning with help the unfortunate woman was found dead first in the well. She was immediately taken out, but life was extinct. This melancholy occurrence has cast a gloom over the neighbourhood.—Lindsay Post.

Ammunition for the Lakes.

(From the Scottish American.)

A story, evidently concocted in malice, was put afloat early in the week which was intended to convey the impression that Great Britain was about to make preparations for the contingencies of a war with this country. The story was that thirty gunboats, manned by 2,500 trained seamen, were to be sent to the Lakes with the opening of navigation. The report found ready credence in all the circles here known to be Confederate in their sympathies. But other and sensible people, who are either neutral or supporters of the Federal Union, found no difficulty in throwing discredit upon the story at once. In the first place, there is nothing at all hostile in the mere act of terminating the treaty under which the number of war vessels maintained by both powers was limited. It was simply a precautionary measure, forced, as we think, upon the Government of this country by the daring outrages of persons calling themselves Confederate naval officers, but being in reality nothing more nor less than so many pirates, concerned, first of all, in securing as much plunder, and eager, next to that, to embroil Great Britain and the United States in war.

That the Washington Government should take prompt and decisive measures against this class of scoundrels, was, we think, altogether reasonable and proper. Had Great Britain been at war with any European Power, and pirates, professing to act in the interest of that Power, had been found preying upon the lake commerce of the Provinces, the British Government would have terminated this treaty much more promptly than the American Executive has done. The trouble is not about the rightfulness or the expediency of putting American cruisers on the Lakes while this war continues, but about the expense which it may throw upon the Provincial Government, to bear its share in maintaing even a small force of cruisers on its own side of the Lakes. Even if but half a dozen gunboats are necessary for this, the Provinces will be expected to bear their share of the burdens. And this, taken in connection with the large outlay already incurred by sending volunteers to the frontier, is no trifling matter.

Who, then, is to blame? certainly not the Washington Government. Certainly not the British or the Provincial Government. The blame lies primarily with the Confederate fugitives that have been skulking in Canada since the beginning of the war, and with a small class of Provincial snobs who think it a mighty fine thing to be praising everything Confederate and to sneer at everything Yankee. The latter class has busied itself with lionizing every species of adventurer who calls himself a Southerner. The consequence has been that hundreds of the veriest ragamuffins have been able to sponge upon their Provincial acquaintances for months and months, and when this resource fails they have taken to piracy on the Lakes, or to robbing and plundering banks on the land. These are the ways and means by which things have been brought to their present pass between the two countries. It is open, of course, to Canadians, or to people of any other country, to show their sympathies with the brave people of the Southern States. But they have a duty which ought to take precedence over all others. It is to see that they are not themselves to this war. If they neglect this most essential duty, their conduct becomes at once foolish and criminal to a degree that must make them the scorn of the world.

Murder in Ottawa.

Yesterday morning constable Morrison of Ottawa City, arrested two men named Richard Foxley, and John Nicholson, who reside in Ramsay, on a charge of beating one Richard Greenhill, on the 14th of the present month, in Ottawa City.

It appears, so far as we can learn, that Nicholson, Foxley, Greenhill, and another man, went into a saloon to play cards for oysters, and in playing the game a dispute arose, when Foxley struck Greenhill; but Greenhill being the strongest man, got the better of Foxley, and told him to keep quiet. The affair then cooled off, and Foxley and Nicholson left the saloon, and repaired to the Hotel of J. H. Merkrie. After a short time Greenhill and his companion followed, and the dispute was renewed. Foxley again struck Greenhill, and the blow was returned by Greenhill, when Meakrie interfered and had Greenhill ejected from the house. Foxley also went out, and with a club aid the assistance of Meakrie's men, beat Greenhill, breaking one of his legs and knocking one of his ankles out of joint. Greenhill was removed to the hospital, where he suffered from the effects of the beating till Tuesday last, when he was attacked with lock-jaw, and expired on Thursday morning.

Greenhill is said to have been a respectable young Englishman, who has resided in this country but a short time. He leaves a wife, who is only eighteen years of age, and a child, in destitute circumstances, to mourn his untimely end.

The prisoners, in charge of constable's, Morrison and Patterson, were conveyed to Ottawa yesterday morning to undergo an examination.

THE PASSPORT SYSTEM.

Our special Quebec correspondent telegraphs that intelligence of the rescinding of the passport order, so far as Canada is concerned, has been received from Washington. The news will be welcomed throughout the country. At the same time, we trust there is no truth in the statement put forth by the American press, that this act of the Washington Cabinet is the result of a stipulation made by our Government, that Judge Coursol should be dismissed, and that the $50,000 taken by the St. Alban's raiders should be restored. To interfere with the independence of the judiciary, and to do so as a bargain with a foreign Government, would be to level a deadly blow at the liberties of the country. As to the payment of the $50,000, it could not properly be made the subject of a bargain between two Governments; since the right to claim it would depend upon a judicial decision not yet given. If the decision be that the raiders be

THE DRUNKARD'S RAGGIT WEAN

[Some of our friends, when in Glasgow, the other day, was made to tarry in the street by the plaintive notes of a child singing the following song, several copies of which the boy was selling for a half-penny. He purchased one, and our readers have the benefit of the investment.—Sarnia Observer.]

A wee bit raggit laddie gangs wan'rin thro' the streets,
Wadin' among the snaw wi' his wee bookit feet,
Shiv'rin' i' the cauld blast, greetin' wi' the pain,
Wha's the pair wee callan'? he's a drunkard's raggit wean.

He stands at like door, and he looks wi' wistfu' e'e,
To see the crowd around the fire, a' laughin' 'bout wi' glee;
But he daurna venture ben,' tho' his heart be e'er sae fain,
For he canna play wi' decent bairns, the drunkard's raggit wean.

Oh, see the wee bit bairnie, his heart is unco fou,
The plea is blawin' cauld, and he's dreepit thro' and thro',
He's spoorin' for his mither, and he won'ers whar she's gane;
But, oh! his mither she forgets her pair wee raggit wean.

He hasn't nae father's love, an' he ken's nae mither's care,
To soothe his wee bit sorrows, or kame his tautit hair,
To bless him when he wankens, or smooth his bed at e'en,
An' oh! he fears his father's face, the drunkard's raggit wean.

Oh, pity the wee laddie, nae gallows and nae preens,
The cash that leaves the father's lip 'll mettle on his tongue,
An' starts' words his mother speaks, his infant lips 'll stain.
For oh, there's nane to guide the bairn, the drunkard's raggit wean.

Then surely we might try an' turn that sinful mither's heart,
An' try to get his father to act a father's part.
An' make them lea' the drunkard's cup, an' never taste again,
An' cherish wi' a parent's care their pair wee raggit wean.

Miscellaneous.

OUT OF WORK.

'It's of no use Maria, I've tried everywhere.'

'But you are not going to give it up, Peter.'

'Give it up? How can I help it? Within four days I have been to every bookbindery in the city, and not a bit of work can I get.'

'But have you tried everything else?'

'What else can I try?'

'Why anything you can do.'

'Yes I've tried other things. I have been to more than a dozen of my friends, and offered to help them if they would hire me.'

'And what did you mean to do for them?'

'I offered either to post up accounts, make out bills, or attend to the counter.'

Mrs. Stanwood smiled as her husband thus spoke.

'What makes you smile?'

'To think that you should have imagined you would find work in such a place. But how is Mark Leeds?'

'He is worse off than I am.'

'How so.'

'He has nothing in the house to eat.'

A shudder crept over his wife's frame now.

'Why do you tremble wife?'

'Because when we shall have eaten our breakfast to-morrow we shall have nothing.'

'What?' cried Peter Stanwood, starting from his chair 'do you mean that?'

'I do.'

'But our flour?'

'All gone I baked the last this afternoon.'

'But we have pork.'

'You ate the last this noon.'

'But we must starve,' groaned the poor man, starting across the room.

Peter Stanwood was a bookbinder by trade, and had now been out of employment for more than a month. He was one of those who generally try to keep about square with the world and considered themselves very fortunate if they keep out of debt. He was thirty years of age, and had a wife and three children to support besides himself, and this with house rent, was a heavy draught upon his purse, even when work was plenty, but now—there was nothing.

'Maria,' said he, 'we must starve for I have not a single penny in the world.'

'Do not despair, Peter. Try again for work tomorrow you may find something to do. Anything that is honest is honourable. Should you make but a shilling a day we should not starve.

'But our house rent?'

'Trust to me for that. The landlord will not turn us out. If you will engage to find something to do, I will see that we have house room.'

'I'll make one more trial,' uttered Peter despairingly.'

'But you must be prepared to do anything.'

'Anything reasonable Maria.'

'What do you call reasonable?'

The wife felt inclined to smile, but the matter was too serious for that and a cloud passed over his face. She knew her husband's disposition, and she felt sure he would find no work. She knew he would look for some kind of work which would not lower him in the social scale, as he expressed it. However she knew it would be of no use to say anything to him.

On the following morning the last bit of food in the house was put upon the table. Stanwood could hardly realize that he was penniless and without food. For years he had been gay and fortunate, making most of the present and forgetting the past, and leaving the future to take care of itself. Yet the truth was naked and clear, and when he left the house he said—

"Something MUST be done."

No sooner had the husband gone, than Mrs. Stanwood put on bonnet and shawl Her eldest child was a girl seven years and her youngest four. She asked her next door neighbor if she would take care of the children until seven. Then Mrs Stanwood locked up the house and went away. She returned at noon bringing food for her children, and then went away again. She came home again in the evening before her husband, carrying a heavy basket on her arm.

'Well Peter, she asked, after her husband had entered and sat down, 'What luck.'

'Nothing, nothing, he groaned,' I made out to get a dinner from an old chum, but could find no work.'

'And where have you been to day?'

'O—everywhere, I've been to more than a hundred places, but it is nothing but an eternal no—no—no! I am sick and tired of it.

'What have you offered to do?'

'Why I even went so far as to offer to tend a liquor store down town.'

The wife smiled.

'Now what shall we do,' uttered Peter, spasmodically.

'Why, we will eat supper first, and then talk the matter over.'

'Supper—have you got any?'

'Yes, plenty of it.'

'But you told me you had none.'

'Neither had we this morning, but I've been after work and found some.'

'You been after work? Where?' uttered the husband in surprise.

'Why first I went to Mrs. Snow's, for I knew her girl was sick, and I hoped there would be work to do. I knew her and told my story, and she set me at work at once doing her washing. She gave me food to bring to the children, and gave me three shillings when I got through.'

'What—you out washing for the butcher's wife,' said Peter, looking surprised.

'Of course I have, and earned enough to keep us through to-morrow. Oh, I have just seen Simpson, and told him just how we are situated, and offered my watch as a pledge of the payment of our rent within two months. I told him I did the business because you were away hunting for work.'

'So he's got your gold watch, Maria.'

'No—he would not take it. He said if I would become responsible for the rent, he would let it rest. Then we need not despair—for Mr Snow has engaged me to carry small packages, &c., to his customers.'

'What do you mean, Maria?'

'Just what I say. When Mr. Snow came home to dinner I was there, and asked him if he had light articles which he wished sent to his customers. He did happen to want such work done, and he promised to let me have all he could, and I am to be there in good season in the morning.

'Well, this is a pretty go. My wife turned butcher's boy. You will not do any such thing.'

'And why not?'

'Because—because—'

'Say, because it will lower me in the social scale.'

'And so it will.'

'Then is it more honorable to lie still and starve, and see one's children starve, too, than to earn honest bread by honest work. I tell you Peter, if you cannot find work, I must. Oh, give me the liberty of living on my own deserts, and the independence to be governed by my own convictions of right.'

'But my wife, only think—you carrying butcher's stuff. Why, I would sooner go and do it myself.'

'If you will go, I will stay at home and mind the children,' said she with a smile.

It was hard for Peter Stanwood, but the more he thought upon the matter the more he saw the justice of the path into which his wife had thus led him. Before he went to bed he promised to go next morning.

And Peter went. Mr. Snow greeted him warmly. The new carrier worked hard all day, and made 97 cents. It had been a day of trials, but no one sneered at him; and all his acquaintances whom he met greeted him as usual. He was far happier than when he went home the night before, for he was independent.

Next day he earned over a dollar; and thus he continued to work a week, at the end of which time he had earned five dollars and seventy-five cents, besides having paid for all the food of his family.

One day Peter had a basket of provisions to carry to Mr. Wilson, his former employer. He took the load upon his arm, started off, and just as he entered the yard met his former employer, Mr. Wilson, coming out.

'Ah, Stanwood, is this you,' he asked, kindly. 'What are you up to now?'

'I'm a regular butcher boy, sir. You see I've brought provisions for you.'

'And how long have you been doing this.'

'This is the tenth day.'

'But I suppose you find it hard?'

'Nothing seems hard so long as it is honest, and will furnish my family with bread.'

'And how much can you make a day at this?'

'Sometimes a dollar, and sometimes not over fifty cents.'

'Well look here, Stanwood, there has been a dozen of my old hands hanging round my counting-room this fortnight, wishing for work. They are stout able men. Last Saturday I took pity on Leeds, and offered him a job of doing my hand-carting a dollar and a quarter a day; and he turned up his nose and asked me not to insult him! Yet he owned that his family were suffering. But do you come to my place to-morrow and you shall have something to do if it is only to hold your bench I honor your manly independence.'

Peter grasped the old man's hand with a joyous, grateful grip, and blessed him fervently.

That night he gave Mr. Snow notice that he must quit, and on the morning he went to the bindery. For two days he had but little to do, but on the third a heavy job came in and Peter had steady work. He was happy more than ever, for he had learned two things; first, what a noble wife he had; and second, how much of resource for good he had left within his own energies.

Our simple picture has two points to its moral. One is—no man can be honored by any kind of honest labour. The second is—while you are enjoying the fruits of the present, forget not to provide for the future, for no man is so secure but that the day may come when we will want the squanderings of the past.

The Black Spot.

One day a man suddenly thought to himself, "I would like very much to eat an apple." So he went to the basket containing a large number and picked out the largest, finest-looking one among them. Seating himself again in his chair, he looked at it and said—"Who ever saw a finer apple than this! Large, red as the cheek. Not a spot or defect upon it."

By this time his knife was ready, and off came a slice large enough for a good mouthful, and lo! the whole inside of this beautiful apple was black and bitter! "Now," said he, "this is too bad! But I know that the apple did not become bad all at once. First there was a little spot in the center, and it began to work out, and out and out. By-and-by one half of the apple was spoiled, and at length it was nothing but one mass of bitterness and blackness, covered up with a beautiful skin."

Now I have sometimes seen groups of beautiful children! Such eyes, and cheeks, and such merry prattling tongues! And then I have opened the Bible, and what do you think I read there? "The heart." That is, the human heart, man's heart, woman's heart, children's hearts, all hearts. "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked." Oh, what a black spot on every heart, every heart!

"But, may be," says Hattie, "may be it will not grow any bigger." Ah! but it will It is growing bigger all the time. And what awful work it makes when it has polluted everything within!

There was once a little baby, and as he lay on his mother's knee she thought he was so beautiful and lovely! Years after I saw a most wretched-looking man. His clothes were ragged and filthy. His face was red and bloated. He could hardly walk, and as he staggered along he muttered curses and blasphemies! Oh! children, this man was that sweet little baby grown up! And the black spot did it all!

Sometime ago a man crept into the bedroom at midnight where an old man slept, and killed him! It was the black spot in the heart that was the cause.

In the prisons you may find men, women, and children. Some have been sent there for stealing, some for fighting, and others for other crimes—but the black spot is the beastly at the bottom of all!

At the swearing and the drunkenness, all the gambling and Sabbath-breaking; all the lying and cheating in the world comes from the black spot in the heart.

Yes, and all the anguish in the pit of woe among lost souls comes from the same source.

Children, that spot is in your heart. Every stone word you speak comes from it. Every act of disobedience or disrespect to your parents; all dislike of your Bible, or the Sabbath, or prayer, comes from it.

Do you want that spot to grow and grow until it covers all your heart, and pollutes all within you? If not, it must be taken away. Who can take it away? Jesus, by his Spirit. Ask him, pray to him. Give your heart to him, and he will make it pure and holy. Those who keep the spot tid they do go down among the devils; those who have it taken away go up among the angels. Whither do you wish to go?

BEGINNING RIGHT.

The new Kingdom of Italy is beginning right. A bill has been presented to the Italian Chambers by the Minister of Justice for the suppression of all religious corporations and ecclesiastical benefices throughout the Kingdom:

"Art. 1 provides that all religious corporations shall cease to exist from the moment of the promulgation of the law, and their property devolve to the State Art. 2 grants civil and political rights to all the members of the corporations thus dissolved. By Art. 3 all monks and nuns having taken the vows before the 18th of January, 1864, are entitled to a pension of 500f. each; lay brothers and sisters 250f. each; and servants sixty years old and upwards, having served at least ten years in a monastery, may receive a pension of 120f. By Arts. 5 a few monasteries are set aside for the reception of such monks and nuns as may wish to continue their monastic life; but there must not be fewer than six in one monastery. Mendicant friars may continue to ask alms under restrictions. By Art. 6 all chapters of collegiate churches, abbeys, ecclesiastical benefices not attached to parishes, lay benefices, and all brotherhoods and foundations to which an ecclesiastical service is annexed, are suppressed. Arts. 7 and 8 regulate the interests of present holders of such benefices. Art. 9 regulates the transfer of ecclesiastical property to the State. Art 10 excepts from the transfer all property liable to reversion to third parties &c., also by lay or ecclesiastical benefices in the gift of lay patrons, the property of which reverts to the patron on cessation of his paying the present holder of the benefice the annual revenue of the property, and one third of the revenue for the execution of the ecclesiastical duties attached to the benefice to the present holder's demise."

So radical a measure can be justified only on the ground that "all religious corporations" in the Kingdom are the hideous monstrous whose deeds have been the curse of the land till, at last, it opens its eyes out.—Ed. Exp.

A raw Irishman, on his first sight of a locomotive, declared it was the devil.

"No," said his companion, "it's only a steamboat hunting for water."

Wonderful Discovery.

THE BOTTOM OF PURGATORY GONE—

The Pope has made a wonderful discovery, throwing the discoveries of modern science into oblivion. His Holiness has not informed the world, so far as we have heard of the matter, but has communicated the intelligence to the Bishops, they have informed the Priests and they these matters known to the people. The discovery will create a revolution among millions of the human race, and furnish employment for tens of thousands for ages to come.

Being in the township of Albion, recently, in the immediate neighborhood of a Roman Catholic Chapel, and being informed that Bishop L. had been paying a visit to the faithful, I was led to enquire concerning the nature of the visit and other things of interest to my mind. Among the important items of intelligence gleaned, was the wonderful discovery, which we must announce, astonish the world.

Well, what is it? The bottom of purgatory is entirely gone—burnt out. The way Roman Catholics; they got their information from the priests, and as the Roman Catholic Church is infallible, consequently it must be true. But mark another thing, it must be repaired again—a new bottom put in—and an immense sum of money is required to accomplish the undertaking. That's significant!

Reader, this is not a joke or a burlesque, I am serious. The Roman Catholics of Albion, C. W., in 1865, are giving money to put a new bottom in Purgatory. And they make no secret of it.

Surely there never was such a superstition as Popery. In the latter part of the 19th century, in the midst of the meridian blaze of intelligence, such brain-addled enthusiasm is dealt out as truth! O, what darkness attends Popery!

As we are ignorant concerning such connected with Purgatory, would some of the faithful please inform us on the following points, or answer the following queries. Where is Purgatory? What are its dimensions? How and the Pope discover that the bottom was burned out? Who are the contractors, and what amount of material will it take to re-bottom it? What time will be required to complete the job? What has become of the souls who fell through when the floor gave way? What will be done with the souls of Roman Catholics who die between the wrecking and the repairing of Purgatory?—Chr. Christian Journal.

A Little Comical Nonsense.

A laugh may occasionally be enjoyed by reading right across the columns of a newspaper; subjects get mixed up sometimes in a very comical manner. Here is a specimen:—"Auction! There will be sold this day, in front of Josiah B. Ross's store, at ten o'clock, A. M., one horse, one harness, and another horse.—Also, at the same time and place—Wanted, a test case, against at the—Packing-house of Murray and King, where all kinds of—Perfumery are sold and —Sausages—Made to order and warranted to fit, or no sale. MAKE THE HOMESTEAD ATTRACTIVE.—It need not cost much money to adorn the place one lives in. Begin by digging out the briars and thistles of the door yard. Plant a few trees; then add several flowering shrubs. Perhaps that will answer for one year. Next year, make a grass walk or two, and set a few flowering plants on their sides. Your wife and daughter will now some flower seeds, if you will only prepare a neat border for them. Look at these few improvements, some bright summer next June, and we guarantee you will be glad you made them. And these labors so rewarding, will lead on to others. Fences and buildings will be kept in repair. Trees will be set out along the roadside. The house will have window-blinds, the rooms will be papered and painted, and furniture will be provided, and books and papers will not be missing. All these things will be regulated according to one's means. And, as a general rule, whatever one does it is better to make improvements by growth, from year to year, than to do them all up at once, "by the job." He who does this is the way to find the most happiness in home adorning. And, remember, the influence of such improvements does not end with the individual family. They tell silently, but with great effect, upon others. Every neighbor and every passer by is led by them, and many are led by such example to go themselves and do likewise.

PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

As is generally the case, the first sittings of Parliament are spent without doing much. Notices of bills to be introduced, and movements of copies and reports relative to other matters, are the only topic before the house up to the present. On the whole we are not likely to have a long Parliament; the opposition is not strong enough to delay the business. Some useful bills are likely to be introduced and passed—one that will be hailed with pleasure by many, is to provide for imprisoning offenders, in default of payment of fines, on conviction, for vending spirituous and manufactured liquors without license.

Mr. McDonald's Alien Bill is also a very important one, but its existence will only be one year.

A BELLICOSE PARLIAMENT.

Messrs. Blanchet and Paquet, M. P. P's, have organized a drill association of Members of both Houses, about sixty Members have joined. The Western Members are —Messrs. Walbridge, Stirton, Rymal, Thompson, McGiverin, W. Ross, J. S. Ross, MacFarlane, Bowman, Dunsford, Walsh, Parker.

It is reported that the Government will remove to Ottawa on the 1st of May next.

Attorney General Macdonald has given notice of his Alien Bill. The objects of the Bill are best given in the words of its promoter:—

Mr. John A. Macdonald asked leave to introduce a bill for the prevention and suppression of outrages on the frontier of this Province, and for other purposes.

Mr. Holton asked the Attorney-General to state generally the purport of the bill.

Mr. John A. Macdonald said the first part of the bill was to provide a check on those parties who had found an asylum in this country and some of whom had abused the hospitality and asylum afforded them, by using Canada as a base of hostile operations against the United States. For that purpose some of the provisions of the alien bill, the Imperial Act of 1848, were proposed to be introduced to confer on the Government power to give notice to certain persons who had proved themselves unworthy of the hospitality of this country by abusing it for improper purposes to remove from beyond it. There were also clauses giving additional powers as to the seizure and examination of vessels supposed to be fitted out for hostile purposes, and some of the clauses also of the Act of the United States Congress of 1838 would be included in the bill. It would be remembered that the United States then stood in precisely the same circumstances with regard to Canada as we now stood in with reference to the United States. They found at that time the law of the United States was insufficient for checking inroads into Canada, and that vessels were being fitted out to convey hostile troops into Canada Congress, accordingly passed an exceptional act to meet those circumstances to exist for a period of two years. The circumstances were now precisely the same, and he believed his honfriends opposite would agree that the present law was insufficient, and that new provisions should be enacted. Some of the clauses adopted by Congress in 1838 for our protection were now incorporated in this bill for the protection of the United States. There were also clauses providing that should there be reasonable ground to suspect parties of being engaged in the manufacture of arms, ammunition, or anything of that kind to be used for hostile purposes, these parties should be called to show what they were manufacturing these arms and ammunition for, and to prove that there were good reasons for these clauses, as the Government knew that arms had actually been in process of construction in this Province with the view of being used for hostile purposes.

THE RECIPROCITY TREATY.

The Americans are bent on doing every thing in their power to annoy us, and that at the cost of annoying themselves. They first instituted a passport system that has in a great degree cut off intercourse between us and them, to the no small disadvantage of both; next they go about abrogating the reciprocity treaty merely because they imagine they can thus spite us, for not giving up the raiders at their bidding. They themselves however are the very first to dread the result: their Press is beginning to speak out on the matter, and point out the evil consequences to themselves of their present unwise policy.

In 1863 the exports to us were.....$2,734,483
In 1862 " " " $31,213,039
In 1437 their imports were.....$337,696
In 1863 " " " $24,025,423

This whole trade will be almost cut off by the present policy, to the great disadvantage of the frontier towns of the United States, and to the inconvenience of Canadian trade. No great benefit it is urged can flow from such abrogation, while great evil is a certain consequence.

The best of feelings at present exist on our part towards our neighbors. This non-intercourse system will destroy it materially begetting a coldness and indifference that may, after a few years, end in open rupture.

For the present fifty millions of commerce are to be cut off. Intercourse withdrawn, and the jealousy that is sure to follow can have no civilizing or healthy influence on either of the parties concerned. It is to be hoped that the American people, before it is too late, will see that they are only cutting off their own nose to spite their face, in in their present policy towards Canada and Britain.

Orange County Meeting.

The annual County Meeting of the Loyal Orange Association of the County of Peterborough, will be held in the new Orange Hall, over the Telegraph office, in this town, on Tuesday next, to commence at 12 o'clock noon.

GOOD SUPPLIED DINNER.

According to notice, the Sirius under the auspices of the Good Templars of Peterborough Lodge, sailed off on Tuesday evening last. The Wesleyan Sabbath School room, which was kindly given for the occasion, was crowded. The tea was the best that could be provided. The Ladies who attended to this department deserve great praise for the manner in which they did their part. They had everything prepared that could tempt the appetite, and perfect justice was done in the demolishing line. After tea, the meeting was called to order, when W. Glover Esq., was called to the chair. The meeting was opened by the Rev. Mr. Brock, in a most impressive and appropriate prayer.

The Chairman in his opening speech alluded to the large and influential assembly as indicative of the progress of Temperance principles, and especially as indicative of the healthy state of the Good Templars in this Town. From the report of the Secretary, Mr. J. Chambers, which was short yet full and comprehensive, and which was evidently got up with great care,—we learn that during the past year the Society has prospered exceedingly. Many Temples that were almost dead, have been revived—where one hundred new Temples have been instituted. Fifteen hundred new members have been added to their number, which now amounts to fifteen thousand. In reference to the Temple in Town the following extracts will show that it is in a very healthy state. At present there is a membership of one hundred and fifty—an increase on the last year of sixty members. The finances of the Temple are also in a very prosperous state. Before reading the Report, the Rev. Mr. Brock addressed the meeting. His style was easy, free, convincing, and effective. He showed the progress of Temperance principles in the last thirty years, contrasting the present with the past. Thirty-five years ago nothing could be done without whisky, now every thing can be done without it.—Then it was a shame not to have it at births, baptisms, marriages and even funerals, burying the brains of those who attended in drunkenness as they buried the remains of their departed friends; and he concluded by saying that the Temperance movement legitimately carried on, had his warmest sympathy, and most cordial co-operation. The Rev. gentleman concluded amongst bursts of applause. The next speaker was Mr. Fairbairn whom we have never heard more happy in his remarks. His remarks related to the source of true strength in working the Temperance movements of the day. He also referred to the Temperance Act—stating that while it was not everything the Temperance men could desire, notwithstanding it was the best they have had, and was a step towards complete prohibition. He was succeeded by P. Pearce, Esq., Ex-Warden of this County, who is ever a friend of the great and good cause. He pointed out some defects in the Act, and referred to a remedy for them. He stated that the authorities whose duty it was, did not try to have the License law respected; they allowed the violations of the law to pass unpunished, and then laid the blame of its failure on Temperance men. He also spoke in favor of a County movement for Prohibition. Mr. Stratton also made a few remarks to show that if the Temperance movement was a failure because it did not effect all intended and desired, by a parity of reason everything with which man has anything to do may be declared failures. For no work to which he puts his hand fully works out all intended or desired. He urged that in the same way of reasoning it might be asserted every enterprise ought to be given up, and man fold his arms in indifference, for he could not realize all he desired. Temperance had done much and was doing much, and ought not to be given up because it had not enlisted the world under its banner. The intervals were filled up with sweet music by the Choir in connection with Friendship Temple—and this tended very much to the pleasures of the evening. Some of the pieces were deservedly encored. The whole proceedings were brought to a close by pronouncing the Benediction, when all dispersed satisfied that the whole was a great success; the best meeting of the kind yet held in Peterboro.

SOIREE AT LAKEFIELD.

The First Presbyterian Church, Lakefield, intend holding their second Anniversary Soiree on Monday, the 13th instant, at two o'clock, P. M.

Col. Strickland will preside. The speakers are Rev. Messrs. Rogers, Blain and McNamara, and Dr. Crowle, and T. M. Fairbairn, Esq'r.

Good music will be provided under the management of our well known friend Mr. Graham. Tickets can be had at Nicholls & Hall's, and T. Massie, in Town, and at Mr. Graham's store, Lakefield.

The drive to Lakefield is both short and pleasant. It is hoped, therefore, many will avail themselves of the occasion and be found there.

Orange Soiree.

The district of Cavan intend holding a grand Orange Soiree, in the Town Hall in the Village of Millbrook, Tuesday afternoon the 7th inst.

As the proceeds of the Soiree are to be appropriated to the widows and orphans Fund of the Society, we hope to see a good turn out of the Brethren from this part.

The names of some excellent speakers are announced.

The price of admission is only 25 cents.

Lakefield Bazaar.

We beg to remind our readers that the Bazaar, in aid of the Church Building Fund, will be held in the village of Lakefield, on Thursday next, the 9th instant, The various articles, useful and ornamental, will be offered for sale, on this occasion, at very moderate prices. We venture to bespeak a large attendance from Peterboro and the neighborhood.

AGRICULTURAL.

At a meeting held on the 21st of January, the following officers of the County of Peterborough Agricultural Society for 1865 were appointed:—

John Walton, Esq. President.
Jos. Walton, " 1st V President.
I. Garbutt, " 2nd V President.
J. Carnegie, " Sec. Treasurer.

DIRECTORS.

Rev. V. Clementi, J. H. Walton, Esq.
J. W. Gilmour, Esq. M. Sanderson, "
Jas. Stoddart, " W. Hahn, "
T. Birdsall, Esq.

Messrs. Christie, Burnham, and W. Ferguson, Kingston, received the nomination of the Society for the board.

FIRE! FIRE!

Fires are the order of the day: every paper brings us the intelligence of another, yes, and sometimes two or three fresh fires. The Hamilton Spectator brings us the information that the Ontario Packing House was consumed on the 26th inst., thereby destroying a large amount of property and throwing 30 men out of employment.

The following is an inventory of the stock consumed:—

4,000 Hogs, salted and dressed,	$70,000
200 Bbls. unpacked Pork,	6,000
200 Bbls. Mess Pork,	4,000
50 Tierces Grease,	1,000
20 Boxes Bacon	900
150 Tubs Lard,	675
80 " " unrendered,	200
	$82,775

Together with several thousand hams, barrels, tubs, &c. Total loss, $120,000. Insured for $40,000. $20,000 in Phenix, $20,000 in Provincial.

The building was insured for $4000; $2000 in the Royal and Phenix each.

And all this supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

AGAIN.

Buffalo is visited and $500,000 worth of property consumed and three men lost their lives.

London has had its several fires. St. Catharines has come in for a share in the conflagration. Kingston has suffered; besides the numerous other fires of less note, and less destruction of property.

A large fire at Sanforth, loss $11000, insured $4000; two fires in the county of Oxford; loss, $2000 to $4000.

What leads to so many fires? Why is it that there are so many more fires now than formerly? Searching inquiries should be made into every fire: this, we think, would tend to stop them.

The Burley Case.

On Friday four Judges: the Chief Justice of the Queens Bench, the Chief Justice of the Court of Common pleas, and two puisine Judges gave judgment in the Burley case, sustaining the decision of Recorder Duggan. That so many Judges have aggreed on the main points, there can remain little doubt concerning the matter. From their decision it would appear that Burley's offence comes within the Extradition treaty, he is once to be rendered up to take his trial before a United States court. The charge is robbery. The high standing of those Legal Judges who have given their decision in the matter will no doubt satisfy all that the judgment is according to law, and the delay will tend to give renewed assurance of the fairness of our manner of dealing with persons arraigned, affording them opportunity of defending themselves that none may be found guilty or acquitted without full and satisfactory investigation. The delay will further show the American people that no threat nor action of theirs can either intimidate, or influence Canadian Courts, as justice and equity are the best foundations for national and individual safety. But one, of the whole party of twenty five, who were engaged in the Philo Parsons affair, has been arrested, and in all probability he will de dealt very severely with.

HAMILTON ELECTION

The writ for the city election is issued, and several candidates spoken of. Among these is, Mr. Bridges, but the Hamilton Times thinks the Tories are not prepared to bring forward a candidate. The following we clip from that paper:—

TORYDOM DEFUNCT.—The Constitutionals are snuffed out. After days of agony, they, yesterday evening, gave their last kick. They called aloud for some man with a long purse to come to their aid, but a man with a long purse came not, so they disconsolately died. There was not in all Toryism to be found one who would feed the hungry orphans with the gilded dross called gold, and they resided up the ghost—dying from financial starvation. We think Toryism will now know its real strength in Hamilton. So long as they had at their head one like Mr. Buchanan, whom they could bleed at pleasure, they grew fat. Now that the long purse is removed, they rot away. Bury the corrupt carcase, while we, even with divided ranks, triumphantly elevate the banner of Reform over the city once thought the stronghold of Toryism.

Melodeons and Cottage Organs.

Our enterprising Townsman, Jos. R. Walton, Esq., advertises for sale Melodeons and Cottage Organs of the best make, and possessing the sweetest tone, with a variety and power that the best judges declare unequalled by any instruments of the kind they have heard. The instruments for which Mr. Walton is agent have improvements in structure and combination of power, with a beautiful Harmonia Attachment, and manual subbass which causes them to be greatly admired and praised. Besides purchasing from an individual in Respectable standing, and at home with us, ensures the purchaser that he may expect everything satisfactory and according to announcement. Mr. Walton has done business in this Town for several years, and always in the most honorable and satisfactory manner. Intending purchasers would do well to patronize him. There are also the certificates of well known citizens attached that will serve as a guarantee that the Cottage Organ and Melodeon will give satisfaction.

AMERICAN NEWS.

No news of importance since our last. Wilmington is the centre of interest just now. General Grant is waiting to meet Gen Sherman. Sheridan has been with Grant, it is said, and some of Gen. Thomas's force have moved to aid in the East. Charleston, it is thought is too strong to be attacked from the land side and it has proved the same from sea. Blockade running at Wilmington is over, but the place is not yet taken. Peace is doubtful yet. Blair's mission does yet bear much fruit. The Passport system is likely to be revoked, as it effects nothing unless expense and trouble.

MESSRS. HOPKINS & DONNELLY announce their readiness to supply every thing in the Saddlery and Harness line, at greatly reduced prices, for ready pay. It would be well for intending purchasers to give them a call.

HAMILTON ELECTION.—The writ for this election has been received. The nomination will take place on Friday, the 10th instant, and the polling, if a poll be demanded, on the 17th and 18th inst.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—Several communications have been crowded out this week. They will appear in our next issue.

Proceedings of County Council.

Thursday, 26th January, 1865.

The Council met this morning as per adjournment: all the members present, viz:—Robt. D. Rogers, Warden: and Messrs. Austin, Birdsall, Carnegie, Christie, Graves, Garbutt, Gallaway, Gilmour, Ingram, Miller, Pearce, Prather, Peck, Sullivan, and Walton.

The minutes of previous day's proceedings were read and adopted.

A motion of Mr. Graves's, to appoint a County Superintendent of Schools, was lost; the yeas being, Messrs. Pearce, Gallaway, Austin, Peck, Birdsall and Graves.—6. The nays, Messrs. Prather, Carnegie, Ingram, Miller, Gilmour, Christie, Walton and Garbutt,—8.

The Local Superintendents were appointed as follows, viz:—

Rev. M. A. Reeve, for the Townships of Asphodel, Belmont and Dummer. Rev. F. Andrews, Otonabee. Rev. S. Roberts, Smith and Monaghan. Dr. Poole, Douro and Ennismore. Rev. M. Short, Dysart, &c.

The Clerk was instructed to furnish the new Municipality of Burleigh, Anstruther, &c., with a new seal and the necessary minutes, books, and other things necessary for the new Council.

Certain plans of the waters of Mississauga, and form of Certificate relating thereto, which were deposited with the Clerk, by Mr. Scott, of Peterboro', were submitted to the Council and filed.

A By Law to confirm a certain By Law of the Municipal Council of Smith and Harvey, to dispose of certain original allowances for roads, was read and passed.

A communication from Mr. McCann, Head Master of the Deaf, Dumb and Blind Institution, at Hamilton, was referred to the Committee on Finance and Assessment.

The Report of the Committee on Roads and Bridges was received and adopted.

Messrs. Pearce, Grover, Birdsall, Garbutt, Walton, Gilmour, Ingram and Carnegie were appointed a Committee to report on the desirableness of making any alterations or amendments in the Municipal or Assessment Laws now in force, pursuant to a circular to that intent: said report to be transmitted to the Clerk of the House of Assembly.

A By Law was passed confirming the award made between the Town of Peterboro' and the County. The following is the award:—

The Town to pay the County the sum of $1,643.41 for the expenses of the administration of justice. Of this sum $235.41 is a set off from the Town as interest due from the County on $3682.67, which was the amount of the interest of the Town in the County buildings. The arbitrators could only go back two years, at which time the seperation from Victoria was effected.

The Committee appointed to erect the new Jail reported: the Report is as follows:

The Committee appointed to superintend the erection of the new Jail, beg leave to report:—

That the Jail is now completed, together with the Walls, Yards, &c., the levelling of the Yards, and the putting in a necessary tank has added largely to the extra work, and that there was no extra work undertaken until ordered or suggested by the Inspector of prisons, and that notwithstanding a large bill of extra work, the whole has been completed for a less sum than a tender for the Jail alone, that was urged upon this Committee, and less than the estimate, (and satisfactory.)

And the contract was for.....$12,854 00
Extra work allowed.....1,449 73

$13,623 73

Your committee, are pleased to state, that they have settled with the contractor for the extra work without trouble, and find due him $2,711 86.

Your committee cannot close this report without expressing great satisfaction at the manner with which the contractor has conducted the work, and in bringing it to completion at such an early date, and also to bear testimony to the attention paid by your Engineer, Mr. Nicholl.

All of which &c.

P. M. GROVER,
Chairman.

Committee Room, Jan. 24, 1865.

A motion to grant the sum of $400, to aid in erecting a proposed new Bridge at the narrows across the river Trent, in addition to the sum already granted, was lost.—Yeas, 6. Nays, 9.

On motion of Mr. Carnegie, an advance of $700 was directed to be paid to Robert Grant, on account of the money due him by the County for the construction of the new Jail.

In discussion on the report of the Committee on appointments, it was moved in amendment, to place the name of Wm. Sargent in the room of John S. Benson, as Inspector of Weights and Measures, but the amendment was lost.

The sum of $350 was ordered to be paid to Mr. T. Clementi, on account of his survey of Harvey.

The Council then adjourned to 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Friday, Jan. 27th, 1865.

The Council met according to adjournment: All the members present.

The minutes of previous day were read and approved.

It was agreed that uniform seals should be procured for the different Municipalities, similar to the one procured for Burleigh, and each Municipality charged with the cost, viz: $5.66.

A new seal for the County was also adopted.

Mr. Garbutt was appointed Commissioner to expend the sum of twenty dollars on the Boundary line, between the Township of Smith and the Town of Peterboro'.

A memorial to His Excellency the Governor General, on the subject of the waters of the Otonabee river, between the Little Lake, at Peterboro', and Beatborn Lake, was read and signed.

The Report of Committee on Printing was received and adopted.

The Council then adjourned to 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Saturday, Jan. 28th, 1865.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment: the Warden in the chair: all the members present.

The minutes of previous day were read and approved.

The Warden and Treasurer were instructed to negotiate a loan for such a sum of money as they think necessary, to meet the liabilities of the present year.

It was moved by Mr. Sullivan, seconded by Mr. Birdsall, that a memorial be forwarded to the Governor General, by this Council, praying for assistance to aid the Municipalities in erecting a Bridge across Chemong Lake.

The time for collecting the taxes of 1864 was extended to the 1st of April.

WANTED, A CANDIDATE.—Torydom in Hamilton is in a quandary. The Constitutional Association is at its wits end (no great distance to travel) to find some one willing to run in its interest for the representation of the city. Nightly caucuses and daily street-corner deliberations are wearing the members of that important body to mere shadows. Most some enthusiastic Conservative rush to the rescue, and sacrifice himself and his purse to the good of the constitutionals?—Times.

PERSONAL.—It is with pleasure we learn that W. Rutledge, Jr. Esq., has been appointed Passport Agent for this Town.

THE ALIEN BILL.

The following is a summary of the Bill introduced by Attorney General Macdonald, intituled "An Act for the prevention and suppression of outrages in violation of the peace on the frontier of this Province."

The preamble sets forth:—"Whereas it is expedient to provide for the due security of the peace and tranquility of this Province by temporary enactment, therefore Her Majesty, &c., enacts."

The first two clauses read as follows:—

1st. Where and as often as the Governor at this Province shall have reason to believe, upon information given to him or to the Secretary of the Province, in writing, by any person subscribing his or her name and address thereto, that the due preservation of the peace and tranquility of this Province is in its expedient to require therefrom any alien or aliens who may be in this Province, or who may hereafter arrive therein, it shall be lawful for the Governor, by order under his hand to be published in the Canada Gazette, to direct that any such alien or aliens who may be within this Province, or who may hereafter arrive therein, shall depart this Province within a time limited in such order; and if any such alien shall knowingly and wilfully refuse or neglect to pay due obedience to such order, or shall be found in this Province contrary to such order after such publication thereof as aforesaid, and after the expiration of the time limited in such order, it shall be lawful for the Governor, or for any Justice of the Peace, to cause every such alien to be arrested and to be committed to the common gaol of the county, district or place where he or she shall be so arrested, there to remain without bail or main prize until he or she shall be taken in charge for the purpose of being sent out of the Province under the authority hereinafter given.

2nd. Every such alien, knowingly and wilfully refusing or neglecting to pay due obedience to any such order as aforesaid, shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and on being convicted thereof shall, at the discretion of the Court, be adjudged to suffer imprisonment for any time not exceeding one month, for the first offence, and not exceeding twelve months for the second and any subsequent offence.

Clause 3rd provides for any alien, who does not depart within the time specified, being conveyed out of the Province by warrant of the Governor. It provides also that where any such alien, not having been convicted as aforesaid, shall allege any reason why the order should not be enforced, it shall be lawful for the Governor in Council to judge of the sufficiency of such reason and to allow or disallow the same, either absolutely or in such condition as he shall think fit. The clause also provides that, when the alien is in custody, with the view of being removed from the Province, and alleges reason why the order should not be enforced, the execution of the warrant for his removal shall be suspended until the matter is finally determined by the Governor in Council, and that the Governor shall cause to be delivered to such alien in writing a summary of the matters alleged against him, and allow him reasonable time to prepare for his defence, and it shall be lawful for such alien to summon and examine witness upon oath before the Governor in Council, and to be heard before them personally or by counsel.

Clause 4th provides as follows:—In every case in which power is given by this Act to commit any alien to gaol without bail or main-prize, it shall be lawful for any Justice of any of Her Majesty's Superior Courts in this Province, if upon application made he shall see sufficient cause, to admit such person to bail, he or she giving sufficient security for his or her appearance to answer the matters alleged against him or her.

Clause 5th provides that, when any alien committed to remain in charge for the purpose of being sent out of the Province is not sent out within one month after such commitment, or within one month after the opening of the St. Lawrence navigation, any of the Judges of the Superior Courts, any Police Magistrate or Recorder, any two Justices of the Peace, or any Judge of the Sessions in Lower Canada, may on application by the person so committed consider the case, and order him to be discharged or to be continued in custody, according to his discretion.

Clause 6th provides as follows: If any person shall within this Province begin or set on foot, or prepare the means for; or shall engage, aid, or assist in the beginning or setting on foot or in the providing or preparing the means for any military expedition, raid, or enterprize, to be carried on from thence against the territory of any foreign State, or against the lives, liberties or properties of any one or more of the inhabitants of any territory or dominions of any foreign State with whom Her Majesty is at peace, every person so offending shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour, and on conviction thereof shall be fined in a sum not exceeding three thousand dollars, and imprisoned for a term not exceeding three years.

Clauses 7th and 8th authorize the seizure and detention of any vessel, arms or munitions of war, when the circumstances render it probable that they are to be employed for hostile purposes against any foreign State with which her Majesty is at peace. Authority to make such seizure is given to any Sheriff, Collector of Customs, County Attorney Police Magistrate, Recorder, Judge of Sessions in Lower Canada, any field officer or captain of Her Majesty's service, or of the Volunteer Militia, or of the Service Militia being at the time in actual service, or any other persons specially empowered by the Government for that purpose.

Clause 9th provides that any officer other than a Police Magistrate, Recorder, Judge of Sessions in Lower Canada, making such seizure, shall apply with due dilligence for a warrant to justify the detention of the property thus seized. If no such warrant is issued within ten days after the seizure the property seized shall be restored to its owner.

Clause 10th gives juriadiction to the Superior Circuit and County Courts to try the claim of the owner of the property so seized, for its restoration. In Upper Canada, all issues of fact in such cases shall be decided by a jury.

Clause 11th provides that while the case is pending, the owner may have his property restored, on giving bonds for double its value, that it shall not be used on any military expedition, raid, &c.

Clause 12 provides that the vessel may be laid in any county or district in the Provinces.

Clause 13th provides for the issue of warrants to visit suspected places, and to search for and seize arms, munitions, &c., on information upon oath that it is believed they are intended to be used for hostile purposes.

Clause 14th provides the manner in which owners of property so seized shall proceed in claiming restoration of such property.

Clause 15th provides that nothing in the Act shall be construed to interfere with any law in force in this Province respecting the writ of habeas corpus.

Clause 16th and 17th define what shall be considered arms and munitions of war.

Clause 18th provides that the Act shall continue in force for one year from the passing thereof, and until the end of the then next session of Parliament.

To the Ratepayers of the Town of Peterborough.

"Let the gulled jade wince,
Our withers unwrung."

The above couplet of the poet never received a stronger confirmation of its truth than is furnished in the fly-sheet addressed to you by "A Practical Temperance Man," on the subject of the By Law to prohibit licensed Grog Shops. I need hardly point out to you that his assumed name, as well as his profession of Temperance principles, are all intended to lead you to wrong conclusions, by endeavouring to make you believe that he is very candid and honest in his intentions.—He not deceived—he is neither one nor the other; his interests are bound up in the Grog business, and, like the Ephesian God maker, his craft is in danger. But let me divest him a little. He says that he is such a strong temperance man and holds the use and traffic of intoxicating liquors in such abhorrence that he would destroy it root and branch. All truth: he would not do anything of the kind; or else why is he so anxious to prevent the passage of the Dunkin By Law,—surely half a loaf is better than no bread. The Legislature very properly with to test the people on this question and if the people say no license, their representation in parliament will soon follow with prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors.—Again, he says that the only effect of the passage of the law would be to close the respectable houses, and thus prevent the farmers and business men from coming to town to transact business. Now it is certainly no compliment to say that the farmers cannot do their trading without purchasing intoxicating liquor, and that in order to gratify their low desires for rum we must have so many places to accommodate them. But the insinuation is false: the stanch, noble-hearted farmers of Smith, Otonabee, Asphodel, Monaghan and Cavan, have declared by their votes that they neither want grog for themselves nor will they allow such demoralizing sinks of iniquity to exist in their Townships. All honor to them. But admitting that the farmers do require places to stop at, could they not be accomodated without intoxicating liquor? Could not the money spent in that which destroys both body and soul be spent in purchasing wholesome food? Could we not have Coffee and Eating Houses with all the necessary accommodations for travellers, teams, &c.? Certainly we could, and it is an insult to farmers and travellers to say that they require Grog shops to exist for their use while the tremendous evils of the liquor traffic meet them at every step. But Mr. Practical is interested directly in the sale of liquor himself, and in order to hide his supreme selfishness he wishes to play the taxation dodge, an old dodge, often tried with you by parties who wish to serve themselves and advance their own purposes, and he has the unblushing assurance to insult your intelligence by stating that if you were to vote no license, your taxes would be increased 8d. in the £. Now Mr. Practical is advised by a member of the Finance Committee and he knew when he wrote that he was affirming a falsehood: it would not require one half that amount to raise $2,000. But he tells you nothing about the $600 that is paid to the Mayor for attending the police court, to try cases, eight out of every ten, arising out of this very Licensed Liquor Traffic.—He did not tell you about the cost of the New Lock-up, several hundred dollars, to confine the poor wretches made drunk by law, by the very men the town select for that purpose. He did not tell you that the Chief Constable's salary, $400 yearly, is paid almost exclusively for picking up out of the gutter those legally made drunkards. He did not put in the scale against his $2,000, the amount paid out of the taxes to widows and orphans, the suffering and helpless victims of the Rum traffic. He did not tell you about the $1,600 paid by the Town to the County, in two years, for the administration of justice, two thirds of which amount is for the maintenance and support of those poor desolate wretches who cannot pay the fine and expenses for getting drunk. He did not point out to you the scenes of vice and immorality springing from the same source, the young men that crowd our guilded Saloons and fashionable Hotels, who are taking lessons nightly in gambling with money perhaps not their own. He entirely overlooked the immense loss to the legitimate business of the Town, by the numerous half fed, half clad and idle, desolate families, made so by Grog. Oh no, these were too small items to be seen through the distorted vision of Mr. Practical, he only thinks of diminished sales from his respectable calling; and in order to secure the spoils for a little longer he wishes you to continue partners in this horrible business. But I much mistake the character of the virtuous, moral, christian Ratepayers of Peterboro', if, when the proper time comes, you do not teach this bogus temperance Grog Champion that you don't weigh the bodies and souls, and happiness of your fellow townsmen in the scale of dollars and cents. Mr. Practical may also rest quite easy in his mind about the consistency of temperance men, for I can assure him that, whatever may be their faults, they can walk the streets with a clear conscience. They never shrink from the gaze of the desolate widow or starving, ragged orphan, whose husband or father was murdered by rum, according to law. Their hands are clear from the blood or unlawful gains of the Heaven defying traffic. They may also be very obtuse, but they have hitherto failed to discover any difference between a man ruined with liquor in a fashionable Hotel or at the lowest groggery, if there is any difference at all it is against the so called Respectable Houses, for their victims are generally of a class whose mothers and wives are susceptible of a deeper wound. I would also tell him that though the temperance men have been cheated out of the law by official dodging this time, twelve months will bring them the opportunity again: and in view of the certain passage of the Dunkin Law I would give him the following passage from Gods Divine Law: "Woe unto him that giveth his neighbour drink, that puttest thy bottle to him and makest him drunken also," and if that and similar passages sufficiently purify his moral perceptions, the Good Templars may then have compassion on him, if he washes his hands of the bad business, and admit him within the pure atmosphere of the Temple.

THE FIRST SHOT.

THE ARREST OF CAPTAIN BELL.—The following from the New York Commercial Advertiser raises the presumption that Captain Bell was abducted from Canada. The capture of three other Confederate officers appears to have taken place in the same manner:—The detectives employed by General Dix to ferret out the incendiaries engaged in the attempt to burn this city have been quietly at work for several weeks, and have at length succeeded in arresting Captain Bell, a rebel officer, and three other men, against whom there is said to be an abundance of proof. Bell was found flourishing at a fashionable Canadian hotel, under the pseudonym of Baker; but unluckily for him, there were loyal citizens of the United States at his elbow who knew him too well, and they contrived a plan to get him over the line, and then, dissemblance being necessary, they revealed their knowledge, and delivered him into the hands of detective Young and his assistant.

MELANCHOLY SUICIDE.—We regret to learn that the wife of Mr. John Copeland, 10th con. of Smith, came to an untimely end on Wednesday last. It appears that several months Mrs. Copeland has been labouring under mental aberation, and required almost constant watching. On Wednesday her husband had occasion to go from home and left his neice a little girl 10 or 12 years of age to look after his wife. During the day the unfortunate woman took an axe, and struck the girl a severe blow on the head. The girl as best she could, proceded to a neighbor's house to procure assistance; but on returning with help, the unfortunate woman was found head first in the well. She was immediately taken out, but life was extinct. This melancholy occurrence has cast a gloom over the neighbourhood.—Lindsay Post.

Accommodate the Loiter.

(From the Scottish American.)

A strange, evidently connected train of notion, was just passed lately in the week which was [illegible] to convey the impression that Great Britain was about to make preparations for the contingencies of a war with this country. The story was that thirty gunboats, manned by 3,500 trained seamen, were to be sent to the Lakes with the opening of navigation. The report found ready credence in all the circles here known to be Confederate in their sympathies. But other and sensible people, who are either neutral or supporters of the Federal Union, found no difficulty in throwing discredit upon the story at once. In the first place, there is nothing at all hostile in the mere act of terminating the treaty under which the number of war vessels maintained by both powers was limited. It was simply a precautionary measure, forced, as we think, upon the Government of this country by the daring outrages of persons calling themselves Confederate naval officers, but being in reality nothing more nor less than so many pirates, concerned, first of all, in securing as much plunder, and eager, next to that, to embroil Great Britain and the United States in war.

That the Washington Government should take prompt and decisive measures against this class of outlaws, was, we think, altogether reasonable and proper. Had Great Britain been at war with any European Power, and pirates, professing to act in the interest of that Power, had been found preying upon the lake commerce of the Provinces, the [illegible] Government would have terminated this treaty much more promptly than the American Executive has done. The trouble is not about the right-fulness or the expediency of putting American cruisers on the Lakes while this war continues, but about the expense which it may throw upon the Provincial Government, to bear its share in maintaining even a small force of cruisers on its own side of the Lakes. Even if but half a dozen gunboats are necessary for this, the Provinces will be expected to bear their share of the burden. And this, taken in connection with the large outlay already incurred by sending volunteers to the frontier, is no trifling matter.

Who, then, is to blame? certainly not the Washington Government. Certainly not the British or the Provincial Government. The blame lies primarily with the Confederate fugitives that have been skulking in Canada since the beginning of the war, and with a small class of Provincial snobs who think it a mighty fine thing to be praising everything Confederate and to sneer at everything Yankee. The latter class has busied itself with localizing every species of adventurer who calls himself a Southerner. The consequences has been that hundreds of the veriest ragamuffins have been able to sponge upon their Provincial acquaintances for months and months, and when this resource fails they have taken to piracy on the Lakes, or to robbing and plundering banks on the land. These are the ways and means by which things have been brought to their present pass between the two countries. It is open, of course, to Canadians, or to people of any other country, to show their sympathies with the brave people of the Southern States. But they have a duty which ought to take precedence over all others. It is to see that they are not themselves in this war. If they neglect this most essential duty, their conduct becomes at once foolish and criminal to a degree that must make them the scorn of the world.

Murder in Ottawa.

Yesterday morning constable Morrison, of Ottawa City, arrested two men named Richard Foxley, and John Nicholson, who reside in Ramsay, on a charge of beating one Richard Greenhill, on the 14th of the present month, in Ottawa City.

It appears so far as we can learn, that Nicholson, Foxley, Greenhill, and another man, went into a saloon to play cards for oysters, and in playing the game a dispute arose, when Foxley struck Greenhill; but Greenhill being the strongest man, got the better of Foxley, and told him to keep quiet. The affair then cooled off, and Foxley and Nicholson left the saloon, and repaired to the Hotel of J. H. Mosbrie. After a short time Greenhill and his companion followed, and the dispute was renewed. Foxley again struck Greenhill, and the blow was returned by Greenhill, when Mosbrie interfered and had Greenhill ejected from the house. Foxley also went out, and with a club and the assistance of Mosbrie's men, beat Greenhill, breaking one of his legs and knocking one of his ankles out of joint. Greenhill was removed to the hospital, where he suffered from the effects of the beating till Tuesday last, when he was attacked with lock-jaw, and expired on Thursday morning.

Greenhill is said to have been a respectable young Englishman, who has resided in this country but a short time. He leaves a wife, who is only eighteen years of age, and a child, in destitute circumstances, to mourn his untimely end.

The prisoners, in charge of constable's Morrison and Patterson, were conveyed to Ottawa yesterday morning to undergo an examination.

THE PASSPORT SYSTEM.

Our special Quebec correspondent telegraphs that intelligence of the rescinding of the passport order, so far as Canada is concerned, has been received from Washington. The news will be welcomed throughout the country. At the same time we trust there is no truth in the statement put forth by the American press, that this act of the Washington Cabinet is the result of a stipulation made by our Government, that Judge Coursol should be dismissed, and that the $50,000 taken by the St. Albans raiders should be restored. To interfere with the independence of the judiciary, and to do so in a bargain with a foreign Government, would be to level a deadly blow at the liberties of the country. As to the payment of the $50,000, it could not properly be made the subject of a bargain between two Governments; since the right to claim it would depend upon a judicial decision not yet given. If

MELODEON
AND
COTTAGE ORGAN EMPORIUM,
PETERBORO, C.W.

Estey's Perfect Melodeon
AND
COTTAGE ORGAN.
ESTABLISHED 1864.
FORMERLY ESTEY & GREEN.

The only Manufactory in this Country of the Perfect Melodeon and Cottage Organ with Patent Bass Damper, Patent Harmonic Attachment, and Patent Manual Sub-Bass.

These inimitable Instruments have won their way to public confidence purely on their merits, and not by force of extensive advertising and purchased recommendations. With our increased facilities for manufacture, we are still unable to meet the extraordinary demand made upon us; but we hope soon to be able to fill all orders promptly.

Some of the points of superiority claimed for our Instruments, are these:—

1st.—Smooth, tendy and pipe-like quality of tone.

2nd.—Great delicacy of touch and promptness of action; producing, when desired, a low, sweet, flute-like tone, unequalled by any other instrument of the class.

3d.—The Patent Bass Damper, which enables the performer to swell the treble without increasing the volume of the bass; or, by drawing the Stop, to swell the notes by the action of the foot.

4th.—The Patent Harmonic Attachment. An ingenious octave coupler, which doubles the power of the instrument without increasing its size or the number of reeds.

5th.—The Patent Manual Sub-Bass, which are played with the ordinary keys and controlled by a stop. This new and valuable invention requires no extra room and serves as a substitute for the Pedal Bass, and can be used by an ordinary performer.

6th.—The Knee-Stop, in the Cottage Organ, which swells or diminishes the tone by a slight movement of the left knee, without interfering with the action of the feet,—having this advantage over the Automatic Swell that the volume of tone may be readily increased without extraordinary effort, and diminished without waiting for the change in the actions of the bellows.

Our recently constructed Cottage Organ, without the attachments, is unsurpassed by any Reed Organ or Harmonium of the size: but, with the Harmonic Attachment and Manual sub-bass, it is pronounced by competent judges to be far superior to any other instrument of the class in the world. Its power, sweetness, and variety of tone, simplicity of construction and ease of management, recommend it to every one as being all that is claimed for it, both for the parlor and the church.

The Harmonic Organ, for Churches and Public Halls, has a fine, powerful Pedal Bass, with independent reeds; and, with the Harmonic Attachment, is believed to be the most powerful Reed Organ made, being nearly equal to a pipe organ of three times its cost.

All our Instruments are made in the most thorough manner, and warranted in every respect

Rev. A. C. Rose, of Troy, N.Y. says:—Those give the value of five Melodeons in one. The ease of touch and promptness of action are unrivalled. It can be played with all the sweetness of the lute or Æolian harp, and changed in an instant to its full power, nearly equal to a twelve stop organ.

All orders addressed to the undersigned will receive prompt attention.

TESTIMONIALS.

JAMES BROWN, Esq., M. D.
Peterboro, October 20th, 1864.

I am happy to inform you that after the most persevering and testing trial for some weeks of the Cottage and Parlor Organ, we like it better every day. It is remarkable for variety of tone and power, and several of the best judges here say it is unequalled by any instrument of the kind (with double reed) they have ever heard. You can so control and command all its parts, as to pass easily and rapidly from the softest tones of the Harp, Lute or Piano, to the rich full swell of a large Organ. It is easily played by child or adult, and is already a very great favorite with us. Its compact structure, ingenious combination of power with the sweet and beautiful Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-base are greatly admired and are highly creditable to the maker, Estey, of Vermont. I think it is peculiarly adapted for Church Music.

EDW. F. CROWLE, A. M. &c.
Sheridan Villa Seminary, Peterboro, Dec. 1864.

We are delighted with the Cottage Organ with Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-bass. We prefer it to any instrument of the kind we have ever seen; its tone, sweet and harmonious in the parlor, possesses sufficient power for a church.

Rev. J. C. SLATER.
Wesleyan Parsonage, Millbrook, Jan. 1865.

I have much pleasure in testifying my entire satisfaction of the Cabinet Organ, purchased from you, as an instrument possessing superior qualities in sweetness, variety and strength, to anything of the kind I have ever seen. Two experienced musicians who have examined it, concur with me in recommending it as a perfect instrument adapted to Church or Parlor.

Geo. A. NOBLE, M. D., Recording Steward of the Wesleyan Church, Omemee.
Omemee, July, 1864.

In reply to your inquiries as to the Harmonic Organ, purchased from you for our church, we have to express our highest satisfaction; in purity and sweetness of tone as well as volume of sound, it is all that can be reasonably expected.

Peterborough, Dec. 20th, 1864.

MR. J. R. WALTON.—Having examined and played upon the Parlor Organs sold by you, and Manufactured by Mr. Estey. I have great pleasure in pronouncing them a first class instrument, The Harmonic attachment and manual Sub-base being a very great improvement and well worthy the patronage of the Musical public. Yours truly,
A. T. HEATHFIELD,
Organist of St. John's Church,
Peterborough.

HERB DOCTOR,
FROM LONDON, ENGLAND,

IS now in Peterboro' performing his most Astonishing Cures, as usual.

The mercurial Quacks may prate and gabble,
With Latin names for every nostrum;
But Morris' Herbs excels such rabble,
He explains their virtues from his rostrum.

He is well known o'er Canada,
In every City, Town, and Village;
He'll effect a cure for half the pay
Charged by those Quacks who live by pillage

To those afflicted with RHEUMATISM try Dr. Morris' justly celebrated

Electric Invigorating Fluid,

for dispelling Rheumatic and other pains that may afflict the human system, internal or external.

He doth see such Balms as have no strife,
With nature or the laws of life:
With mercury his name he'll never stain,
Nor poison men for sake of gain.

Our Father whose all goodness fills,
Provides the means to cure all ills;
The simple herbs beneath our feet,
Well used, relieve our pains complete.

The Invigorating Fluid acts upon the system like electricity, giving relief instantly, in almost every case. PRICE PER BOTTLE, according to size, from 25 cents to One Dollar.

If you are afflicted with Rheumatic pains, Cramps, Colics, and such painful broad, Caused by exposure to cold and rains, Try Morris' Invigorating Fluid.

For COUGHS, COLDS, and all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, use Dr. Morris'

Cough Drops,

They will be found a never-failing remedy for the above complaints.

If you should take a severe cold,
Returning from the walks and hops,
Go where the medicine is sold,
Enquire for Morris' Cough Drops.

To those afflicted with Liver and Billious complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sick and Nervous Head-ache, Costiveness, Weak and Disordered Stomach, &c., &c., try

DR. MORRIS' WORLD-RENOWNED

DANDELION PILLS

For Renovating the Blood, Correcting and Strengthening the Liver and Bowels, the Dandelion Pills have no equal.

If you feel nervous, with spirits low,
Discord'red system, and other ills,
Take a few d'a adries and straight you'll go,
For Morris' Dandelion Pills.

WORMS! WORMS! WORMS!

If you would expel those monsters from your dear children, try a box of Dr. Morris'

WORM DESTROYER.

If you have a son or daughter dear,
And the monstrous worms annoy her,
There's relief at hand, dry off that tear,
Get Morris' Worm destroyer

Dr. Morris can furnish reliable testimonials from some of the most respectable inhabitants of Peterboro' and other Towns and Cities of Canada West. For Testimonials see his Pamphlets The above medicines can be obtained at PROFF. MORRIS' BOTANIC LABORATORY, Simcoe Street, nearly opposite Phelans Hotel, Peterborough.

Dr. Morris invariably treats with success diseases of a secret nature.

The Latest Popular Nonsense.

The following highly elegant and intellectual production is said to be the "very latest" in London. It is sung, whistled, danced, hummed and grunted by everybody old enough to quit:

A HORRIBLE TALE.

O! it's a horrible tale I'm going to tell,
Of a sad misfortune that befell
A family that once resided
In the very saddest street that I did.

O! life such a horrible tale,
It's sure to make your cheeks turn pale
Your eyes will weep and you'll be over-run;
Wiggidy, waggidy, wiggidy, wum.

They never saw any company,
They a highly respectable family,
Till each grew gaunt, spider and spidery,
And each was single if the other's shadow.

They pulled down the blinds to keep out the light
Till everything was dark as night;
And as they were determined on suicide,
I'll tell you the manner they opportunely died in.

One day as the father in the garden did walk,
He cut his throat with a piece of chalk;
The mother ate coal to her life did put
By hanging herself in the water butt.

The youngest daughter on bended knees,
She poisoned herself with toasted cheese;
The youngest son, a determined fellow,
Blew out his brains with an old umbrella.

The gasfitter came in and saw the blood,
He ran himself through with a piece of rhubarb;
His wife saw the sight and it turned her savage,
She burned herself to death with a red pickled cabbage.

The old cow sat, as he sat by the fire,
Bit a piece off the fender and then did expire;
The flies on the ceiling, their case was the worst,
For they blew themselves up with spontaneous combustion.

The old cow in the old cow shed
Took up the pitchfork and knocked off her head;
The little donkey hearing the row,
Knocked out his brains with the head of the cow.

O! it's such a horrible tale,
It's sure to make your cheeks turn pale,
Your eyes with tears will be over-run;
Wiggidy, waggidy, wiggidy, wum.

Varieties.

SCOTCH BAILIES.

'That's a sad affair,' remarked a townsman to a bailie in a western burgh; 'W——G——, has committed suicide.' 'Was on? asked the magistrate. A bailie of the Scottish capital has been on a visit to London and on his return, dilated to a friend on the courtesy and attention which he had experienced from one of the city members. Describing how the M. P. had procured free access for him to many of the public institutions, he reached the climax of eulogy by saying:—'Why sir he got me a blank cartredge for every place in London.' Probably the magistrate meant carte blanche. A bailie of Cupar Fife was possessed of far more shrewdness than these we have enumerated.—Two boys were brought before him charged with trespass within the enclosures of Crauford Priory. The prosecutor was the factor of the late eccentric Mary Lindsay Crauford

The bailie having ascertained that one of the youths was a drummer from Edinburgh Castle, and that the other belonged to a guardship at Leith, gave each a shilling and told them to go home—one to his castle, and the other to his cabin. And now, said the magistrate addressing the factor, 'you may tell Lady Mary that I have sent one of the delinquents aboard a man-o-war, and the other to be a sodger.'

A Dundee magistrate, of penurious habits, was rallied by a friend on the shabbiness of his attire. 'Hoots, man,' said the Bailie, 'it's nae matter; everybody kens me here.' The same friend afterwards met him in London, when his dress was equally exceptionable. 'As plain as ever, Bailie!' was the salutation. 'Hoots, man, was the magistrate's ready response, nobody kens me here.' One of the bailies of S—— was entertaining a friend at supper in one of the principal hotels. He complained to the waiter of inferior quality of some cheese which was produced, and asked whether Stilton cheese was kept in the house. 'It is, said the waiter; but the master has told me to put it down only to gentlemen!' There was no insult intended.

A Glasgow magistrate, noted for the simplicity of his manners on the bench, was one day sitting, when a case of serious assault was brought forward by the public prosecutor. Struck by the powerful phraseology of the indictment, the Bailie proceeded to say: 'For this malicious crime, you are fined half a guinea.' The assessor remarked that the case had not yet been proved. 'Then,' said the magistrate, 'we'll just make the fine five shillings.

How to Settle Disputes.

A cross-grained surley man, too crooked by nature to keep still, went over one morning to his neighbour, Mr. F, a remarkably cool, calm, non-resistant, and addressed him thus;—'That piece of fence over there (pointing in a certain direction) is mine, and you shan't have it.'

'Why,' replied Mr. F., 'you must be mistaken, I think.'

'No, no; it's mine and I shall keep it.'

'Well,' said neighbour F., 'suppose we leave it to any lawyer you shall choose F

'I won't leave it to any lawyer,' said the other.

'Well,' continued Mr. F., 'shall we have it to any four men in the village that you shall select?'

'No. I shall have the fence.'

Not at all discomposed, Mr. F. said:—'Well, neighbour, then I will leave it to you whom the fence belongs to, whether you or myself.'

Struck dumb by this appeal, the wrathy man turned away, convicted by his own consciences, saying, 'I won't have anything to do with a man that won't contend for his rights.'

Mr. F. has often remarked, he never could wish for a more kind neighbor than this man proved afterwards. He never alluded to the fence or the conversation.—Witness.

Affectionate intercourse with the young is a considerable help against the too rapid incursion of old age; a gentleman of my acquaintance is accustomed to reject the saying of a distinguished sage,—'If You would avoid growing old associate with the young,' assigning as a reason that the old are so apt to increase their care and each others infirmities by talking them over, while the cheerfulness of the young will do something to redress the failing spirits of our declining years. There is sense and wisdom in the rule then suggested.

In support of the above statements, are presented the Certificates of Dr. Jas. R. Chilton, Chemist, New York; Dr. Hiram Cox, Chemical Inspector, Ohio; Dr. James R. Nichols, Chemist, Boston; Dr. N. E. Jones, Chemical Inspector Circleville, Ohio; Prof. C. T. Jackson, Chemist, Boston; Dr. Chas. Upham Shepard, Charleston, S. C.; and J. V. Z. Blaney, and G. A. Marjner, Consulting Chemists, Chicago, all of whom have analyzed the Catawba Brandy, and commend it in the highest terms, for medical use.

Analysis of the Massachusetts State Assayer, Jan. 25, 1858.

When evaporated through clean linen it left no oil or adhesive matter. In every respect it is a pure spirituous liquor. The oil which gives to this Brandy its flavor and aroma, is fusil, or grain oil. Its order partakes of both the fruit and oil of grapes. With acids, it produces ethers of a high fragrance. The substitution of the Brandy for Cognac Brandy will do away with the manufacture of fictitious spirits, sold under this name both at home and abroad. Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M.D., Assayer to State Mass., 16 Boylston St.

By the same, in 1864.

I have analyzed "L. LYONS' PURE CATAWBA BRANDY," with reference to its composition and character, being the same as that produced in past years. A sample taken from ten casks afforded the same result with regard to purity; a slightly increased amount of the principle on which its flavor depends was determined by comparison with former samples.

The indication of analysis show that this Brandy is produced by the same process as most of the imported Brandy. Respectfully,

A. A. HAQES, M. D., State Assayer, Boston July 20, 1864. 16 Boylston St

A. DAVIDSON PARKER, Secretary for Canada.

ATTENTION is directed to the rate of premiums adopted by this Company, which will compare favorably with that of any other institution in Canada. Investments of Company's funds to the large amount of nearly five hundred thousand dollars have been completed in Canada; and as all business transactions are finally disposed of in the Province, the Scottish Provincial offers all the facilities presented by a purely local Company, while it possesses the additional advantage of a large capital, and an influential and responsible body of shareholders in Great Britain.

Policies effected on or before 31st January next will receive a full year's bonus over those effected thereafter.

Agricultural.

Cutting, Steaming and Steeping Fodder.

The present prices of hay and all kinds of coarse fodder as well as roots and grain, lead farmers to consider willingly all means to save food. We give elsewhere some hints on the saving which warm stables will effect, and there may be also a great saving in food if it be put in a more digestable and assimilable form than if fed in its natural state. The labour of commanducating the food to the animals if it be done by mastication; nevertheless, it is not well to reduce it as fine as to do away with the necessity of chewing thoroughly. If the food of cattle be as fine and pulpy as to pass into the digesting stomachs, not being retained in the first stomach, and subsequently chewed as cud, the digestive system of the animal is interfered with, and diseases ensues, as in the case with cows in the swill-milk stables. However, there is no such danger except where some food similar to the still-slops is used and fed without a proper amount of hay or straw. There is a decided gain in simply cutting up the hay and corn fodder, and wetting it with less water than it will absorb in 10 or 12 hours. Salting it slightly and sprinkling it with a small quantity of meal, or bran, make it still more relishable, and even the bats of corn stalks thus prepared are eaten very clean. If the mixture be all-wood to stand till it heats somewhat, it is still more relished, and goes still further. The value of corn fodder is seen when treated in some such way. In our opinion and that of many discreet farmers, it is worth as much for cattle food as the common hay—not quite so much as prime timothy, or first rate hay of mixed grasses. A still further appreciation in the value of fodder, of almost all kinds, will be observed when it is cooked. This is most readily done by steaming and for this purpose the most convenient way is to have a boghead or other tight containing vessel hung on trunnions or otherwise hung by the middle, so that it may be turned over like a bell, or to one side when it is to be emptied. When the fodder is put in, with perhaps a small quantity of water, a jet of steam let into it, and carried to the bottom by a pipe, will rapidly cook the entire mass, and often a good deal more than the vessel will hold at first. The boiler may be kept at a distance from the stalls, so far that there will be no danger from the fire. There are several excellent agricultural steam boilers; some of the best were at the recent fairs, and one has been lately advertised in the Agriculturist.

Sheltering Cattle Saves Fodder.

A certain amount of food is craved by a healthy beast, even if it do little labor and is kept comfortably warm all the time. The appetites of different animals vary considerably; and some animals are more easily kept in good condition than others, when in health and under the same circumstances. These facts fall under the daily observation of all farmers. The temperature of the animal body is always much warmer than the surrounding atmosphere, except a few hours at a time in the heat of summer. It requires a considerable consumption of food to maintain this heat, and the colder the air, the more heat-producing food is eaten by the animal as a natural consequence. If it can not get all that it needs, its system must nevertheless keep up its temperature, and this is done first at the expense of the fat, and afterward of other parts of the body. The animal grows thin, and can endure far less labor or exposure than if well fed. Work causes a similar increased consumption of food to supply the waste of the muscle which is worn by the labor. To secure the greatest advantage from a certain amount of food, animals should be sheltered, and the warmer their stables are, the less they will eat. The question to be considered is: How warm may they be kept consistently with health? Fresh air is a necessity to keep cattle and horses, and they will do well in very warm stables if there be good ventilation. The same is true of hogs. Sheep, on the contrary, will not do well if kept very warm. They demand a much freer ventilation, if maintained in good health. When shut up simply for rapid fattening, they feed better and fatten faster if their pens are airy; but when kept for breeding, it is essential that they have but little more than thorough shed protection from the storms and high winds. Statements in regard to cooked food and its great advantage over uncooked for most classes of stock, are to a very limited extent applicable to sheep. They need open air, not (exposure to storms) and plenty of good food.

Practical Jokes Played by a Horse.

Though many curious tricks and mischievous but harmless capers have been played by horses within our own knowledge, yet it is hard to give credence to the following anecdote from an English paper: "There was (some years ago) a very fine horse in the possession of Henry Meux & Co., the eminent brewers, used as a dray horse, but so tractable that he was left sometimes without any restraint to walk about the yard, and return to the stable, according to his fancy. In the yard there were also a few pigs of peculiar breed, fed on grain and corn, and to these pigs the horse had evidently an insuperable objection. There was a deep trough in the yard holding water for the horses, where this horse went often taking his mouth full of corn. When he reached the trough, he let the corn fall near it on the ground, and when the young swine approached it (for the old ones kept aloof), he would suddenly seize one of them by the tail, pop him into the trough, and then caper about the yard, seemingly delighted with the frolic. The noise of the pig soon brought the men to his assistance, who knew from experience what was the matter, while the horse indulged in all sorts of antics, to show his glee and then returned quietly to his stable."

PLUM PUDDING.—Contributed to the American Agriculturist by E. S. Thomas, Kent Co., Md.: Mix 2 cups flour, 1½ teaspoonfuls cream of tartar, 2 cups sour milk, ½ teaspoonful soda, 1 cup raisins, 1 of dried currants, ½ teaspoonful each of cinnamon, and cloves, ½ cup each of molasses and sugar. Boil about 1½ hours and serve with butter.

SPONGE GRIDDLE CAKE.—Contributed to the American Agriculturist by Jennie Adams Clinton Co., O.: Take one quart of mush, while warm add one pint of buttermilk one of sweet milk or water, one teaspoonful of soda, stir in flour until it is a batter, let it rise until morning, then bake on the griddle, serve while still hot.

PATIENCE.—Nothing teaches patience like Nature. You may go around and watch the opening buds from day to day, but each takes its own time, and you can not urge it on faster.

The Persians, an ancient writers inform us, used to teach their sons to ride, pay their debts, and to tell the truth. This was a long time ago.

A HINT TO THE WORTHY CITIZENS OF CANADA.

BE WARNED IN TIME.

ALL parties purchasing my Pills and Ointment for their several complaints are respectfully warned against purchasing either Pills or Ointment purporting to be my preparations, that have a United States Stamp around the Boxes and Pots. There is no Treaty between the people of the States and the Home Government, therefore an United States Stamp does not protect my preparations. There are no stamps upon my Canadian style of Pills or Ointment, coming from the United States. I rely only for protection on the water mark in book of directions around each Box or Pot. Before you purchase them, see that there are no U. S. Stamps upon the Box of Pills or Ointment. Purchase none that have United States Stamps on.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!

CAN BE FOUND IN

Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF

Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER SHAPE internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been addduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the RADIX or seed of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs UPON THE BLOOD ITSELF, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a specific safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable curative. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hæmorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Low-ness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venral Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

Keep as genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

☞ Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 63 cents, and $1 45 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 23

TRUE RICHES.

Some little folks went out to tea,
At 60, Milner Square,
And buns and cake, and marmalade
Adorned the table there.

They sipped their tea from tiny cups
Of China, white and gold,
And some a dozen times were filled,
So little did they hold!

And Polly put the sugar in,
And Lucy poured the milk;
And puss sat with them in a chair,
With skin as soft as silk.

Said Carry Ritchie, as they laughed
And talked that happy night—
"You haven't seen my necklace yet,
With golden locket bright!

"I never all my whole life long,
Have felt so rich before;
My grandma says she really thinks
It cost three pounds or more."

"I don't call that so very rich!"
Tall Kitty Fuller cried;
"I have a handsome diamond ring,
Aunt left me when she died."

Cried Minnie, "I've a lovely seal
Of white cornelian—set
In solid gold; but dear papa
Won't let me wear it yet."

Said laughing Jane, "I've more than all!
My good luck I may thank:
I think I've nearly twenty pounds
Within the Savings-bank."

Then spoke the lady of the house—
"Be wealthy as you will,
If you have nothing more to boast,
Ann Grey is richer still!"

Amazed, the widow's child they eyed,
In mourning dressed so plain;
Without a trinket in the world
Of which she might be vain.

"My dears," the lady said (and smiled
To see sweet Annie start),
"True riches are no gems and gold,
But Christ's love in the heart."

LOVE AND GENIUS.

One evening Lord St. Asaph drove out after the opera to a villa at Brompton, called Roseville. He had been invited to a champagne supper by his friend, the Duke of D——, who that evening put into possession of this very vital piece furniture, and all, as the auctioneers have it, the celebrated danseuse, Mlle. Augustine. The supper was brilliant, as such meetings in society where the men are high bred and the women beautiful and unscrupulous always are; and it was almost daylight before Mlle. Augustine, looking haggard and pale, politely dismissed her guests.

Lord St. Asaph was a young man of fashion and fortune: yet was he unused to such banquetings, and the style of party to which he had been this night had somewhat confused his mind. The carriages of all the guests were in waiting. Lord St. Asaph's cab among the rest; but as he emerged from the heated room the cool night air felt so refreshing that Lord St. Asaph resolved to go on foot, and so, dismissing his groom, and wishing his friends good night, proceeded leisurely on his way. He was about six miles from Carlton Gardens, but each step he took seemed to clear his brain invigorate his frame. Besides, the little settlement of Brompton is especially lovely, and on this quiet summer night the little cottages, with their luxuriant flower gardens, had a most picturesque appearance. Lord St. Asaph inhaled the perfume of the flowers and enjoyed the stillness of the hour, perhaps the only quiet one in the twenty-four in busy, toiling, Babylonic London. On he went, pausing by with admiring gaze the elegant villas for which this neighborhood is renowned—the residences of artists, actors, authors, all famous, of course, as plainly shown by the luxury surrounding them, till at last, as advancing nearer to London streets, he came to a row of little, mean, two story cottages, redeemed only from a squalid look by the little gardens in front in which nature, with flower and vine, strove to give elegance to poverty.

As he proceeded in front of these little, quiet, dark abodes, his attention was attracted by a brilliant light issuing from the lower room of one of these cottages, and stopping in front of the garden he leaned over the low paling and gazed in at the window. It had been thrown open and he could clearly see the whole of the small room thus disclosed. It was poorly furnished; there was no carpet on the floor, a special mark of poverty in England, but on the large table in the center was a brilliant parcel lamp that shed its rays on two persons seated at it, and diligently bending over prints they appeared to be coloring. One of the persons was a woman, past middle age, with a suffering, sorrowful but refined look in her pale face; the other was a lovely young creature all freshness and brightness, looking, with her golden hair all tangled and tossed around her, like Aurora impatiently waiting to dispell the night. This somewhat obsolete figure occurred to St Asaph owing to the champagne he had imbibed which far from obscuring his faculties, had made them poetical and bright. He gazed earnestly, and with profound pity and admiration at the scene before him, soliquizing thus to himself:

'Here have these poor women been working all night, beautiful both, refined that is even at a glance, and virtuous, or, alas, they might have commanded the luxuries I have just left. How unjust is fate how cruel the world! Why the expense lavished on this night's fete would suffice to make these women happy for a year. Augustine has won her wealth by a paltry talent and depravity; these women, alone probably, in the world virtuous, have resisted temptation (for that falls in the way of all) toil on here through the silent hours of night to gain a scanty pittance, exposed to all sorts of humiliations and privations; and how we lavish our wealth, and how little we think!'

At this juncture Lord St. Asaph's meditations were interrupted by a voice from one of the ladies on whom he was gazing. It was the youngest who spoke, and spoke in most excellent Parisian French.

Throwing herself back in the chair, and stretching out her arms in a graceful, languid, attitude, she exclaimed:

'Mother! Mother! I must go to bed, I can see the pictures no more; I am painting pink eyes and bringing the mouths from ear to ear; here is Napole a with green hair. Oh! mother, I must go to bed.'

'Ursule, my poor child,' replied the mother in the same language, 'I should have had more thought for you than this; I forgot that you have not suffered and endured as I have; that you have not learned as I have to watch through the long hours of the night. Yes you must go to bed.'

'No, I am selfish. I must finish this batch of lithographs; I forgot the rent to-morrow—the inexorable rent—that must be paid, for I could not live in those crowded, streets, and this little cottage is a treasure for it keeps us out of the world—that dreadful world.'

As she spoke those last words, throwing back her hair she wearily took up her paint brush and began to work.

St. Asaph's heart beat quick at this, nay his heart was filled with remorse, reflecting on the reckless extravagance in which he had been brought up.

Gazing a few minutes on the picture of toil before him, Lord St. Asaph turned away, and retracing his steps to the corner, and read the name of the row in which the cottage was situated—then proceeded slowly along he contrived to read the number of the door, and gave one last look at the lovely, patient faces bending over their wearing work.

The next day, about noon, Lord St Asaph had discovered that the tenants of the little cottage were foreigners; French of course, for to every Englishman a foreigner is French. He had found out that they were proud, by which he concluded that they did not gossip among the neighbours and that they were very poor, by which he concluded they did not dress as well as Brompton etiquette required. St. Asaph also ascertained that these two poor women had no debts and received no visitors. After this information he hesitated no longer, but making up a roulleau of 50 guineas, he directed it to Mme. Laroche as the lady was called, and sent the money to her.

Like all men used to riches, he forgot to calculate on the poverty of others. It was Mme. Laroche herself who opened the door. A few adroit questions to the servant and Mme. Laroche had discovered what St. Asaph had desired to have concealed. Mme Laroche quietly rolled up the money and bid the servant return it to his master.

But St. Asaph was not thus to be foiled; he took a desperate resolve. He proceeded to Brompton with a whole collection of lithographs in his hand, and introduced himself at once to the two women who interested him.

As he had suspected they were women of refinement and education, too proud to accept favors, and proud of being able to work for their independence.

St. Asaph, by his deferential and kind manner, at once won their confidence; he repeated his visits, and in a few weeks took the rank as friend, Thea Mme. Laroche told her story.

Her husband an artist had at andoned his family, to follow a woman who had ruined him, and who, forsaking him for another, had left him to die of misery and despair, away from all friends and the forgiveness of his wife, which awaited him, and which might have saved his life. As it was, in a moment of utter despondency a pistol terminated his existence.

Overcome by the disgrace almost without resources Mme. Laroche had fled from the pity of her friends to England, where by the means of her daughters talents and her own she hoped to gain at least a livelihood. Ursule possessed talent which her father had cultivated, and at the age of sixteen was able to distinguish herself in the humble art of colouring photographs.

'But,' said Mme. Laroche, Ursule is capable of better things if we were not forced to work for our daily bread; but the loss of her talent is not my greatest sorrow, Lord St. Asaph; I have not many months to live, and she will then be alone.'

'Not now alone for she has a friend. You believe in me do you not!

'Yes.'

'Then trust me altogether, take from me sufficient for present necessity, and allow Ursule to cultivate her talents so as to become ultimately qualified to attain independence.'

'If I had health, or the prospect of living but a few years, I would not consent, but as it is, never forget when I am gone how I trusted you; I accept your aid.'

Some five years after this conversation a French artist of renown arrived at London to dispose of some pictures he had painted on the Crimean war.

The first great picture dealer to whom he was introduced in the course of a conversation upon art in general, mentioned the name of Karoche.'

'We have here in London a daughter of his who follows her father's profession.

'Indeed! What, little Ursule?

'Yes.'

'Can you give me her address? Why, I danced her on my knee.'

Mrs. Crosby, the picture dealer, gave Mallet the address, and, as the latter left the establishment, he proceeded to find out little Ursule, as he called her.

It was in Brompton still that Ursule lived. But no longer in the little humble cottage. Ursule inhabited one of the most beautiful villas in the whole neighborhood, and the artist after going up the smooth gravel walk, paused in front of the marble portico, wondering whether he had not been deceived by some similarity of name.

'They were so poor, and that is only five or six years ago. Do artists make such rapid fortunes in England?'

But all his doubts were dispelled when a beautiful, elegant woman rushed from a conservatory along the drawing room into which he had been introduced, and fell into his arms.

'Dear papa Mallet,' exclaimed Ursule in her still voice, but pretty Parisian accent, 'oh! I have not forgotten you.'

'You are my little Ursule; but oh! well, I mean't pay compliments. So, Ursule, you are an artist?'

'Yes, and so successful. I make two thousand pounds a year.

'Fifty thousand francs, oh? I have a better idea of the English than I ever had.'

'Oh, it is very easy to earn money here. Mr. Crosby, a picture dealer, buys all my pictures as soon as they are painted. This house is mine, and I have money in the bank. Do you want any?'

'You are your father's child, I see; so; but I want to see your pictures.'

Mallet and Ursule went to the Studio, and as he gazed on Ursule's pictures, he began to have wonderful ideas of what his own works would realize.

'Really,' said he, little Ursule is lucky, for she is but a crude scholar, though there is talent to make an artist some years hence.'

'Oh!' said Ursule, 'I am so delighted! here is Lord St. Asaph; I'm so glad.'

'Who is he?'

'My friend, my only friend and benefactor.'

Mallet's ideas of the friend and benefactor of a young girl were somewhat confounded when he saw an elegant and handsome man of about thirty-two enter the room, and, after spending an hour with him and his Ursule, and partaking of their English luncheon, the French painter walked back to London in a most puzzled mood.

That evening he went to the opera. He was soon surrounded by a circle of friends, foreigners, settled in London society. He gazed around the house with curiosity, continually asking questions, when all at once he spied leaning over the chair of a young and fashionable woman, Lord St. Asaph.

'Ah!' said he turning to his friend, 'tell me something about Lord St. Asaph.'

'Ah! Lord St. Asaph is one of our most brilliant men, a distinguished orator. He is very rich and is about to marry Miss Stephens there, the daughter of the railroad contractor, whose fortune is, of course, enormous.'

'Oh! he is about to be married.'

'Yes but for all that he has one of the prettiest and most fascinating mistresses in the world, by the way, a country-woman of yours, Ursule Laroche.'

Mallet dropped his opera-glass. His vague suspicions were confined, Yet Ursule had looked so good and innocent.

The daughter of his old friend and comrade, a young and unprotected girl; his blood began to boil, and he resolved to call St. Asaph to an atonement.

His first visit next day was to Crosby.

'Monsieur,' said he 'speak to me with the frankness of a man and an artist. 'What is Ursule Laroche's position with regard to St. Asaph?'

'What a question. Why all London could answer it, for all London knows it; she is his mistress, to be sure.

'But she says that she makes a fortune by her pictures.'

'Bah! I never sold one in my life.'

'Yet you buy them all?'

'Yes; but Lord St. Asaph pays for them all; it is by his commands that I buy them.'

'So that Ursule thinks she earns the money.'

'Yes.'

'Then,' said Mallet, 'all London may be wrong, and Ursule right after all.

To Brompton he wended his way; it was a difficult task he was about to undertake, but when he remembered the reports of St. Asaph's marriage, and thought of little Ursule as he had seen her on her dead father's knee, his courage returned.

As he entered Ursule's drawing room he heard high words, and as he advanced she advanced towards him. Her cheek was flushed, her nostril was dilated, her lip quivering, as grasping, Mallet's arm she turned towards a gentleman who stood somewhat embarrassed and startled, at the other end of the room.

'What is the matter?' said Mallet.

'That man has insulted me—me a young girl, who, but for you, would be without a protector.'

'Sir,' said Mallet, with all the impetuosity of a Frenchman, 'you shall answer to me.'

'My dear sir I will answer to any one, only I will first know what for. My name is Arthur Trevellyan; I admire Mlle. Laroche, and I made her a handsome offer.'

'An offer?'

'Yes, of my fortune and protection.'

'A cowardly insult.'

'She has accepted both from my friend St. Asaph for years.'

'It's a lie!' exclaimed Ursule.

'Thank heaven for that word, Ursule, for it gives me the power to save you before all the world.'

'Lord Arthur, begone. I scorn to speak to you, this Lord St. Asaph shall account for this, and shall atone for it.'

Lord Arthur took up his hat and departed; and Ursule falling on a sofa burst into tears.

'Tell me the truth,' said Mallet, taking her hand.

'The truth! I am the truth,' exclaimed Ursule; 'I am what I ought to be—a pure guiltless girl. Lord St. Asaph is my patron, was my mother's friend; first gave me the means to attain independence; never by word or hint has he forfeited his claim to my esteem. Oh, it is a cruel, wicked world.'

'It is alike everywhere, I see,' said Mallet; 'but my child, St. Asaph has deceived you. It is he that has bought all your pictures; you owe all to him alone.'

Ursule gave one long look of misery, then uttering a cry, fell back fainting.

At this juncture Lord St. Asaph entered the room.

'My Lord,' said Mallet seeing him by the hand and dragging him towards the sofa where Ursule lay, 'behold your victim.'

'My victim!'

'Yes the world, thinks her your mistress.'

'My poor pure Ursule'

'Do you love her?'

'More than my life—but—'

'Nothing can prevent you atoning—no obstacle.'

'Ursule shall herself be the judge,' said he 'yesterday I would not have hesitated an instant in making her my wife to day—'

'What to-day? yesterday you were engaged to be married.'

'Yes an old contract made by my father who, owed in former years, the preservation of his estate to M. Stephens.

'That contract must be broken though she is rich and Ursule poor.'

'Yesterday it should have been broken, but to-day—but Ursule should be judge. To-day M. Stephens is ruined—a bankrupt, disgraced, flying to the continent.

'You cannot desert his daughter now,' said Ursule, starting pale and rigid; 'no St. Asaph, you have been the soul of honour to me; you have respected the young girl confided to your care. I love you, you shall be the only love of my life, and you shall remember me to your dying day. I owe you a debt of gratitude and thus I repay it by renouncing you—Mary Stephens shall be your wife. I—I will return to France with Papa Mallet, and live for art and the memories of the past.

Lord St. Asaph took her in his arms, pressed her for one moment to his heart, then rushed from the room.

The world answered profoundly the honour and devotion of Lord St. Asaph when it was found he kept his contract with the daughter of the ruined banker.

Ursule Laroche is in Paris, a daughter to Mons. and Mme. Mallet; admiration and love surrounded her—for love and sorrow have changed talent into genius, and genius holds now, all her breast.

RUM BOTTLES OUTLAWED.

The following case tried in the Quarter Sessions of Berks County Pa., is thus reported by the Reading Gazette:—

"A wife indicated her husband for assault and battery under these circumstances:—They were returning home from Market,—the husband provided with a 'pocket pistol,' well loaded, and took from it sundry "swigs," until he became "shot." The wife remonstrated earnestly against such conduct, which aroused the anger of her lord and he commenced abusing her; whereupon she seized the rum bottle and threw it out on the road. For this the brute of a husband beat her.

Judge Jones charged the jury that the wife's act of breaking the bottle did not justify her husband in striking her; that although a wife had no right to destroy the good and chattles of a husband, a rum bottle is an exception; that a wife was perfectly justified in seizing her husband's rum bottle whenever she could lay hands on it; and that in this instance the defendant did no more than a sensible woman ought to have done. The jury rendered a verdict according to this sound opinion. Rum bottles may therefore from this date, be considered without the pale of the law's protection.

How to Make Catsup.

Large quantities of tomatoes, cucumbers, peaches, plums, etc, received at New-York market, sometimes remain unsold until too much decayed to be disposed of as vegetables or fruit, but they are not thrown away as worthless. Parties are ready to buy them at a cheap rate for making catsup, and immense quantities of such produce are used in manufacturing much of this article on sale in the stores. Better fruit will give a better article; but knowledge of the above fact may enable some to turn to account much that would otherwise be lost. —In making catsup the main requisite is to incorporate the pulp with spices or vinegar.

TOMATO CATSUP, which is most used, may be well made as follows; select perfectly ripe sound fruit, cut in slices, and boil until the pulp is cooked soft. Rub it through a seive to take out the skins and seeds, and replace it in the kettle for cooking. To each gallon of pulp add three tablespoonfuls each of salt, ground pepper, and mustard, and one of ground allspice, Enclose four large sweet peppers, and two or three garlics, or one large onion in a small bag, and boil in the catsup. The garlic or onion may be omitted if the flavour is not relished. Cook it until of the right consistence. It should be just thick enough to run slowly from a bottle. When cool, pour it into bottles, cover them with a bit of cotton cloth tied on the neck, and leave it three months to ripen; then cork and seal.

GRAPE CATSUP.—Place grapes in a kettle surrounded with boiling water. To each quart allow a teaspoonfull of broken cinnamon, one of mace, and a half teaspoonful of cloves. Let it simmer over water one hour. Strain the juice and pulp, add to each quart a pound of sugar, and then boil again until reduced to nearly a jelly. Then to proper consistence with vinegar, bottle, cork and seal.

A Jerseyman was ill, and was not expected to recover. His friends got around his bed, and one of them says: "John, do you feel willing to die?" John made no effort to give his views on the subject, and answered with his feeble voice: "I—think I'd rather stay—where—I'm better acquainted."

COTTAGE PUDDING.—One egg; 1 tablespoon sugar; 1 tablespoon sour cream; 1 cup sweet milk; 2 teaspoons cream of tartar; 1 teaspoon of soda; 1 pint of flour. Bake half an hour. Serve with any sauce. Sweetened cream is good.

For every vice or virtue a man exhibits, he gets ratty gets credit or discredit for a whole brood.

A Friend in need is a knock neal Quaker; a friend indeed is a very good fellow.

PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

On Monday, at half-past three o'clock, His Excellency gave his assent to the Union Bill. At this hill is only for one year we cannot see that it is at all likely to be a great injury, no quiet law-abiding individual, should it be otherwise, will receive any trouble from it; it will only to restrain those who would if possible embroil us with the United States at the present time.

Mr. Campbell resumed the debate on the Confederation Scheme urging the House to accept of it, in its entirety, as he believe the whole work of the conference would be useless. Not that result of the Conference is in everything satisfactory, but that it is the best that could be agreed on by all the delegates.

Attorney General Macdonald spoke two hours and a half in favor of the whole scheme. He remarked that the scheme was not a new one. That the Finance Minister, some years ago, had advocated a similar measure. He remarked that at the time the present Government was formed, it was through the influence of the Hon. Geo. Brown that the present satisfactory state of the matter was brought about. If some combination had not been formed, the business of the country would very soon have come to a dead lock; and of the result of the combination was the resolution before the House. The weakness of the Provinces in their isolated state every one felt, and the Delegates had unanimously agreed that the interests of the Provinces could best be promoted by Confederating the whole British American Colonies. He remarked that there were three remedies that could have, been applied to the embarrassed state of the Canadian Government. The first was dissolution of the Union of Upper and Lower Canada. The second remedy was Representation by Population, which Lower Canada so stoutly resisted. The third remedy was a union of the Provinces either Federal or Legislative. Mr. Macdonald expressed himself in favor of Legislative Union, but the Conference agreed on Federal Union, and he had to forgo his predelictions for the benefit of the whole. He also urged the acceptance of the result of the Conference lest by delaying the union, might be delayed indefinitely. He took up the whole subject of Confederation, dealing with the whole as it presented itself to the conference. The name of the Confederation is to be left to her Majesty.

SAD ACCIDENT.

We regret to have to chronicle the death of Mrs. T. Summerville, of Port Hope, who met with her death at the Grand Trunk Station, on Saturday last. No person saw her at the time of the accident, nor was it known till the cars had left, when she was found lying near the Tank House, with her thigh broken in several places, and her abdomen greatly mangled. Some Dr. whose name we cannot now recall amputated the leg, first below the knee, afterwards he removed the knee also, and this without removing her to any shelter save where she was found. She only survived a few hours, and was buried on Tuesday last.

The Cobourg Sun says "a vote on the Prohibitory clause of Dunkin's Temperance act is to be taken in the town of Peterboro, on the 22nd and 23rd instant". We may inform the Sun and our readers that owing to some informality in the requisitions in some way connected with its publication, the vote cannot be taken this time. The license system will then have another year yet in Peterboro. We only ask that the License Law may be duly respected.

LECTURE.—It is with more than ordinary pleasure we announce that J. McCarroll, Esq., better known as "Terry Finnegan," will deliver a lecture to night in the Victoria Hall. Subject, "The House that Jack built." We predict a full House, as Mr. McCarroll's name is enough to ensure a large audience.

By the late fire at Savannah, 100 buildings were destroyed, about 20 persons killed and a number wounded. Among the houses consumed was one in which a number of shells were stored, the explosion of which kept up a bombardment for about two hours, causing the wildest alarm.

According to the report of the Commissioners, there are 9,632 families in the city of Detroit. Estimating 7 persons to a family, this will give a population of 67,42[illegible]. The population by the last census, taken nearly a year ago, was 53,320.

The following gentlemen were appointed Directors of the Cobourg and Peterborough Railway, on the 6th inst., G. S. Dainty, Dr. J. Beatty, P. McCallum, D. Blain, Hon. G. S. Boulton, J. H. Dumble and A. Fraser, Esq.

CHANCERY COURT.—The first Chancery Court for Peterboro will be held on Friday the 26th day of May, under the Hon. Vice Chancellor Mowat.

A man by the name of Thomas Carley, was fined two dollars and costs on Monday last, in Toronto, for cursing the Queen, it served him right.

Col. Haultain and the Hon. Billa Flint will accept our thanks for Parliamentary papers which have been sent to this office.

CRUELTY.—The return match between the Peterboro and Keene Curling Clubs, takes place to-day at the Village of Keene.

An order in Council has passed for the removal of the seat of Government to Ottawa in May next.

The Detroit Free Press states that Bailey will be tried by the United States Courts for that city.

LECTURE ON FLAX CULTURE.

R. Walker, Esq., as announced, delivered a most satisfactory and able Lecture on the above subject, on Tuesday night, in the Town Hall. The old complaint of a small audience may again be chronicled. We noticed, however, the most prominent agriculturists of the neighborhood there, some farmers being there from the neighborhood of Lakefield.

Jno. Walton, Esq., President of the County Agricultural Society, occupied the chair.

We are sorry that we were too late to hear the excellent.

The Lecturer gave a description of the plant in growing and coming to maturity—stated that both 1½ to 2 bushels of seed were sown to the acre, thin sowing not producing so good a fibre as when a reasonable quantity of seed is used. The product per acre he calculated at from two to three tons (straw and seed). The seed would be found to average about 12 bushels to the acre—the straw about 2 tons. The soil best adapted to flax growth would, he mentioned, be good soils in the vicinity of water, as flax required moisture, yet land that retained moisture would injure the growth. He remarked, that although flax produced best when grown in rich soil, that it did not require to be manured for the crop, as much manure injured the quality of the fibre. The Canadian climate and soil, he remarked, suited the plant very well, as it was very hardy, growing as far north as the 65th parallel, north latitude, while it also flourished in the neighborhood of the tropics.

Experience had also proved that the culture of flax can be made pay, as several in Western Canada had tried and found it as remunerative as any other crop, if not more so. The benefits resulting from the introduction of the flax manufacture, he considered would be very great, as even the small growth of 500 acres in any locality would produce a return of several thousand dollars. The average value of the crop being about $28 per acre, exclusive of price of labour.

Machinery for bruising and scutching, he thought could be erected for a large section of country, for about $800, which with barns for containing the straw, after steeping or rotting and spreading, would be all that would be necessary till the fibre was ready for market. The principal obstacle in the way, he thought, was the absence of any parties to purchase the material from the farmer and attend to the steeping and dressing, but he also thought that companies could be formed for the purpose, and most likely would be formed as soon as the amount of crop raised would warrant the undertaking of any steps towards forming a trade in flax. The Lecturer also thought that Government should do something in aiding to introduce the culture of the flax crop, as it would be an advantage to the whole country, in view of any deficiency in cotton, which might reasonably be predicted as soon as slave labour could not be obtained, which in all probability was now about to be abolished. He further showed that no just grounds, for fear of producing an over-stock of the article, might be anticipated, as the demand was very great and was likely to continue so.

The Lecture was one of the best we have heard delivered here, and exhibited great care in the preparation. It was received with every mark of attention and approbation by the audience. At the close Mr. Isaac Gardiner, of Cavan, made a few very sensible remarks on the wisdom of introducing the culture of Flax in this section of the country. He remarked that he had erected a Mill for breaking and scutching, at Millbrook, and was prepared to both purchase and manufacture, for sale, all the flax that would be raised in the neighborhood of Cavan for some time to come. Mr. Gardiner said that he had already purchased eight acres of flax this season, at the rate of about $30 per acre, at which rates it paid as well as any other crop, and would also remunerate him for his trouble. Mr. Gardiner has also on hand about 80 bushels of seed, and is desirous of obtaining more, of the best quality, so that farmers may have it in their power to try the experiment at least. And if farmers will take the advice of Mr. Walker, and sow small quantities—say two to four or five acres at first, until they understand the management of it—there can be no great loss, and there may be considerable gain; we would recommend a trial. They cannot lose more than is often lost by their wheat failing—the produce of an acre or two.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The Annual meeting of members of the St. George's Society was held on the 18th of January ult., at the Huffman House.

In the absence of the President, Col. Strickland; J. M. Burns, Esq., 1st Vice President, was requested to take the chair.

The report of the past year was read by the Secretary, showing the total number of members to be 40.

The relief granted to applicants during the year was very trifling—very few having applied, but in every case where application was made for relief it was granted.

CHRISTMAS DISTRIBUTIONS.

The Christmas distributions made this year have been more numerous than any year heretofore. The number of families reciving being between 60 and 70. The quantity of beef distributed was 418 lbs. The number of loaves of bread 134. No deaths of members of the Society occurred during the past year.

The number of members absent from the Town since annual meeting wasonly two. The falling off of membership through permanent absence has been about twelve.

FINANCIAL.

The receipts during year	$113 37
The expenditure during past year	84 75
Cash in hands of Treasurer	$28 62

The committee express a hope that the membership will be largely increased during the present year, and that the Society will continue to prosper.

The following officers were duly elected, viz:—

J. M. Burns, Esq., President.
Edward Poole, Esq., 1st Vice Pres.
Robt. Walton, 2nd Vice Pres.
Rev. W. Clementi, Chaplain.
John M. Burns, Treasurer.
J. H. Walton, Secretary

COMMITTEE.

AMERICAN NEWS.

The military situation of the belligerents has not materially changed since our last. Sherman is moving towards Charleston at great accounts. Charleston is to be evacuated according to the World's correspondent, and the garrison already being moved towards Richmond, according to the same correspondent. Gen. Grant has gone to Wilmington to look after affairs there. Wilmington has been the very center of blockade running for a long time. This has had a stop put to it but so well posted are the Blockade runners that very few have fallen into the hands of the Federals considering the numbers engaged in the business. This is also considered an important point. It is supposed to be the key by which Gen. Sherman alone can effectually operate in completing the campaign he has marked out for himself. Should Wilmington fall into the hands of the Federal Generals, Richmond and Charleston would both be in danger. The attack on this port and place is somewhat the cause of Shermans delay Northward, as much importance do they place upon it lest cut off by a base of supplies. The hitherto victorious career of General Sherman might be in disgrace.

The Scottish American warns its readers of being too sure of the fall of the place.

The vessels of Bermuda have learned the the state of affairs and do not venture. It is said quite a number of vessels were directing their course towards the place, when the Steamer Owl succeded in reaching Fort Caswell the night it was evacuated. She immediately returned and warned and gave information, thus saveing a whole fleet.

Admiral Faragut left Washington for the James River, supposed to take command of the naval forces there.

Important peace rumors are set afloat every day nearly. Blair's peace movements have not yet resulted in anything important. The Presidents of both North and South appear desirous of a peace, if it could be obtained without disgrace. No doubt it would be easy enough to bring the South to terms if the North would grant them at least a part of their demands. President Lincoln begins to show signs of pacific intentions, notwithstanding the draft is proceded with. Men, money and moderation will end the struggle. The North have the two first, the sooner the learn the last the better for the Republic and the people's pockets.

That slavery will be re-established there is not the least fear. The people of the North have dealt the death blow to that peculiar institution. They can never retrace their steps as to undo what they done for themselves in declaring slavery abolished, in all those parts over which they have any control, and it will be found that the slave has had his price in blood from the South. The people of the Southern Confederacy will see that it will be for their stability (if acknowledged) to clear themselves of this great cause.

ORANGE SOIREE.

According to announcement an Orange Soiree was held in the Village of Millbrook, on Tuesday evening last; although the weather was unfavorable the attendance was large, we should suppose that there were about 400 people present. We noticed a number from Cobourg, Port Hope and Peterboro'.

The spread was all that could be desired, and those ladies of the neighborhood who contributed their nice cakes, gave tangible proof of their skill in the manner in which they were got up.

There was a disappointment in the number of speakers, all not being present that were expected. The chair was occupied by F. H. Burton, Esq. Addresses were delivered by the Rev'd. Mr. Douglass, Messrs. Burton, Holland, Marshall and D. G. Hatton.

The Ladies added much to the evening's entertainment by filling up the intervals with sweet music accompanied by an Organ.

The Committee of management deserve credit for the satisfactory manner in which everything passed off, and we hope that they may have a nice sum to put into the Fund for which the Soiree was got up.

COUNTY ORANGE LODGE.

The Annual meeting of the County Orange Lodge, of the Loyal Orange Association of the County of Peterboro, was held in the new Orange Hall, in this Town, on Tuesday last.

It is with pleasure that we announce that this was one of the largest meetings that has been held in the County of Peterborough for some time; this is as things should be.

The following are the officers elect for the present year:—

Bro. David Geo Hatton, County Master.
" Charles Stephenson, County Dep. Mas.
" John Smith, County Secretary.
" John Armstrong, County Treasurer.
" Richard Chowen, County Chaplain.
" Alexander Graham, County Proxy.
" Edward Foster, County Dir. of Cer.

The semi-annual County meeting is to be held in the Town of Peterboro, on Tuesday, the 6th day of June next.

FIRE.

On Saturday morning last about 5 o'clock a. m. a fire broke out in the carriage shop of E. C. Hill, at present occupied in part as a livery stable by A. Fisher. The fire originated at the back part of the building where a quantity of hay was stored away, before many knew anything of the affair it was too far gone to be saved. The building and contents were entirely consumed. Two horses were also consumed; besides some carriages and cutters belonging to Mr. Fisher and some carriages and other things belonging to Mr Hill. The probable amount we have not ascertained. We learn that the property was insured in the Liverpool and London to the amount of $1400; E. C. Hill to the amount of $800, and A. Fisher to the amount of $800. The Fire is believed to have been the work of an incendiary. It is unaccountable the number of fires that have taken place all over the country. Something ought to be done to investigate these fires. There appears a recklessness in regard to fire that requires to be checked, and it is our opinion that searching investigation should be made, for we are convinced that such would be the means of intimidating those who might be careless enough to allow their property to be burned. And we are further convinced that very few would then be found bold enough to set fire to the property of others for fear of detection.

Since writing the above we have received the following items in regard to property destroyed belonging to Mr. Hill.

The building cost $400, insured for $200, Insurance on Carriages, $600, five double and one single, and two pleasure sleighs were consumed.

The Buffalo Courier says that Bailey, of Lake fleet notoriety, after his surrender to the United States authorities, spent some time in Buffalo in company with the officers who had him in charge, stopping at the Wadsworth House until the train destined to bear him westward was in readiness.

Proceedings of County Council.

(Concluded.)

A letter from Col. Haultain, on the subject of the Harvey road, was read in Council by Mr. Walker.

On motion of Mr. Gilmour, a By Law was passed appointing the County Officers.

On motion of Mr. Sullivan a Committee was appointed, consisting of the Wardens and Messrs. Pearce, Birdsall, Gilmour, Peck and the mover, to confer with a Committee of the Town Council, to take such steps as may be necessary to secure the erection of a bridge across Mud Lake.

In view of the Government having offered to be at one half the expense of erecting a bridge across the narrows of Stoney Lake, the Council agreed to bear one fourth of the expense necessary for said purpose.

The County Clerk was instructed to procure Plans of all the Villages within the County, each Plan to be arranged, if not already so done, on one Plan, for easy reference.

The sum of Forty dollars was appropriated to be given to Robert Morrison, Esq., as a part of compensation for damages sustained in the destruction of his property by certain parties unknown; the County having been profited to a greater extent than that sum in fines inflicted, and paid in to the County Treasurer.

The Reeve of Belmont was empowered to sell and dispose of any timber on the boundary lines between and around Belmont and Methuen, and expend the amount so obtained on the boundary lines in that part of the County, and report to the Council concerning the matter.

The Warden was instructed to offer a reward of one hundred dollars for the conviction of the parties who destroyed a large amount of property belonging to Robert Morrison Esq., late Reeve of Dummer.

On motion of Mr. Grover the committee on Finance and assessment brought in their report.

COMMITTEE ON FINANCE.

The Committee on Finance recommended the payment of sundry claims and accounts as follows:—

Robert Grant, for lime and stone for Court House	$21 06
Henry Percival, 2 seals	16 00
Ormond & Gilmour's account	9 48
A McD. Norton, for stove pipes &c	18 72
Board of Public Instruction, Norwood	24 30
Wm Helm, two accounts, for stoves &c	61 30
Nichols & Hall, candles &c	3 70
A. Stewart, stovepipes for Jail	19 45
S. J. Carver, postage	21 38
J B McGann, on account of blind boy Jno. Broderick	5 00
Robert Romaine, on account of Assessment Rolls	90 00
	$327,40

A By-Law was subsequently passed embodying these amounts and providing for their payment.

With regard to the letter of J. B. McGann, Esq., Principal of the Institution for the deaf, dumb and blind, your Committee of Finance recommend that the Treasurer do pay $35 as soon as he receives a certificate under the hand of the Reeve of Smith that his municipality has paid the like sum to the Institution for the educat on of Miss Baptie.

Your Committee are pleased to find that the $10,000 debentures has realized the sum of $9,400.

Your committee cannot recommend the payment of the claim of John Beatty for gravel, as we require further proof of our liability from the County of Victoria; and would allow the matter to lay over till next meeting.

Your Committee desire the thanks of the Council for the report handed in by your Auditors.

The indebtedness of the County require the attention of the Council; and before it is increased your Committee would recommend the issuing of Debentures payable in 10 years to meet any additional expenditure; as the taxes already levied will not fall short of the expenses for the financil year ending in June.

Your committee recommend that a By-Law be now introduced to raise the amounts required, and notice given of the same so that it may be finally passed in June next.

Your committee, upon looking over the account furnished by Mr. Wood, Clerk of the County of Victoria, cannot but regret that the expenditure so far exceeds the contract or appropriation; but would however recommend that the sum of $711 be paid as our share of the said outlay upon the Babcaygeon and Lancaster bridges, less $130 charged by the Engineer, as the Committee think the charge exorbitant.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Signed, P. M. GROVER, Chairman.

Committee Room, Jan. 28, 1865.

The committee on printing recommend that Messrs. Graham & Stratton's tender for printing minutes be accepted, it being the lowest.

They also recommend that Mr. Romaine's tender for printing the lists of convictions, and the 200 copies of the road and bridge committee's report be accepted.

A By-law appointing County Pathmaster was also passed.

The Warden was appointed to get some repairs done to the bridge over the Otonabee River, and that he notify the Council of the Town of Peterboro to perform their share of said repairs on the same.

The committee appointed to report any suggestion or alterations in the Assessment and Municipal Acts, brought in their report which is as follows:

COMMITTEE ON AMENDMENTS TO MUNICIPAL ACTS.

The following changes and alterations were recommended in those Acts by the Committee appointed on Mr. Ingram's motion:—

In the Assessment Act.—That the Assessors of the minor municipalities shall present each ratepayer with a printed or written declaration in reference to their personal property; and that all personal property from £1 upwards, without reference to the present shilling scale be assessed.

That Courts of Revision be empowered to revise the Assessment Rolls and make such alterations as they may seem advisable, provided the person whose assessment it is proposed to alter shall require at least six days notice when that Court of Revision will hear any reasons which such persons may have to urge why it should not be altered.

That the time for returning the Assessment Rolls be extended till the first of July, and the time for the Court of Revision be likewise extended until the 1st of September.

That another column be added to the Assessment Roll and that the Assessor be instructed to take down the number of persons in each family in said column.

In the Municipal Act.—That a fixed sum be made as an allowance to Councillors for mileage in attending their sessional and committee duties.

J. W. GILMOUR, Chairman.

A By-law was passed to issue Debentures to raise a sum of money not exceeding $4000, payable in ten years; and the Warden was instructed to have said By-law properly prepared and published so as to submit it to a special meeting to be held in June next.

Mr. Grover brought in a motion to make an appropriation as an acknowledgement of services rendered by the Rev. Mr. Beek, in attending the Jail to instruct the prisoners during several years, but it was lost.

The Council then adjourned till Monday, the 13th of February next.

ON INTEMPERANCE.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

MR. EDITOR,—Intemperance is a great dishonour done to God, and our principal source of crime and suffering in the world. What a shame is it then for corporate bodies to tolerate the tavern and the traffic by means of which millions of the human family are annually destroyed. Yet despite of all this the tavern has its apologists.—Nor are they confined to the ranks of the moderate drinker (who, as far as his influence existed, and to the best of his ability, is a teacher—and drunkards are the graduates) but even among others who call themselves "temperance men," prohibition has opposers.

I have lately seen a letter—a printer one—signed by a "Ratepayer," a lame apology it is for the Hotel and Grog-shop. It is scarcely worthy of a reply—all his arguments are built upon that sandy foundation "Expediency." I'd respectfully refer him to a certain old book, and one, I am afraid, not much used in our day, where it is said: "Let us not do evil that good may come."

"Mr. Ratepayer," suppose for argument, a certain city; on one corner of the street is a gambling house. It is well furnished. It is a place of resort for the old and young.—No law forbidding. On another corner is a brothel. Its character is well known, the keeper goes about with an unblushing face. Near by is a lottery office; there a slaughter-house, and yonder a powder-mill; in another corner is the Hotel—I mean (an aristocratic grog shop,) a place where intoxicating drinks are sold as a beverage and beyond it the Groggery where men of "baser clay" do congregate. You have before you, "Mr. Ratepayer," a true portrait. I respectfully ask you to look at it, and that your thoughts may be directed to a point—I will to you propound an inquiry. Are there any evils in this city against which society ought to protect itself? and you will not forget that civil government is only the agency by which Society operates. Are there any evils in that city which Government must prohibit in order to answer the great purpose for which Society is organized? Suppose you reply in the affirmative; then where will it begin its work, and where will it end. Shall law break up the gambling establishment, and place its interdict over the premises. Next, shall it cleanse the Brothel, and publish its prohibition against licentiousness. Shall it close the lottery office, and say to the Butcher, remove your establishment to a distance, where it will not annoy your neighbours; and to the powder maker, take these things hence and build your factory in a place less dangerous. We have now the "Grog shop" left. What will you do with that? Mr. "Ratepayer" would you have the corporation remove all the others for the public good, and then turn, embrace and nurture Grog-shops "high and low," for the sake of the revenue derived from them. "O consistency whither has thou fled." The Grog-shop is the greatest nuisance of them all. It has demoralized more young men, wasted more property, beggared more families, destroyed more health, and sent more men to the grave than all the others combined. The brothel, the gambling-house and the Lottery office, have ruined their thousands. The Grog-shop has ruined its tens of thousands. Will you have our "city fathers" to license and protect this, while they condemn all the others. No, Mr. Ratepayer, in order to be consistent we must condemn them all, nor can I see how any candid mind can take any other view of the subject. Nations should make the Bible—not Expediency—their rule of action. Shame! that in a Christian land the dictates of the Bible should be discarded, and that the best interests of a people should be sacrificed at the shrine of "Expediency" so that Taverns and Hotels may without "let or hinderance" manufacture drunkards by thousands.

I remain,
Yours truly,

DEAD WHILE DANCING.—A sudden death took place at Kelbeck's Tavern, Township of Proton, on Tuesday morning last, under extraordinary circumstances. A party on their way home from a ball on the Toronto line had stopped at Kelbeck's, and having a fiddler along with them, they resumed the dance. While in the middle of a Scotch reel, one of the dancers, Mr. Cherry a farmer residing in Melancton, dropped on the floor and instantly expired without a groan. Dr. Bonner of Artemisia, was present, and gave it as his opinion that heart disease was the cause of death. Mr Cherry was a man of middle age, and though fond of a frolic, was not under the influence of liquor at the time, nor so far as we have heard, was he given to drinking. He leaves a wife and a large family to mourn his doom, awful alike to its suddenness and surroundings.—Mount Forest Examiner.

THE FLY SHEET.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner.

SIR:—Knowing that the columns of your paper are ever open for the maintenance of truth and justice, and the suppression of spurious, if not dangerous, bogus humbugs of these times.

Of the different events that have recently transpired in our midst there is one which seems to have arisen from his lethargy—"a fearful evil" I mean "—namely, the re-opening of a vote to be taken in our Town for the Prohibitory Liquor Law.

The individual who styles himself a Temperance man, after instituting such a combination of absurd sentences and circulating them in the form of a fly-sheet, evidently places himself too much in the character of one in the well known fable—the Jackdaw and the Peacock; his feathers are borrowed, and in endeavouring to assume that in which he has no right, this or ingress, (if I can judge from his sentiments) expose himself and epistle to the contempt and ridicule of not only that class which he would represent but also of every sensible and unprejudiced person.

His unbecoming statements commence with the assertion that "he one is a greater temperance man than himself." I congratulate the cause of Temperance upon the discovery. The whisky sellers of 1865 would have little to fear from Dunkins Bill or any other measure that would curtail or abolish their trade if the Temperance men were like him.

He likens intemperance to a great tree. It is indeed an "Upas," under its blighting and deadly influences the human race has been, and is at present, suffering, to an extent that is dreadful to contemplate. The remedy therefore is the demolition of the tree—How is this to be effected? by digging it up by the roots! No! True the roots must be extracted in order that the vitality of the tree may be destroyed, but it must first be cut down. The cause of intemperance must first receive its death-blow in universal suppression, and the discountenance of that system which has hitherto proved so ruinous—"The Licensing system"—by which Beings are licensed to damage their fellow-beings in health and business, ruin their prospects for life, bring them to an early grave, and unfit them for eternity! Is it not a fact? and all this liberty sold under the name of a License, for the paltry sum of fifty dollars. Does not the heart of every such Temperance man shudder at the base fact that such a perquisite is far too low a figure—and in view of Dunkins' Bill passing in our Town—the object of which is to abolish such a system. Fifty dollars! the idea of losing that (small though it be) is enough to make the hands of such incendiaries convulsively seek their pockets. The money thus received from those who now follow the legal traffic of disturbing disease, pain, degredation and death to their fellow-men counterbalances in his opinion the evils resulting from the traffic in intoxicating drink, which is the cause of three fourths the pauperism, and four fifths of the crime that burden and afflict society, and therefore entails expense which, by far, exceeds the revenue accruing from it, either to Government or Municipalities, in the erection and support of prisons, Penetentiaries, Inebriate Asylums and a variety other institutions, besides the support of many poor families and others made thus by alcohol. So even to those who would regard the matter in a pecuniary point of view, it would pay to see the measure passed and duly enforced. It will not, therefore, all classes join in putting down this evil, and eradicating it from the community. Many are of the opinion that something should be done to that effect, but are rather dubious of Dunkins' Bill being enforced if passed. There could not be a greater insult offered to any community than to doubt their power of properly carrying out their own laws. The tavern keepers and others into-rested should at once cease their vile business and engage in some honourable occupation. For, take notice, if the people of the Town of Peterboro say by their votes that liquor selling shall be done away with, depend upon it they mean what they say.

AMERICAN WAR ITEMS.

EFFORTS AT PEACE FAILED.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The Tribune's City Point despatch, dated Feb. 1, says it is understood here that Mr. Stephens is instructed by Jeff Davis and his Cabinet to make peace on the best terms he can, but to make peace. It is thought here that Mr. Stephens will not return to the Confederacy if he does not succeed in the object of his mission. From various denunciations in front of the 9th corps, last night and this morning, it is apprehended by some that the rebels intend to make an attack to-day, and by others that they are about evacuating Petersburg. There was considerable artillery firing last evening, brought on by the enemy, particularly in the neighborhood of Battery No. 5. I think, however, that all demonstrations of strength by the rebels, at this time, are for the purpose of giving tone to Mr. Stephens' peace mission. Our sick and wounded are all being brought in from the front. The Times' Washington special says it is understood here that Messrs Lincoln and Seward are on their way back, but nothing is known of the result of the conference. The Tribune says Major-Gen. Gilmore and Staff sailed on Thursday for Hilton Head. Gen. Gilmore is appointed to command a new department of the South-West, including South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and part, if not the whole, of North Carolina. He supersedes Gen. Fisher, but Gen. Sherman of course still remains in command of the army in the field, as heretofore.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—President Lincoln and Secretary Seward returned here this morning from Fort Monroe.

They had an informal conference with Mr. Stephens and his associates, Messrs Hunter and Campbell, on board the steamer River Queen, in Hampton Roads. The conference occupied four hours, and is positively known to have resulted in no change of attitude either of the Government or of the rebels. In other words it was a failure.

The Post's Washington special says Mr. Seward declared without reserve that the peace negotiations were an entire failure.

There are indications that peace will speedily be won by war. Decisive news is expected from Sherman early next week.

The World's Washington special says:—It is well known there to-night that on Thursday the President, Secretary Seward and the Richmond Commissioners, had a long interview at Fortress Monroe, and the Radical Congressmen who yesterday sneered at the whole peace affair, do not hesitate to admit to-night that their faith is low the other way. It is not expected that the President and Secretary Seward will return before Sunday.

The double-leaded article on Peace in the Chronicle of to-day, rendered emphatic by its terse capitals, had attracted great attention everywhere, and is regarded as being officially inspired.

THE FENIAN BROTHERHOOD.

There has been a grand Mass meeting of the Fenians at Cincinatti on the 17th ultimo. As is the case at such meetings, a considerable amount of Buncombe was delivered.

The address is a reasonable idea of the feelings of the Brotherhood, we suppose. We give it for the amusement of our readers:—

THE CHAIRMANS ADDRESS.

The Head Centre commenced his address by counselling caution and circumspection, as the secret agents and spies of Great Britian and the other enemies of human liberty with whom, unfortunately this country abounds, may seize upon this as an occasion for renewing against the Fenian Brotherhood the oft-

MELODEON AND COTTAGE ORGAN EMPORIUM,

PETERBORO, C.W.

Estey's Perfect Melodeon AND COTTAGE ORGAN.

ESTABLISHED 1864.

FORMERLY ESTEY & GREEN.

The only Manufactory in this Country of the Perfect Melodeon and Cottage Organ with Patent Bass Damper, Patent Harmonic Attachment, and Patent Manual Sub-Bass.

These admirable instruments have won their way to public confidence purely on their merits, and not by force of extensive advertising and purchased recommendations. With our increased facilities for manufacture, we are still unable to meet the extraordinary demand made upon us; but we hope soon to be able to fill all orders promptly.

Some of the points of superiority claimed for our instruments, are these:—

1st.—Smooth, steady and pipe-like quality of tone.

2nd.—Great delicacy of touch and promptness of action; producing, when desired, a low, sweet, lute-like tone, unequalled by any other instrument of the class.

3d.—The Patent Bass Damper, which enables the performer to swell the treble without increasing the volume of the bass; or, by drawing the Stop, to swell the notes by the action of the foot.

4th.—The Patent Harmonic Attachment. An ingenious octave coupler, which doubles the power of the instrument without increasing its size or the number of reeds.

5th.—The Patent Manual Sub-Bass, which are played with the ordinary keys and controlled by a stop. This new and valuable invention requires no extra room and serves as a substitute for the Pedal Bass, and can be used by an ordinary performer.

6th.—The Knee-Stop, in the Cottage Organ, which swells or diminishes the tone by a slight movement of the left knee, without interfering with the action of the feet,—having this advantage over the Automatic Swell that the volume of tone may be readily increased without extraordinary effort, and diminished without waiting for the change in the actions of the bellows.

Our recently constructed Cottage Organ, without the attachments, is unsurpassed by any Reed Organ or Harmonium of the size: but, with the Harmonic Attachment and Manual sub-bass, it is pronounced by competent judges to be far superior to any other instrument of the class in the world. Its power, sweetness, and variety of tone, simplicity of construction and ease of management, recommend it to every one as being all that is claimed for it, both for the parlor and the church.

The Harmonic Organ, for Churches and Public Halls, has a fine, powerful Pedal Bass, with independent reeds: and, with the Harmonic Attachment, is believed to be the most powerful Reed Organ made, being nearly equal to a pipe organ of three times its cost.

All our Instruments are made in the most thorough manner, and warranted in every respect

JOS. R. WALTON, Agent.

Peterborough, Jan. 1865. 4

Rev. A. C. Rose, of Troy, N.Y. says:—These give the value of Are Melodeons in one. The ease of touch and promptness of action are unrivalled. It can be played with all the sweetness of the lute or Æolian harp, and changed in an instant to its full power, nearly equal to a twelve stop organ.

All orders addressed to the undersigned will receive prompt attention.

JOSEPH R. WALTON, Peterboro.

TESTIMONIALS.

JAMES BROWN, Esq., M. D.

Peterboro, October 20th, 1864.

I am happy to inform you that after the most persevering and testing trial for some weeks of the Cottage and Parlor Organ, we like it better every day. It is remarkable for variety of tone and power, and several of the best judges here say it is unequalled by any instrument of the kind (with double reed) they have ever heard. You can so control and command all its parts, as to pass easily and rapidly from the softest tones of the Harp, Lute or Piano, to the rich full swell of a large Organ. It is easily played by child or adult, and is already a very great favorite with us. Its compact structure, ingenious combination of power with the new and beautiful Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-base are greatly admired and are highly creditable to the make-r, Estey, of Vermont. I think it is peculiarly adapted for Church Music.

EDW. F. CROWLE, A. M. &c.

Sheridan Villa Seminary, Peterboro, Dec. 1864.

We are delighted with the Cottage Organ with Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-bass. We prefer it to any instrument of the kind we have ever seen; its tone, sweet and harmonious in the parlor, possesses sufficient power for a church.

REV. J. C. SHAPER.

Wes'eyan Parsonage, Millbrook, Jan. 1865.

I have much pleasure in testifying my entire satisfaction of the Cabinet Organ, purchased from you, as an instrument possessing superior qualitities in sweetness, variety and strength, to anything of the kind I have ever seen. Two experienced musicians who have examined it, concur with me in recommending it as a perfect instrument adapted to Church or Parlor.

GEO. A. NORRIS, M. D., Recording Steward of the Wesleyan Church, Omemee.

Omemee, July, 1864.

In reply to your inquiries as to the Harmonic Organ, purchased from you for our church, we have to express our highest satisfaction; in purity and sweetness of tone as well as volume of sound, it is all that can be reasonably expected.

Peterborough, Dec. 20th, 1864.

MR. J. R. WALTON.—Having examined and played upon the Parlor Organs sold by you, and Manufactured by Mr. Estey. I have great pleasure in pronouncing them a first cl ss instrument. The Harmonic attachment and manual Sub-base being a very great improvement and well worthy the patronage of the Musical public. Yours truly,

A. T. HEATHFIELD,

Organist of St. John's Church, Peterborough.

SMOKING SPIRITUALIZED.

FAIR MAIDS.

This Indian weed, now withered quite,
Though green at noon, cut down at night.
Shows they decay;
All flesh is hay—
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

The pipe, so lily-like and weak,
Does thus thy mortal state bespeak
Thou art or'n crush,
Gone with a touch—
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

And when the smoke ascends on high,
Then thou behold'st the vanity
Of worldly stuff,
Gone with a puff.
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

And when the pipe grows foul within
Think on thy soul, defil'd with sin;
For then the fire
It does require.
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

And see'st the ashes cast away;
Then to thyself thou mayest say,
That to the dust
Return thou must.
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

PART SECOND.

Was this small plant for thee cut down?
So was the plant of great renown,
Which mercy sends
For nobler ends.
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

Doth juice medicinal proceed
From such a naughty foreign weed?
Then what's the power
Of Jesse's flower?
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

The promise, like the pipe, inlays,
And by the mouth of faith conveys
What virtue flows
From Sharon's rose.
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

In vain th' unlighted pipe you blow,
Your pains in outward means are so,
Till Heavenly fire
The heart inspire,
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

The smoke, like burning incense, tow'rs;
So should a praying heart of yours,
With ardant cries,
Surmount the skies.
Thus think, and smoke tobacco.

Varieties.

Getting a Moral Character.

In that part of the city of New York, known as "the village," some years ago, there dwelt a worthy deacon of the church, whose only son bore a terrible reputation for wildness and dissipation, whose very name was a dread to all matrons with grown up daughters, and fathers with conscientious scruples. The deacon doated on his son, and exhorted him, from time to time to experience religion, which his dutiful off-spring did, on several occasions, when dead broke, but as invariably went back when the delighted parent replenished his shrunken purse. When the California fever broke out Jim experienced religion to such an extent that the Deacon paid his way to the El Dorado, and gave him a good start in the golden world, which Jim contrary to all prophecies of the neighbours, improved to such advantage that he returned home a wealthy man. The old man was delighted.

"James," quoth he, "you have wordly wealth; that's good, but you want something better—you want a moral character."

"That's so," replied Jim, "where can I get one?"

"You must join some reputable society," remarked the Deacon; "if I were you, I'd join the church."

"I don't mind," said Jim, "you may propose me."

As an evidence of his repentance, Jim agreed to clear of a mortgage, which he knew was on the church, in honor of his admission. The bait was tempting, but, as Jim's former reputation was to well known, objections were raised, until the mortgage fell due when the worthy father was commissioned to inform his son that he could come into the flock. To the old man's horror Jim said he was thankful, but it was too late.

"Too late!" ejaculated the Deacon, "have you denied the religion of your fathers?"

"Not by a long shot," retorted the scapegrace, "but it won't pay to join the church, since I've done the job."

"The job?" murmured the old man, in undisguised anguish.

"Why," responded Jim, with gravity, "I've done it on my own hook. Don't you see, governor, you said I wanted a moral character, and I acknowledge the corn. To get one, you suggested that I ought to join some reputable society. You preferred the church; to please you, I said I'd go in, but you dilly dallied so long about it, that I did the business myself. I've joined—."

"What!" interrupted the Deacon, in agony of soul.

"The Fire Department," replied the young man, exultantly, as he added, "you can see my certificate framed."

Peculiar Papers.

From the Pack.

Editors deploring the dryness of their "exchanges" are magnanimously permitted to clip the following article, provided that they republish it verbatim et literatim, particularly the twelfth paragraph:—

1. The paper having the largest circulation—the paper of tobacco.
2. The most valuable paper is Yankeedom—"greenbacks."
3. The paper that may be examined in every modern dwelling house—wall paper.
4. A paper for roughs—sand paper.
5. A paper containing many fine points—a paper of needles.
6. Ruled paper—the French Journals.
7. A paper that is full of rows—a paper of pins.
8. The spiritualists' paper—(w)rapping paper.
9. Papers illustrated with many "cuts"—editorial "exchanges."
10. Drawing paper—the dentist's bill.
11. A very "taking" paper—a sheriff's warrant.
12. A paper that every person should "take"—The "Pick" of all the papers.

SUCCESSFUL.—"Pompy, I hear that you are an actor."

"Yes sir. I played a star engagement at Bobsockets, under a three pole canvas, last week."

"And how did you make out?"

"Make out! I got called out three times."

"You did! who by?"

"Twice by de sheriff and once by de watherwoman."

Show may easily be purchased; but happiness is a home-made article which all may have.

Jones, Chemical Inspector Circleville, Ohio; Prof. C. T. Jackson, Chemist, Boston; Dr. Chas. Upham Shepard, Charleston, S. C.; and J. V. Z. Blaney, and G. A. Mariner, Consulting Chemists, Chicago, all of whom have analyzed the Catawba Brandy, and commend it in the highest terms, for medical use.

Analysis of the Massachusetts State Assayer, Jan. 25, 1858.

When evaporated through clean linen it left no oil or offensive matter. In every respect it is a pure spiritous liquor. The oil which gives to this Brandy its flavour and aroma, is fusil, or grain oil. Its order partakes of both the fruit and oil of grapes. With acids, it produces ethers of a high fragrance. The substitution of this Brandy for Cognac Brandy will do away with the manufacture of fictitious spirits, sold under this name both at home and abroad. Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M. D., Assayer to State Mass., 16 Boylston St.

By the same, in 1864.

I have analysed "L. LYONS' PURE CATAWBA BRANDY," with reference to its composition and character, being the same as that produced in past years. A sample taken from ten casks afforded the same result with regard to purity; a slightly increased amount of the principle on which its flavor depends was determined by comparison with former samples.

The indication of analysis show that this Brandy is produced by the same process as most of the imported Brandy. Respectfully,

A. A. HAGES, M. D., State Assayer,

Poetry.

WITHERED FLOWERS.

The pleasant summer days are fled,
The skies are chill and drear;
And Summer's fragrant blooms are dead,
The meadows brown and sere.

Chill Autumn winds have swept the bowers,
And filled the woods with gloom:
And cruel frosts have stung the flowers,
And blighted all their bloom.

Gay groups that made the gardens glad,
Defaced and leafless stand,
Like stricken mourners, lone and sad,
A desolated band.

Poor blighted buds, and withered things,
The Summer sure no more
Shall bring your bloom, or thousand Springs
Your scattered seeds restore.

Ah, me! how many a human life
Is like the gardens now!
The blight of sorrow, sin, or strife
On lip, and heart, and brow.

How oft unkindness' withering breath,
O'er feelings' tender flowers,
Has swept and left the chill of death
Through all life's after hours.

Poor human heart! growths crushed and killed
By blighting years of wrong!
Poor frozen souls, untimely chilled
By suffering deep and long!

No earthly Spring with balmy breath,
And skies with crystaline hair,
Shall wake you from your living death,
Or cure the ills ye bear.

But praised be God! beyond the years—
Dull Wintery years of pain—
A glorious Summer clime appears,
Where ye shall bloom again!

Agricultural.

Food for Cattle.

One hundred pounds of good hay affords as much nourishment to cattle which feed upon it as, 43 lbs. of wheat, 44 dried peas, 46 beans, 49 rye, 51 barley, 56 corn, 59 oats, 64 buckwheat, 64 linseed oil cake, 68 acorns, 96 red clover hay, 105 wheat bran, 109 rye bran, 153 pea straw, 153 pea chaff, 167 wheat or oat chaff, 170 rye or barley chaff, 175 raw potato s, 195 boiled potatoes, 220 oat straw, 262 ruta bags, 275 green corn, 280 carrots, 339 mangold wurzel, 346 field beets, 355 rye straw, 504 turnips.

FOOD FOR COWS.—German chemists have found the relative value of food for cows giving milk to be as follows:—One hundred pounds of good hay contains as much nourishment as 26 lbs. of peas, 25 beans, 50 oats, 60 oil cake, 80 clover hay, 80 vetches, 200 potatoes, 250 pea straw, 300 barley straw, 300 oat straw, 350 Siberian cabbage, 400 rye straw, 400 wheat straw, 460 beet-root with leaves.

The English give their cows weighing a thousand pounds, eight pounds of good hay, three a day to winter. A cow which was given 27 lbs. of hay daily, yielded in four days one quart more of milk than when she consumed only 21 lbs. of hay; that is, the extra 24 lbs. of hay in four days, gave one quart of milk extra. While horses require eight per cent. of their weight good English hay a day, milch cows require only two and three-quarters per cent. A milch cow will not eat more than 25 or 30 lbs. of hay a day, and if more really is desired, it must be obtained by giving her richer food, that containing more oil, albumen, &c.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Care of Manure, Both East and West

Eastern farmers have long known that 'Manure is money,' and though many have been wasteful of it, yet they have saved it much better than their brothers at the West. We are glad to know both from personal observations and the reports of correspondents, this great point in economical husbandry is beginning to excite interest in a measure proportional to its importance among western farmers. They find the corn crop greatly benefited, that for tobacco it is essential, and that many other crops are surer and better for its application. The best way to compost manure usually available is to compost it with vegetable mould, under cover. Where straw is abundant, as on many western farms, it may take the place of muck or sods in the compost. Manure thus composted, though not under cover, keeps up fermentation in a slow way even in winter, and where muck is used, is in first-rate condition in spring for common use. Very strawy compost, in some cases will not be sufficiently rotted, unless the heat be kept up by the addition of horse manure, or by frequent wetting by pumping the liquid manure of the stable over the heap in mild weather. As most farmers are situated, it would be difficult to compost the manure in this way either under cover or not, especially if they have never been in the habit of taking good care of manure. If cattle are kept in barns or sheds, and the manure be removed, it may at least be spread so as to form a compact heap, and be trodden down every time a fresh lot is added. This will be found of great advantage. It is better yet, to enclose it and keep a few hogs upon the heap. When young cattle are kept in airy sheds, the practice of letting them stand upon their own manure, if they be well littered, is not a bad one, though the manure which thus accumulates does not ferment or rot scarcely at all, and before using ought to be overhauled and composted, or laid up to get a good heat. It is a poor plan to keep cows thus. They require more food than when in warm and closer stables—the free air is necessary to health if they stand on the manure—and their food being more watery, the condition of the stable is apt to become uncomfortably moist. Manure saved in this way contains all the urine, which is too often lost, wholly or in part, and is really the most valuable portion of the manure. No system of making manure should be adopted which does not save all the liquid excrements.

SHEEP.—Exercise and fresh air are essential to their health. Shelters must be well ventilated, not crowded, and the sheep turned out daily, except in severe storms. Roots, fed with grain, will be repaid with wool and mutton. Pregnant ewes should have little or no grain, but roots with hay. Those yeaning early will need separate, clean, not over littered apartments, and careful attention, that the lambs be not fatally chilled.

CHARCOAL FOR HOGS.—Hogs when put to fatten should be supplied with plenty of fresh earth. Their nature is to wallow. Pounded charcoal if fed twice or three times a week, will be eaten freely. It corrects the stomach, and combines with the digestible properties of the food, and is deposited with it. Thus it adds to the weight and greatly to the solidity and flavour of the meat.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!

CAN BE FOUND IN

Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF

Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER SHAPE internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling med cinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations. Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the RADIX OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REGULATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs upon the BLOOD itself, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is compelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable curatives. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are alway s to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy Known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venral Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

. Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 63 cents, and $1 40 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33

EMBLEMS.

What do marvellous mosses mean—
Crimson, emerald, garnet, gold?
O, to know the message sweet
Which their magic leaves unfold
'Neath the tread of careless feet!
Do they image something there,
In that other far-off land,
Dainty, delicate, and fair,
Which we could not understand?

What do meadow-lilies gay,
Toiling not or spinning, say?
Glowing in their bright array,
Careless of the coming day.
What do all the lilies say?
Have they meanings, strange and rare,
Which we cannot quite translate?
Floating on the subtle air,
Vanishing and delicate?

Whence is all the music born
Of the bird-songs, soft and low,
Breaking on the hush of morn!
Who can half the mystery know
Of the gladnesses that grow,
When the daisy's disk, so dainty,
Flecks the valley-lands with snow?

Who can read the royal splendors
Of the purple pansy's bloom,
Or the May-flower's glad evangel,
Brightening on the forest's gloom?
Are these all but faint reflections
From the land of fadeless light—
Varying types and shadows only
Of the substance hid from sight?

Literature.

BEGINNING LIFE.

I began life by running away from home. Boleum, we are told was driven into his career by the hand of fate and the peck of a turkey. Attila started in life with no other cause and capital than an old sword, with he pelmed off for the divine weapon of Mars; and Robespierre owed his political career to wetting his stockings, and there heard 'words which burn,' which fired his soul, and determined his course in life. My running from home arose from a minor mortification caused by carrying a pretty girl over the brook.

Donald Lean and myself were good friends at fourteen years of age, and we regarded, with little more than friendship, Helen Graham, 'our oldest girl at school.' We romped and danced together, and this lasted such a length of time that it is with feelings of bewilderment that I look back upon the mystery of two lovers contemplating [illegible]. But the time was to come when jealousy lit her spark in my boyish bosom, and blew it into a consuming flame.

Well do I remember how and when the 'greeneyed' perpetrated this incendiary deed. It was on a cold October evening, when Hellen, Donald and myself were returning with our parents from a neighboring hamlet. As we approached a ford where the water ran somewhat higher than ancle, we proposed to carry Hellen accross as we were accustomed to do with hands interwoven 'chair fashion,' and thus carried our pretty passenger over the brook. Just as we were in the middle of the water—which would have frozen anything like feeling out of boys less hards than ourselves—a faint pang of jealousy nipped my heart. Why it was I knew not for we had carried Helen across the brook ere now, without emotion, this evening I fancied that Helen gave Donald an undue preference by casting her arm around his neck, while she steadied herself on my side by holding the cuff of my jacket.

No flame can burn so quick, or with so little fuel as jealousy. Before we had reached the opposite side I wished Donald at the "bottom of the sea." Being naturally impetuous I must out with—

'You need na haul sa gingerly, Helen, as if ye'd rared a fa'. I can aye carry ye lighter than Donald can carry half of ye.'

Surprised at the vehemence of my tone, our queen interposed with an admission that we were both strong, and that she had no idea of sparing my power.—But Donald's ire was kindled and he utterly denied that I was at all qualified to compete with him in fact of moral courage. On such topics boys are generally credulous, and before we had reached the other side, it was settled that the point should be determined by singly bearing Helen across the ford in our arms.

Helen was to determine who had carried her most easily, and I settled with myself privately in advance that the one who gained the preference would really be the person who stood highest in her affections. The reflection stimulated me to exert every effort, and I verily believe to this day, that I could have carried Helen and Donald on either arm like feathers. But I must not anticipate.

We faltered all the rest of the party to pass quietly along, and then returned with Helen; with the utmost care I carried her to the middle of the water. Jealousy had inspired a warmer love, and it was with feelings unknown before that I had embraced her beautiful form, and felt the pressure of her cheek against mine. All went swimmingly, or rather wading for a minute. But alas, in the very deepest part of the ford, I trod on a treacherous piece of wood which rested on a smooth stone, over I rolled, bearing Helen with me, nor did we rise till we were fully soaked from head to foot.

I need not describe the taunts of Donald, or the more accusing silence of Helen. Both believed I had fallen from mere weakness, and my rival demonstrated his superior ability by bearing her in his arms a long way on our homeward path.—As we approached the house Helen feeling dry and better humored, attempted to conciliate me. But I preserved a moody silence I was mortified to redness.

That night I packed up a few things and ran away. My boyish mind, sensitive and irritated, exaggerated the negation which it had received, and prompted me to a course which fortunately led me to better results than generally attend such irregularities. I went to Edinburg, where I found an uncle a kind hearted, childish man, who gladly gave me a place in his house, and employed me in his business.—Wealth flowed upon him. I became his partner—went abroad—resided on the continent, and finally returned to Scotland rich, educated, in fact everything but married.

One evening at a ball in Glasgow, I was struck by a lady of unpretending appearance, but whose remarkable beauty and lightened impression indicated a mind of more than ordinary power. I was introduced, but the Scottish names had long been unfamiliar to my ear, and I could not catch hers. It was Helen something, and there was something in the face too, that seemed familiar—something suggestive of pleasure and pain.

But we became well acquainted that evening. I learnt without difficulty her history. She was from the country, had been educated, her parents had lost their property, and she was now a governess in the city.

I was fascinated with her conversation, and I was continually reminded by her grace and refinement of manner that she was capable of moving with distinguished success in a far higher sphere than that which fortune seemed to have allotted her. I was naturally not talkative, nor prone to confidence; but there was that in this young lady which inspired both, and I conversed with her as I had never done with any. Her questions of the various countries with which I was familiar indicated a remarkable knowledge of literature and an incredible amount of information.

We progressed in intimacy, and as our conversation turned on the cause of so many leaving their native land, I laughingly remarked that I owed my own travels to falling with a pretty girl into a ford.

I had hardly spoken these words ere the blood mounted into her face, and was succeeded by a remarkable paleness. I attributed it to the heat of the room—laughed and at her request proceeded to relate my ford adventure with Helen Graham, painting in glowing colours the amiability of my love.

Her mirth during the recital became irrepressible. At the conclusion she remarked:—

"Mr. Roberts, is it possible that you have forgotten me?"

I gazed an instant, remembered and was dumb-founded. The lady with whom I had thus become acquainted was Helen Graham herself.

I hate, and so do you, reader, to need lessly prolong a story. We were soon married. Helen and I made a bridal tour to the old place. As we approached in our carriage, I greeted a stout fellow working in a field, who seemed to be a better sort of a labourer or a small farmer, by inquiring some particulars relating to the neighbourhood. He answered well enough, I was about to give him a sixpence, when Helen stayed my hand, and cried out in the old style—

'Hey, Donald, man, dinna ye ken ye'r old friend?'

The man looked up in astonishment.—It was Donald Lean. His amazement at our appearance was heightened by its style, and it was with the greatest difficulty that we could induce him to enter our carriage and answer our numerous questions as to our old friends.

Different men start in life in different ways. I believe that mine however is the only case on record of a gentleman who owes wealth and happiness to rolling over with a pretty girl in a stream of water.

Neatness in Dress.

The Philadelphia Ledger thus discourses upon neatness in dress:

We are almost inclined to think that every person and especially young persons, should be encouraged and expected to dress themselves with some degree of fresh care during the after part of each day. It may cost a little time (it certainly should not be allowed to cost much,) but it will be apt to increase a person's self-respect and that comfortable feeling of being allied and equal to the better part of the social world, which is so desirable for all, and especially for the young. Not long since a lady whos ideas, were thought by some to be above her circumstances, would insist on all her children dressing for the afternoon neatly though plainly, but never remaining in their morning's attire. To wash and arrange the hair, and to be always dressed in the afternoon, not for company but for home life, became a habit of all the young people of that house from childhood, not without some remarks from less pain-taking neighbours. At last one of the children, a bright but rather self-willed girl, remarked, "I think we all feel much more inclined to be orderly and good when we are dressed for the afternoon." This remark, made casually to the mother, was, she said an ample reward for all the extra trouble and of the arrangement.

It is not expensive but rather economical than otherwise, to pay this sort of attention to dress. A little extra washing will cost nothing to what is saved by the habitual carefulness not to soil ones clothes. The slovenly is the most extravagant, generally speaking, of any one in dress. So also the time it may take is nothing to the habit of order, of system, and of having a time for everything. It promotes self-respect and pleasant social feelings. The man, woman, or child who feels habitually worse dressed than near neighbours will be apt to shrink from society and act awkwardly in it.

OILING BOOTS.—The application of castoroil to boots renders them as soft as a buck glove. It is also the best application that can be made to render a new boot water proof.

The Bruce county town question has passed through another phase. At the last meeting of the council Paisley was elected as the county town.

Henry Ward Beecher's salary has been fixed at $12,500—the clerical nabob.

PUNCH ON THE AMERICAN WAR.

We trust the following extract from Punch will not alarm the sympathy of those in the House of Assembly, who are sturdy friends of the Northern States. The Alien Bill comes in session to prevent concert of action between the Southern refugees and Punch's invaders:—

"TO THE YANKEE BRAGGARTS.

"The American crisis is one which is only to be met by the most unmitigated swagger, and Mr. Punch lustily constituting himself head swaggerer to the British nation, hereby answers the Yankee journals 'with shouts as loud and shrieks as fierce' as their own. War with England, indeed, you long-faced wizened, ugly ignorant Occidentals. Do you know what you are really talking about? Defy the flag that has braved a thousand years the battle and the breeze? Laugh at the lion and give umbrage to the unicorn, bah! boah! tremble! Do you know what we should do in the flush of a lucifer match? We should recognize the Confederacy, proclaim Davis king of the South, and steam into all the Confederate ports armed with 300,000 guards, all six foot and most six foot and three quarters, making all your blockading ships to David Jones, except such as we should seize for our own use in blockading New York. We should put Sir Hugh Rose at the head of our stupendous land force and relieve Lee, who would rush south to exterminate all your Generals, sober or tipsy, while we marched upon Washington, and for the second time, ha, ha! give it to the devouring flames. We should then walk over you all and straight into Canada, where we should instantly hang every Yankee who had dared to set his foot on the sacred soil, and then we should annex the North to the Colony, making Quebec the Empire City. Meantime our Australian soldiers would be up and doing; the Swan River Volunteers would occupy Texas, the brave Van Diemans would clear Missouri, the New South Welshers would answer for Arkansas, while the new Zeland Natives annexited and thirsting to show their love for England, would sweep like a tattooed avalanche through Minnesota, Iowa and Wisconsin. We should have a grand reunion of forces at Michigan, while a British Congress would proclaim aristocracy, primogenture and the Church of Ireland as the Established religion of your country, and then we should consider what death it would be most satisfactory to put Gordon Bennet and Mr Seward. After which a grand display of fireworks, and a transparency two miles long, bearing in flaming letters the legend,

'THE UNION IS NO MORE.'

"Put that in your pipes and smoke it; there's plenty more where that came from.—Let's liquor all round."

Benefits of Partnership.

A nobleman residing in Italy, was about to celebrate his marriage feast: All the elements were propitious except the ocean, which had been so boisterous as to deny the necessary appendage of fish. On the very morning of the feast, however, a poor fisherman made his appearance with a turbot, so large that it seemed to have been created for the occasion. Joy prevaded the castle and the fisherman was ushered into the saloon with his prize, where the nobleman, in the presence of his visitors, requested him to put what price he thought proper on the fish, and it should be instantly paid him.

"One hundred lashes," said the fisherman, "on my bare back, is the price of my fish, and I will not bate one strand of whipcord on the bargain."

The nobleman and his freinds were not a little astonished, but our chapman was resolute, and remonstrance was in vain. At length the nobleman exclaimed:

"Well, well, the fellow is a humorist, and the fish we must have, but lay it on lightly, and let the price be paid in our presence."

After fifty lashes had been administered, the fisherman exclaimed:

"Hold! hold! I have a partner in this business, and it is fitting he should receive his share."

"What, are there two such madcaps in the world?" exclaimed the nobleman, "name him and he shall be sent for instantly."

"You need not go far for him," said the fisherman, "you will find him at the gate in the shape of your own porter, who would not let me in until I promised that he should have the half of whatever I received for my turbot."

"O, ho," said the nobleman, "bring him up instantly, he shall receive the stimulated moiety with the strictest justice."

This ceremony being finished, he discharged the porter, and amply rewarded the fisherman."

A WEALTHY SENTINEL.—The following anecdote is related of a soldier in the English army in 1774, who was called out with his Company to resist an expected invasion. He was of German birth and very rich. It fell to his lot one cold wet night to be stationed as sentinel over a baggage wagon. In about half an hour after taking his place, he called out, "Corporal of de guard!" The corporal came and inquired what he wanted. He asked to be relieved a few moments while he spoke to the commanding officer of the regiment. His request was granted and soon he stood before the general. "I wish to know," said he, making his salute, "what that wagon is worth which I was placed to guard." "I can not say exactly," was the reply "Never mind the exact amount, come somewhere near it." "A thousand dollars," said the general. "Well then general," said the comfort-loving soldier, "I will write a check for the money, and then I will go to bed." He was very much astonished and highly indignant, when told the rules of the camp admitted no such transaction, but he must do his duty until regularly relieved.

FIBBING.

'Why, Neddie, where have you been?' inquired Mrs. Stoperay of her son Edwin, a boy of ten, as he entered the parlor a little flushed with running. 'It's six o'clock and your school closes at four. What have you been doing since school?'

'Oh, ma, when we play base ball we have such jolly good fun, we don't think at all about the clock, or ten time, or anything else. Is tea now ready?' answered the boy.

This answer let Edwin's mother conclude that he had been playing ball. What else could she think?

But had he been playing the game with his schoolmates? Not at all. He had been 'kept in' by his teacher for bad lessons, and was ashamed to confess his disgrace. So he made his mother believe that he had been playing.

'What a shame and a sin it is for you to deceive your good mother so,' said Neddie's conscience, as he sat down to eat his supper.

'I don't care,' responded the boy to this faithful but troublesome voice. 'I don't care. I didn't tell her a lie. I didn't say I had been playing base ball.'

'But you said words which made your mother think you had, and which you meant should make her think so,' replied his conscience.

But Edwin was stubborn. He had entered the wrong path, and so he went to bed leaving the false impression on his mother's mind.

Children, did Edwin lie or not!

'Of course he did,' I think I hear you reply.

'You are right, my children, Edwin did not squarely lie, because he did not say he had been playing base ball, but he used words which deceived his mother, just as he meant they should. He intended to deceive her, and that intention made his words a lie. Indeed, it was a very bad sort of a lie, because it was dressed up in the livery of truth.

Some children would call Neddie's lie a fib. Nonsense. A fib is a lie. Every word you utter, my child, with an intention to produce a false impression on some person's mind, is a lie, so be careful of your words. Always tell the truth, for no character is more hateful either to God or man that of a liar.

Everyone has lately read of the Bishop of Bath and Wells sitting down, after making a speech, upon the Episcopal shovel hat, but it was not half so good an adventure as occurred to one of his predecessors. The Bishop referred to dined with one of his neighbours about Christmas time, and among other delicacies was a turkey and sausages. A footman who had an eye for the latter, removed one or two links of them (which he placed in paper) as he took the dish through the hall, but being disturbed, dropped the parcel into the pocket of the first great coat he found. Unable to secure his stolen prize, the sausages were left in the pocket, and was not discovered until the next day when the Bishop had to attend a school meeting. After addressing the children in a pious strain and having provided himself with some religious tracts to dispense among them, he wound up his address by expatiating upon their merits, but unfortunately! instead of taking out the contents of his left pocket, he brought out those of the right, and exposed to the gaze of the children a small string of pork sausages.

LIBERTY.—The Razor Strap man says; When first I got acquainted with strong drink it promised to do a great many things for me. It promised me liberty—and I got liberty. I had the liberty to see my toes poke out of my boots—the water had the liberty to go in at the toes and go out at the heels—my knees had the liberty to come out of my pants—my elbows had the liberty to come out of my coat—I had the liberty to lift the crown of my hat and scratch my head without taking my hat off. Not only liberty I got, but I got music. When I walked along on a windy day, the crown of

"My hat would go flippery flap,
And the wind whistle 'how do you do.'"

BREAKFAST CORN CAKE.—Put 2 cups of Indian meal (or 1 of Rye and 1 of Indian), ¼ cup of flour, and ¼ cup of sugar into a dish and add a good sized teaspoonful of saleratus. Stir them together a little, then stir in 2 cups of sour milk, the sourer the better, and bake in a shallow tin, one or two inches deep. As no eggs or shortening are used, this is very economical, and when rightly made, is also a very nice cake.

The pen, in the hand that knows how to use it is one of the most powerful weapons known. As the tongue of the absent, how charming. When self-respect gives it a new vigor, how pleasing. When virtue guides it, how beautiful. When honor directs it, how respected. When wit sharpens it, how fatal. When scurrility wields it, how contemptible. 'Tis the weapon of the mind.

Clouds never send down to ask the grass and plants how much watering they need; they rain for the relief of their own full bosoms.

Happiness abounds most among the lowly; there are more blossoms in the valley than the hills.

A married woman about to sign a legal deed, was asked as usual whether her husband had compelled her to sign it? "He compel me," said the woman; no nor twenty like him!"

"I live in Julia's eyes," said a lovelorn swain. "I do not wonder at it," said another, "I noticed she had a sty in one of them when I saw her."

"A fellow who had been hooked by an unruly cow, limped in his gait. A lady remarked that the man appeared to be intoxicated, "Yes," replied her beau," the fellow has been taking a couple of horns."

PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

Among the Bill's that have been brought in we may mention the following, viz:

One to amend the Municipal corporations Act of C. C., provides—That the Council of any incorporated village may pass By-Laws for raising money by rate assessed equally on the whole ratable property of the village, for the relief and support of the resident poor in the Municipality—for U. C. only.

An Act has also been introduced to make Teachers' Certificates valid during good behaviour—for L. C. only.

Another Bill has been introduced to repeal the clause of voters on By Laws for creating a debt. This Bill provides that no others except owners of real estate, and lessees of such estate, for a term of years (unexpired) at least equal to the number of years over which payments of such debt will extend. And no person shall vote as lessee until he has made proof of his qualification by producing his lease, and made affidavit of being the person named therein, or the legal representation of the person. This is a wholesome restriction and will restrain many municipalities from getting into debt, as many of the voters vote to please some interested person, knowing they will have none of the debt to pay.

AMENDMENT TO MUNICIPAL ACTS.

Mr. Wright, East York, has introduced a Bill which is to extend the right of voters, enabling them to vote for every Councillor.

It is proposed in this bill that the electors shall meet on the last Monday but one in the Month of December, for the nomination of candidates for the office of councillors. If only five are nominated they shall be declared duly elected; but if more than five are appointed and a poll is demanded, then a poll shall be granted. After the election they shall meet at the place of nomination and make declarations of those who are duly elected.

This we consider no amendment, but a nuisance, adding trouble and expense, without promising any equivalent advantage. In our opinion, this will put the election of Councillors more completely into the hands of the more designing, as the quiet, upright elector will not care for going to township meetings to wrangle and scold with the contentious and loquacious demagogue.

The Division into the ward system was brought about because of the unhappy state of affairs at Town-meetings of the past—and it having worked admirably in every instance which has come under our knowledge; there can be no good reason adduced for returning to the old system, unless it be a good reason to retrograde rather than go forward. Another Bill providing for the same purpose as the above, has been introduced by Mr. Powell. It provides that no person shall vote in cities unless his taxes be paid up.

It also provides that it shall not be lawful for any Council of any city, under any pretense whatever to impose a greater tax, in any one year than 12½ cents on the dollar, except to pay off indebtedness. This Act we predict will never become law. The uselessness of the Bill is evident on the very face of it. If such a Bill became law, progress must soon cease.

It also provides for paying Councillors of Townships and Counties for attending to the duties of their office.

Mr. McKellar proposes to abolish wards altogether, and to meet as Mr. Wright's bill provides, to nominate a Reeve and four Councillors or a Reeve, Deputy Reeve, and three Councillors, as the case may be.

In case of only the requisite number being nominated they shall be declared elected, but if more than the number required by law, an election shall be held according to electoral Divisions, but wards being abolished by the first clause, there can be no electoral divisions but one, or perhaps the Bill intends the elections to be by wards—the nomination by Municipalities. The same method of nomination of Reeves and Deputy Reeves, is also proposed for Towns in U. C. This change it it should become law will be a retrogressive step. Under the present system the Municipal laws have been found to work reasonably well, very few grievances have been heard of. The ward system is less adapted to the people. By it each ward is enabled to send the man its people desire to attend to their business, without any outside interference. The Reeve was chosen by the councillors, and generally satisfactorily to all; nor can, by any other system, a Reeve be chosen that will be more likely to be satisfactory. By this new system villages will be better able to appoint their man, or as was of olden times the councillors be chosen from one corner of a Township, despite the efforts and wishes of the other portions. Such a system will be found a failure if tried. We are persuaded the people do not desire it to become law.

ANOTHER TEMPERANCE BILL.

Mr. Bourassa, has also introduced a bill which may be called a Temperance Bill. Its object is to prohibit the sale of adulterated liquors. But as the Bill itself defines the words adulterated liquors to apply to all intoxicating liquors, bought sold or consumed in the province, by confiscating all adulterated liquors, all intoxicating liquors may easily be confiscated and destroyed. This is a step in advance of Dunkin's Act, as it provides for a provincial Analyist, whose duty it shall be to analyse all liquors which he is directed to analyse by the collector of Inland revenue, and all adulterated liquors is to be seized and destroyed. We only wish this bill may pass; the man who is fond of the crether will then either get none, or the pure stuff. It is also proposed to tax the dealer one dollar a year towards paying those Inspectors.

Mr Bourassa also proposes reducing the rate of interest to 6 per cent. He won't get that bill passed.

CURLIANA.—We are requested by the Secretary of the Peterborough curling club to present the thanks of the club to Mr. Wm. Helm, Machinist, for a pair of handsomely finished brass mounted handles for curling stones, to be competed for by the Members of the club.

AMERICAN NEWS.

The peace question is almost completely hushed, and nothing appears capable of bringing about a right mind unless a great defeat or a great victory, on some one side. It appears that the South did not ask for recognition, nor did they ask for the continuation of Slavery. This, we can easily see, was because they did not enter far enough into the subject of peace. Jef Davis, however, declares he will never consent to any terms but independence. Mr. Lincoln will have nothing but complete subjection. Lay down their arms, and become obedient and they will have mercy upon them. Beauregard declares he is prepared to fight it out, and if worsted, he will beg a passage to some foreign country. The commissioners have returned to Richmond. President Lincoln and Sec. Seward have returned to Washington, since which period, Grant has been on the move, and Lee has been trying some of his strategic movements. On the fifth, the army of the Potomac was set on motion. A portion of the army started on the road to Ream's Station. The 3rd division had gone towards Hatcher's run. About half-past four an engagement took place, in which, after severe fighting the enemy withdrew.

The South is supposed to have lost heavily. Grant still holds the advantages gained. Before long we may hear of stirring times. The South sees no hope but fight. The North finds that nothing but victory after victory can obtain a peace, and both parties appear to be preparing for the worst. From the N. Y. World we would gather that there are fears rising in the peoples' mind that if they do not conquer the South in the Spring campaign they never will. A last and mighty effort may therefore be looked for before long.

Charleston is reported evacuated, but this lacks confirmation.

Sherman is near Branchville, but there is very little knowledge of his doings or intentions, nor of the force that opposes him.

Rumours of French recognition and intervention is again afloat, and said to be more reliable than heretofore.

Mr. Slidel is said to have obtained assurance of aid, in some way, towards spring. These things are not to be attended to; there are writers who can fabricate promises of intervention and recognition for the purpose of keeping up the spirit of their party. Yet Napoleon has reason why he would like to see the Union broken up, and a trusty ally established on the shores of the gulf.

A. B. Davis, alias Willoughly Cummings who was charged with the mission of obtaining authentic evidence of the belligerent character of the raiders, was captured and tried and found guilty. He is sentenced to be hung on Friday, 17th instant, at John son's island.

The raiders are again being tried, the result is not yet known. In all probability they will be surrendered. We do not think that they will be executed, the crime is only robbery. They might be confined for life.

The examination of the Raiders is still going on at Montreal. On Tuesday evening great excitement is reported among the Confederates, owing to the arrival of the Rev. Mr. Cameron, once Chaplain to Morgan, with the much desired documents from Richmond. Mr. Cameron was delayed by the ice on the Potomac. Two others in his company (one Wilson from Toronto) were drowned. He left Richmond on the 4th instant.

Who could have the heart to do it?

The Bible Christians in this Town held their Quarterly Meeting on Monday last.—From one society there was very little money: but one of the kind friends had taken some wheat to the mill and got it ground, and brought the worthy Pastor, the Rev. Mr. Chapple, some of the flour. Mr. Chapple being necessitated to leave immediately after the business of the Quarter Meeting was over, to attend a Temperance Meeting in Otonalee, left his flour in a back kitchen, intending to arrange it as soon as he returned. When he returned, however, it was one bag less than when he left home. Some one had carried it off. Now we put the question, "who could have the heart to do it? The Minister is, too generally, poorly paid, consequently has very little to spare in this way: but we are sure he grieves more over the fallen state of the person who coveted his flour than he does for the loss. But as Mr. Hull, of Lakefield, ground the wheat without charge, for the poorly paid Preacher, and as the bag carried away is Mr. Hull's, Mr. C. would be glad if the person who took the trouble to carry it away, would be kind enough to return it immediately, and at least a portion of the flour, as soon as spring opens and work and money become more plentiful. He has no idea, however, that any tavern keeper removed the bag out of envy for his being away preaching Temperance. By this do we not learn that here are four words that by a few at least need yet to be learned, perhaps some one may read this and see them; here they are:—THOU SHALL NOT STEAL.

CURLIANA.

The Annual Match between the Northern and Southern sections of the Otonabee Curling Club, for the Beef and Greens, came off at Keene, on Tuesday, the 14th inst., between two Rinks of four men on each side, as follows, viz:—

RINK No. 1.

NORTH.	SOUTH.
Jas. Lang,—Skip.	J. S. Russell,—Skip.
D. McNevin	J. Lunderville,
H. Moore,	J. McLachlan,
J. Buchanan, ...17	J. Campbell, Jr....28

RINK No. 2.

W. Lang,—Skip.	J. Stevenson,—Skip.
Thos. Miller,	Arch'd. Weir,
Jeff. Dunsdale,	Geo. Lang,
Jno. Miller, ...13	J. Campbell, Sr...20
Shots, ...30	Shots, ...42

The South thus winning on both Rinks by a handsome majority.

The Dinner was served up by mine host McLachlan, of the American House, in his usual excellent style, and was done justice to in a manner peculiar to Keene, keen Curlers—and after drinking one bumper to the time honored toast of "A' keen Curlers," the brithers of the "roaring game" separated, resolved to meet again some ither day.

Terry Finnegan's Lecture.

Mr McCarroll delivered his "Serio-Comic lecture on Thursday evening. The audience was as large as we expected, but not so large as we would have wished to see. The lecture was delivered in a clear, distinct style. Several veins of wit and humor ran through it, and notwithstanding the strange subject, "The house that Jack built," the lecture contained many practical innuendoes worthy of being remembered. Mr. McCarroll dispersed soon poetry and music through the lecture and gave evidence of his skill as a flutenist, in playing a very melodious air with one hand. The conclusion especially, was recieved with eclat.

It is with much pleasure we are enabled to announce that Mr. McCarroll will shortly visit Peterborough again, when he will be assisted by his daughter on the Pianoforte.

Accident on the Grand Trunk.

THE HON. MR. FOLEY SEVERELY INJURED.

The Mail Train going East, on Monday, about one mile from Guelph, through means of a broken rail, had one passenger car severed from the rest and thrown down an embankment. It turned over three times in the descent. Some fifteen or twenty passengers have received injury, and among the rest Mr. Foley, who was travelling on the train, is reported as seriously injured, being badly bruised about the sides. The Conductor and several of the passengers are more or less hurt, but none dangerously. The ice and snow at a crossing was the real cause of the mishap it appears.

DURING last week, whilst Mr. Wm. Douglas, who resides on Mr. Ward's farm, in North Monaghan, was dressing a pin for a cord wood rack which he was making, the handle of the axe caught in the sleeve of his coat, thus changing the direction of the instrument, which struck him on the second joint of the thumb cutting the bone through, and almost severed it off. Dr. Pringle applied his art with success, and hopes are entertained of the restoration of the injured part.—COM.

ANNIVERSARY SERMONS.—The First Presbyterian Church of this Town, intend holding their anniversary sermons on Sunday next The services commencing at eleven o'clock, half past two, and half past six, will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Burns, and the Rev. Mr. Laing. They also intend having an anniversary soiree on Monday evening. Tea will be served at five o'clock, and addresses, delivered by Dr. Burns, Mr. Laing, and resident ministers will succeed the tea.

RAILWAY AMALGAMATION.—Mr. Wood, Member for Brant has introduced into Parliament, a bill for the amalgamation of the Grand Trunk, and Buffalo and Lake Huron Roads. A large meeting has been held at Brantford, condemning the course of their representation, and condemning the whole scheme of amalgamation as set forth in the Bill.

THE MESSENGER.—The Messenger, is the name of a new Temperance semi-monthly periodical, devoted to both Temperance and Education. It is published in Hamilton and edited by Rev. J. W. Ferguson. The letter print is very neat, the articles hitherto well written, and promises fair to battle nobly for the good cause. We wish it an extensive circulation.

PURGATORY.—A correspondent writes to know if the re-bottoming of Purgatory is to be let by contract, as this season there are many idle hands in his section. He recommends the erection of a new one, as patchwork hardly ever gives satisfaction. We recommend our friend to apply to head quarters.

Legerdemain versus Spiritualism.

From the Ottawa Citizen we learn that a certain individual named Simmons professes, by sleight of hand, to perform all that spiritualists perform, from tipping a table and making 'raps' to blood-red writing on the arm, and declares he has no intercourse with spirits, nor is he a medium. A Mr. Perley offers to pay the Sum of $100 for such an exposure of spiritualism as Mr. Simmons proposes to perform: at the same time Perley expresses his strong belief in spiritualism.—After considerable difficulty a meeting was arranged for the purpose of testing Mr. Simmons' abilities to do as he had said, to the conviction of a committee consisting of five—two chosen by each side, and an umpire, which if not done, he (Mr. Simmons) agreed to forfeit $100. When all arrangements were completed and preliminaries settled Mr. Perley refused to allow the whole matter publicity by shutting the doors against the representatives of the press.

The following on the subject we clip from the Citizen, for the benefit of our readers:—

Having accordingly selected Messrs. G. H. Perry and P. J. Buckley as his committeemen, Mr. Simmons started for Mr. Perley's house at the hour named, accompanied by two reporters. On arriving there some misunderstanding was found to have possessed Mr. Perley's mind as to the selecting of his committee-men, and a considerable time consequently elapsed before suitable individuals could be found by him. During that time the leading spirits of the party already assembled deemed it prudent, in anticipation of the tough work to be gone through in affecting or disproving communication with departed spirits, to refresh their own spirits by imbibing the spirits of the mildest spirits that di-cretion would suggest. That over, found Mr. Perley ready with his two committee-men, viz: Messrs. Horace Merril and S. H. Washburn, and a fifth committee-man, to act as umpire, was found in Alderman Goodwin. All being assembled, Mr. Perley, along with the committee of five, retired to an adjoining room to determine what should be submitted for Mr. Simmons' skill, leaving him alone with the two reporters. Some time after Mr. Perley returned and had a conversation with Mr. Simmons, the committee meanwhile deciding what it was best to do. In the course of the conversation, Mr. Perley claimed that what Mr. Simmons might do were merely tricks; while what he (Mr. Perley) had seen done, on which also he based his faith in spiritual agencies, were, he considered, realities. Mr. Perley maintained that though Mr. Simmons might do the same things as Foster had done, yet he could not believe but that what Mr. Simmons did were mere sleight of hand tricks, while what Foster did were effected by assistance from the spiritual world. Mr. Simmons replied that he could do all that Foster could; that he could even show that what Foster did was effected by the same means as he himself used; but that should Mr. Perley disbelieve or fail to under-tand his explanations, he would be content if he could get Mr. Perley to allow that he (Mr. Simmons) could produce the very same effect as Mr. Foster did. After a few more remarks, they both returned to the room where the committee were closeted. Here they remained for some time.—Previously to Mr. Perley's coming into the room where Mr. Simmons and the two reporters were, Mr. Simmons seemed to entertain some doubt as to whether the two reporters were to be allowed to witness and report the proceedings to be enacted, and in case they should not, told them he would refuse to go on with the matter any further. In the minds of the reporters there did not seem to be the least fear of such a thing, as there was absolutely no possible cause for it. But the thing was really as anticipated, although Mr. Perley, ha! of his own accord, drawn attention to the matter in the most public way, by making his ideas known on the subject thro' the columns of the Ottawa Citizen. He had, in the same manner, made the challenge and fixed the [illegible] it came to the scratch, he virtually withdrew the question beyond the reach of that publicity he first courted for it, by shutting his doors on the representatives of the press. The case was doubly aggravated by the uncourteous, not to say rude, manner in which he signified his dissatisfaction at their presence. Here our report is necessarily unceremoniously interrupted, and for a continuation we are indebted to one who was present. We believe what follows to be correct. Messrs. Perley and Simmons having returned to their Committee. Mr. Perley proposed, before commencing operations, that Mr. Simmons should select for experiment one who was an entire stranger to him, even as Foster had done in his (Mr. Perley's) presence. It being accordingly agreed on, Mr. Perley went out and got a Mr. C. K. Eddy, of Island Street, who, during the whole proceedings, said not a word to one or another. The stranger was immediately directed to write any name whatever on certain slips of paper furnished him, and then to make up the slips into little balls and throw them down on the table in an indiscriminate heap, which he did. Just before he began to do this, however, Ald. Goodwin interrupted the proceedings by proposing that Mr. Simmons should expose his arms for inspection before commencing. This he at once did, and seemed to satisfy every one present that there was no preparation or deception of any kind about his arms. Mr. Simmons then sat quite motionless, while the slips of paper were being put together. One of the committee-men then touched the papers very slowly, one at a time, and on coming to the third or fourth the raps came to the table. The paper was taken up by the Committee-man and handed to the gentleman who wrote it, when Mr. Simmons told him, before he began to open it, that the name written thereon was John W. Campbell. The next moment Mr. Simmons turned up his sleeve, and as he showed them his arm, the name grew brighter and brighter before their eyes. The second paper was taken up, and upon that paper, written by the same gentleman, Mr. Simmons, in the same way, showed the name Christopher Eastman. This seemed to satisfy the Committee-men on that point. Mr. Simmons then left the room, while the first four Committee-men each put down on a slip of paper what numbers they fancied; the fifth Committee man added up the whole, and as Mr. Simmons re-entered the room, he (Mr. Simmons) called out the total, which, when examined by each of the Committee-men individually, was found to be correct. At the same time the total appeared in unmistakeable characters on Mr. Simmons' bared arm. This seemed to startle Mr. Perley more than anything else. Not the least idea, however, could have existed of Mr. Simmons' having gleaned anything while outside of what was going on in the room, as during that time he kept drumming away at the piano. Mr. Perley himself acknowledged that it was the greatest mystery he had ever seen, and that he could not account for it in any way whatever. Various other tricks were performed after this, when Mr. Perley said he did not think Foster could do that. After occupying about three hours altogether the conclusion was come to that they should meet again for further manifestations the same afternoon in the same place. Throughout the whole proceedings, Mr. Perley, though backed by the majority of the committee (they being much of his way of thinking in reference to the so-styled "spiritualism,") seemed like a client sure of losing his suit, but determined to consider that injustice had been done him. Mr. Simmons asked him what things Foster had done, and said whatever he had done, he (Mr. Simmons) would do. Mr. Perley declined to tell him what Foster had done, but referred him to the Committee, who, he said, would inform him. Mr. Simmons asked them, and they were silent; so that he exclaimed, "How can I do anything when you won't tell me what to do." Mr. Simmons, we are informed, has promised, if Mr. Perley pays him the $100, that he is willing to divide $50 of it between the Protestant and Roman Catholic Hospitals. Mr. Simmons was unable to meet the Committee at five o'clock as had been arranged; but it is understood that the whole party will assemble at Mr. Perley's this morning.

GREAT FIRE IN PHILADELPHIA.

TERRIBLE LOSS OF LIFE.

Philadelphia, Feb. 9.

A large fire commenced about 3 o'clock this morning, originating in Blackburn & Co's sheds for storing coal oil, on North and Federal streets. About fifty dwellings have been consumed, occupying two squares on both sides of Ninth street, besides a few on Federal and Wharton streets. Fifteen lives are reported lost. The streets became flooded with snow, water and oil. The oil ran along the streets in full blaze, setting fire to the lower portions of dwellings, and preventing the escape of inmates. Four children perished in one house.

Two thousand barrels of oil were consumed. Forty-seven three-storey buildings are burned. The in-urance is largely held in New York. Six bodies have been recovered from the ruins.

The oil that escaped from the burning barrels poured over into 9th street and down to Federal, filling the entire street with a lake of fire, and igniting the houses on both sides of 9th street for two squares, carrying devastation into Washington, Ellsworth and Federal streets, both above and below 9th street. Fully five squares of houses, had they been placed in a row, were on fire at once.

The scene was one to make the stoutest heart quail. Men, women and children were literally roasted alive in the streets.

Capt. Joseph H. Ware who occupied a dwelling in the vicinity, with his wife and five daughters and two sons, met with a sad misfortune. They all succeeded in getting into the street from the house, just as they left their beds, but found themselves in a river of fire. The family became scattered, Mrs. Ware had her youngest child in her arms, and was endeavoring to save it. She fell, when herself, a little child and another daughter about 15 years of age were all burned to death in the street, and their bodies were so horribly mutilated that they could only be identified by the peculiar circumstances surrounding them.

Captain Ware and his two sons escaped, but the other three daughters are missing. Six bodies in all have thus far been recovered, three of them have been recognised as belonging to the Ware family. Another one of the bodies is supposed to be that of James Gibbons, there is also the body of a boy, not yet recognized, and that of a fireman. It is thought that several other persons have perished, and that their bodies are still under the ruins.

Secret Treaty between France and the Confederacy.

The New York Daily News of Saturday last publishes a letter from its London correspondent. The letter is a long one, but its purport may be briefly stated. The writer affirms positively that at the present moment there are two formidable iron-clads afloat in the open sea under the Confederate flag.—These vessels, he says, were built in France; they are called the Sphynx and the Cheops. These monsters of the deep are represented as being the most powerful of the kind armed with the heavies and most effective ordnance, and invulnerable to any projectiles used in warfare. They could with impunity steam into New York harbor and reduce the city to ashes, or exact a ransom that would fill the Confederate Treasury with greenbacks. The second statement of the correspondent is that there exists a secret alliance between France and the Southern Confederacy, and that the Emperor's own recognition will not be long delayed.

The London correspondent of the Herald confirms these statements.

THE RURAL ANNUAL AND HORTICULTURAL DIRECTORY.—Such is the title of a neat little work of 120 pages, issued each year from the office of the GENESEE FARMER, Rochester, N. Y. The volume for 1865 is just out. It contains a large amount of information for the farmer, fruit-grower, and every one interested in the cultivation of the soil. Among the principal topics discussed are: The Best Tree Right; Raising Clover Seed; Charring Old Sods; New Method of Training Pear Trees; Pruning; Chicory as a Substitute for Coffee; The Golden Age of Fruit Culture; Poultry as Egg Producers; Experiments in Feeding Hogs with Different Foods; Fattening Cattle in Winter; Grafting Old Orchards; Artificial Manures; with many other articles of great interest. The price of the RURAL ANNUAL is only twenty-five cents. It will be sent prepaid by mail on receipt of price. Address JOSEPH HARRIS, Publisher GENESEE FARMER, Rochester, N. Y.

THE ARMAMENT ON THE LAKES.—The President has approved and signed the joint resolution that the notice given by the President to the Government of Great Britain and Ireland to terminate the treaty of 1817, regulating the naval force upon the lakes is hereby adopted and ratified, as if the same had been authorized by Congress.

This is preceded by the declaration that the peace of our frontier is now endangered by hostile expeditions against the commerce of the lakes, and that other acts of lawless persons which the naval force of the two countries, allowed by the existing treaty, may be insufficient to prevent.

NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—An extract from a letter from the Secretary to the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company, (late Messrs. Glass, Elliot & Co,) dated London Jan, 28, 1865, to Mr. Cyrus W. Field, states; "I am happy to inform you that the Atlantic cable is progressing most satisfactorily. Up to last evening 1,025½ nautical miles had been completed, and tests magnificently."

HAMILTON ELECTION.—At the nomination in Hamilton Mr. Magill obtained the show of hands. Both the candidates are considered untrustworthy Reformers; the contest is purely personal. The only paper that appears to side with either of the candidates is the Spectator. For what reason we cannot opine. The Times refuses to engage in a personal contest; in this it gives evidence of wisdom.

The following appointments appear in the Gazette:

William Davis Ardagh, Esquire, to be Deputy Judge of the County Court of the county of Simcoe.

Walter Rubidge, of Peterborough, J. G. Meredith, of Dundas, Richard Hayes, of Hemmingford, and Rodger Duckett, of Cotean Station, Esquires, to grant Passports and Certificates to British subjects, to enable them to travel in Foreign parts.

BURGLARY.—Some person or persons unknown, entered the Building Society's office, London, on the night of the 7th instant, and blew open a safe, pocketing the contents to the amount of $114. They attempted to blow open another but failed. No clue to the parties was found at last accounts.

NEW YORK FEARING AN ATTACK.—Two formidable naval rams, the "Sphynx" and "Cheops," built in France and fitted out there, are said to be afloat—destination New York, with the object of either destroying the City or laying it under heavy contributions.

Rhode Island, Michigan, Illinois, and Massachusetts have ratified the constitutional amendment abolishing slavery, by large majorities.

PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

NOTICES OF MOTIONS.

Feb. 9, 1865.

Mr. Walbridge (North Hastings)—On Monday next—Address to his Excellency the Governor General, praying that he will be pleased to cause to be laid before this House, copies of correspondence exchanged, during the years 1857, 1858 and 1859, between the Government of Canada and the Government of the Province of New Brunswick, or by the former with any duly accredited agent of the latter Government, or with the Honorable James Harding, on the subject of a political or commercial union of the Provinces of British North America.

Mr. Webb—On Monday next—Enquiry of Ministry whether it is the intention of Government to pay to the Townships of Lower Canada the indemnity so long due to them under the Seigniorial Act, before the contemplated Confederation of the British North American Provinces takes place. If not before, whether it is the intention of the Government to provide for its payment under the new Constitution?

Mr. Dufresne (Montealm)—On Monday next—To add Messrs. Denis, Bellerose, Gaudet and Raymond to the committee appointed to enquire into the administration of the Seigniory of Sorel.

Mr. Burwell—On Monday next—Bill intitled: "An act to incorporate the St. Thomas Cemetery Company."

Mr. Perrault—On Monday next—Bill to amend Chapter 51 of the Consolidated Statutes of Lower Canada, respecting the improvement of Water-courses.

Mr. Macfarlane—On Monday next—Enquiry of Ministry whether it is the intention of the Government to pay, this Session, to municipalities in Upper Canada in which are located Government Lands, the arrears, up to 6th March, 1861, of the sum formerly allotted from the "Imperial Fund," as established under the provisions of Section 14 of 16 Vict., Cap. 159, consolidated by Section 7, Cap. 26, of the Consolidated Statutes of Canada?

Mr. Haultain—On Monday next—Enquiry of Ministry whether it is the intention of the Government to establish Savings Banks in connection with the Post Office Department?

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL.

QUEBEC, Feb. 13—Hon. Mr. Price moved for copies of the correspondence addressed to the registrars of the counties of Chicoutimi and Charlevoix respecting the enrollment of the militia where such enrollment did not take place, or was only partially carried out.

Carried.

Hon. Mr Christie Moved for all correspondence which may have taken place between the Government of Canada and the Imperial Government or the Government of the United States, or the British Ambassador at Washington, on the subject of the Reciprocity Treaty.

Carried.

On the motion of the Hon. Mr Price, a bill to amend the law respecting the inspection of leather was read a second time.

The House then resumed the adjourned debate on the confederation address and Mr. Sanborn's ammendment thereto.

At six o'clock the debate was adjourned, and the House rose.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

QUEBEC, Feb. 10—The following bills were introduced and read a first time:—

Mr Bellerose, to ammend the act incorporating the Society of St. Francois Xavier of Montreal Mr J. S. Smith, to legalize by-law 128 of the town of Port Hope, and the issue of debentures therein mentioned; Mr Morris to extend the time for the completion of the Brockville and Ottawa Railway, and for other purposes; Mr. M. C. Cameron, to ratify and confirm an agreement entered into between the Grand Trunk, Gt. Western, and Northern Railway Companies, with reference to their tracks on the Esplanade at Toronto, and for other purpose; Mr. Morris, to incorporate the Sun Insurance Company of Montreal.

Atty.-Gen. MacDonald moved that the adjourned debate on the Confederation address, when resumed on Thursday, the 16th instant, be proceeded with from day to day after half past seven, until finally disposed of. Carried.

Mr. Galt moved concurrence in the resolution adopted by the Committee of the whole, that a sumbly be granted to Her Majesty Carried.

In reply to Mr. Holton.

Mr. Galt stated that on Tuesday he would probably ask the sanction of the Committee of Supply to the supplimentary estimates. He could not say when he would bring down the ordinary estimates. As next financial year did not commence till the 1st of July, there was no occasion for undue haste for providing for service.

On motion of Sol-Gen. Cockburn, the house went into Committee on certain resolutions relative to the fees of registrars of deeds in U C., and adopted the same.

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY—Quebec, Feb. 10.

After the recess,

Hon. Mr. Rose moved the second reading of a bill for the relief of the Ottawa and Prescott Railroad Company, &c.

Hon Mr. Holton opposed the second reading at this time, as the order for the second reading of the bill of the member for Brant, was placed for Monday, this might be also. The question of public policy which he conceived to be involved in this bill, and in which he thought the Government had a responsibility, was a policy of consenting all the railways of the country in the hands of one Corporation. He believed that it was a very dangerous policy indeed. He knew that special reasons would be given for this bill; that it was not an amalgamation bill, but substantially, it was practically to place for all time the ownership and control of this in the hands of the Grand Trunk Company. He was not prepared to say that the bill ought to be rejected, but he thought the house was entitled to hear from the Government on the bill. He dissented in toto from the doctrine that in case of any bill of that nature, which touches the public policy of the country, the second reading does not involve the principle of the bill. It was for that reason that he desired that the bill should stand for Monday.

Mr Shanly represented private interests affected by this bill, but he would not oppose the second reading at this time as he understood from his friend Mr. Rose, that he would not press the discussion of the bill in Committee at once, but would wait till Tuesday week.

Hon. Mr Rose said that the Ottawa and Prescott Railway had been in difficulties for many years. The bill was asked for on the part of the city of Ottawa, the Township of Oxford, and nearly all the bond and stockholders. It was in fact a domestic arrangement by which they hoped to get out of the difficulties in which they are involved. There was a bill before the house last session by which the greater number of the parties interested were desirous of allowing a certain sum of money to be raised to prevent a sale of the road; this was opposed and withdrawn. Since that time matters have got to a crisis. The persons who held the first mortgage bonds, the Ebbo wvale Iron Company, which, twelve years ago, furnished material, had never from that day to this seen one shilling of capital or return for their money amounting to six or eight hundred thousand dollars which is a first charge on the road; the parties who have the next claim are the city of Ottawa, the Grand Trunk and the town of Prescott. It turns out that a judgment creditor has a claim against the rolling stock and the road was stopped for a length of time. In this state of embarrassment all parties concerned met to devise means by which the road might be kept open.—They came to the arrangement embraced in this bill. They found that the rolling stock had been sold under execution, and had passed into their hands. Prescott was the only party declining to concur in the bill. The arrangement was this, that the Grand Trunk which had mortgage and chattel bonds should continue to work the Road giving use of the rolling stock, charge and should be paid for working out of the first earnings, and the other mortgage should be paid according to priority. He (Mr Rose) did not see any other course open for the large interests involved. Its rolling stock was in the hands of the Grand Trunk; and it must be redeemed. It was not competent for an arrangement to be made whereby the Grand Trunk could work the road, while that company had to give $300,000 to aid that very railway. It is said that this was an amalgamation, but it was simply a work of necessity. There was also another consideration. The present gauge of the Prescott Road was narrow; the bill provided for the Grand Trunk, altering it so as to obviate its inconvenience of changing cars.

Hon. Mr. Cartier asked what the country would be without this Grand Trunk? What would be the postal department if the receipts were deprived of the privileges brought by that company. The bill could go into committee as that of the member for Brome had. If anything involved a principal, that did, and why should the bill of the member for the Montreal Centre be treated differently.

Hon. Mr. Holton would have been very well pleased if the Government had taken ground upon the second reading of that bill.

Hon. Mr. Cartier.—The hon. member knew very well the composition of the Railway Committee. The happiness of its members was purposely to take discussion out of the House.

Mr. Dunkin said Mr. Cartier contended that the non-committalism of the Government at this time was justified by the course which he took in reference to his (Dunkin's) bill. The principle of his bill was admitted last year, and this year it was next to the Railway Committee a delay of eight days was had, and then the Government took two days to say what course they would take. To-day when they met, he was not to get an answer for two or three days more, but by good fortune he did get it, and it was united to this, that Government intended to legislate on the subject and we must wait for the legislation. The cases of the two bills were not similar; his was referred to the Committee for the purpose of quietly arranging it; that of Mr. Rose for the purpose of carrying it through. This bill was to put the Grand Trunk in possession of the road for all time to come. If that was not amalgamation he did not know what was. The intention was to put all the Railways in the country under one powerful Company, so that Company might control the Government of the country.

Mr. POWELL, although opposed to great monopolies, and believing that harm was likely to result from the amalgamation of such great opposing lines as the Great Western and the Grand Trunk Companies, at the same time did not hesitate to say that great advantage was derivable from the working of short subsidiary lines by the Grand Trunk line. They must have this bill or go without the road. They had not appreciated the full value of the road till it stopped working. The immense advantage of having access to the capital had been stopped. The Ottawa interest, formerly objecting to this measure, now supported it. If the amendments were necessary they should be made in the Railway Committee.

Mr. Bell was the projector, and, until the end of the last year President, but had now ceased to have connection with it. He had no personal interest in the bill but the interest of the country required that the bill should pass.

Hon. Mr. Galt attacked Mr. Dunkin for dragging vague general apprehensions into the discussion. He thought the House would rather be disposed to deal with the practical question whether they choose to allow the road to be stopped, or allow the only party in a position to do it to repair and run it. He did not declare he had made up his mind to oppose the reading of the bill, but seemed to have talked to get the House into the same doubts as himself. He had roused their misgivings as to whether they had not better to pay $40 or $50 to go by carriage from Pre cott to Ottawa rather than allow this gigantic monopoly to overwhelm the province. Yet believing the G. T. Railway itself the greatest blessing to the country, he thought it rather too much to ask the House to leave the capital without railway communication on the strength of their vague apprehensions.

Mr. Haultain supported the member for Brome. Perhaps if they would stop with this one case no great harm might be done, but if they began they would not know where to stop. The principle of amalgamation would create a dangerous monopoly. He hoped the member from Brome would persevere in his opposition to it.

Mr Holton denied he was hostile to the Grand Trunk Railway. he was friendly to it and believed it to be of great benefit to the country, and would do all he could, consistently with sound policy, for it—but it did not require great foresight to foresee, that if they built up a great railway monopoly, and it choose to exert a political influence, great evils would result.

Mr. Smith was willing to send the bill to a Committee but was against the creation of a monopoly.

Hon Mr. McDougall, notwithstanding his connection with the present Government, was prepared to pursue the policy adopted in a former time, but

MELODEON

AND

COTTAGE ORGAN EMPORIUM,

PETERBORO, C.W.

Estey's Perfect Melodeon

AND

COTTAGE ORGAN.

ESTABLISHED 1864.

FORMERLY ESTEY & GREEN.

The only Manufactory in this Country of the Perfect Melodeon and Cottage Organ with Patent Base Damper, Patent Harmonic Attachment, and Patent Manual Sub-Base.

These inimitable instruments have won their way to public confidence purely on their merits, and not by force of extensive advertising and purchased recommendations. With our increased facilities for manufacture, we are still unable to meet the extraordinary demand made upon us; but we hope soon to be able to fill all orders promptly.

Some of the points of superiority claimed for our instruments, are these:—

1st.—Smooth, steady and pipe-like quality of tone.

2nd.—Great delicacy of touch and promptness of action; producing, when desired, a low, sweet, lute-like tone, unequalled by any other instrument of the class.

3d.—The Patent Base Damper, which enables the performer to swell the treble without increasing the volume of the base; or, by drawing the Stop, to swell the notes by the action of the foot.

4th.—The Patent Harmonic Attachment. An ingenious octave coupler, which doubles the power of the instrument without increasing its size or the number of reeds.

5th.—The Patent Manual Sub-Base, which are played with the ordinary keys and controlled by a stop. This new and valuable invention requires no extra room and serves as a substitute for the Pedal Base, and can be used by an ordinary performer.

6th.—The Knee-Stop, in the Cottage Organ, which swells or diminishes the tone by a slight movement of the left knee, without interfering with the action of the feet,—having this advantage over the Automatic Swell that the volume of tone may be readily increased without extraordinary effort, and diminished without waiting for the change in the actions of the bellows.

Our recently constructed Cottage Organ, without the attachments, is unsurpassed by any Reed Organ or Harmonium of the size; but, with the Harmonic Attachment and Manual Sub-base, it is pronounced by competent judges to be far superior to any other instrument of the class in the world. Its power, sweetness, and variety of tone, simplicity of construction and ease of management, recommend it to every one as being all that is claimed for it, both for the parlor and the church.

The Harmonic Organ, for Churches and Public Halls, has a fine, powerful Pedal Base, with independent reeds; and, with the Harmonic Attachment, is believed to be the most powerful Reed Organ made, being nearly equal to a pipe organ of three times its cost.

All our Instruments are made in the most thorough manner, and warranted in every respect

JOS. R. WALTON,

Agent.

Peterborough, Jan. 1865. 4

Rev. A. C. Rose, of Troy, N.Y. says:—These give the value of five Melodeons in one. The ease of touch and promptness of action are unrivaled. It can be played with all the sweetness of the lute or Æolian harp, and changed in an instant to its full power, nearly equal to a twelve stop organ.

All orders addressed to the undersigned will receive prompt attention.

JOSEPH R. WALTON, Peterboro.

TESTIMONIALS.

JAMES BROWN, Esq., M. D.

Peterboro, October 20th, 1864.

I am happy to inform you that after the most perseverating and testing trial for some weeks of the Cottage and Parlor Organ, we like it better every day. It is remarkable for variety of tone and power, and several of the best judges here say it is unequalled by any instrument of the kind (with double reed) they have ever heard. You can so control and command all its parts, as to pass easily and rapidly from the softest tones of the Harp, Lute or Piano, to the rich full swell of a large Organ. It is easily played by child or adult, and is already a very great favorite with us. Its compact structure, ingenious combination of power with the new and beautiful Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-base are greatly admired and are highly creditable to the maker, Estey, of Vermont. I think it is peculiarly adapted for Church Music.

EDW. F. CROWLE, A. M. &c.

Sheridan Villa Seminary, Peterboro, Dec. 1864.

We are delighted with the Cottage Organ with Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-base. We prefer it to any instrument of the kind we have ever seen: its tone, sweet and harmonious in the parlor, possesses sufficient power for a church

REV. J. C. SLATER.

Wesleyan Parsonage, Millbrook, Jan. 1865.

I have much pleasure in testifying my entire satisfaction of the Cabinet Organ, purchased from you, as an instrument possessing superior qualities in sweetness, variety and strength, to anything of the kind I have ever seen. Two experienced musicians who have examined it, concur with me in recommending it as a perfect instrument adapted to Church or Parlor.

GEO. A. NORRIS, M. D., Recording Steward of the Wesleyan Church, Omemee.

Omemee, July, 1864.

In reply to your inquiries as to the Harmonic Organ, purchased from you for our church, we have to express our highest satisfaction; in purity and sweetness of tone as well as volume of sound, it is all that can be reasonably expected.

Peterborough, Dec. 20th, 1864.

MR J. R. WALTON,—Having examined and played upon the Parlor Organs sold by you, and Manufactured by Mr Estey, I have great pleasure in pronouncing them a first class instrument, The Harmonic attachment and manual Sub-base being a very great improvement and well worthy the patronage of the Musical public. Yours truly,

A. T. HEATHFIELD,

Organist of St. John's Church, Peterborough.

SEWING MACHINE DEPOT.

OVER S. WHITE'S SHOE STORE

AND DIRECTLY

Opposite W. Cluxton's Store,

GEORGE STREET,

PETERBOROUGH.

THE very great demand existing here for Sewing Machines has induced the undersigned to open an office in Peterboro' for the sale of Sewing Machines. He will at all times keep on hand a variety of the most

Improved Machines

BY DIFFERENT MAKERS,

Which he will supply at the very lowest rates, and will give his personal attention to instruct parties who may purchase from him in their use, and also keep the machines in good running order for one year.

The most popular Sewing Machines now before the public, and which he will keep on sale, are

Wanzer's Singer's SEWING MACHINES,

FOR MANUFACTURER'S USE,

Sold usually at $65, now offered for $45.

WANZER'S COMBINATION,

For Family use and light Tailoring.

Worth $45, now offered at $30.

Wanzer's Wheeler and Wilson's,

For Dressmakers and other fine work,

worth $45, now offered at $40.

C. W. WILLIAMS & Co's

UNEQUALLED DOUBLE THREAD

FAMILY SEWING MACHINES,

Equal to the Grover & Baker's $60 Machines, offered now at $30.

Patterson's Sewing Machines,

Manufactured at and known as the Belleville Sewing Machine, and a favorite with many persons, now sold for $30.

WAXED THREAD MACHINES,

for Harness or Shoemaker's work at reduced prices.

The advantages offered by the establishment of this depot, are a great choice of makers, and that all Machines will be guaranteed to be kept in order for one year.

VERY LOW PRICES.

These Machines are all made in Canada, and in the event of any part becoming broken, it can be replaced at once.

No Family should be without a Sewing Machine.

CERTIFICATES:

Peterborough, Feb. 27th, 1864.

The undersigned have had in use for some time Sewing Machines from the Manufactory of Messrs. WANZER & Co., of Hamilton, purchased from Mr. THOMAS BLETCHER, and we have much pleasure in testifying to the satisfaction we have experienced in their use. We believe the Sewing Machines sold by Mr. Bletcher are among the best in the market.

A LOVING HEART.

Fancy eyes may lose their brightness;
Nimble feet forget their lightness.
Pearly teeth may bow decay;
Raven tresses turn to gray;
Cheeks be pale and eyes be dim;
Faint the voice, and weak the limb,
But though youth and strength depart,
Fadeless is a living heart.

Like the little mountain flower,
Peeping forth in wintry hour,
When the summer's breath is fled,
And the gayer flowerets dead;
So when outward charms are gone,
Brighter still doth blossom on,
Despite Time's destroying dart,
The gentle, kindly, loving heart.

Wealth and talents will avail
When on life's rough sea we sail;
Yet the wealth may melt like snow,
And the wit no longer glow
But more smooth we'll find the sea,
And our course the fairer be,
If our pilot, when we start,
Be a kindly, loving heart.

Ye in worldly wisdom old—
Ye who bow the knee to gold,
Doth this world as lovely seem
As it did in life's young dream
Ere the world had crusted o'er
Feelings good and pure before—
Ere ye sold at Mammon's mart
The best yearnings of the heart?

Grant me, Heaven, my earnest prayer—
Whether life or ease or care
Be the one to me assigned,
That each coming year may find
Loving thoughts and gentle words
Twined within my bosom chords,
And that age may but impart
Riper freshness to the heart.

AN INVITATION TO DINNER.

It was observed that a certain covetous rich man never invited any one to dine with him. I'll lay a wager that, said a wag, I will get an invitation from him.

The wager being accepted, he goes the next day to the rich man's house about the time he was to dine, and tells the servant he must speak with his master immediately, for he can save him a thousand pounds.

Sir, said the servant to his master, there is a man in a great hurry to speak with you; he says he can save you a thousand pounds.

Out came the master. What is that, sir; you can save me a thousand pounds?

Yes, sir, I can, but I see you are at dinner; I will go away and call again.

Oh, pray, sir, come in and take dinner with me.

I shall be troublesome.

Not at all.

The invitation was accepted. As soon as dinner was over, and the family retired, Well, sir, said the man of the house, now to your business. Pray let me know how I am to save a thousand pounds?

Well, sir, I hear you have a daughter to dispose of in marriage.

I have sir.

And you intend to portion her with ten thousand pounds?

I do sir.

Why, then, sir, let me have her, and I will take her with nine thousand.

The master of the house arose in a passion, and kicked him out of doors.

The following apt illustration of the contest between the Federals and Confederates in America is given in a book of original papers and sketches just published amongst the Christmas gift books:—

I could not finish you up, said some lemons to a bottle of carbonic soda. I could soon take the taste out of you, answered the soda. Let us try our strength, said the lemons. With all my heart, said the soda; and to work they went, trying with all their might to extinguish each other. Fizz went the lemons; fizz went the soda; and they went on fizzing till there was nothing of either of them left, and only a nauseous puddle showed where the fight had been.

A man coming home late one night, a little more than half seas over, feeling thirsty, procured a glass of water and drank it. In doing so he swallowed a small ball of silk that lay in the bottom of the tumbler, the end catching in his teeth. Feeling something in his mouth, and not knowing what it was, he began pulling at the end, and the little ball unrolling, he soon had several feet in his hands, and still no end apparently. Terrified, he shouted at the top of his voice, Wife! wife! I say, wife, come here! I'm unravelling!

Although no two faces are alike, very few faces deviate widely from the common standard. Among the eighteen hundred thousand beings who inhabit London, there is not one whose child be taken by his acquaintance for another; yet we may walk from Paddington to Mile-end without seeing one person in whom any feature is so overchanged that we turn round to stare at it. An infinite number of varieties lie between limits which are not far asunder. The specimens which pass those limits on either side from a very small minority.—Macaulay.

Rev. Mark Trafton, of New Bedford, advertises:—

"If the person who stole my overcoat from my hall on Sabbath evening will read the Methodist Discipline, which was in one of the pockets, he will learn something to his advantage."

A housemaid boasting of her industrious habits said quite innocently, that on a certain occasion she rose at four, made a fire, put on the kettle, prepared a breakfast, and made all the beds, before a single soul was up in the house.

An exchange says that it is just as sensible a move to undertake to get married without courting, as to attempt to succeed in business without advertising.

DISTANCES.—How far is Taunton asked a countryman, who was walking exactly the wrong way to reach that town. 'Bout twenty-four thousand miles, said the lad he asked if you go the way you are going now, but a mile if you turn around.

The Accidental Death Insurance Company, of London, insure all but drunkards—a hard drinker they consider a gone sucker.

What is the difference between a cat and an Act of Parliament? One has claws at the end of its paws, and the other has pauses at the end of its clauses.

Stoves were invented in England in 1680. By their first arrangement the smoke descended and passed through flues, under the floor, till it found vent through the walls.

John Steel of Philadelphia, lately died from the effect of a kick of a horse. He is said to have been the wealthiest man in Pennsylvania and his receipts (from the oil business) were $3,000 a day.

In support of the above statements, are presented the Certificates of Dr. Jas. R. Chilton, Chemist, New York; Dr. Hiram Cox, Chemical Inspector, Ohio; Dr. James R. Nichols, Chemist, Boston; Dr. N. E. Jones, Chemical Inspector Circleville, Ohio; Prof. C. T. Jackson, Chemist, Boston; Dr. Chas. Upham Shepard, Charleston, S. C.; and J. V. Z. Blaney, and G. A. Mariner, Consulting Chemists, Chicago, all of whom have analyzed the Catawba Brandy, and commend it in the highest terms, for medical use.

Analysis of the Massachusetts State Assayer, Jan. 25, 1858.

When evaporated through clean linen it left no oil or offensive matter. In every respect it is a pure spirituous liquor. The oil which gives to this Brandy its flavour and aroma, is fusil, or grain oil. Its order partakes of both the fruit and oil of grapes. With acids, it produces ethers of a high fragrance. The substitution of this Brandy for Cognac Brandy will do away with the manufacture of fictitious spirits, sold under this name both at home and abroad. Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M.D., Assayer to State Mass, 16 Boylston St.

By the same, in 1864.

I have analyzed "L. LYONS' PURE CATAWBA BRANDY," with reference to its composition and character, being the same as that produced in past years. A sample taken from ten casks afforded the same result with regard to purity; a slightly increased amount of the principle on which its flavor depends was determined by comparison with former samples.

The indication of analysis show that this Brandy is produced by the same process as most of the imported Brandy. Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M.D., State Assayer, Boston July 20, 1864. 16 Boylston St

ATTENTION is directed to the rate of premiums adopted by this Company, which will compare favorably with that of any other institution in Canada. Investments of Company's funds to the large amount of nearly five hundred thousand dollars have been completed in Canada; and as all business transactions are finally disposed of in the Province, the Scottish Provincial offers all the facilities presented by a purely local Company, while it possesses the additional advantage of a large capital, and an influential and responsible body of shareholders in Great Britain.

Policies effected on or before 31st January next will receive a full year's bonus over those effected thereafter.

Are Manure Cellars Under Barns Best?

It is very desirable to have manure under cover, that it may continue its fermentation all winter; that it may be protected from the action of sun, wind and rain; and that it may be overhauled and composed with muck or other things. We know of barns constructed so well, and provided with such good ventilation, that the manure below does not seem to have any bad influence upon the cattle or the fodder. Others, however, are defective in some points, and have at times, the rank, close smell of fermenting manure pervading the entire building—the ammonia being distinctly perceptible in the stalls, and without doubt seriously affecting the health of the stock. This is especially true where a number of horses are stabled. As a general rule it is preferable even in hill-side barns with the stock standing upon the ground floor, to have the manure thrown back of them into a lower and separate apartment, a "manure cellar," with a grouted bottom and pit for containing the liquids, with a pump for throwing the liquid manure over the pile, and so arranged that the whole can be conveniently worked over and mixed with muck, sods, soil, and other vegetable matter. The fumes from the heating manure will thus not interfere with the contents of the barn nor with the health of the stock. Over this manure shed or cellar may be kept the litter for bedding, purposes early in the season, tools, etc., and if it can be constructed so as to be accessible to loaded carts, muck may be stored always ready to mix with the manure daily thrown out from the stable.

Poultry Management in France.

In some districts of France the farmers appropriate rooms called "couvoir" for their setting hens, round which are laid planks raised on trestals about 18 inches from the ground; on these planks are placed little baskets of osier, close made at bottom and round the sides, but with widely barred tops; each of these baskets contain one hen. Some of these couvirs are adapted to hold from 300 to 400 hens; which are all taken off at intervals to feed, and to have their legs washed and cleansed. The hens are generally set in lots of from 6 to 10, so that at hatching time the broods may be increased or diminished, according to the success of each hen. The coops in use for the broods are large, and a hen is often allowed from 18 to 24 chickens. As fast as the chickens are hatched they are taken with the hen that is selected to act as mother to them to an orchard or enclosed space, and are there fed and tended until big enough to shift for themselves.

TO STRENGTHEN FRUIT TREES.—Fruit and ornamental trees will sometimes so form their crotches as to split down under a heavy load of fruit or in violent wind. This evil can be obviated by inarching or cross-grafting. Take a vigorous shoot, in spring, and insert one end under the bark of the main stem and the other under that of the opposite branch. Tie the branches firmly together, to prevent slipping apart in windy weather. Or, instead of taking a separate scion, a growing sprout may sometimes be found near the place needing to be strengthened, and by cutting off the top it may be inserted under the bark of the opposite limb. These braces may be put in every few years, as the tree needs them. Such "Siamesed" trees are quite interesting objects to look at.

CHANGE OF SEED.—T. E. Willoughby, of Ogle county, Ill., writes the Genesee Farmer that he obtained some seed corn last year from Joseph Wright, of Waterloo, N.Y., and "had a large crop." Mr. Wright sends to the West for his seed corn, (Ohio Dent,) and we suppose the object in a Western former getting his seed from him, is that after it has been grown in this more northern latitude it will be earlier. Corn ripens earlier as we go North, and when taken South has a tendency for a year or two to ripen at the time—and is consequently earlier. With wheat the case is reversed. Wheat ripens earlier as we go South, and for this reason it is desirable to get seed wheat from a more Southern latitude.

RECEIPTS.

FARMERS PAINT.—Farmers will find the following profitable for house or fence paint:—

Skim milk, two quarts; fresh slaked lime, eight ounces; linseed oil, six ounces; white Burgundy pitch, two ounces; spanish white, three pounds. The lime to be soaked in water, exposed to the air, and then mixed with about one fourth of the milk; the oil in which the pitch is dissolved to be added a little at a time, then the rest of the milk, and afterward the Spanish white; this is sufficient for 21 yds., 2 coats. This is for white paint. If desirable any other colour may be produced, thus if a cream color is desirable in place of the Spanish white use the ochre alone.—Working Farmer.

UNBOLTED WHEAT BREAD.—Mix one quart of warm water, a teaspoonful of salt, with fine wheat flour enough to make a thin batter. Let this stand uncovered over night. The next morning stir in half a teacupful of molasses, a tablespoonful of salt, and mix with unbolted flour into a dough stiff enough to knead without sticking to the pan. Let it rise moderately, mold it over, place it in a greased pan, and when entirely light, bake it about three-quarters of an hour in a moderately hot oven.

PICKLING FOR HAMS OR BEEF.—For each 100 lbs. of meat, take 7 lbs. coarse salt, 5 lbs. brown sugar, 2 ounces saltpeter, ½ ounce soda or saleratus, and 4 gallons water. Boil and skim the mixture, let it cool, and when cold pour it upon the meat, which should be weighed to keep it down. Leave common sized hams in pickle 4 to 5 weeks. Beef can be kept until used up, if the brine be scalded occasionally.

GOOD "NUTCAKES."—Mix 5 eggs, 1 cup sweet milk, butter the size of an egg, 2 teaspoonsful cream of tartar, 1 of soda, a little nutmeg, and flour enough to roll out. Cut in rounds, making a small hole in each, then drop them into hot fat and fry to a light brown.

IMPROVED HASTY PUDDING.—Sift the meal and make a batter of meal and cold water. Heat water boiling hot salted to taste, and gradually stir in the batter until just thick enough for the mush to hop and sputter while boiling hard. Let it boil from one to two hours over a slow fire; it burns easily, and is spoiled if scorched. Do not add any meal after the batter is all in. Make it free from lumps.

FARMERS' CAKE.—Mix 1 cup of cream, 1 of sour milk, 2 of sugar, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoonful saleratus, and 1 of salt, with flour sufficient to make a good batter. This will make two fair sized cake.

Better to distribute the fruits of one's own industry, than to reap the benefit of other people's.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!

CAN BE FOUND IN

Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF

Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER SHAPE internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experience of one nation. It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or invention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicine to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world; HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the most REMARKABLE REMEDY of all nations. Their attributes is to PREVENT as well as to CURE; they attack the REMOTE ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs upon the blood itself, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In winter or form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and agreeable curative. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unerring result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterise dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflammation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dysentery,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Venral Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway, New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

☞ Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 244 Strand, London, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 63 cents, and $1 00 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

Original Poetry.

(For the Examiner.)

Lines to the memory of Mr. John Rankin, late Editor of the "Kilwinning Workman." (Scotland.)

Is there no other theme for me,
But sorrow, left my lyre to wake?
Must dire bereavement ever be
The only strain my muse can take?

My friends of youth are falling thick
And still they fall unk nown, unsung!
Not tho' for them my heart is sick,
My lyre for them shall still be strung.

Poor S———, I lately wept:
And Rankin now demands a lay,
Whose life, in bloom of years, was nipt,
And like a shadow passed away.

He was my friend—an early friend—
Warm-hearted, generous, frank and kind,
With heart to feel and hand to lend,
No enemy he left behind!

That bauble, dignity of birth,
Nor wealth, he nor titles could he claim,
But had what was better worth—
God's holiest work—an honest name!

The sons of ill-requited toil—
The factory child, the factory slave,
Amidst a bustling world's turmoil,
He dared defend, and tried to save.

Now o'er his grave the flowers may spring,
That sons of toil have planted there,
And friends be seen them watering
With tears, regret now fails to spare.

Peace to his shade! affection warm,
A lasting thought of him has given:
While faith and hope our bosoms charm,
That we shall meet again in Heaven.

FRANK HARLOWE.

A DOMESTIC TALE.

It was with a clouded brow and an angry eye that young Frank Harlowe stood looking upon his father's face, and hearkening his words, as he violently rebuked him. The flush upon the old man's cheek betokened the tempest that raged within his breast, and his raised and clenched hand descended in fearful emphasis as he uttered the words, "Obey me, or by heaven, you leave my house for ever!"

Mr. Harlowe, the father of Frank, was one of those unfortunate men, whose impulses are stronger than their powers of resistance. His passion once aroused, reason, affection, common kindness, were all forgotten in the storm that held him in mastery. The hasty and severe word that conveys such bitterness in its utterance, in his moods of temper was always ready, and the hasty blow fell upon his children with cruel violence, at the least provocation. Correction they never received. It was the vindictive visitation of an avenger of wrong rather than the chastisement of a parent.

At heart, Mr. Harlowe was a kind man; and oftentimes and bitterly, when the storm had blown by, and his mind was calm again, did he repent with sincere repen ance the evil he had done, of which he was fully sensible. Benevolent, intelligent, noble spirited self-sacrificing, as occasion called for action, he had won himself a name for probity and usefulness that was enviable, and, but for the turbulence of temper above described, few finer men could be found. This weakness was his besetting sin—his temptation: and, is will was insufficient to resist it.

Frank Harlowe, his youngest son and favourite, was his counterpart in body and mind. Handsome, intelligent, and witty, at seventeen he was the favorite of all in the village in which he lived. His generosity was unbounded; and the tendrils of his youthful nature shot forth and strengthened in his fertile soil of congeniality. At social gatherings he was the crowning spirit. His voice rang merriest at the harvest home; and in the old woods his song echoed through the sombre arches with the joyousness of unrestricted freedom. No jealous rivalry stood in the way of his supremacy; young and old admitted his claim to the distinction, and the smile of beauty—the ruddy rose of rural artlessness—beamed for him with constant and kindly glow.

Such was Frank Harlowe in his social intercourse, petted and happy in the genial flow of his unembittered enjoyment; but at home he was quite a different being. The contrast between the sphere of home and that of its neighbourhood was but too marked. The reverence due to parental authority was too little exerted by parental love. Disobedience to imperious command was followed by the harsh violence of invective words or by blows; and his high spirit revolted at the irksomeness of strong oppression. His two elder brothers had no sympathy with him. They were plodding, quiet, matter of fact men. Taking from their mother a more passive and quiescent nature than his own, they grubbed along the way of life like the oxen they drove, they knew no joy beyond the herbage they cropped, having no inspiration beyond the bounds of their enclosure. Content with old routines, no new hope obtruded upon their ruminations. They frowned upon the bold boy, whose spirit and brilliancy cast a reproach upon their lethargy, and they loudly rejoiced when this sharp reproof came to cub his ambition. Home was no longer home to him; the ties of consanguinity were to him as iron bonds from whose release he would pray to be freed: his mother's love alone sanctified the existence he led—it was the one solitary star in his night of domestic gloom.

His affections, thus turned from the home circle, had concentrated upon one, of the fairest of the village, but whose coquetish predilections had rendered her obnoxious to censure; and her fame having reached his father, the knowledge of Frank's attachment for her had provoked a discussion, the result of which was the imperious command with which our story commences, a strong command that he must forget and renounce her for ever.

The boy stood motionless, gazing upon his father, with a flashing eye and a swelling breast, as he spoke. Feelings too powerful for utterance were depicted in the angry look he gave; and he left the room with an expression of bitter rage upon his countenance.

The next morning there was a great confusion in Mr. Harlow's house.—Frank had fled, no one knew whither; and the domestic circle, whose union was so badly cemented, was broken. A letter in the village post-office explained the very cogent reason. It was couched in the following terms:—

"DEAR MOTHER,—

"It grieves me to bid you farewell, but longer sufferance from father's tyranical usage is impossible. I go to seek my fortune' and when we meet again may it be when both he and I shall have learned a lesson from our separation, and the alienation of father and child may be forgotten in the renewed intercourse of man and man. Farewell, dear mother; you may be more happy than I should have been able to have made you had I lived with you a thousand years. Farewell. Remember your poor boy sometimes.

"FRANK."

The letter fell like a thunderbolt on that household so unprepared for such an event; and deep contrition wrung the father's heart, who saw too late the evil he had wrought. The spirited boy had been his favourite, so like him was he in form and mind. He remembered that no word spoken to him in kindness had been unheeded. He heard his praise in every mouth, admitted the justness of the meed that was awarded him, and every word and every thought was a dagger to his soul in the view of the ruin he had caused. Then, for the first time, he felt the responsibility that rested upon him as a parent, and he trembled as he reflected how far he might be instrumental in his son's eternal doom. Too late came penitence for the past, but he vowed reform for the future, and prayed for strength to fulfil his vow.

A change came over the man and his home. The mould of years and care mingled with the raven hues of youth; for years had passed and no line of remembrance came from the absent boy. The brothers had married and had children; and the old homestead was glad with the music of childish laughter; and a sad happiness smiled upon the lives of Mr. and Mrs. Harlowe. The mother had mourned for her child, and his remembrance often came to her in the voices of low-whispering, and in the sweet reminiscences which solitude brought. The hope of seeing him again had long since died out in her breast; for twelve weary years had passed since he went away.

The village had changed much. The young and joyous companions of Frank had turned into grave family men, or had moved to strange cities, and had become the devotees of the money-god or worshiped fame in high places. The maids with whom he had sported had lost their smiles in the matronly cares of life, or had transferred them to their children, upon whom they bloomed again. The coquette of Frank's idolatry had years before given place to younger rivals, and mourned her faded charms in singleness of state. The village had become populous; and new steeples gleamed above the trees in the sunlight, and new streets and houses marked the steps of progress. A railroad whistle greeted the morning sun instead of the song of birds as of old; and the quiet of village life had been usurped by the great confusion that always attends town habits.

Frank was almost forgotten in the march of present excitement, or only remembered as a pleasant dream.

It was Christmas morning in the year 1850, and a pleasant party had met at Mr. Harlowe's house, to celebrate the birthday of the youngest grandson. The wind howled around the old mansion house, and growled down the spacious chimney, as if threatening the element of geniality that reigned below with a submerging visit. The snow rattled against the windows, red with indoor light, and piled itself in little heaps on the window sills. But all was unheeded by the parties within, and the wind and snow were unheard amid the music of mirth. The song was trilled from pretty lips, and manly voices joined in the chorus of praise to the festive season, when a loud knock of the ancient brazen lion upon the door arrested every attention. The sound reverberated along the old entry, and up the broad staircase, and through the large and airy rooms, with remarkable freedom for such an intruder, at such a time. The timid shrunk from the sound, as from a boding of evil, and anxiety marked every face.—The door was opened and a female form was ushered in, in whose scant and ragged habiliments poverty was too plainly read, and the bronzed and wrinkled face, revealed by the removal of a red hood were seen the traces of want and exposure. Her keen black eyes, as she entered, surveyed the scene, and her bronsed complection glowed ruddily in the fire light.

"Good people," she said in a cracked and tuneless voice, that made the flesh of her hearers creep at its sound, "I am weary and hungry,—give me of your bounty, in the name of heaven! I am weary,—I am hungry!"

An adpeal thus made could not be resisted; and the best the house afforded was provided for the poor stranger. The wo rasity with which she ate attracted their attention, fully attesting her famished condition; and a glance at her apparrel confirmed the impression of want and distress and mercy conquered the disgust which her presence had at first occasioned. Her feet protruded through her travel-worn shoes, and the snow melted from their soles and ran down the sanded floor.

As soon as her hunger was appeased, she turned to depart; but the voice of Mr. Harlowe asked her to remain, and in sympathetic tones, reminded her of the inclemency of the night.

The woman expressed her thanks gratefully, and seated herself by the fireside. The sport went on, noisily and happily; when it became whispered that the old dame was one of those weird people who tell fortunes by the stars, or more ignoble means, and open to view the destinies of men, that lie concealed in the future.

"Can you tell fortunes, good woman?" asked one of the youngest and boldest.

"I have travelled far," replied the beldame; "and I have learned strange arts in my wanderings. The heavens are opened to my gaze and the stars, where the mysteries of fate are hid, are as the printed page. The human palm is to me a key to a character. Who will test my power?"

One by one did the company pass before her, and the prescience she displayed was most marvellous. The lines of the hand seemed fraught with meaning, and the past life of each individual was read with an accuracy that gave importance to her predictions for the future. Scenes were recalled to many that had long been forgotten,—loves that had been dissapointed, hopes that had been destroyed, prospects that had been blighted; and many a tear was shed at the recollection of some old grief, revealed by the power of that singular woman.

At length Mr. Harlowe presented his hand for examination. Gazing upon it a moment intently, with a voice choked by emotion, she said: "Here is violence and strife; the line of life is crossed by threads of bitterness and woe, and the whole of its deep course is darkened by traces of grief. Tears, tears are here; and the lines of penitance and anguish of soul are strangely interwoven with the strong lines of resolution. I see that a deep sorrow is yours—the result of fierce passion—repented of and subdued. Is it not so?"

She fixed her eyes suddenly upon Mr. Harlowe's face. It was paled as death, and the tears stood in his eyes. "Yes," answered he, and trembled as he spoke; "heaven knows my sin and my repentance. Secret tears have been my portion for years; and, oh! what would I not give if the memory of my wrong might be wiped away!"

He bowed his head upon his hands and sobbed in the anguish of his spirit; and Mrs. Harlowe wept in sympathy with her husband, whose deep grief she had thus discovered, which had long been concealed beneath the calm exterior of philosophical resignation.

"Woman!" he cried, at last, "what is the future of this picture? Is there no balm in store for my wounded spirit?"—and he grasped her hand forcibly, as if he would have wrung from it an answer to his question.

"Yes," said she, with deep emotion, there is a future of peace and happiness in store for you; and the sun of your declining years shall be radiant with serene splendour—and—thank heaven, who has given me power to fulfil my prophecy!—Father! mother! behold your son!"

He threw off his ragged habiliments as he spoke, removed the grey and matted hair from his brow, and stood before the company in the noble form—matured in manly strength and beauty—of Frank Harlowe.

There was a new joy in the house that night at the wanderer's return; and tears and smiles mingled at the recital of his story. The wide world he had travelled; and he had learned and profitted by the lessons which it had taught him. He had returned home rich in gold; but he was richer in the spirit he had gained. It had been softened by the trials it had suffered, until it had brought him back to his father's house, and to his mother's feet.

His letters home had failed to reach their destination, and deeming himself an outcast, he had at length refused to write at all. He had married a lady of wealth, and became a denizen of a far-away city. But the thoughts of home pressed upon him, and the smile of his mother haunted his sleep with fond persistence; and he longed to see once more the "old familiar faces" that were his companions in childhood. He had thus come back to revisit the home of his early life. Stepping at the hotel he had made such enquiries concerning his old friends as led him into the secret of their past lives. Then, assuming his disguise, he went to his father's house in the manner above stated.

The secret of his soothsaying ability was thus revealed. The whole of Christmas night was occupied with the story of Frank's adventures, and in thanksgiving for the reunion.

The next summer a splendid mansion graced the hill opposite the old homestead, which soon became, and is now, the residence of Frank Harlowe, who, retired from business, has here settled down to enjoy himself amid the never-forgetten scenes of his boyhood, and endeavour to make up by attention to his parents for the long years he had failed in his duty to them.

Mr. Harlowe is a happy old man, and instills it as a sacred lesson into the minds of his grandchildren to beware of cultivating a hasty temper, which had been so full of misery to himself.

STRETCH IT A LITTLE.—A little girl and her brother were on their way to the grocer's the other morning. The roofs of the houses and the grass on the common were white with frost, and the wind was sharp. They were both poorly clad, but the little girl had a coat over her, which she seemed to have outgrown.

As they were walking along, she drew her little companion close up to her saying:

"Come under my coat Johnny."

"It isn't big enough for both," was his reply.

"I guess I can stretch it a little," she said.

And they got as close together and as warm as two birds in a nest.

How many shivering bodies, heavy hearts and weeping eyes there are in this world just because people do not stretch their comforts a little beyond themselves.—Childs World's.

JEM RADFORD'S THORN.

"Only think of Jem Radford poor fellow! When will they bury him?"

"They're gone now to take him out of the hospital. I suppose they'll bury him to morrow."

These words passed between two women who had met in the village as they went for water.

"And to think of its coming from such a little thing," said one.

"Ah! he didn't know what the thorn was going to do for him."

Jem Radford had got a large thorn into his foot. He took no notice of the pain, and allowed it to remain in, as he couldn't get it out easily. It festered; and while one friend advised him to go to the doctor, another told him of some poultice for it. Jem was strong, and had never known a day's illness.

"It's only a thorn," he said, and he neither poulticed it nor went to the doctor.

The swelling and inflammation went all up the leg, and he thought he must go to the doctor, for he got no sleep, night or day, for pain.

The doctor shook his head. He said the long neglect had been mischievous; he would have him to go into the hospital.

He went; and in a short time they were obliged to take off his leg. He sank under the operation, and died at the age of twenty-three!

His death made a great impression in the village and "poor Jem Radford's thorn" was often quoted.

"Robert has one sad fault; he will tell a lie sometimes. But what of that?" "Remember Jem Radford's little thorn."

"Jose Grant is a good fellow, except when he drinks a little; but that isn't often." "Ay, but if he gets the habit!" "Oh, It's only a little now and then." "Ah, but think what it may come to. Remember Jem Radford's thorn."

Alas! for want of laying the warning to heart, Robert grows up a confirmed liar, and Jose Grant becomes a sot.

Have we one little sin, as little as the thorn, as powerful in its effects—perhaps the love of money, perhaps a hasty temper? Oh, let us tremble at what it may do for us. Don't let us neglect it, saying—"It is only a little sin," till it grows so great as to poison our whole soul, and destroys us forever, by keeping us under sin power, without repentance or fear of God's displeasure, and without fleeing to Jesus Christ the Saviour for pardon of our sins.—[Cottager.

HONORING THE HOARY HEAD.

There was to be a lecture in the town hall in the village of G——. The lecturer was a man of reputation, and a crowd was expected. John Gordon was determined he would have a seat. "Boys," said he, to some of his young companions, "I am going to have a seat at the lecture to-night."

"You will get one, but you will be turned out of it before the lecture begins. More than likely there will be women enough to fill all the seats," said one.

"Say ladies, not women," said another.

"I said women instead of ladies, because all the women that come are not ladies. At the last lecture there was an old man sitting in one of the chairs, and a woman came along and said to him: 'Will you give a lady a seat?' The old man got up and gave her his seat, but I don't think he gave it to a lady."

"I saw a young lady offer the old man her seat."

"That is very likely."

In the afternoon, John employed himself in making a camp-stool that could be folded up in a very small compass. He had seen one in the possession of a traveling artist, and as he possessed considerable mechanical ingenuity, he succeeded in producing a very tolerable imitation of said stool.

As the time drew near, he put it under his arm and went to the hall. No one could tell, from its appearance, what kind of a bundle he had under his arm. His plan was to remain standing until all the ladies had arrived and were seated, and the lecture began. Then he intended to unfold his stool and have a comfortable seat.

The seats were at length filled. Here and there a gentleman had a seat, being surrounded and defended in the possession of it by female friends. John took his seat in the little spot before the desk, creating a smile by the gravity with which he converted a bundle into what was a good substitute for a chair.

He had comfortably seated himself, when he saw an aged man, with white locks, standing in the aisle, leaning on his cane. It was an old man who seldom came out at night, but the fame of the lecturer had brought him out.

John remembered the command to honor the hoary head. His inclinations and his duty coincided. He arose and went to the old man, led him forward, and gave him his seat. The act was greeted by a warm round of applause by the audience. John did not have a seat during the lecture, but he felt better than if he had.

A CHILD ON SABBATH BREAKING.—One Sunday, as a little girl was on her way home from church, with her father, they passed a boy splitting wood, when the father said, "Mary, do you see that boy breaking the Sabbath?" She made no reply but appeared to be very thoughtful, as she walked homeward. After entering the house, her mother asked her what she had seen while she was gone, when she replied "Oh, mother, I saw a boy breaking the Sabbath with a big axe.

While a country parson was preaching, the chief of his parishioners, sitting near the pulpit, was fast asleep; whereupon he said, "Now beloved friends, I am in a great strait; for if I speak too softly those at the further end of the church cannot hear me, and if I talk too loud I shall wake the chief man in the Parish."

A divorce case is now on trial before the Superior Court in session at Brooklyn, Conn., in which both parties are nearly seventy years of age.

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1865.

PROVINCIAL PARLIAMENT.

The House has been occupied for some time with the subject of Confederation. Hon. J. A. Macdonald said in behalf of the government: "That the circumstances of the country politically, required that something should be done to remove existing difficulties, and that of all the methods proposed for the purpose, Confederation of all the British American colonies appeared most agreeable to both parties in Canada, and also to the Lower Provinces. He remarked that the conference had agreed that the Colonial Government would present the scheme, as a whole, to their respective Parliaments, that the agreement remained in force; nor did they doubt that the Imperial authorities would accept it, as all the Colonial Governments sent it to them. Mr. Brown touched it would be explained what part would be incorporated in the bill and what left out, referring to the intercolonial rail ways being built.

The Hon. Mr. Brown considered the happy results of all the political contests of a lifetime fully compensated by the object about to be realized in the Confederation scheme. He did not care to test the claim of any one to be the parent of the scheme, but was grateful that the country was about to have the benefit of the measure, and rejoiced that men had been found who were willing to cast aside their personal and political feelings for the good of the country, and to unite to carry such a measure. He felt that he and his party were fully justified in having set aside political and personal considerations in order to obtain the public good. A proof of the popularity of Confederation was that the press generally approved of it, and of all the candidates for election since the coalition only three were found who opposed it, and out of them, only one was able to obtain a seat. This was strong proof of the measure receiving the approbation of the country. Mr. Brown went on to show the advantages of Confederation in rectifying the injustice and wrong of sections, races and the religious strife that had been created, as well as in uniting the various colonies into one nation and people, and declared that the quiet, peaceful manner in which it was being settled was without a parallel. The work was not a mere question of interest or commercial advantage. It was much wider in its scope than that. It was the creating of a new nation on this continent. It was to bring together Newfoundland with its 40,000 square miles, equal in size to Portugal; Nova Scotia, which was equal to Greece; New Brunswick, equal to Switzerland and Denmark; Lower Canada, equal to France; and Upper Canada, 20,000 square miles larger than England, Ireland and Scotland together; the Pacific Colonies equal to Austria; and the vast territories of the North west, larger than Russia; to unite in one country a territory equal to the whole of Europe. He proposed that party feeling could be set aside till this was discussed and settled, and that no one would oppose it until he could propose a better, and a scheme that could be carried by both sections of the province. He, Mr. Brown, went for the scheme cordially, enthusiastically and without any reservation. He considered it provided a complete and satisfactory remedy for the evils of which Upper Canada had to complain. The equality of members in the Upper House would be more than counterbalanced by the preponderance of representation Upper Canada would have in the Lower House, where it could control money bills. Mr. Brown expressed himself against two elective houses, as inconsistent with the general principle of the British constitution. He tells us he is against sectarian education, and acceded to the claims for its settlement only that an end might be made of the matter, and sectional discord settled.

The result of the Union will, no doubt, raise the province to a position of respectability among the nations both of Europe and America. The population will amount to about four millions at present. The territory will be extensive enough to contain a very large population, which, no doubt, will increase yearly, by means of wise legislation. Prosperity will not, in the least, be retarded or diminished. The Confederate Government will see the necessity of encouraging immigration, and the settlement of our wild lands, by means of proper intercommunication, and means of approach to the Atlantic seaboard we will become less dependent on our American neighbors, and less affected by their whims or disaffections, and better prepared to provide ways and means for independently carrying on our own trade.

In the Legislative Council there were many who regretted that the Upper House would not be elective.

The Hon. Mr. Flint spoke in favor of delay in order to ascertain, more thoroughly than he had yet done, the sentiments of the people on this important question.

Mr. Ressor, moved to amend the main motion by adding a proviso, that His Excellency be requested not to transmit the address to Her Majesty till it had been approved by the qualified electors of the Province, which was lost on a division; yeas, 19; nays, 37.

The House eventually divided on the motion for an address to the Queen based on the resolution of the Quebec Conference. The motion was carried—45 to 15.

Quebec, Feb. 17.

After the introduction and first reading of a few Bills, the House went into committee of supply.

Hon. Mr. Galt moved the first item ($330,000) for the payment of the Volunteers called out to the Frontiers, which, after discussion, was adopted—yeas, 86; nays 15.

The second resolution; That there be granted to her Majesty to make good the sum improperly surrendered in case of Young and others, claimed by the United States under the extradition treaty, a sum not exceeding $50,000, was also carried—yeas, 83; nays, 14.

THE RAIDERS.—The case of the St. Allan's Raiders is still occupying the Court at Montreal. The defence has at length been entered upon. Mr. Kerr who opened the defence spoke 24 hours, and was listened to with earnest attention.

Anniversary of Opening of the First Presbyterian Church.

The 5th Anniversary of the opening of this Church was held, by religious services on Sabbath last, 19th, and by a Soiree on the evening of Monday. These Sermons were preached on Sabbath: the Rev'd Dr. Burns, of Toronto, preached at 11 o'clock, a. m; the Rev. Mr. Brock, of the Wesleyan Church here, at 2.30 in the afternoon; and Dr. Burns again, at 6.30 in the evening. On each occasion the church was well filled, especially in the evening when it was crowded in every part. The different services, which were highly eloquent and exceedingly appropriate for the occasion, were listened to with marked attention. We were pleased to see the venerable Dr. looking so well although at first sight (to the eye of a stranger) his gait might appear rather tottering and in keeping with his advanced age, (82) yet, as soon as he got into the pulpit he seemed all at home and quite vigorous. It is also very pleasing to note the Christian spirit of unanimity which seems to exist between the different Protestant bodies here, which was seen on this occasion, first, by the fact of the respected Pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist body so readily complying with the wish of the Rev. Mr. Roger, to assist him on this occasion; and secondly, by seeing so many present from the different Churches in town, at each of the services. The Collections were in aid of the building fund of the Church (on which we understand, there still hangs a considerable amount of debt) and amounted to $80.

On Monday evening, as already stated, a Soiree was held, under the auspices of the Ladies' Association, commencing at 6 o'clock, in the basement, where a most ample tea was served; the tables were twice filled, and it is estimated that about 500 took Tea, after which the people adjourned to the body of the Church, where, on the platform, we noticed the Rev. Dr. Burns, Rev. Messrs Brock, Chapple, McNamara, Waters, (Port Hope,) Blain and Roger, Dr. Crowl, Jas. Hall, Esq., Sheriff, and T. M. Fairbairn, Esq., Barrister.

On motion of Rev. Mr. Roger, Jas. Hall, Esq., was called to the Chair.

The Rev. Mr. Blain then offered up an impressive prayer.

Mr. Roger followed by a few introductory remarks, going back for a period of over thirty years, since he first became their pastor, and briefly glancing over their operations up till the present time, strongly contrasting their condition 30 years ago when they worshipped in a small shanty on the Court House Hill, with their present comfortable circumstances.

The Chairman then called on Mr. Fairbairn, who, in a very practical manner, pointed out to his fellow members their duty in regard to renewed vigour in order to liquidate the debt on the building, reminding them of the obligations they were under to the Building-Committee, and especially to those members of that committee who had, as it were, become responsible for the debt, and on whose shoulders such responsibility still lingered.

The Rev. Mr. Brock followed in a very pleasing speech. He stated his great pleasure and satisfaction at knowing that his Presbyterian friends in Peterborough took such a warm interest in their place of Worship as to erect such a superior House for this purpose. He would be glad to see such a feeling become more general. He next spoke of what he considered great nuisances in Churches, although in doing so he did not allude to Peterborough, he said one of the greatest public nuisances which he had sometimes taken notice of was the dirty habit of gentlemen coming into Church with the quid of tobacco in their mouths, and then after being comfortably seated, commence squirting all around them, often to the disgust of their fellow-worshippers. He wound up his remarks in a very handsome style by hoping that his friends would always keep their Church as clean and comfortable as on the present occasion, and as free from the unpleasant stains of Tobacco juice. The Rev. gentleman, evidently, does not indulge in the use of the Weed, himself.

Rev. Mr. Waters, (Port Hope) spoke on "Motive Power," he commenced his speech by some very amusing and laughable anecdotes. He also complimented the Ladies highly, for the nice entertainment he had received at their hands inasmuch as he had taken a hearty tea and enjoyed it much, and wound up his remarks to the ladies by hearing them all smiling. He then went more particularly into his subject, which he handled admirably. We are sorry our space will not permit us to go more generally into this able speech.

Dr. Burns followed Mr. Waters, and spoke very pleasantly of the warm friendship and intercourse which had existed between him and the pastor of the Church for so many years, then noticed the apparent general prosperity and rapid growth of the Town since he had visited it last, and also in proportion the rapid growth of the congregation of the Presbyterian Church, expressing his conviction that he had no fear for their future prosperity, but affectionately and earnestly impressed upon them the necessity of consistent religious conduct as a congregation, and as fellow citizens, one towards another, cautioning them against looking too much at the fine building which they had erected to worship in, and neglecting the inward adorning of the spirit. The Rev. Dr concluded his remarks in a very affectionate manner, amidst the applause of the audience.

The Dr. was followed by the Rev. Mr. Chapple, who related some very interesting instances of raising money for building places of worship, the most of each instances came under his own personal observation in the old country. He tried to impress strongly on the members the necessity of united effort, by which means they could accomplish much, and could soon wipe off the debt remaining on the building.

Mr. Roger then stated to the meeting that he had just got a Statement from the Soiree Committee, showing that the proceeds of the evening amounted to the sum of $123, which together with the amount of the collections on Sabbath, already stated, amounted to $203 realized on this occasion.

He then called on the Rev. Mr. McNamara, but as it was by this time getting to a late hour, Mr. McNamara did not go into any lengthened remarks, but briefly supported the former speaker by throwing out some very practical hints for the encouragement of the congregation; the ladies here again came in for a good share of his more humorous hints, and amongst other things referred to that portion of Mr. Waters' speech in which (Mr. W.) spoke of gold-en opportunities, &c, Mr. McN., strongly advised them always to watch golden opportunities in every right sense of the term. He resumed his seat amidst great applause.

Owing to the indisposition of the excellent Treasurer, of the Congregation, W. Hall, Esq., there was no report or financial statement read to the audience.

The excellent Choir, under the leadership of Mr. T. Brown, discoursed sweet music at intervals during the evening. The pieces were all performed in a very masterly style, but we cannot help mentioning two in particular, viz:—the Anthem on the 100th Psalm, and the Anthem "The Lord is my Shepherd."

The Rev. Mr. Roger moved a vote of thanks to the Chairman, for the able manner in which he had presided during the evening; to his friends who had assisted him on the present occasion, as also on the Sabbath day; to the Choir, for the excellent music to which he said he felt sure all had listened with great pleasure; and to the Ladies, in a particular manner, saying that the pleasant evening they had just been spending, was caused mainly by their exertions as an association. he further stated, that during the year they had enabled the Church to pay off over $100 of the debt against the building.

The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Dr. Burns, when the meeting separated.

AMERICAN WAR.

For the present all hopes of coming to an amicable arrangement are dropped. Both parties are preparing for a terrible struggle. Lee is concentrating his forces, and is reported as about to send forces against Sherman who is advancing almost without opposition hitherto. News that Richmond will be evacuated is reported; and that Charleston is already. Mobile, Charleston, Savanah, Richmond, Petersburgh, and all those seaports, and places for which there has been such a deadly struggle will soon be in the hands of the Federals. This is said to be the plan proposed by General Lee in order to enable him to concentrate his forces and attack the Federal Generals separately, and in succession. How far the plan will succeed remains to be seen, the New York World, considers the sharpest fighting of the rebellion is yet to come, and expects that the last efforts of both parties will be terrible.

General Butler appears to receive due attention from public men and the press since he was relieved of his command for the Fort Fisher failure. Many are the accusations brought against him for fraud and speculation; one of his friends is said to have cleared $250,000 buying cotton from the rebels, he has decamped. Sherman has captured Columbia, and taken possession of it on Friday. On Tuesday Charleston was evacuated. Official intelligence was received at the war office last night (19th inst.,) that Sherman was advancing towards and near Winsboro, on a point leading to Charlotte, and 30 miles from Columbia.

Passport System.

The passport system still continues to annoy and delay the travelling public who are under the necessity to visit the United States, on business, or who desire to visit the country for pleasure or information.

Neither the Volunteers on the Frontier, the efforts of the Government to maintain friendly intercourse and feelings with the United States people and Government, nor the readiness of the Canadian people to do any thing that is right and just, appear to have no effect upon the authorities of the other side. They appear determined to do all in their power to prevent intercourse between Canada and the United States; the effects of such a course of conduct will in due time produce its fruit, in jealousy of each other, alienation of the present good feelings which generally exists, and in engendering ill will where amicable intercourse would have a different—an opposite tendency.

Charleston Evacuated.

On Saturday last the rebels evacuated this city; before leaving it they set fire to the city, and destroyed a great amount of property. Several hundred persons are said to have perished in the flames.

Fort Sumpter is again in possession of the Federals. A national salute was to be fired at every fort, and arsenal, and any head quarters of the U. S. in honor of the restoration of the flag of the union upon the Fort.

CURLING.—A friendly bonspiel between the Waverley club of Coburg, and the Otonalee Club is to be played to-day, Thursday, on Rice Lake at Harwood, from the celebrity both these two clubs have obtained, the result of the match is looked forward to with considerable interest.

County Agricultural Society.

At a meeting of the Directors of the above society held on the 18th instant, it was decided that for the purpose of encouraging the growth of flax, a quantity of good seed should be procured to be sold to members at cost, and to prevent disappointment it is desired that members should leave their names with the Secretary, Mr Carnegie, before the first of April next, stating the quantity of seed they will require.

It is also the intention of the Directors to offer premiums for the best acre of flax, the growth of the present season.

The list of membership having been on the decline for the last two or three years, it was decided that a special canvas should be made—for the purpose of increasing the subscription list—and to this end the following gentlemen were appointed to canvas the localities designated after their names.

John Walton, John Carnegie, Esq'rs, Town of Peterborough.

Isaac Garbutt, Esq., Rev. Mr. Clementi, Lakefield and neighborhood.

Joseph Walton, John W. Gilmour, Esq'rs, Monaghan.

Michal Sanderson, Jos. H. Walton, Esq'rs, Smith.

Evans Ingram, Thomas Stoddart, Esq'rs, Otonabee.

Francis Birdsal, Esq., Asphodel.

We trust that they will meet with the success they deserve.

It is also the intention of the Society to have a spring show for horses as usual, of which due notice will be given.

On motion of Mr. Sanderson seconded, by Joseph Walton, it was resolved, that the Directors of this Society regret to learn that an application made on behalf of the Otonabee Branch Society, to be allowed to unite with the club formed by the members of this Society for the "Canadian Farmer," was not granted, as they conceive it not only desirable to allow members of Branch Societies to join our club, but are anxious that they should do so.

Dunkin's Bill.

HOPE.—The vote on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week, in the Township of Hope was as follows:—228 for the bill up 30 against it, which leaves a majority of 190.

MAYNERS.—Dr Mayners, which has just pronounced upon the question of license or no license, the By-law prohibiting the retail of liquor was carried by a majority of 126.

BOWMANVILLE.—Mr. Dunkin's bill has been sustained in Bowmanville. The vote at the close of the second day stood, for the bill, 169; against, 112. Although the contest was a hot one, no breach of the peace occurred.

SEVERITY OF THE WINTER.—The Goderich Signal says the severity of the winter, following the literally short crops of last summer, is beginning to tell severely upon the interests of our farmers. Many of them are already out of provender, and if we have a late spring thousands of cattle must die of starvation—one of the most pitiable sights that can meet the gaze of an agriculturist. We have heard of instances in which farmers have decided on slaughtering half their stock in order to save the remainder.

Judge Mondelet has censured a jury at Quebec, for acquitting prisoners against whom the evidence of guilt was very clear.

Cardinal Wiseman is said to be dying.

Council of Smith and Harvey.

Smith 13th February, 1865.

The Council met, all the members present.

The Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The Tenders received by the Reeve for the Offices of Assessor and Collector, in conformity with an advertisement for the same, were as follows:

For the office of Assessor, Samuel McKibbon $80, George Paul $96 50 and Garrett J. Galvin $50.

For the office of Collector, Henry Stabler $75, John Black $75, Mathew Warsam $64 and Joseph Trennum $50.

For the two offices combined John Hall $160.

Considerable discussion took place as to the eligibility of G. J. Galvin being appointed Assessor he having been appointed Auditor for the current year.

The Council came to the conclusion that it would be contrary to the provision of the Provincial Statute, for him to hold both offices, consequently Mr. Galvin tendered his resignation as auditor which was accepted.

James Donnelly was appointed Auditor.

The Auditors' Report was read and adopted.

The Clerk was directed to have 150 copies printed in sheet form, and to let the printing by tender.

The following By-Laws received the several readings.

A By Law to form the Roads of the Municipality into divisions, for the purpose of Statute labour, and to appoint Overseers of Highways, Pound-keepers and Fence-viewers.

A By-Law to appoint Garritt J. Galvin Assessor, and Joseph Trennum Collector.

A By-Law to fix the rate of remuneration to be recieved by certain Municipal officers as follows: Assessor $50, Collector $50, Returning officers $3 each, and Auditors $4 each.

The Reeve was instructed to issue his order on the Treasurer for the sum of $5 to aid in defraying the funeral expenses of John Welch a fatherless boy.

To the Editor of the Peterborough Examiner

THE BIBLE AND POLITICS.

DEAR SIR,—Although asserted by many that "Religion has nothing to do with politics," yet the truth is coming out distinctly, and admitted by not a few that political affairs cannot be wisely or safely managed independently of the Bible.

I know, indeed, that the great object of the Bible is a spiritual one. Its chief end being to enlighten and save men. But I contend that everything that men do has a bearing more or less towards the attainment of this end. If it were to remain silent, or to allow what is wrong in any department of human action, it would countenance that which tends directly to defeat its great object. If the Bible were not to speak in the busy marts of Commerce; if it were to remain silent in reference to the accumulation of wealth, the making haste to be rich, and the disposition to trust in riches, it would suffer mankind to fall into temptation and a snare. The Bible must go with man wherever he goes. It must stand between him and danger, wherever that danger may be. The Bible must, therefore, go into the political arena. It must speak in all the primary meetings of the people, in the nomination of rulers and at the polls. It must be an open book, and its influence felt in the Courts of Justice, and the Halls of legislation. Its authority must bind every man, in the place of power, and every one in his subjection to law and order. The pressure of the Bible must be felt in the entire action of the Community, in order to prevent the abuse of power, to prevent the poor against the oppression of the rich, to restrain the bad effects of human passion, and to interdict whatever tends to corrupt the morals of the Community, such as the Groggshop, the Brothel or the Lottey, &c.

How then, can any one deny that the well being of the State depends upon the conformity of its action to the Legislation of heaven. There is no better political text book than the Bible. There is no character of human freedom like this. There is no greater guardian thrown around the birth right of man, than is secured to him by the influence of the Bible. Like the atmosphere around us, it pervades and sustains all. It has much to say about politics. It marks out the whole course of political action. Give the Bible its place—let it have supremacy in laying down the foundations of Government, and in erecting the superstructure. Allow the Bible to give form and feature to all its institutions, and to breathe its spirit into all its legislation, and impress its own image upon all the actions of the people; then what a glorious country Canada would be. Here freedom would reign. Our rulers would be good men, men hating covetousness, men honest enough to be trusted, and pure enough to be revered and honoured in their high places by a virtuous people, without, at the same time, feeling that they were degrading themselves in paying respect to the mere skeleton of a man, in honoring the semblance only of what is patriotic and good.

I remain, Mr. Editor,
Yours truly,
SCOTIA.

Otonabee, Feb. 1865.

FIRE IN PORT HOPE.—At about three o'clock last Sunday morning, the two small buildings situated on the corner of John and Walton streets, were discovered to be on fire. At the time the town people began to arrive the fire had gained such a headway as to be beyond control. It was, however, confined to the two buildings, which were the property of Messrs. Quay & Maguire. The occupants were:—Mr. Coombe, grocer, whose stock was entirely destroyed (covered by insurance); R. S. Libby, watchmaker, whose stock, &c., was all or nearly saved; and two Americans, manufactures of musical instruments, a part of whose stock was saved. Fears were entertained that the fire would spread to the adjacent buildings; but although sparks of fire flew to a considerable distance, the thick covering of snow on the houses proved to be ample protection. The origin of the fire is unknown.—Guide.

ONE INDIAN STABS ANOTHER.—The Chatham Planet says that on Saturday last a murder occurred at an Indian camp in the vicinity of Buckhorn, in that County, the murdered man and the murderer being Indians. The horrible deed was perpetrated with a knife, the wounds having been inflicted for the most part in the breast. Dissolution, however, was not instantaneous, the victim lingering after he was stabbed until Monday, when death put an end to his sufferings. An inquest will be held by Coroner Sivewright to-day (Wednesday). The murderer is in gaol, having been arrested on Tuesday.

The Confederate organ at London, the Index, is endeavouring to make the best of the falling tendencies of the Southern Confederacy. It is giving rise to all kinds of queer rumors, which will probably be circulated on this continent a few months hence, as facts, as similar rumors have been in the past. One of the absurdest rumors of the Index is that Great Britian is about to cut off Canada and leave it to become a prey to the United States.

SISTERS ALL.—An organization, called the Fenian Sisterhood—an auxiliary to the Fenian Brotherhood, whose object is the independence of Ireland—held its first public meeting in New York on Wednesday night at the Demilt Dispensary. About five hundred persons were present. Speeches were made by Patrick Cooney, Miss O'Shea, John McGrath and John J. Rogers.

DEMORALIZATION OF THE CONFEDERATE ARMY.—The number of deserters from Lee's army since the failure of peace negociations is represented to be very great. The men are said to be resolved to make peace for themselves, having no hope of a successful issue to the conflict

HAMILTON ELECTION.

The number of votes polled has been remarkably small, as will be seen by consulting the figures:—

FIRST DAY'S POLLING.

	MAGILL.	McELROY.
St. George's Ward,	39	11
St. Patrick's "	56	11
St. Lawrence "	179	8
St. Andrew's "	99	7
St Mary's "	65	25
	438	62

Majority for Magill 376.

SECOND DAY'S POLLING.

	MAGILL.	McELROY.
St. George's Ward	57	18
St. Andrew's "	148	14
St. Mary's "	134	37
St. Patrick's "	110	19
St. Lawrence "	256	15
Totals	705	103

Mr. Magill has outstripped his opponent, Mr. McElroy, in Hamilton, by the large majority of 902.

The Conservative press claims Mr Magill as leaning towards them, but without any reason for so-doing. The following which we clip from the Times is apropos on the subject. These remarks are in answer to some claims to Mr. Magill in the Leader.

"From the time of Mr. Buchanan's resignation up to the day of nomination, the Tories exerted themselves in every possible way to obtain a candidate to run in their interest. They only failed in doing this, because they could find no man willing to open his purse to their greedy fingers, and without money your true Tory disdains to vote. If Mr. Magill were a Conservative, they would not have sought an opponent to him.

But it is contended that the Tories having supported Mr. Magill he must be looked upon as their candidate. In the first place it is not true the Tories supported Mr. Magill. That small section of the disorganized rabble called the Tories of Hamilton, which is led by the Spectator, supported Mr Magill, but a portion of them, nearly as large, and quite as Toryish opposed him. In the second place if they as a whole had supported Mr Magill, it would prove nothing. Mr. Magill had no power to refuse a vote because it came from a Tory, and it would be foolish to exercise the power even if he had possessed it. Why some of them supported him is quite obvious. They had lost Mr Buchanan, on whose purse they had lived for many years, and they had no other candidate from whom to obtain the cash, which they consider the necessary accomplishment of an election. Money they were resolved to have, so they came into our camp and thrust themselves on him whom they could need the richer of the two candidates. Their sole object was to bleed him as they had bled Mr. Buchanan—and all their support of him means is, that, as they had no candidate of their own to despoil, they resolved to despoil one of the enemy. They did not do even this, in fact they failed utterly in everything except in proving that they wanted more money.

If Mr. Magill had been the Conservative candidate he would have been beaten so thoroughly that all the Constitutional Associations in the universe could not have restored him to political life. No man knows this better than Mr. Magill himself, unless, indeed, the Tories who knew it so well that they declined to name a candidate when defeat alone could be his fate.

These considerations are so self-evident that it is almost a work of supererogation to produce them, but we wish to place them on record for the benefit of our Tory friends. We wish to keep them humble by reminding them, that to neither of the candidates in the late contest can they lay any claim, that the Tory party in Hamilton is broken up, smashed, disorganized; that the Reformers of Hamilton are strong and victorious, and that Hamilton is now represented by a true Grit."

AMERICAN NEWS.

THE DRAFT TO BE ENFORCED AT AN EARLY DAY.

It has been incorrectly stated that Provost-Marshal Fry has issued an order to provost-marshals, postponing the draft. The terms of the President's proclamation of Dec. 19, 1864, calling for three hundred thousand men, in order to supply a deficiency under the call of July 18, 1864, provides that—

In case the quota or any part thereof of any town, township, ward of any city, precinct, or election district, or of a county not subdivided, shall not be filled before the 15th day of February, 1865, then a draft shall be made to fill said quota on the 15th day of February, 1865.

In pursuance of that proclamation, the Provost-Marshal General, on Monday, issued instructions to the provost-marshals, requiring them in all their districts and subdistricts wherein the quotas should not be filled to-day, to proceed to make preparations for a draft just as he did prior to the previous drafts, neither of which took place until some time after the day upto which time was given by the proclamation for recruiting. These preparations for the draft will be consummated as speedily as possible, and there is every reason now to suppose that the draft will be made at an early day.

The following are the instructions issued yesterday per telegram from the Provost-Marshal General's Office:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
PROVOST-MARSHAL GENERAL'S BUREAU,
WASHINGTON, D. C. Feb. 13.

Till Acting-Assistant Provost-Marshals General, except Connecticut, Iowa, California, and Oregon:

Be that all the boards of enrollment in your jurisdiction, which are not busily employed in examining and mustering recruits, prepare at once to commence drafting. Report as soon as possible what districts are not rapidly filling the quotas and the day on which the board in each will be prepared to draft, so that the order to draft may issue from this office.

JAMES B. FRY,
Provost-Marshal General.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The World says that information received in this city states that Gen. Stoffield's crops had landed at Wasonborough, N.C., thus avoiding the necessity of a march on the peninsula in front of Wilmington. If this is so Wilmington is closely bealeaged, if not our hands.

The Richmond Committee of Congress protested Seddon, late Secretary of War, as guilty gross swindling.

Richmond Examiner says the negroes of that ty are volunteering for military service.

The Herald's Fort Fisher correspondent says courier from Sherman arrived at Smithville on e 12th, announcing the capture of Branchville by three days severe fighting.

Wilmington papers of the 9th confirm this atement.

Richmond papers report that Kilpatrick iched a point within 15 miles of Augusta, , on the 10th, and was attacked by Wheeler d driven 5 miles with considerable loss.

Additional daring exploits of the intrepid Commander Cushing are described in the Bulls Fort Fisher correspondent. On the 8thst., with about 15 men, he captured the Bittown of Shallotte, garrisoned by 100 rebels, held it for several hours, during which he destroyed a large store of army supplies, provisions, and about 80 bales of cotton, and escaped without loss.

It is has been granted in the case of the La Fris rebel pirate, Beall. He will not be hard on Governor's Island to-day, as at first dead.

Philadelphia, February 16.

Special despatch to the Evening Bulletin, dated Washington, February 1, says:

Rumors of the 13th indicate that Sherman's advanced cavalry are actually across Florence, the second important railroad junction from Charleston to Florence.

The Confederates now estimate the entire number of Sherman's forces operating in the interior of South Carolina at only 40,000.

WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—To General Dix:—The evacuation of Charleston by the Confederates is announced in the following telegram just received from General Grant.

"CITY POINT, VA., Febr, 20. E. M. Stanton, Secretary of War. The following despatch just received. To U. S. Grant, Lt. General. The Richmond Examiner of to-day just received says that Charleston was evacuated on Tuesday last.

FORT MONROE, Feb 18.—The steamer City of Hudson arrived this morning from City Point with Mrs. Gen. Ord, a party of ladies and 3 officers of the General's staff.

Stirring Order from Gen. Lee.

HEADQUARTERS ARMIES OF THE C. STATES,
February 11th.

General Orders No. 2.

In entering upon the campaign about to open the general-in-chief feels assured that the soldiers who have so long and so nobly borne the hardships and dangers of the war require no exhortation to re-pond to the calls of honor and duty. With the liberty transmitted by their forefathers they have inherited the spirit to defend it. The choice between war and abject submission is before them. To such a proposal brave men with arms in their hands have but one answer. They cannot barter manhood for peace, nor the right of self-government for life or property. But justice to them requires a sterner admonition to those who have abandoned their comrades in the hour of peril. A last opportunity is offered them to wipe out the disgrace and escape the punishment of their crimes. By authority of the President of the Confederate States a pardon is announced to such deserters and men improperly absent as shall return to the commands to which they belong within the shortest possible time, not exceeding twenty days from the publication of this order, at the headquarters of the department in which they may be. Those who may be prevented by interruption of communications, may report within the time specified to the nearest enrolling officer or other officer on duty, to be forwarded as soon as practicable; and upon presenting a certificate from such officer, showing compliance with this requirement, will receive the pardon hereby offered. Those who have deserted to the service of the enemy or who have deserted after having been once pardoned for the same offence, and those who shall desert or absent themselves without authority after the publication of this order, are excluded from its benefits. Nor does the offer of pardon extend to other offences than desertion and absence without permission. By the same authority it is also declared that no general amnesty will again be granted, and those who refuse to accept the pardon now offered, or who shall hereafter desert or absent themselves without leave, shall suffer such punishment as the courts may impose, and no application for clemency will be entertained. Taking new resolutions from the fate which our enemies intend for us, let every man devote all his energies to the common defence. Our resources, wisely and vigorously employed, are ample, and with a brave army sustained by a determined and united people, strengthened with God's assistance, cannot be doubtful. The advantages of the enemy will have but little value, if we do not permit them to impair our resolution. Let us then oppose constancy to adversity, fortitude to suffering, and courage to danger, with the firm assurance that He who gave freedom to our fathers will bless the efforts of their children to preserve it.

R. E. LEE, General.

FEDERAL FINANCES.

CAN THE SOUTH WEATHER THE STORM.

(From the New York World.)

The condition of our finances occasions the gravest solitude in all thinking minds. The war has been so managed as to put the utmost strain upon our resources, and the same system is to be pursued for the next six months. If we do not conquer the South within that time, our finances will break down; and all our immense sacrifices prove unavailing at last.

Our government and people are under the impression that the rebellion is so far subdued that one more vigorous campaign, with adequate numbers will end it. Acting on this theory, the government calls for a large and immediate increase of the army, to strike the finishing blow. If what is meant to be the finishing blow proves to be such in reality, our resources, by the aid of treasury makeshifts, will hold out; and the debt will be manageable, though burdensome. "But if a gigantic effort in the spring and early summer months does not finally scatter Gen. Lee's army, there is danger that we may pass from the perilous brink of bankruptcy into its yawning depths."

The confident bearing of the rebel envoys in the late conference was doubtless inspired by their expectation that if they can hold out for another year, the collapse of our finances will place them on a footing of comparative equality. All people who are not demented, friends and foe alike, perceive the impossibility of our continuing the war indefinitely on its present gigantic scale. We have already passed the limit of good bearing bonds. No more of these are to be issued, for the simple reason that the duties on imports will scarcely suffice to meet the engagements of this kind already contracted. The debt hereto-fore incurred, and the debt to be incurred hereafter, are accordingly separated by a wide gulf; the interest on the former resting on an assured pledge, while the latter, payable merely in currency which will continue to depreciate, will be regarded with growing suspicion, and find less and less favor with purchasers.

Congress has proclaimed the difficulty of negotiating more long loans by permitting the Secretary of the Treasury to substitute seven-thirty treasury notes for the bonds authorized at the last session. But the seven thirty notes are a virtual addition to the currency, as is conclusively proved by the rejection of Winter Davis's amendment prohibiting their issue in small denominations. Holders of unpaid requisitions who grow impatient under long delays, will conclude to take these rather than wait longer; and their creditors will take them in turn, for the same reason. Soldiers will also receive them for arrears in their pay, and they will thus get into circulation and swell the volume of the currency.

When the government can no longer negotiate long loans, it is rapidly nearing the vortex of the terrible whirlpool.

It is a necessity, therefore, that we either conquer the South in the spring and summer campaigns, or else that we change our whole system of conducting the war, by reducing the size of our armies. After an abortive spring campaign, the government would no longer negotiate loans; and the war would either have to stop, or be continued with such cripple means as to preclude the hope of final success.

The government has decided to put forth all its strength in one great final effort. If it has not miscalculated the weakness of the rebels, this is no doubt a good policy. But if it has miscalculated the mistake will be fatal.

THE STRENGTH OF THE SOUTH.

From the New York World.

As no rational person any longer doubts that the South is concentrating all its force for a fresh and determined campaign, it is eminently desirable that we should prepare ourselves for all the possible events of that campaign by accurate ideas in respect to the actual strength of our antagonists. General Sherman is reported to have said that the war would begin in earnest only when the South, by the capture of its seaports, had been driven into the great tradegic operations of a really continental campaign. The capture of the few ports still remaining to the "confederacy" is probably now a mere question of time, and will ere long be decided in our favour. What are we then to see? Is the "confederacy" to fall at our feet, paralyzed by the loss of its channels of communication by the Atlantic with Europe, or has it still the command of such resources within itself as are likely to give the opinion attributed to General Sherman the value of a practical prophesy?

That the rebels themselves distinctly realize the imminence of a great change in the character of the struggle is evident. But it is equally evident that they by no means despair of finding through this change a "happy issue out of all their afflictions."

The elevation of Robert Lee to the chief command of all their forces is a step not toward surrender, but toward a more resolute and defiant resistance. Whatever their real strength may be, that strength will un questionably be greatly increased in its efficient value by this concentration in the hands of a general who has not only proved his capacity for the management of great armies, but in proving it has won the unbounded confidence alike of his soldiers and of the populations in rebellion. "In war," said Napoleon, "the moral is to the physical force as three to one." According to this estimate, it will be prudent for us to assume that the new military policy of the confederates has substantially, at least, doubled their power of resistance, whatever that may be.

The total area embraced in the rebellion, independently of Missouri, Kentucky, and Maryland, may be set down in round numbers at 750,000 square miles, inhabited in 1860, by a population of 9,103,543 souls. Out of this colossal territory, equaling the half of Europe, outside of Russia, the rebels are now in practically undisturbed possession of Texas, with its 237,321 square miles, and its population of 600,000 souls. But assuming Texas to be cut off from all available communication with the eastern sections of the "confederacy," and one half the remaining area of the rebellious region to be under our military control (an estimate enormously in excess of the truth) it will be seen that the resources from which Lee is to draw his strength in the future are still formidable enough to forbid all reasonable expectation of an easy, or a speedy triumph over him. They comprise, in round numbers, 250,000 square miles in extent, of the richest and best populated territory of the South—Virginia, the two Carolinas, East Tennessee, and North Georgia—showing in 1860 a density of population nearly equal to that of the great Northwestern States, though falling so far behind New England as New England, in her turn, falls behind the great belt of states from New York to Ohio. How much domestic power of production exists in those states we commonly fail to remember. But the single circumstance that while the manufacture of steam-engines and machinery increased during the decade 1850-60 but 16.4 per cent. in New England, 55.2 per cent. in the Middle States, and 127.1 per cent. in the Western States, it increased no less than 387.3 per cent. in the Southern States, ought to suffice to make us reflect that the elements were ready through the South, at the outbreak of this war, for the great development of home industry. That development has necessarily been stimulated by the war in an extraordinary degree, and so long as the rebels hold territory enough to admit of great strategic movements, and to possess armies strong enough to attempt them, we may be perfectly certain that the war cannot possibly come to an end through any lack on their part either of necessary war material or of necessary provisions. The territory we have seen that they possess.

How is it with the armies? Too much importance, it strikes us, has been attached to the southern debates about arming the negroes. There are obvious political reasons which make such debates desirable by the southern leaders as "moral manifestations" too the benefit of European nations. And it will be observed that the action taken on the subject by the southern Congress is distinctly provisory, and not at all peremptory.

In the fourth volume of his "History of the Romans," Mr. MERIVALE lays it down, upon the authority of the best statistical data, that a population of 1,332,702 free males implies an arms-bearing population of 750,000 men. Now the free white male population of Alabama, Georgia, North and South Carolina and Virginia alone amounted in 1860 to 1,579,828; which would give those states alone an arms-bearing force of more than 900,000 men. If we assume that one half of this force has been lost in four years of war, which is plainly and grossly too much, it is evident that, from the coming forward of males who were under the military age in 1860, and with the addition of the rebel troops now in the field from other states, that the number of arms bearing white males which must be taken as the basis of Lee's military strength, within the restricted limits to which we have assigned his impending operations, cannot be safely put at less than six hundred thousand; a number amply sufficient to insure him the control of at least a quarter of a million of troops disposable for a great campaign.

Time, which tries the resources of a people, also, we must remember, creates the force of an army, and, above all, of a commander; and, if we take all these undeniable circumstances of the case honestly into the account, it will be difficult, we think, to resist the conclusion that the very sorest and most serious part of our military work lies still directly

BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY IN CANADA.

The following testimony from a well known and highly respected Merchant of Prescott, is corroborative of the general approval given to Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY:

PRESCOTT, C. W., Dec. 8th, 1859.

Messrs. S. W. Fowle & Co., Boston.

Gentlemen:—

Being solicited by your Travelling Agent, for an expression of opinion of Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, I with pleasure assert that it is, in my belief, the best remedy before the public for coughs and pulmonary complaints.

Having tested the article with myself and family, in cases of severe coughs and colds, for years, with uniform and unexceptionable success, I unhesitatingly recommend it with full confidence in its merits.

Yours truly,
ALFRED HOOKER.

BY-LAW No.

A BY-LAW to raise by way of loan the sum of six thousand dollars for the purpose therein mentioned.

WHEREAS the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough have resolved to expend the sum of $6000 in constructing, making and repairing the roads and bridges within the said County.

And whereas to carry into effect the said recited object it will be necessary for the said Municipal Council to raise by way of loan the sum of $6000 in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas it will require the sum of $960 to be raised annually by special rate for the payment of the said debt or loan and interest, as also hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the amount of the whole rateable property of the said Municipality, irrespective of any future increase of the same, and also irrespective of any income to be derived from the temporary investment of the sinking fund hereinafter mentioned, or any part thereof, according to the last revised assessment roll of the said Municipality, being for the year one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, was $2,196,683.

And whereas for paying the interest and creating an equal yearly sinking fund for paying the said sum of $6000 and interest, as hereinafter mentioned, it will require an equal annual special rate of thirty-one ninetieths of a mill in the dollar, in addition to all rates to be levied in each year.

Be it therefore enacted by the Municipal Council of the County of Peterborough:

1. That it shall be lawful for the Warden of the said County to raise by way of loan, from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same, upon the credit of the debentures hereinafter mentioned, a sum of money not exceeding in the whole the sum of $6000, and to cause the same to be paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the said County of Peterborough, for the purposes and with the objects above recited.

2. That it shall be lawful for the said Warden to cause any number of debentures to be made for such sums of money as may be required not less than $100 each; and that the said debentures shall be sealed with the seal of the said Municipal Council, and be signed by the said Warden and counter-signed by the Treasurer of said County.

3. That said debentures shall be made payable in 10 years at the furthest from the day hereinafter mentioned for this By-law to take effect, at the office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality, and shall have attached to them coupons for the payment of interest.

4. That the said debentures shall bear interest at and after the rate of six per centum per annum from the date thereof, which interest shall be payable half-yearly, on the first day of April and the first day of October in each year, at the Office of the Treasurer of the said Municipality.

5. That for the purpose of forming a sinking fund for the payment of the said debentures and the interest at the rate aforesaid to become due thereon, an equal special rate of thirty-one ninetieths of a mill in the dollar shall, in addition to all other rates, be raised, levied and collected in each year upon all the ratable property in the said Municipality during the continuance of the said debentures or any of them.

6. This By-law shall take effect and come into operation upon the day of June, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

The above is a true copy of a proposed By-law to be taken into consideration by the Municipality of the County of Peterborough, at its Council Chamber in the Court House, in the said County, on Thursday, the 22nd day of June, 1865, at the hour of 12 of the clock, noon, at which time and place the members of the Council are hereby required to attend for the purpose aforesaid.

MELODEON AND COTTAGE ORGAN EMPORIUM,

PETERBORO, C.W.

Estey's Perfect Melodeon AND COTTAGE ORGAN.
ESTABLISHED 1864.
FORMERLY ESTEY & GREEN.

The only Manufactory in this Country of the Perfect Melodeon and Cottage Organ with Patent Base Damper, Patent Harmonic Attachment, and Patent Manual Sub-Base.

These inimitable Instruments have won their way to public confidence purely on their merits, and not by force of extensive advertising and purchased recommendations. With our increased facilities for manufacture, we are still unable to meet the extraordinary demand made upon us; but we hope soon to be able to fill all orders promptly.

Some of the points of superiority claimed for our Instruments, are these:—

1st.—Smooth, steady and pipe-like quality of tone.

2nd.—Great delicacy of touch and promptness of action; producing, when desired, a low, sweet, lute-like tone, unequalled by any other instrument of the class.

3d.—The Patent Base Damper, which enables the performer to swell the treble without increasing the volume of the base; or, by drawing the Stop, to swell the notes by the action of the foot.

4th.—The Patent Harmonic Attachment. An ingenious octave coupler, which doubles the power of the instrument without increasing its size or the number of reeds.

5th.—The Patent Manual Sub-Base, which are played with the ordinary keys and controlled by a stop. This new and valuable invention requires no extra room and serves as a substitute for the Pedal Base, and can be used by an ordinary performer.

6th.—The Knee-Stop, in the Cottage Organ, which swells or diminishes the tone by a slight movement of the left knee, without interfering with the action of the feet,—having this advantage over the Automatic Swell that the volume of tone may be readily increased without extraordinary effort, and diminished without waiting for the change in the actions of the bellows.

Our recently constructed Cottage Organ, without the attachments, is unsurpassed by any Reed Organ or Harmonium of the size: but, with the Harmonic Attachment and Manual sub-base, it is pronounced by competent judges to be far superior to any other instrument of the class in the world. Its power, sweetness, and variety of tone, simplicity of construction and ease of management, recommend it to every one as being all that is claimed for it, both for the parlor and the church.

The Harmonic Organ, for Churches and Public Halls, has a fine, powerful Pedal Base, with independent reeds: and, with the Harmonic Attachment, is believed to be the most powerful reed organ made, being nearly equal to a pipe organ of three times its cost.

All our Instruments are made in the most thorough manner, and warranted in every respect.

JOS. R. WALTON,
Agent.
Peterborough, Jan. 1865. 4

Rev. A. C. Rose, of Troy, N.Y. says:—These give the value of five Melodeons in one. The ease of touch and promptness of action are unrivalled. It can be played with all the sweetness of the lute or Aolian harp, and changed in an instant to its full power, nearly equal to a twelve stop organ.

All orders addressed to the undersigned will receive prompt attention.

JOSEPH R. WALTON, Peterboro.

TESTIMONIALS.

JAMES BROWN, Esq., M. D.
Peterboro, October 20th, 1864.

I am happy to inform you that after the most persevering and testing trial for some weeks of the Cottage and Parlor Organ, we like it better every day. It is remarkable for variety of tone and power, and several of the best judges here say it is unequalled by any instrument of the kind (with double reed) they have ever heard. You can so control and command all its parts, as to pass easily and rapidly from the softest tones of the Harp, Lute or Piano, to the rich full swell of a large Organ. It is easily played by child or adult, and is already a very great favorite with us. Its compact structure, ingenious combination of power with the new and beautiful Harmonic Attachment and Manual Sub-base are greatly admired and are highly creditable to the maker, Estey, of Vermont. I think it is peculiarly adapted for Church Music.

EDW. F. CROWLE, A. M. &c.
Sheridan Villa Seminary, Peterboro, Dec. 1864.

We are delighted with the Cottage Organ with Harmonic attachment and Manual Sub-bass. We prefer it to any instrument of the kind we have ever seen; its tone, sweet and harmonious in the parlor, possesses sufficient power for a church.

REV. J. C. SLATER.
Wesleyan Parsonage, Millbrook, Jan. 1865.

I have much pleasure in testifying my entire satisfaction of the Cabinet Organ, purchased from you, as an instrument possessing superior qualities in sweetness, variety and strength, to anything of the kind I have ever seen. Two experienced musicians who have examined it, concur with me in recommending it as a perfect instrument adapted to Church or Parlor.

GEO. A. NORRIS, M. D., Recording Steward of the Wesleyan Church, Omemee.
Omemee, July, 1864.

In reply to your inquiries as to the Harmonic Organ, purchased from you for our church, we have to express our highest satisfaction: in purity and sweetness of tone as well as volume of sound, it is all that can be reasonably expected.

Peterborough, Dec. 20th, 1864.

MR J. R. WALTON,—Having examined and played upon the Parlor Organs sold by you, and Manufactured by Mr. Estey. I have great pleasure in pronouncing them a first class instrument. The Harmonic attachment and manual Sub-base being a very great improvement and well worthy the patronage of the Musical public. Yours truly,

A. T. HEATHFIELD,
Organist of St. John's Church,
Peterborough.

IS now in Peterboro' performing his most Astonishing Cures, as usual.

The mercurial Quacks may prate and gabble,
With Latin names for every nostrum;
But Morris' Herbs excels such rabble,
He explains their virtues from his nostrum.

He is well known o'er Canada,
In every City, Town, and Village;
He'll effect a cure for half the pay
Charged by those Quacks who live by pillage.

To those afflicted with RHEUMATISM try Dr. Morris' justly celebrated
Electric Invigorating Fluid,
for dispelling Rheumatic and other pains that may afflict the human system, internal or external.

He doth use such Rosin as have no strife,
With nature or the laws of life:
With mercury his name he'll never stain,
Nor poison men for sake of gain.

Our Father whom all goodness fills,
Provides the means to cure all ills;
The simple herbs beneath our feet,
Well used, relieve our pains complete.

The Invigorating Fluid acts upon the system like electricity, giving relief instantly, in almost every case. PRICE PER BOTTLE, according to size, from 25 cents to One Dollar.

If you are afflicted with Rheumatic pains, Cramps, Colics, and such painful brood, Caused by exposure to cold and rains, Try Morris' Invigorating Fluid.

For COUGHS, COLDS, and all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, use Dr. Morris'
Cough Drops,
They will be found a never-failing remedy for the above complaints.

If you should take a severe cold,
Returning from the walks and hops,
Go where the medicine is sold,
Enquire for Morris' Cough Drops.

To those afflicted with Liver and Billious complaints, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Sick and Nervous Headache, Costiveness, Weak and Disordered Stomach, &c., &c., try
DR. MORRIS' WORLD-RENOWNED
DANDELION PILLS
For Renovating the Blood, Correcting and Strengthening the Liver and Bowels, the Dandelion Pills have no equal.

If you feel nervous, with spirits low,
Disordered system, and other ills,
Take a few days advice and straight you'll go,
For Morris' Dandelion Pills.

WORMS! WORMS! WORMS!
If you would expel those monsters from your dear children, try a box of Dr. Morris'
WORM DESTROYER.

If you have a son or daughter dear,
And the monstrous worms annoy her,
There's relief at hand, dry off that tear,
Get Morris' Worm destroyer

Dr. Morris can furnish reliable testimonials from some of the most respectable inhabitants of Peterboro' and other Towns and Cities of Canada West. For Testimonials see his Pamphlets. The above medicines can be obtained at PROFF. MORRIS' BOTANIC LABORATORY, Simcoe Street, nearly opposite Phelans Hotel, Peterborough.

Dr. Morris invariably treats with success diseases of a secret nature.

CONSULTATION FREE, at his Laboratory, from 9 a. m., to 7 p. m.

Counties of Peterboro' & Victoria
DIRECTORY
FOR 1865-6.

THIS WORK, for which a thorough canvas is now being made, will shortly be published. It will contain a separate Alphabetical Directory of every Town and Village of both Counties, together with an Appendix in which will be found much useful and reliable information of a County and Provincial character.

In order to ensure a large sale for this work—and thus make it an excellent medium for Advertising—it will be issued at the low price of $1.50, at which figure it cannot fail of having a very large circulation.

☞ Any information relative to the rates of advertising, &c, can be obtained at the office of this paper.

MR. BLETCHER,

Sir,—The Combination Sewing Machine I bought of you one year ago, gives me good satisfaction. I have no hesitation in recommending it to the public, as one of the best Sewing Machines now in use.

Yours, &c.,
WILLIAM MILLAR.
Hastings, Nov. 4th, 1863.

THOMAS BLETCHER, Esq., Agent for Wanzer's Sewing Machines.

Dear Sir,—We have much pleasure in stating we have used two of your Singer's Machines in our Woolen Mills, for the last twelve months, and have every reason to be satisfied with them.

We remain, yours respectfully,
THOS. W. NEILD & Co.

These Certificates are all from persons residing in the immediate vicinity; they are not like those shown by American vendors, which may or may not be genuine.

Call at the office over S. White's Boot and Shoe Store, and examine the Machines for yourselves.

Poetry.

LIFE'S LABOUR.

Don't dream but act, my brother;
Out in the race of life,
Be earnest in thy younger years,
Be earnest in the strife.

Up and be doing in the world,
And scatter idle fears,
Cast cloth noble, and earnestly
Fill well thy given years.

Higher be thy aim, and steadfast,
Thy hope be bright and clear;
Let prudence guide thy footsteps,
And faith be ever near.

Faith in the Great Eternal,
Faith in the hope of Heaven,
Faith in the work of life below,
That work to thee that's given.

And ibently, but steadfastly,
Act well life's nobler part;
Thy dominant soul support and cheer,
Comfort the trembling heart.

Go forward in life's struggle,
Out in the race of life;
Be earnest in thy younger years,
Be earnest in the strife.

Though men boasts of holding the reins, the women generally tell them which way they must drive.

The soldier's great risk is that of becoming extinguished before he can become distinguished.

Every man's heart is a living drama; every death is a drop scene; every book only a faint foot-light to throw a little flicker on the stage.

A retired actor, with fondness for poultry, was asked why he named a favorite hen Macduff? He replied that it was because he wanted her to 'lay on.'

A western editor wishes to know whether the law recently enacted against carrying deadly weapons, applies to doctors to carry pills in their pockets.

What is the difference between the Prince of Wales, and the water of a fountain? One is heir to the throne, and the other is thrown to the air.

An author, writing a love story, in describing his heroine, says: 'Innocence dwells in the dark clusters of her hair."—An unromantic editor, reviewing the book, suggests that a fine tooth comb would bring it out.

Always look out for number one. It is the only figure that will enable you to cut a figure. This principle refers alike to getting a rich wife, a pretty companion, and the first shad of the season.

A gentleman sat down to write a deed, and began with 'Know one woman by these presents.' 'You are wrong,' said a bystander, it ought to be 'Know all men.' 'Very well,' answered the other, 'if one woman knows it, all men will of course.

Black-eyed ladies are more apt to be passionate and jealous. Blue-eyed soulful, affectionate and confiding. Grey-eyed philophical, literary, resolute, cold-hearted Hazel-eyed, quick-tempered and fickle.

THERE IS AN END.—To everything beneath the sun there comes a last day—and of all futurity, this is the only portion of time that can in all cases be infallibly predicted. Let the sanguine then take warning, and the disheartened take courage; for to every joy and to every sorrow, to every hope and to every fear, there will come a last day; and the man ought so to live by foresight, that while he learns in every state to be content, he shall in each be prepared for another, whatever the other may be.

JAMIE'S CONUNDRUM.—"Arrah, me darlant," cried Jamie O'Flanigan to his loquacious sweet-heart, who had given him no opportunity to answer her remarks during a two hours' ride behind the little bay nags in his oyster waggon, "are ye afther known' why yer cheeks are just like my ponies' there?" "Sure, and its because they're red, is it?" replied the blushing Bridget. "Faith and a better reason than that, mavourneen. Because, darlent, there is one of them each side of a waggin tongue!"

In the burial register of Lymington, Hants, there is the following entry: "12, August 1772. This forenoon the body of Samuel Baldwin, late inhabitant of this parish, was conveyed in a vessel off to sea, and was commited to the deep off the Needle rock, near the Isle of Wight." This appears to have been done, says a Hampshire paper, in accordance with the wish of deceased, to prevent his wife from dancing over his grave, which she had threatened to do.

Reventlow, the notorious Dutch mnemonical artist, published a work containing the principles of his system of memory. A man bought the book, and after he had studied it a year, he held himself to be entirely initiated and lent it to a friend, but on the next morning could not remember to whom it was lent.

In a poem by Hoffman, the German poet, who was expelled from the Prussian dominions, and the admission of his work prohibited, the following huge word appears: 'Shneerrerweigerungverlassungmassigherrohtigf,' meaning a man who is exempt by the constitution from the payment of taxes. We ourselves have heard of a gentleman, a member of the Marrionettenconphauschoaltchaf, who was said to be an excellent performer on the Constantinapolitanischeludelsackpfeife.

Rev. Mr. Burnham, of Manchester, N. H. recently enlisted in the army as a private, and was sent to the rendezvous at New Haven. Next morning on his arrival, he was summoned before the commanding officer of the post, and addressed: 'Mr. Burnham I see by your name here, that you are a reverend. About a dozen reverends have enlisted and come here; and as you are the first that has staid over night without asking for a chaplaincy! I guess we'll make you chaplain!' So they made an chaplain of he post.

Mariner, Consulting Chemists, Chicago, all of whom have analyzed the Catawba Brandy, and commend it in the highest terms, for medical use.

Analysis of the Massachusetts State Assayer, Jan. 25, 1858.

When evaporated through clean linen it left no oil or offensive matter. In every respect it is a pure spirituous liquor. The oil which gives to this Brandy its flavour and aroma, is fusil, or grain oil. Its order partakes of both the fruit and oil of grapes. With acids, it produces ethers of a high fragrance. The substitution of this Brandy for Cognac Brandy will do away with the manufacture of fictitious spirits, sold under this name both at home and abroad. Respectfully,

A. A. HAYES, M. D., Assayer to State Mass.,
16 Boyleston St.

By the same, in 1864.

I have analyzed "L. LYONS' PURE CATAWBA BRANDY," with reference to its composition and character, being the same as that produced in past years. A sample taken from ten casks afforded the same result with regard to purity; a slightly increased amount of the principle on which its flavor depends was determined by comparison with former samples.

The indication of analysis show that this Brandy is produced by the same process as most of the imported Brandy. Respectfully,

A. A. HAGES, M. D., State Assayer,

WINTER TREATMENT OF SHEEP.

BY T. M. YONGLOVE, STEUBEN CO., N. Y.

Having practised for several years the system of keeping my sheep in close confinement during winter, I do not hesitate to recommend it to others. For two winters I kept one hundred weathers under a hay mow, 20 by 30, with a side rack round the out side on a still, with a double rack through the centre which divided the flock into fifties. One 4½ foot door was opened at a time, for an hour in the middle of the day, giving its fifty an opportunity to go into an open yard for water. All the rest of the time they were kept shut close, with only just room to lie down. They did better than those with more room. My ewes were divided into flocks of twenty-five, and were penned by turning two open racks at right angles, giving the ewes a chance at two sides of a rack.

These are watered by setting a box 15 by twenty four inches, and 8 inches deep, in the rack and the water carried to it with a pail. This allows two flocks to drink from one box. Before foddering, the box is turned over and left in the rack. A little meal thrown into the box will stop all leaks.

The good sized ewes will drink three pails of water, but will do very well with half that amount daily. The watering should be during the warmest part of the day, and once a day is sufficient. Care should be taken not to over-feed.

I think it is equally as detrimental to over-feed sheep on hay, as it is horses or cattle, on grain. It is not so well to let a horse or an ox have free access to the oat bin, as to give them a regular meal twice a day. So with the sheep, they should only have what they can eat up clean, in from one hour to one hour and a half. Some practice giving the sheep more than they want, and then clean out the racks for the colts. A careful feeder will only give what is needed, and with a very little care can come very near the actual wants of the flock. I do not hesitate to say it is far better for the flock than over-feeding, whether fed on hay, straw, or grain.

The practice of stacking sheep out, and at best give them an open shed, cannot be too highly censured. Sheep are very regardless of the future. They will frequently stand out during a sharp rain and chew the cud, when they might as well seek a near shelter. The fleece forms a temporary protection, and a sheep feels the storm very little through it, unless accompanied with wind or severe cold. It is the days that follow a wet fleece that tell on the health and constitution of a flock of sheep. It is this that the flock-master must look to with especial care, as the sheep has only the instinct for his present wants. The future depends on the shepherd. The objection most frequently urged against this method of wintering sheep, is that the ewe has too little exercise for the health and strength of the lamb. I feared that myself, but practice has proved my success, as my flock of lambs can now speak for themselves, as nearly as a dumb article can speak. They can at least speak understandingly to the eye of a practical wool grower. The flock should be foddered soon after daylight in the morning, and early enough at night to allow them time to clean all up before dark. Sheep kept in this way will have a sprightly look from the eye, and when standing at ease are inclined to stand with fore and hind feet apart. While those exposed to all the inclemencies of the weather, will stand with all the feet close together, roach back and dull eye. Too much ventilation is a source of annoyance to a flock. When I keep all the sides closed for weeks, my flock does better than when left open.—Amer. Stock Journal.

PREPARING RENNET.

The art of cheese-making consists in seperating the casein, combined with a certain proportion of butter, so as to preserve it in a concentrated and portable form for the food of man.

It appears that the most complete coagulation is effected by the agency of the prepared stomach of the calf or the lamb, as used by the Stilton cheese makers. The calf's stomach when prepared is called a vell, and is sold by most chemists in the dairy districts.

From these vells is made rennet.

In Cheshire the rennet is made fresh from the vells every day. These, procured fresh from the butcher the previous year, are cleaned, salted and laid one over the other, with a layer of salt between each in a deep earthenware vessel. They are taken out a month previous to use. the brine is drained from them, and they are spread out, covered with salt and dried. Two bits of two or three square inches are cut off these and put into half a pint of warm water the day before use, along with a teaspoonful of salt. This is sufficient for 50 or 60 gallons of milk.

In other parts rennet is prepared in the following manner: A brine is made strong enough to bear an egg; this is then boiled half-an-hour, and when quite cold put into a jar—the large olive oil jars holding about 30 gallons are very useful for this purpose; to every two gallons of brine are added six vells and one lemon sliced, which does away with any disagreeable smell. Spices, such as cloves, also, are added by some, as they keep the rennet in good condition, and give it an an agreeable flavour. One ounce of saltpetre to every two gallons should be added.

This should be done in February, and is a most essential part of cheese making, and the greatest care should be taken that the vells are sweet. The rennet thus made exerts so powerful an influence as to coagulate the casein of 1800 times its weight of milk. The advantage of using the rennet in this form is that when once its strength is ascertained it can be used with confidence.—J. T. HARRISON, before Royal Agricultural College, Cirencester.

TO KEEP MINCE MEAT.—George P. Passmore, Chester Co., Pa., writes to the American Agriculturist that mince-meat prepared at any time of the year may be kept entirely sweet for months by packing it in stone jars, and covering the surface with say half an inch of molasses to exclude the air. This is worth remembering when at any time a larger quantity of beef is cooked than is wanted immediately. [A layer of lard over it will keep it.]

Omelet.—Contributed to the American Agriculturist by Louisa J. Wilson, Armstrong Co., Pa. Beat together four eggs and one cup sweet milk. Have ready a skillet with a peice of butter the size of a walnut, on a moderate fire. When the eggs are beaten, place them in a skillet and cook ten or fifteen minuete. [A capital addition to the above is, parboiled ham cut into small bits and mixed with the omelet when placed in the skillet.]

SPONGE CAKE.—Contributed to the American Agriculturist by Mrs. B. McClellan, Sandusky Co., O.: "Mix 6 eggs, thoroughly beaten, with 2 cups sifted sugar, 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoonful cream tartar, ½ teaspoonful soda and a little salt.

ARE YOU IN AGONY?

A WELL SPRING OF HOPE FOR ALL!

CAN BE FOUND IN

Holloway's Pills.

Be of Good Cheer! The Sinking may be Saved!

BY THE USE OF

Holloway's Ointment.

THE history of these great Remedies is the most wonderful medical revelation that the world has ever known. It establishes the all important fact that WHEREVER, and in WHATEVER SHAPE internal diseases exists, the disinfecting, searching and healing properties of the Pills are fully equal to its subjection and cure, and that, with the Ointment, they are

The Great Ambassadors of Health to all Mankind.

This is not a history written by one man, or even derived from the experiences of one nation It consists of a compilation of testimonials from the sick of every country—an unimpeachable record, the like of which has never been adduced in favor of any discovery or intention since time began.

These Mighty Healers, World Known and World Tried are a Boon to the Sick

The want of a sterling medicinal to meet the ills and necessities of the suffering portion of humanity, and one entirely free from mineral and other deleterious particles, was severely felt till this all powerful medicine was ushered into the world: HOLLOWAY'S INVALUABLE PILLS have become the HOUSEHOLD REMEDY of all nations Their attribute is to PREVENT as well as to CURE: they attack the MARK OR ROOT of the complaint, and thus, by removing the hidden cause of disease, re-invigorate and restore the drooping energies of the system, assisting nature in her task of VITAL and FUNCTIONARY REFORMATION.

Disorders of the Stomach

Are the sources of the deadliest maladies. Their effect is to vitiate all the fluids of the body, and to send a poisoned stream through all the channels of circulation. Now, what is the operation of the Pills? They cleanse the bowels, regulate the liver, bring the relaxed or irritated stomach into a natural condition, and, acting through the secretive organs upon the blood itself, change the state of the system from sickness to health, by exercising a simultaneous and wholesome effect upon all its parts and functions.

Woman in all her Difficulties

Is invited to test the regulating and restorative powers of this harmless but effective preparation. At the two epochs of life in which the female system undergoes the most important and critical changes, the Pills will prove a positive safeguard against evil consequences. They are also confidently recommended as a specific in every disorder to which females are exclusively subject.

Be it Understood,

That the above statements can at all times be verified by the written testimony (extending through a quarter of a century) of tens of thousands of unimpeachable witnesses.

Bilious Maladies, &c., &c.

In whatever form disease attacks the liver, it is repelled and exterminated by this searching, painless, and irresistable curatives. Bilious remittents, bilious purging, and all the ordinary disorders of the organ, indicated by pain in the right side and between the shoulders, yellowness of the whites of the eyes, weakness and debility, &c., are relieved and removed by the remedy, with a celerity which astonishes the sufferers and their friends. Let the sick whom the faculty have abandoned, resort with confidence to this powerful anti-bilious agent, and a restoration to health and activity will be the unvarying result.

Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Weakness, &c. &c.

The terrible bodily and mental pangs which characterize Dyspepsia are at once mitigated by the Pills. Diarrhœa, constipation, headache, physical prostration, nervous tremors, hot flushes, spasms, affections of the kidneys, hemorrhoids or piles, and, in fact, all internal complaints, from whatever cause arising, give way before the salutary influence of this extraordinary remedy. As a specific for dyspepsia, and the disorders connected with it, or growing out of it, the Pills are always to be relied on when every other medicine and mode of treatment has utterly failed.

Holloway's Pills are the best Remedy known for the following diseases:

Asthma,	Headaches,
Bowel Complaints,	Indigestion,
Coughs,	Influenza,
Colds,	Inflamation,
Chest Diseases,	Inward Weakness,
Costiveness,	Liver Complaints,
Dyspepsia,	Lowness of Spirits,
Diarrhœa,	Piles,
Dropsy,	Stone and Gravel,
Debility,	Secondary Symptoms,
Fever and Ague,	Vernal Affections,
Female Complaints,	Worms of all kinds.

CAUTION.

If the readers of this "notice" cannot get a box of Pills or Ointment from the drug store in his place, let him write to me, enclosing the amount, and I will mail a box free of expense. Many dealers will not keep my medicines on hand because they cannot make as much profit as on other persons' make.

None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a Water Mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each box: the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same knowing them to be spurious.

Sold at the manufactory of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes, at 25 cents, 88 cents, and $1 40 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes. 33
